PROVE CANADA LOWERS LAKES; CHICAGO PAYS

Engineers Blame Dominion Greed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Canadian greed is pitted against the health and lives of Chicago's three million people in the battle over lake levels it was revealed today in an investigation in progress here which exposes engineering facts pointing indisputably to Canada, and not Chicago, as the transgressor.

Insidious propaganda, sedulously spread over the continent, has caused Chicago—fighting pestilence and death by sending its wastes down the drainage canal instead of into Lake Michigan, its drinking fountain—to be painted a colossal water thief. It has been made to appear that the waters of all the lakes were rushing out through Chicago's kettle spout.

Engineering Facts Revealed.

But below the crust of falsehood are solid engineering truths, the inquiry reveals, which not only expose Canada's water thievery as eclipsing the diversion by Chicago, but now place the blame for the low levels of the Great Lakes upon Chicago's loudest accusers, Canada, the Canadian power hogs, and the lakes states which have joined in Canada's cry.

And not the precious water alone has Canada taken, but it has scooped the St. Clair river beds here, taking millions of yards of valuable sand and gravel to the Detroit markets for American dollars. With every yard the Canadian government has exacted a royalty of 20 cents, and with every yard the chasm of the St. Clair has yawned wider, letting the waters of Lakes Michigan and Huron plunge still faster and faster, the while their levels fall and fall.

There on the St. Clair river, just north of this city, in which whole conventions have venomously assailed Chicago, lies the crux of the whole controversy; it is the cause and it offers the remedy, the investigation proves.

Blame Laid on Canada.

Of the specific results of the inquiry, those made public today deal with the sand and gravel dredging of the Canadians, and the consequent hurrying forth of the waters. Tomorrow will be exposed the facts which lie upon the Canadian money grabbers and power hogs the full blame for the continued [illegible] lake levels which are interfering [illegible] shipping of deep draft vessels.

At the [illegible] St. Clair river, adjacent to [illegible] Edward, is what engineers there [illegible] steep grade of the river, and [illegible] the dredgers term the "Tunnel." Civil and government engineers agree that this stretch exercises absolute control of the water flow from Lake Huron through the St. Clair and Detroit rivers to Lake Erie.

Dredging Not Necessary.

On the Canadian side of the river the ages have left a rich gravel, wonderful material for street paving. And for years the dredgers' scows have gone heavily laden down to the Detroit and Windsor gravel docks.

Canadian engineers have claimed loudly that the dredging was necessary to make the stream navigable. The investigation by noted civil and government experts has contradicted them flatly, and even the dredgers themselves testified in the present inquiry that none of the Point Edward dredging was done to assist navigation.

What has been the result? In addition to the engineers' charts showing how the lowering of the channel brought down the levels of Lakes Huron and Michigan, there is a simpler formula cited by them which the engineers state proves their case.

How Blame Is Fixed.

The average level of the two lakes in 1926 was 32 inches below the average of the last 65 years. Lake Erie, which receives the waters of Michigan and Huron through the St. Clair outlet, suffered a lowering of only 19 inches below average. The difference of 13 inches may be charged against the St. Clair dredging, which has poured the waters of Huron and Michigan into Erie, the investigators assert. Lowering of all the lakes is due principally to a great lack of rainfall in recent years, engineers agree.

So all the while that Canada, abetted by officials of Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, has been crying thief at Chicago for its use of 8,500 cubic feet per second of water to save its citizens' lives, Canada has been exploiting nature's work for her own gain, and under the very noses of the American officials in these parts, it is shown.

Not until repeated protest from the

McKINLEY HAS NEW RELAPSE; IS DELIRIOUS

Martinsville, Ind., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois who has been critically ill here for the past two days, suffered a relapse tonight, his physician, Dr. R. H. Egbert, announced. The aged senator, who will reach his seventieth birthday tomorrow, had been failing since 5 o'clock this evening and was delirious.

The senator's pulse had risen to 118, his temperature to 102, and his respiration to 40, according to Dr. Egbert. His left lung was showing more extensive involvement.

The senator's long illness has gradually taken all his vitality. He was operated upon some time ago at Baltimore, and on Aug. 18, was brought here to recuperate. He has been in a serious condition ever since.

IOWA'S CHAMPION BABY TAKEN FROM ORPHANS' HOME

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Iowa's sweepstakes champion baby may never know who its parents are. She is Vesper Lee Voss, thirty-one months old, who was adjudged the state's best baby at the Iowa state fair when she scored 99.08 per cent perfect on physical and mental tests.

Her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph S. Voss of Des Moines, adopted her in December, 1924, from the Iowa Children's home here. Iowa's baby health queen was born Jan. 20, 1924, and lived with her parents until Feb. 8 of that year, when she was taken to the orphanage, which, on request, hides a child's identity.

Theater Music Strike Is Off; Men Get Raise

By a compromise reached early this morning between the striking members of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and their theater managers, 3,000 movie house musicians are granted an increase in wages of $4.50 instead of the $5 for which they asked, and they will receive $4 instead of $2 for each rehearsal. Their demands for an increase of from fifteen to twenty minutes' hourly rest period were dropped.

The agreement averts the threatened strike, which was to have taken effect today and would have compelled the theaters to stage their performances without music.

The compromise was reached after a series of meetings lasting throughout the afternoon and evening in which both sides stood firm. Finally a joint session was held at the La Salle hotel. The theater managers were represented by Attorney George F. Barrett and the musicians' spokesman was James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago federation.

Orpheum Not Included.

After several hours' wrangling at this meeting the compromise was agreed upon. The managers had previously stated that the wage increase was only a minor matter and that the question of changed working conditions was paramount.

The compromise, however, does not affect the strike called for the Orpheum Circuit theaters, in which the issue is national, and the order for the strike in the ten theaters of that circuit in Chicago was issued by the international union. Unless unforeseen conditions arise the strike will be effective tonight in the State-Lake, Palace, Majestic, Englewood, Tower, Lincoln, Kedzie, Academy, Diversey, and Riviera theaters.

Start of Strike Move.

First moves in the strike came with the order that all union musicians employed in Orpheum circuit vaudeville houses strike for a $5 a week raise in pay and an increase of from 15 to 20 minutes hourly rest period. This order was effective at midnight last night. Summarizing the union's stand on that question President Petrillo president of the Chicago federation, said, "the Orpheum circuit cleared $50,000,000 last year and we feel they should be made to increase the salaries of their musicians accordingly."

The national issue, spreading from California, draws out the movie players in fifty cities throughout the country. The situation, summed up by both sides here last night, showed each faction at loggerheads with the other by statements from each side.

For the musicians Mr. Petrillo stated that the exhibitors were making progress in their business and that the musicians should progress accordingly. "If times were bad and they were not making money," he said, "we would take a cut." Contrasting this, Jack Miller, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of America, contended it was the demand on working conditions to which the managers objected.

In a lengthy statement that organization complained that "conditions have come to such a pass that it is utterly impossible for operators of theaters in Chicago to conduct their business under the rules and regulations as imposed on them by the board of the musicians' union."

STRIKE PICKETS ARRESTED.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 4.—[U. P.]—Twenty men were at liberty on bail today on charges of selling literature before downtown theaters, denouncing the managements for employment of nonunion music during the musicians' strike.

Carl Burns, director of a musical act on Pantages circuit, said he was severely beaten and thrown from a machine by four men. Union officials said Pantages theater orchestras throughout the west were on strike today as well as all musical acts touring that circuit.

TRIO FLEECED OF BANK MONEY BY HANDBOOKS

Three youthful tellers of the South Side Trust & Savings bank at Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-seventh street, not one of whom had ever seen a race horse, much less a horse race, started out six months ago to win a fortune via the handbook.

Last night at the detective bureau two of them talked freely, admitting that between them they had stolen probably $85,000 out of the accounts in their charge, and that the third, who had slipped quietly out of the bank at 9:30 in the morning when he sensed the blowup was coming, had taken probably $100,000 more.

The two clerks in custody were Ulric Genslinger, 26 years old, 4109 Drexel boulevard, and John F. O'Connell, 27, of 8242 South Carpenter street. Detectives were seeking Peter Hein, 6853 South State street, who slipped away when he saw exposure coming.

Handbook Owner Seized.

After O'Connell and Genslinger had told their story, Sergt. Barney Corcoran and his bureau squad went out and got Henry Hust, proprietor of a handbook and saloon at 3522 Parnell avenue, and William J. Morgan, a "runner" for Hust, who used to go to the bank and take the money the young men put up for bets right through their cash windows.

Arthur Wrigley, owner of a cigar store at 744 East 43d street, also was taken into custody shortly before midnight. Genslinger said that he had gambled away $15,500 in Wrigley's smoke shop.

In addition to Hein, detectives were seeking also John W. Church, 1455 East 69th street, a former teller for the bank, who was said to have got $40,000 from the men in custody.

Detectives to whom O'Connell and Genslinger told their stories were amazed at the utter naïveté of the youths. They did not know, the sleuths said, even the rudiments of betting on the horse; so ignorant of the game were they that they often didn't know when they had won.

Bet $1,200 Yesterday.

"They would play their money across the board," said one detective, "and if their horse didn't come in first they would not know they had won anything. They didn't know anything about place and show."

O'Connell said he bet $1,200 yesterday. He put $400 each on Redhead, Alibi, and Raquet. "I needed alibi, I guess," he said with a crooked smile.

"Redhead came home at 25 to 1," O'Connell said. "The bookies only pay 15 to one, though. Even so it was a pretty good break with $400 on."

O'Connell, who lives with his wife and 26 months old baby in the home of his mother-in-law, said he had taken at least $75,000 during his quest of fortune by the races. He said of that sum he had won back from Hust, to whom it all went, about $25,000, and that he had put that $25,000 back into the bank's accounts.

O'Connel said that Church, a former teller, had left the bank about six months ago and that at that time he was "$40,000 in the hole." He said for a long time, he and Hein had given their money to Church to bet, that instead of betting it he had put it in his pocket and that he had thus cleared up his debt.

Combined to Hide Shortages.

The young men were able to escape detection, bank officials said, by a careful system of substitutions, the juggling of the various accounts in their charge and by all working together in each transaction.

O'Connell and Hein had a joint account in the Stony Island Trust and Savings bank, on which they both occasionally drew, and it was through this account that their exposure came about. Hein issued a check for $12,000, which overdrew the account, and when O'Connell deposited $12,000 in checks and currency the Stony Island officials became suspicious and notified the South Side company.

Isaac N. Powell, president of the bank, sets the peculations of the three youths at a much lower figure than they do. He said they had taken between them altogether about $33,000.

"They had a clever system but they were bound to be caught soon," Mr. Powell said. "It's something no man can get away with for long. The bank is fully covered by insurance for what they have taken." Each of the three clerks had been with the bank for about six years.

Joseph (Indian Joe) Huszar, former chief of police of Broadview and as such a notorious speed trapper, last night learned how it feels to look through the bars from the wrong side. Andrew Borg, the new chief, put Joe in a cell for an automobile law violation and drawing a gun. Joe remained an hour or more inside of the bars.

Finds Car Lacks License.

Indian Joe, who recently in connection with the speed trap he conducted in the little village west of the city was indicted for robbery with a gun, conspiracy to extort money, and assault, had not been abroad much in his automobile lately when he suddenly appeared last evening on Roosevelt road.

Chief Borg saw his predecessor stop his car in front of the latter's home at 18th avenue and Roosevelt road. He noticed that the car bore no license. He walked over and asked Joe about it.

Indian Joe turned on his successor with a sneer.

"It's none of your d——d business," he said, "whether I've got a license or not."

Chief Borg quietly made out a ticket and handed it to Joe. Joe crumpled it and threw it away. Then, it is charged, Indian Joe reached into his back pocket and jerked out a gun, which he pointed at Chief Borg.

Takes Away Joe's Gun.

The next instant the gun had been knocked out of his hand, he had been jerked bodily out of his car, and was on his way to the village lockup.

The charge placed against Indian Joe was that of assault with a deadly weapon.

Edward J. Wareham, justice of the peace with whom Joe had a perfect understanding in his speed trapping days so recently terminated and who is indicted with Joe on the conspiracy charge, released Joe after an hour on $500 bonds furnished by an attorney.

ARMOUR GRAIN HEARING IS SET FOR TUESDAY

The Chicago Board of Trade on Tuesday will hold a hearing on charges preferred against the Armour Grain company in connection with the alleged adulteration of a shipment of rye. The specific charge is that 5,000 bushels of rye screenings were mixed with a shipment of contract rye.

The case has been hanging fire for several months and three committees of the board of trade have made inquiries into it without making any findings. These committees are the business conduct committee, the warehouse committee, and a special committee appointed for that purpose.

When these committees failed to take action the directors of the board decided to take the matter into their own hands and the trial was set for next Tuesday. This action, it is reported, was the result of a demand made on the board directors by the United States government.

The shipment of rye which caused the trouble was transferred from a private warehouse to a public warehouse. One sampler for the board of trade was suspended at the time the charges first were made, on the supposition that he permitted the transfer without sufficient examination. He since has been reinstated, but tests made by another sampler caused the filing of the complaint and the resultant trial.

Dry Agent Kills Man; Charged with Murder

Miami, Fla., Sept. 4.—[U. P.]—E. V. Hobbs, plasterer, was shot and instantly killed by J. W. Collins, federal prohibition agent, here this afternoon when the agent attempted to disperse a crowd watching the destruction of confiscated liquor. Collins is held on a first degree murder charge. C. E. Inmon, brother-in-law of the dead man, was beaten over the head by Collins.

BREAD, WATER DIET RESERVED FOR RUM CASES

Nebraska Restricts Law's Application.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tekamah, Neb., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Tekamah, an old battle ground scene of the covered wagon period in American life, now a land of fat river bottom farms, offers to the nation today as an impressive spectacle in law enforcement and cure for the bootleg evil, the bread and water cure for all liquor law violators.

"For the good of the public," is the way County Judge Orville Chatt regards his sentences of ten and twenty day stretches on baker's bread and spring water for the indiscreet young farmers of the county. The judge is now in Rochester, Minn., but he has indicated that there will be no backdown in this campaign which is attracting national attention.

But the bread-and-water punishment is reserved to liquor law violations. It doesn't apply to murderers, robbers, or any other brand of caiminal.

Supreme Court Upholds It.

The recent decision of the State Supreme court, upholding the right of the county judge to give such sentences, appears to leave the community hog tied to this method of administering justice insofar as Volstead violations are concerned.

Thomas Nelson and Roy Carson, farmers who must serve forty days on bread and water out of sixty day sentences, are the next victims awaited by Sheriff W. D. Smith, who holds that such a diet would do most men good.

While it is called a bootleg sentence, the facts are that in the Nelson and Carson cases, and in the case of young Max Saltzman, now in jail, drinking and possession of liquor, rather than selling liquor, were the actual charges. Saltzman is 16 years old. He says he had a drink of wine the morning he was arrested, and never drank whisky. He sits today in a barred window ledge in the modern and commodious jail provided by the county, looking at the boys at play in the town square.

Feels All Right, Boy Says.

"I feel all right," he said today. He has just come out of a ten day's bread and water period and has ten days of regular meals in prospect and then ten more bread and water days before he can call himself free.

He lives and acts about the same as the four other prisoners in the jail. There are two boy automobile thieves [who get regular meals], a Spanish war veteran who runs a feed store and who imbibed too much lemon extract, and Mannie Saltzman, brother of Max, who is in on a shooting charge growing out of the same liquor party in which Max was caught.

Joe Olinger, the Spanish war veteran, is rather feeble and potbellied. On advice of his physician the sheriff has not put Joe on a bread and water diet yet, although this was his sentence. The sheriff is an old Cuban, Philippine and China soldier himself. He remembers the embalmed beef days.

Won't Hurt 'Em, Sheriff Says.

"Most of us eat too much," he said, "and it will not hurt these prisoners to buckle their belts and go hungry. They get white or rye bread, or mixed. They seldom eat a loaf a day, and never more. Once in a while a fellow complains of cramps or something, but I tell him it is the old booze working out of him, and pay no attention."

Judge Chatt is not a dry fanatic, his townsmen say, but a great believer in law enforcement, particularly the Volstead law.

He early hit upon the bread and water idea for bootleggers. His first sentences were comparatively mild, 5 or 10 days. Now they are running to 15 and 20 days. It is a test of the cure.

Bootlegging Not Eradicated.

Bootlegging has not been eradicated. Drinking goes on normally, even though the community is bone dry, politically. Herbert Rhodes, county attorney, who attends to the prosecuting, is not able to state definitely whether the bootleg problem has been solved, or whether the number of these cases is lessening. The sheriff says they seem to be going down, with the sentences going up.

There is a good deal of criticism of the court around town for these sentences as severe and inhuman, but no concentrated opposition has yet formed.

The regular jail fare, given to the auto thieves and the near murderer, Mannie Saltzman, as well as all others except the hip flask brothers, is about as follows: Breakfast—Bacon, one egg, potatoes, two slices bread and butter, jelly roll, and coffee. Dinner—Roast beef or pork, potatoes, tomatoes, beans, bread, and butter, coffee. Supper—Cold meat, bread and butter, sauce, coffee.

The meals for the prisoners, except the bread and water boys, all come from the bountiful table of the sheriff.

All are locked in one tier of cells, which are opened during the day so that the prisoners can mingle inside the cage. Meal times arrive and a big basket of tempting food is served to all except the boys who were caught with the wet goods. They are in a class by themselves. They may look at the food basket, but may not partake.

Abortionist Better Treated.

Even the notorious Dr. Henry Christenson, osteopath physician who killed a girl in an abortion operation and who was brought back here from another state after he had been a fugitive for two years, was not given the bread and water treatment. He was found after he had attacked a paralytic girl who was his patient in another town and after the people of that town had threatened to hang him.

The sheriff went after him and got him away from the enraged citizens and brought him back here to be fattened for the penitentiary. While the bootleggers and dance hall drinkers were repenting on bread and water, the doctor had roast beef and jelly and other good things.

It has been the same wth several rapists who were confined here, and with all other classes of convicts. The liquor law alone has been picked out by Judge Chatt as the one that must be enforced with tears and semi-starvation.

Statute Passed in 1872.

The statute under which his sentences are made was passed in 1872 to fit some crime particularly abhorrent at that time. It follows:

"When the imprisonment is to be without labor, the sentence may require the convict to be fed on bread and water only, the whole or any part of the term of imprisonment."

Nelson and Carson are in the limelight now because, after seven days in jail on bread and water last April, they hired an Omaha attorney, A. R. Oleson, to take the case to the Supreme court. They lost and must serve the rest of their sentences as soon as the sheriff gets the mandate of the court. This is expected the first of the week. The theory of the appeal was that this sentence was not in line with the constitution, which states that cruel and unusual punishment may not be given in the state.

Caught by a Dry Informer.

Nelson rents a farm near here and has three dependent children. His wife has left him since this trouble. He has three hundred and sixty head of stock to feed and no one to help him. Despite all this he is to be brought in and put on the most severe punishment that the judge has yet given, twenty days at a time on bread and water.

He is said to be a bootlegger that the officers never were able to get until one day they happened to find a quantity of wine and hard liquor on his place. One phase is that a state prohibition officer attended a dance and induced Nelson and Carson to get the liquor for him.

In the case of Howard Whiteacre, which was appealed with Nelson, the defendant is charged with having one pint of liquor in his possession. That means bread and water.

FRANCE THANKS WOMAN SPY FOR HER WAR WORK

PARIS.—Sept. 4.—[U. P.]—Eight years after the armistice a French woman spy, Mme. Le Brun, who went into Germany thirteen times during the war and whose disclosures caused at least three German women spies to be executed, has received the official thanks of the French government.

One of the greatest successes was in running down a German woman named Felicia Pfaadt, who specialized in obtaining news of troop movements at Marseilles and Toulon. She was pretty, smartly dressed, and spoke impeccable French. Miss Pfaadt was arrested, but the French counter-espionage authorities had no proof. Madame Le Brun was set to work. One morning she entered the German woman's prison cell, and with cleverly faked documents made Felicia believe that she, too, was a German spy.

Mme. Le Brun told Miss Pfaadt that she could obtain her liberty, but she would have to go back to Germany at once, because her employers were discontented, as she had sent them no information for a month. The German woman protested that she had worked well, and promised to write out a full account of her exploits. She handed over the document to the Frenchwoman, who gave it to the French authorities. The court martial of French officers sentenced Felicia Pfaadt to be shot at dawn.

AMERICAN HOST TO 700 GIRLS IN PARIS; COST $100

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—All American records for entertainment of French girls were shattered by Frank H. Maynard, a New York manufacturer, who gave a luncheon to 700 midinettes, mannequins, and stenographers who live in the Salvation Army's new "Women's Palace." This New York daddy gave the girls a 5 franc (14 cent) spread—a vast improvement over the army's usual 3 franc (8 cent) banquet—with hors d'oevers, soup, trout, roast beef, cauliflower, potatoes, cheese, fruit and ginger ale instead of wines, because the Salvation Army here is dry, as it is in the United States.

Mr. Maynard, who is staying at the Hotel Ritz with his wife, was amazed to read in the Paris edition of The Tribune that the Salvation Army was serving 3 franc meals in its new working girls' home and decided to see how it was done, and also give the girls a luncheon. His generosity cost him about $100. Mr. Maynard also gave the Salvation Army 20,000 francs ($592) and is building a gymnasium for the unique palace where rooms cost the working girl 30 francs (88 cents) a week.

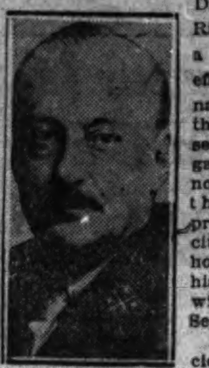
Gordon Hammersley to Wed N. Y. Debutante

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Gordon Hammersley, wealthy New York sportsman, today confirmed a rumor of his engagement to Miss Hillis Morris, New York debutante. He said the wedding will take place in Grace church, New York, next month.

DE RIVERA CALLS ON SPAIN TO BACK UP DICTATORSHIP

Orders Plebiscite; Gives Women Over 18 Vote.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



PRIMO DE RIVERA.

MADRID, Sept. 4.—With his prestige assailed from within and without, Dictator Primo de Rivera is making a grim, desperate effort to club the nation into giving the dictatorship a semblance of legality. He announced today that the long promised plebiscite by which he hopes to legalize his government, will be held on Sept. 11, 12 and 13.

After such a decided crimp had been put into his demand for Spanish control of Tangier, as well as his claims for a permanent seat in the league of nations council, and with the appointment by the king of Gen. Berenguer, Gen. De Rivera's bitterest enemy, to his personal household, the dictator suddenly decided to hold the plebiscite immediately.

Women to Get Vote.

All citizens, men and women (this is the first time electoral recognition has been given to women in Spain) over 18 years old, will be called upon to "register their allegiance to the government."

Gen. De Rivera has set to work organizing plebiscite commissions in all the principal towns under chairmanship of the mayors, and composed of three members from the Union Patriotica and others to be designated later. The Union Patriotica was formed after Dictator De Rivera's coup d'état, to take the place of other political organizations.

Citizens will be called before the commission to express themselves as for or against the dictatorship.

Announcement of these plans immediately raised a yell from the liberal elements. They are expected to appeal to sympathizers with the constitutional government to boycott the plebiscite. The plebiscite is expected to be followed by the election of a national assembly to succeed the cortes, which was dissolved three years ago by a decree of the king.

See Fall of Dictator Near.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAYONNE, France, Sept. 4.—The fall of Gen. Primo de Rivera, the Spanish dictator, is deemed imminent in Madrid tonight, according to uncensored reports coming across the Spanish frontier.

The name of Gen. Magaz, former vice president in Gen. de Rivera's military directorate and now ambassador to the Vatican, looms as the successor. It is reported in well informed circles in the capital tonight that King Alfonso soon will call Gen. Magaz to take over the government, which is badly harassed by foreign controversies and by its tussle with the army juntas after a clash with the dictator in the early months of the directorate. Gen. Magaz was sent to Rome.

With Gen. de Rivera's weakness made apparent by his losing struggle with the groups of officers, King Alfonso is the real master of affairs and if he undertakes more active support of the army's side in the nasty row by the substitution of a popular general in the present dictator's place, it is believed the now dangerously imminent clash can be averted.

All Backed Tangier Demand.

Although a week ago the long feud between Gen. de Rivera and the officers apparently was settled, the situation suddenly developed with a new intensity, necessitating immediate action to avoid serious trouble. The government's concession a week ago when it agreed to let the new system of promotion by merit, which was the cause of all the trouble, become effective only on the approval of the officers themselves, failed to remedy the situation. Quiet reigned all week only because of the need of solidarity to back up the demands for Spanish control of Tangier.

France and Great Britain refused this demand and the news is being passed now that Gen. de Rivera, having lost the prop of national necessity, stands revealed in all his weakness. He has suffered a loss of prestige as a result of the kaleidoscopic changes of heart and displays of temper which he made during the three months' army feud.

His best friends say he is physically tired and near a breakdown, which accounts for the flagging of the genius which he had shown previously in getting out of tight fixes. He is in his tightest fix today.

A change in government may also result in Spain backing down from Gen. de Rivera's decision to quit the league of nations unless granted a permanent seat in the council. The leading friends of the king do not want Spain to get out of the league.

BLOODY KERCHIEF NOW ENTERS THE HALL-MILLS CASE

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A man's bloodstained handkerchief, bearing the initial "S," was found four years ago near where the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were shot to death, but it figured in the case for the first time today.

The handkerchief was found by Thomas A. Lyons, a retired bus owner of New Brunswick, N. J., according to Inspector John Underwood.

Lyons was questioned at state police headquarters today and said he was returning from Red Bank about 12:30 the night of the murders. As he passed the Middlesex county vocational school on the outskirts of New Brunswick he heard people arguing. He did not stop, and later an automobile passed him at high speed.

Four days later he read of the murders. He and a New Brunswick policeman then went to the place where he had heard the argument and they found the handkerchief.

MISSISSIPPIANS INVITE ILLINOIS TO VISIT STATE

The state of Mississippi is playing an important part in the industrial development of the new south and is particularly receptive of eastern and midwest capital, accordnig to Edgar H. Bradshaw of Jackson, who came here yesterday as a member of a commission visiting the more important cities of the country on a boosting trip.

And to show their good feeling toward Illinois in particular Oct. 19, the second day of the annual six day state fair, has been officially designated as Illinois day and the committee on arrangements has secured Frank O. Lowden for the principal speech.

As an incentive to those who may care to visit the Jackson fair the Illinois Central railroad informed Mr. Bradshaw, he said, that they were planning an excursion on Illinois day from Chicago.

"Mississippians feel that the natural resources of the state should be combined with outside capital for an industrial as well as an agricultural development of their commonwealth," said Mr Bradshaw.

"Mississippi has immense resources of raw materials and an abundance of labor. A very substantial development has taken place on the gulf coast, where something like $68,000,000 is now being expended for improvements."

PREDICTS 34 HOUR BERLIN-CHICAGO FLIGHTS SOON

Thirty hour spins from the principal capitals of Europe to Chicago in twelve-propeller airplanes within comparatively a few years were predicted last night by Dr. Leonhard Adler, traffic commissioner of Berlin. He is studying Chicago traffic conditions while on a week's official visit to Chief of Police Collins.

"I hope to travel by one of those swift air liners on my next visit to Chicago, and I don't want to put that visit off over three or four years either," Dr. Adler declared.

"Designs for passenger carrying planes adaptable to trans-oceanic flights are constantly being studied in Germany, and I believe the thirty-four hour trip between my city and yours will not be a thing of the remote future."

HORSE KICKS GIRL TO DEATH.

Hillsboro, Ill., Sept. 4.—[U. P.]—Three year old Ellen Catherine Grassell, daughter of Harry Grassell, a farmer, was kicked to death by a horse while she was looking for her father in the barn early today.

PROSPERITY, NOT BEER, IS MOST IMPORTANT FALL ISSUE—TILSON

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Continuance of prosperity in this country is more important than the question of prohibition in the coming elections, Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader of the house and eastern campaign director for the Republican senatorial committee, said today.

"Those who are attempting to make prohibition the principal issue in the congressional campaign," he sadi, "are permitting their good sense to be obscured by a form of fanaticism which is an outstanding characteristic of both the radical 'drys' and the radical 'wets.' I would say to such, 'A plague on both your houses.'

"No one can deny that prohibition is an important question in which there is great public interest, but no one can rightfully claim that it is more important than all the other questions that affect directly our national prosperity."

Representative Tilson contends that Democrats "are as hopelessly divided on prohibition as Republicans" until one of the parties adopts prohibition as the principal issue of a campaign, he said, it will "only make for confusion to attempt to force a relatively minor matter into the foreground as a controlling issue."

SHOOTS WIFE AT EVANSTON'S BUSIEST CORNER

Evanston crowds in Fountain square, in the heart of the suburb's business section, were thrown into excitement and panic early last evening when John Brooks, 34 years old, colored, 1021 Ayers place, accidently met his estranged wife, Caroline, jerked out a revolver and shot her five times.

The shooting took place while hundreds were on the streets, in front of the Campus theater, directly across from the city hall. At sound of the shots 35 Evanston policemen who were taking a civil service promotional examination rushed out to find Brooks struggling in the arms of Policeman John Majewski, and Brooks' wife on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Brooks, who is 28 years old, was taken to the Evanston hospital in a critical condition.

At the police station Brooks said his wife had been living with another man somewhere on Vincennes avenue in Chicago. He said he had been seeking her.

PARK RIDGE WINS TWIN LEADERSHIP WITH 25 PAIRS

Lake Forest Loses Title to Another Suburb.

Father John H. Stork has been generously two-timing Park Ridge lately. The town has now, in the matter of twins, surpassed Lake Forest, last year's holder of the world's twin title. With a population of 8,000, no less than twenty-five sets of twins were found yesterday in an informal census of Park Ridgian homes.

Some of the twins are much alike, as in the case of Jeanne and Joyce Ghislin, 16 months old, whose mother, Mrs. Walter L. Ghislin, last week gave the wrong one a dose of medicine. Others, like Lawrence and Leonard Johnson, 20 year old sons of the William R. Johnsons, are as little alike as the w. k. day and night.

True to the admonition to multiply and replenish the earth, two ministers are numbered among the parents of twins. They are the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Van Gorkom, who lately came from Salt Lake City with their two 18 months old towheads, David and Paul, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. Richter, who lately celebrated the ninth anniversary of Dorothy and Alfred.

Youngest Eight Weeks Old.

The youngest twins are Michael J. and Carl, eight weeks old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Van Diggelen. The oldest are Fred C. and Miss Charlotte Stagg, who have gone on resembling one another for nearly 48 years.

Other proud Park Ridge parents who have pushed plural perambulators are Mr. and Mrs. Spencer T. Gullickson, whose children, Valerie and Virginia, were born July 14, 1925; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hediger, parents of Lucille and Marion, 7 years old; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Rosenstreter, whose Bernice and Bernard, 6 year olds, are in the second grade; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn G. Hayes, who have Samuel Gard and William Rose, each 4, to their credit, and the John B. Wasleys, who rejoice in Jack and James, age 2.

Other Sets of Twins.

Malcolm and Courtney Brooks are the 6 year old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ross W. Brooks; George Thomas and Thomas George, also 6, are ditto Mr. and Mrs. John E. Fox; Wilbur and Warren Baumgart are the 4 year old boys of Mr. and Mrs. August W. Baumgart, while 19 months old Richard and Albert prove the theory of evolution in the A. N. Carsten family.

Among the older twins are Everett and Edward Williams, 18 year old sons of Mrs. Kate Williams; Arnold and Charles Crowell, 18, and sons of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowell; Silas and William Woody, 26 year old dittos of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Woody, and Jeanne and Georgine, 9 year old daughters of John Brown.

One Dies in Infancy.

Howard Ward, 4 years old, whose twin died in infancy, is the son of Mrs. Harold Ward; Chester and Kenneth, 21 months old, are the adopted twins of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wiederhold. Mrs. Florence Johnson and Mrs. Dorothy Self, 24, are twin sisters; the twin brother of Earl Lloyd Shepard, 25, is Merl Floyd Shepherd of Edwardsporte, Ind.; Mrs. Hattie Carstens, 64, and her husband, Albert, 65, are both twins, and Robert Stagg, brother of Fred and Charlotte, is a twin whose double died long since.

MISSISSIPPI BARGE SERVICE REACHES GREATEST VOLUME

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Grain transported by the government's Mississippi barge service during August constituted the greatest volume of such shipments in the line's history, Brig. Gen. Ashbury reported to the war department today.

The total shipments were 998,427 bushels for the month, the bulk originating in Nebraska, Kansas, and Iowa and being turned over to the barge line at St. Louis.

The combined Mississippi-Warrior service handled during the month 155,000 tons of freight, of which 116,000 was transported by Mississippi barges.

ASK BIDS FOR CHICAGO'S NEW POSTOFFICE SITE

Proposals Will Be Opened Nov. 1.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Proposals from real estate owners desiring to sell the government a site for the new Chicago postoffice will be opened Nov. 1.

This announcement was made today by the supervising architect's office of the treasury department. Copies of an advertisement asking for bids, which will be published in The Chicago Tribune from Sept. 8 to Oct. 25, was made public.

Takes in Large Area.

The advertisement states that a site is desired within the area bounded by Michigan avenue on the east, Madison street on the north, Halsted street on the west, and Polk street on the south. This is a considerably larger area than was at first contemplated.

At first it was proposed to limit the area to the west side section bounded by Canal street, Madison street, Halsted street, and Harrison street. Later the southern boundary was extended to Polk street and now the eastern limit has been extended all the way across the loop to the lake front.

Despite this extension of area it is the understanding that the treasury and postoffice department officials expect to select a site in the vicinity of the west side railroad stations.

Want Two Squares.

It is further stated in the advertisement that two full squares are desired. The limit of cost for the site as fixed by congress is $5,000,000, of which $3,975,000 has actually been appropriated. It is expected that the new building will cost from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Under the law the treasury is required to advertise for proposals from real estate owners for a period of 21 days in a single newspaper which has the largest circulation in the city, where a postoffice is to be located.

The bids will be opened publicly in the office of James A. Wetmore, supervising architect on Nov. 1.

Agents to View Property.

After proposals are received, the treasury and postoffice departments, which will jointly make the selection of a site, will send agents to Chicago to look over the properties offered. If a site can be bought within the $5,000,000 limit by negotiation, this will be done. If no satisfactory terms can be agreed on, the treasury will ask the department of justice to institute condemnation proceedings. If it develops that a site cannot be bought within the $5,000,000 limit, it may be necessary for congress to increase this sum.

Nothing will be done toward plans for a postoffice building until the site has been selected. It is considered probable that special authorization will be obtained from congress for a competition among prominent architects. Ordinarily postoffice buildings are designed by the supervising architect of the treasury.

COOLIDGE VIEWS OUR PROSPERITY AS MAJOR ISSUE

Stresses Good Business in Interviews.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—In the eight weeks of his vacation, President Coolidge has made his contribution to the Republican campaign by his discussions of pending questions and the views expressed by leaders of the business world. According to Repulican politicians, his defining of the issues in this way represents his political activities. It is an effort, they say, that cannot be criticized by the opposition.

It is stated definitely that the President will refrain from actual participation in the November campaign and will neither issue any statements nor make any speeches that can be interpreted as political in behalf of the Republican candidates in the election, at which control of the senate is at stake.

Issues Coolidge Stressed.

In the issues, as emphasized by President Coolidge and by the business men, bankers, and leaders in industry who have been guests at White Pine camp, prosperity stands foremost. Others are non-revision of the tariff, continued economy to keep down government expenditures, further tax reduction, prohibition enforcement, and aid to the farmers through coöperative marketing.

These, with the party's record on the world court and settlement of the foreign debts are accepted by the administration as accomplishments worthy of emphasis.

In the opinion of a former chairman of the Republican national committee what President Coolidge has done this summer as reported in the 1,000,000 words sent over the wires from White Pine camp, has made a deep impression on the voters. The public, he contends, has been forced to accept the conclusions that business is excellent and that this is due, at least in part, to the policies of the administration.

Many Report Prosperity.

Republican politicians say that if business conditions remain unchanged when the voters go to the polls, there will be no other issue so compelling. The only danger of making prosperity the chief issue, it is pointed out, is that there might be a marked change in business in the fall. In that case overemphasis given to it by the administration might serve as a dangerous counter argument.

LONG, DANGLING EARRINGS ARE IN FAVOR IN LONDON

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Long, dangling earrings are again in favor. Four of the newest designs worn by members of the fashionable set here are:

Green chrysoprase, with diamond inset hanging on fine platinum chains. These also are worn in cornelian or blue chalcedony.

The new diamond earrings so fashionable in Paris have also appeared in London, being worn with black chiffon frocks.

SPAIN REJECTS LEAGUE OFFER OF TEMPORARY SEAT

Council Grants Germany Only Permanent Post.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Sept. 4.—Gen. Primo de Rivera, the Spanish dictator, today definitely refused the league of nations' offer of a semi-permanent seat in the league council, instead of the permanent seat demanded by Spain.

Premier de Rivera's refusal came as an answer to the joint note of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, entreating Spain to continue participation in league affairs and to take part in the present assembly. Gen. de Rivera said his consideration for Spain's prestige made it necessary to adopt a policy of "dignified abstention" from the league's activities under the circumstances.

It is felt here that Spain will not formally resign from the league but will continue dickering with the powers.

Vote Seat for Germany.

Spain's claims for a permanent seat in the league council were definitely rejected today when that body unanimously adopted a resolution to recommend to the assembly that Germany, and Germany alone, be given a permanent seat. Thus it seems certain that Germany at last is to take its place in the league on equality with the other great powers of the world who are members of the Geneva organization—on a parity with her recent conquerors.

Brazil's resignation from the league also was ignored by the council, whose recommendations provide for the creation of three semi-permanent seats in addition to Germany's permanent one.

South America Backs Spain.

The South American faction unanimously supports Spain. Argentina is flirting with the league again, and the Buenos Aires government controls more support than Rio de Janeiro did.

Poland is considered sure to get a semi-permanent seat. The other two may go to Sweden and Belgium. However, if the Argentine assembly delegation appears tomorrow—the league as yet has received no notice that they will—they may win a semi-permanent place, as the South American bloc now is without representation in the league council.

Only the firmness of Dr. Osten Unden of Sweden decided a problem which has torn the league since March. The council held a secret session this morning before it decided upon the course it is to take, and held a public meeting at noon.

Unden Forces Action.

French, British, Belgian, and Czecho-Slovak delegates expressed fears for the fate of the league if Spain follows Brazil's action in walking out. Dr. Unden insisted that it would be a greater blow to the league if Germany again were prevented from joining by a council mixup like that in March, and that the league would lose all its prestige if it continued to be bluffed every time the issue was raised.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was present at the council session, hiding her face behind her fan when foreigners attempted to take her picture. Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio left Geneva yesterday for Aix les Bains. M. Briand left for Evian les Bains.

Señor Palacios, the Spanish minister to Switzerland, who thus far has been chief delegate of the Madrid government at the league of nations session, is packing up tonight and returning to Berne.

Parley on Court Secret.

The subcommittee framing the report and plan regarding the United States senate's reservations on adherence to the world court at the first meeting today pledged themselves in a gentleman's agreement not to divulge a word of what transpires during the discussions.

Prof. Van Eysinga of Holland, chairman of the committee, urged the members to the greatest secrecy, declaring that a leakage of the trend of the debates might cause America to withdraw its application for membership.

THE TRIBUNE is informed, however, that the discussions were started on the basis that a formula must be found conciliating Washington's reservations with the league of nations covenant and world court statutes, as the league leaders are determined to get the United States in.

Spain to Delay Action.

MADRID, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Spanish government will not take any immediate action regarding withdrawal from the league of nations, but will await the outcome of the league assembly, opening next week. There have been reports that Spain intended to resign from the league owing to the rejection of her demand for a permanent seat on the league council.

Britain Breaks Tradition; Duchess to Ride on Warship

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of York, who are going to visit New Zealand and Australia, will sail from Portsmouth aboard the battle cruiser Renown on Jan. 8, proceeding by way of the Panama canal. This official announcement dispels the illusion that "no woman, not even a duchess," may be permitted to journey on a British warship. Thus one of the traditions of the British navy will soon go by the board. The duke of York will officiate at the opening of parliament in the new Australian parliament at Canberra on May 9.

They're All Awarded Bravery Prizes

3 POLICE HEROES WIN $100 APIECE FOR GUN BATTLES

2 Rewarded for Thrilling Car Barn Fight.

Three Chicago policemen who successfully shot it out with bandits cornered in the act of committing robberies share in THE TRIBUNE'S August award for exceptional bravery in the line of duty. Each of them will receive a check for $100.

The winning officers are Lieut. John Norton and Patrolman James Maloney, members of the detective squad participating in the Elston avenue car barn battle Aug. 29, and Detective Samuel Dessent, who killed a holdup man and aided in the capture of three others in a west side gambling joint Aug. 29.

Other Police Commended.

Selection of the trophy winners this month was unusually difficult and was made only after a careful analysis of each case with commanding officers. In both affrays, the car barn shooting in particular, other policemen taking part also displayed valor meriting high commendation.

Fighting with Norton and Maloney were Patrolmen Maurice Byrnes and Daniel Healy while Patrolmen Joseph Haska, Edward Tyrrel, George Stebick, and John Freichel helped to round up the bandits after the actual firing. Detective Dessent was aided by Patrolmen John Calkins and James F. Harney.

Lieut. Norton, 64 years old, is a veteran of the police force with a service record of 35 years. He lives at 6345 Campbell avenue.

Patrolman Maloney is 27 years old and unmarried. He lives with his father and three brothers at 5106 West Monroe street. During the four years he has served on the police force he has received six honorable mentions.

Dessent, whose home is at 5234 Harrison street, has been on the force 4 years.

Thrilling Car Barn Battle.

As an exhibition of thrilling gun play, the attempted car barn robbery and its frustration is said to equal any piece of police work on record for months. It was cited by officials as a warning in red letters for criminals contemplating similar holdups.

Receiving information that the holdup was planned, Chief of Detectives John P. Stege assigned Lieut. Norton and his squad to guard the barn. Norton, Maloney, Bryne, and Healy were hidden behind the cashier's cage when the three stickup men entered.

Joseph De Lavergne, the bandit leader, ordered everybody in the room to get back against the wall. He then commanded H. W. Suhr, the cashier, to open the door. As he had been instructed, Suhr dropped to the floor. A bullet went over his head.

Instantly Norton and Maloney threw open the door and as De Lavergne and his pals wheeled about with guns leveled, they opened fire. The bandits fired back and the other officers joined in the fray.

When the battle was over De Lavergne and William Mullowney, two of the desperados, their black masks askew, lay wounded on the floor, the third escaping by diving through a window. The two wounded men died.

Three Policemen Wounded.

Three of the policemen were wounded, Norton receiving a nick in the scalp and Byrne a slight gash on the elbow. Maloney was struck in the leg. He is still in the hospital suffering from the wound.

Meanwhile Patrolman Haska had dragged one of two girls in an automobile outside from the car and placed her under arrest. The following day Ernest De Lavergne, brother of the bandit leader, was found at 3037 Walnut street wounded and also taken prisoner. He is being held.

Although not so spectacular, the episode which made Dessent a hero had its thrilling features.

Dessent, with his partner, Patrolman Calkins, were notified as they walked along the street that a stickup was in progress in a gambling joint at 641 West Madison street. As they dashed into the front entrance they met an armed lookout.

"Stay where you are," the bandit ordered, at the same time jerking his gun on a level with Dessent's chest and pulling the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode, and before the bandit could fire again Dessent shot him through the heart, according to Capt. Martin E. Mullin's report.

Capture Rest of Gang.

Three other gunmen were busy in the basement robbing thirty customers and the two officers promptly slammed down the trap door. With the assistance of Patrolman James F. Harney, who then rushed to their assistance, Dessent and Calkins entered the basement through a side door, forced the stickup men to throw down their guns, and handcuffed them. James J. McNamara, the dead man, and the three prisoners all had police records.

A third outstanding police incident during August was the shooting of an automobile thief by Sergt. Patrick B. O'Connell at De Kalb and Polk streets on Aug. 18 after a sixty mile an hour chase.

O'Connell and his squad recognized a stolen car as they passed it and pursued. One of the two men in it jumped out and attempted to escape. O'Connell and Patrolman G. Manland fired, and the man fell. He died shortly afterward. His pal was captured and both were found to have criminal records.

The work of Chief of Detectives William H. Schoemaker and Lieut. Charles Egan in capturing "Polak" Joe Saltis at Half Moon Lake, Wis., Aug. 23 also received consideration in making the hero awards. Although there was no bloodshed, this capture was cited by Chief Collins as one of the best executed that has recently come to his attention.

EUROPEAN MONEY IMPROVING; IS AID TO STABILIZATION

Strong Governments Inspire Confidence.

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—General currency stabilization in Europe, one of the final phases of recovery from the war, is now definitely in sight, in the opinion of Wall street. Italy's decision to reduce her paper money circulation by 5,000,000,000 lire in the present budget year, strengthened the conclusion that a comprehensive plan is being worked out for simultaneous action which will place France, Italy and Belgium on a stable basis financially and economically.

It was pointed out that for the first time since the war, France, Italy and Belgium simultaneously have strong governments which command the confidence of their peoples and have the courage, determination and competence necessary for the rehabilitation of their countries' finances.

Franc Moving Up.

The outward flight of capital has been stopped. Erratic movements in exchange have been checked. The French franc is a full cent above the low point under two cents, reached this summer.

The Belgian franc is well supported at a level slightly under that of the French unit, while the Italian lira has climbed back close to the four cent level at which it had been held prior to the summer decline.

Italian Program Drastic.

The Italian deflation program is one of the most drastic undertaken by a European country since the war. It includes turning over to the Bank of Italy the $90,000,000 proceeds of the Morgan loan, which retires 2,500,000,000 lire which had been issued as an advance to the state. Silver coinage will replace a large quantity of paper lire now in circulation, in addition to which there will be a budget reduction of 500,000,000 lire yearly in circulation.

WOMAN LAWYER SUES TO PREVENT U. S. COURT ENTRY

First legal steps to prevent the entrance of the United States into the world court were taken yesterday by Mrs. Mary Belle Spencer, Chicago attorney, when she filed a bill in the Federal District court.

Mrs. Spencer questions the right of congress appropriating funds for any such purpose and she seeks an injunction restraining Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, from making any appropriations in pursuance of a congressional resolution for maintenance of a world court.

The woman lawyer said patroitism impelled her to file the bill. "The step I have taken is obviously proper under the law," she said. "When I read in a newspaper this morning that the United States reservations were being accepted I decided it was time to act."

Mrs. Spencer is the wife of Dr. R. V. Spencer and the mother of two children. She has practiced law for eight years.

Dr. Fosberg Bond $50,000; Case Postponed to Sept. 11

Fixing bonds of $50,000 for each defendant, Judge Max Luster in the South Chicago court yesterday postponed until Sept. 11 the case of Dr. George Fosberg, 1534 East 67th street, and those called his accomplices in an alleged swindle said to have netted $500,000. The others held are Richard J. Roberts, his wife Agnes, and her brother, Clarence Hansen, all of 9138 Commercial avenue.

LAUNDRY IS ROBBED BY TRIO.

Entering the office of the Austin Wet Wash Laundry at 828 North Crawford avenue, while the owner, Harry Katz, was counting the week's receipts, three youthful bandits threatened him with revolvers and escaped with $1,463.

HOLD PILOT AND MATE GUILTY IN S-51 COLLISION

Boston, Mass., Sept. 4.—[U. P.]—Capt. John Diehl of Everett, Mass., and Third Mate Timothy L. Dreyer of Savannah, Ga., of the steamship City of Rome, were held partly responsible for the collision between that vessel and the U. S. submarine S-51, which cost 34 lives, in the report of steamship inspection officials, made public here this afternoon.

The report said circumstances warrant the suspension of the licenses of Diehl and Dreyer for nine months, effective Sept. 15 or earlier.

The S-51 went down in collision with the City of Rome off Block Island Sept. 25, 1925.

HORSE PRESERVES OLD FRANCHISE FOR RAILROAD

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—An old horse enables the New York Central railroad to hold a railroad charter that is worth a fortune.

Ambling up and down the freight tracks in front of trains that pass along lower Tenth avenue, near the waterfront, the horse, with his rider, fulfills a requirement set down in a city ordinance passed nearly 75 years ago, when the city fathers looked skeptically upon those "new fangled contraptions," railroad trains.

A. S. Lyman, general attorney for the New York Central, today explained that under the old ordinance the city could step in and order all the tracks taken up if the horse and rider did not precede every train, originally intended to warn drivers of buggies of approaching trains. The rider's red flag of danger now serves the same function for automobiles and motor trucks.

HUNT FOR GOLD LATEST CLEW TO MISSING CHILD

Efforts yesterday to locate 12 year old Evelyn McLeish and Peter Madsen, her 52 year old neighbor, who disappeared Thursday and are believed to have left Chicago, brought to light that Madsen had talked of hunting for gold in North Dakota.

According to Evelyn's father, who lives at 6340 Vernon avenue, Madsen, who lived next door, had believed that spirit voices called him to the hunt for gold. This belief had estranged him from his wife and three children, the eldest a son, 21, McLeish told Capt. James McCauley of the Woodlawn police.

The police learned yesterday that on Thursday Madsen had taken the child to a store on 63d street and provided her with extra clothes. It also was learned that while the telegram that Evelyn was going to visit "Miss Green" was sent from the La Salle street railway station, Madsen and the girl probably left over the Chicago and Northwestern.

SKIDDING AUTO FALLS INTO DITCH, KILLING CHILD, 6

Skidding on the wet pavement of the Waukegan road yesterday, the auto of Albert Schmanske, 4203 South Campbell avenue, plunged into a six foot ditch.

The driver had tried to pass another car just north of the intersection of the Dundee road. Evelyn Schmanske, 6, was fatally hurt, dying on the way to a hospital in Highland Park. Her death was the 561st due to auto accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1.

There was another fatality during the day. Amilbe Greco, 38, of 2316 North Austin avenue, a carpenter, struck by an automobile Aug. 30, while at Fullerton and Austin avenues, died at the Keystone hospital. Anton Warszawa, 2327 North Lawler avenue, driver of the automobile, is being held by police.

Ignatius Skocynski, 15 years old, 2118 North Austin avenue, was fatally injured when he fell from a truck owned by the Davidson Cartage company at Western avenue and 48th street into the path of another truck, which passed over his body. He died at the Midwest hospital.

POLA AND VALENTINO PLANNED TO WED IN APRIL, SHE AVERS

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The engagement of Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino, film celebrities, was not a formal one, but the members of both families knew of their personal agreement and the wedding was to be solemnized next April. Miss Negri told this to newspaper reporters who boarded the Valentino funeral train in Missouri and accompanied it to Kansas City. The train arrived here this morning.

Miss Negri's statement was confirmed by Alberto Guglielmi and his manager, S. George Ullman.

Through Missouri crowds gathered at the stations to catch a glimpse of the funeral coach. Blinds were drawn and no one was permitted to enter.

The train left at 11:30 a. m. for the west. A large crowd had gathered in the Union station lobby but entrance to the train sheds was denied.

Mexican Strikers Fire Oil Well; Loss to Be Millions

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

Mexico City, Sept. 4.—A telegram to The Excelsior from Tampico says oil well number 40 of the Aguila company, one of the largest producing wells owned by the British oil company, one of the largest producing to be a total loss. The telegram says the fire was caused by strikers. The loss, it is estimated, will be several millions of dollars. Nearby the body of a worker, Ramon Garcia, who had been killed with a dagger, was found.

ADMITS CAUSING DEATH LEAP OF GIRL FROM AUTO

Suspect Is Identified by Chum of Victim.

Facing each other yesterday in a police station were a young man and a young woman.

NICHOLAS GRAFFE.

"Remember, I've a sick wife at home, so use some judgment in identifying me," pleaded the young man, who was Nicholas Graffe, 5130 South Paulina street, a partner in an expressing business.

Until then the girl was not sure. She had looked at him from various angles and had finally said to Sergt. Thomas Harrison of headquarters, "Have him talk."

"That's the man," she stated when Graffe had spoken, and Graffe admitted he was the man. The girl was Helen McInerney, 20 years old, of 516 West 41st street. On Aug. 14 she and her girl chum had jumped from a speeding automobile to escape attack, she said, and the other girl, Miss Mildred Pratscher, 21 years old, 503 West 43d place, sustained a fractured skull and died.

Detective and Girl on Trail.

"Do nothing else until you catch those murderers," Chief Collins told Sergt. Albert Schutz, who is in charge of a headquarters squad of which Sergt. Harrison is a member.

Sergt. Harrison and Miss McInerney began keeping company and frequenting dance halls, always seeking two men. Finally the girl pointed out a man she said knew the name of one of the hunted men. Sergt. Harrison's first forced from that man the name of Frank Hochrein, alias the Gorilla, 4924 South Laflin street.

Sergts. Schutz and Harrison learned that Hochrein had hidden for a week at the home of Graffe's brother, Victor, but had fled when his name became known. They took Victor to be viewed by Miss McInerney and she failed to recognize him. The detectives wondered why Graffe had hidden Hochrein until they learned he had a brother, Nick, whom they brought yesterday into Miss McInerney's presence.

Denies Wronging Victim.

"Yes, Hochrein and I picked up the two girls," Graffe admitted. "I had met Helen first and she promised to bring a friend for Frank, who had the car. We drank a lot of wine and started south, but Helen didn't want to go, so I told Frank to stop and let her out, which he did. Then a block further on Mildred jumped out from the front seat. We had not done anything wrong nor had we tried to, but I was afraid my wife would hear about it, so I kept what I knew to myself."

ILLINOIS VALLEY RICH IN BEAUTY AND MEMORIES

Ground Heroes Trod in Days of Empire.

With a great man's vivid, virile book—Francis Parkman's "La Salle and the Discovery of the Great West"—in our hands we now fare into a part of Chicagoland that is as truly "the Parkman country" as Kent is the Dickens country, Dorset the Hardy country, and Concord-Walden the Thoreau country. Story 31 in The Tribune's Chicagoland pilgrimage attempts to sketch the scenic and historic charms of an illustrious area less than a hundred miles from Chicago.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

Is there, south of Quebec, an area in either the dominion or the republic that combines soft, natural beauty, and significant historic background more abundantly and compactly than the 15 miles of the deep bosomed valley of the Illinois river from Ottawa to La Salle combine the treasures which are to be had by the poor man for the asking?

I know of none, although some neighbors who perhaps know the East better than they know their native Chicagoland might speak up promptly for the martial cliffs of West Point, the pastoral loveliness of Mount Vernon, or the quiet glades and broad tenting grounds of Valley Forge.

But our classic ground—truly the birthplace of Chicagoland—has a charm and a variety peculiar to itself.

Scene of Beauty and Failure.

Here you tramp long reaches of prairie, and prowl in caverns that drink the sunlight; here you rest your eyes upon the placid bosom of the waters and here your imagination is sung to in the tinkle of cascades; here you march with the shades of Homeric warriors and seekers, and here con the pages of a chronicler—fighting sickness and partial blindness all his life—not less Homeric than the warriors were. Here you muse in the dimensions and on the fate of empire, for here you are viewing the scene of the most gigantic failure a nation ever made on this continent—the failure of France to work out Lord La Salle's scheme of empire that firmly would have planted her banners from the plains of Abraham to the delta of the Mississippi.

Thoughts Slip Far Away.

And as you muse, and while you contemplate, your knowledge of the past that is spread before you will carry you far, far away—to the jealousies and intrigues of women favorites in palaces by the Seine, to the vacuous whims and broken promises and violated patents of dissolute kings.

Bend close your ear to your prairie land: It will throb with the war drums of aborigines; it will echo to you commands uttered in the lordly French and in the dialects of the Iroquois and the Illinois.

Across two centuries and a half those voices will come to you.

Wordsworth said it all.

How a Poet Said It.

There is, in the sonnet he wrote when he looked from the heights of Namur down the valley of the Meuse, an almost uncanny applicability to what you see when you look down the valley of the Illinois from our prairie citadel, Starved Rock. He could write the identical words could he stand here today with you:

"What lovelier home could gentle
Fancy choose?
Is this the Stream, whose cities,
heights and plains,
War's favorite playground, are with crimson stains
Familiar, as the Morn with pearly dews?

* * * * * * * * *

As mine eyes
Turn from the fortified and threatening hill,
How sweet the prospect of yon watery glade,
With its grey rocks clustering in pensive shade,
That, shaped like old monastic turrets, rise
From the smooth meadow-ground, serene and still!"

Pilgrimage of Parkman.

Now descend from the rock into your own time.

The year is 1867. Francis Parkman, historian, and so passionate a lover of roses that he has become an authoritative horticulturist and will one day fill the chair of horticulture in Harvard college, has come on from Boston to study at first hand the classic fifteen miles of valley and prairie extending from Ottawa to La Salle. He is in his mid-forties. Great books lie behind him—among them "The Oregon Trail," one of the most virile American books an American youth can read—and greater lie ahead of him—"The Old Régime in Canada," "New France Under Louis XIV.," "Montcalm and Wolfe," and "A Half-Century of Conflict."

Studies Land of La Salle.

Just now—in these late sixties of the last century—the lean visaged historian with the Yankee twinkle in his lame eyes is intent upon his next book—"La Salle and the Discovery of the Great West," which is to form part third in his mighty dozen volume chronicle of "France and England in North America."

Our guest of nearly 60 years ago is in Chicagoland to get the aspect and feel of the countryside which comprehended some of the heaviest hardships and sharpest disappointments in the tragic career of his hero, La Salle. He is guest of Col. Hitt of Ottawa, who then owned the Starved Rock area that now is a well managed and largely visited state park. As you travel through the valley you will encounter a hamlet southwest of Ottawa that bears the Colonel's name.

Mac Tells of Historian.

I had a choice bit of luck three days ago. I caught, through another man's eyes, a glimpse of Parkman in the Ottawa-Utica-La Salle area—the eyes of courtly Mr. S. S. McKenny, chief usher in Tribune Tower, who with quiet voice and firm hand keeps the bores and mountebanks away from the news editors. (Sometimes I wish I were a news editor.) Our youthful octogenarian I greeted with the statement that I was just back from Starved Rock.

"Starved Rock!" said he—"I was there for many days nearly sixty years ago, and I did like the historian, Mr. Parkman."

"You met him there?"

"I did. He was working on his 'La Salle' then, and Col. Hitt, gone now, had him in tow for days."

Interested in Coal Mines.

"What was Parkman like, Mr. Mac?"

"Wore spectacles always; very quiet man, but friendly in his quiet way. He had other interests than history. He was intensely interested in the coal levels of La Salle county and in the fossilized ferns he came upon. When his 'La Salle' was published he sent me a copy of it, with his autograph on the flyleaf. I lent the book to a school teacher and never did get it back. You be warned. My father had a label that he pasted in his books and on it were the words, 'The Lord helps them that help themselves, but the Lord help him that here helps himself.'"

'Twas wisely said, Mr. Mac.

So I say, don't borrow Parkman's "La Salle" when you make your valley pilgrimage. Buy it, and thumb it. It comes at $2 in the thirteen volume so-called Centenary edition (1925) of Francis Parkman's works and of the biography of him by Mr. Farnham.

Through Parkman's Eyes.

Buy it and thumb it. Dip in almost anywhere and you will not relinquish.

Do as Parkman bids you on page 220 of this Centenary edition.

"Go," he says there—"Go to the banks of the Illinois where it flows by the village of Utica, and stand on the meadow that borders it on the north. In front glides the river, a musket shot in width; and from the farther bank rises, with gradual slope, a range of wooded hills that hide from sight the vast prairie behind them. A mile or more on your left these gentle acclivities end abruptly in the lofty front of the great cliff, called by the French the Rock of St. Louis, looking boldly out from the forests that environ it."

And so on, through the 25 pages of that battle chapter XVI entitled "Tonty and the Iroquois."

How suave, how luring, how pictorial the style!

Resume just a minute.

Parkman barks back to the Utica of 1680 with the same vividness that he touched the Utica of 1867. For now he bids you to—

". . . stand in fancy on this same spot in the early autumn of the year 1680. You are in the midst of the great town of the Illinois,—hundreds of mat-covered lodges, and thousands of congregated savages. Enter one of their dwellings: they will not think you an intruder. Some friendly squaw will lay a mat for you by the fire. . . . Small, unkempt children, naked as young puppies, crawl about your knees and will not be repelled. . . . You rise and go out again into the sunlight. . . . Young men lie flat on their faces, basking in the sun; a group of their elders are smoking around a buffalo skin on which they have just been playing a game of chance with cherry stones. A lover and his mistress, perhaps, sit together under a shed of bark, without uttering a word."

Famous Battle Pictured.

Thus are vanished days touched to life and love by this magician. Line upon line, his pages seem to breathe, to be warm and sunlit. What he tells is neither fancy nor fantasy. All he tells of Indian ways and customs he learned on that Oregon trail trip that nearly killed him.

But hark!

"Suddenly the village was awaked from its lethargy as by the crash of a thunderbolt. . . . All was panic and confusion. The lodges disgorged their frightened inmates. . . . Startled warriors snatched their weapons."

Then comes the magnificent 5-page battle picture, with Tonty of the Iron Hand as its supreme figure. It is one of the gems of American historical writing.

Such is the book you will take with you on your auto ride through the valley of Chicagoland.

A Town Not Greatly Changed.

Utica, not deplorably changed from what it was at the time of Parkman's pilgrimage, still nestles beneath—albeit beginning to mount—the slopes of the valley. His book in hand you can study out Parkman's topography at your leisure. His book in hand, you will read with absorbed interest in Utica the fascinating two and a half page note at the end of famous chapter XVI in which he relishingly tells how he baffled and delighted the Utica worthies of 1867 with his vivid knowledge of the key points of a region which he, even to the moment of his talk with the worthies, had studied only from ancient maps and documents.

If you make your base at the good Hotel Kaskaskia in the city of La Salle, Utica on one side of the river will be only five miles away, and that noble "Rock of St. Louis," which we now call Starved Rock, on the other side will be only a little more. It is all easy going along roads that now are lovely with autumnal scents and autumnal flowers.

If You Go Next Friday——

Suppose you went next Friday, the tenth of September, 1926.

Do you know what you would then be doing?

You would be making your pilgrimage on the 246th anniversary of the terrific battle of the Illinois and Iroquois on the meadows of Utica!

Anniversaries are not mockeries. They are stimulations. That is their value. They are pleasant, practical fillips to the imagination. They engender reflection and they provoke a thirst for knowledge.

On such a day as next Friday and amid such scenes as such a masterpiece as Parkman's "La Salle" pictures for you, the curtains of two centuries and a half grandly lift. The shadow rolls away. You grip your beautiful, illustrious Illinois close, close to your heart. You sense the continuity of your land's annals from a remote, a toilsome, and a perilous past to these safe, shining days of the successful present.

OAK PARK FRAT BOYS WIN BACK PLACES IN SCHOOL

Barred from Athletics; Agree to Stipulations.

After four months of ceaseless warfare, in court and out, fifty-three Oak Park High school students yesterday won the right to reënter the school from which they were expelled last May when they admitted being members of secret fraternities.

The doors of the school will be opened to the boys Sept. 13. On that date eleven seniors will be given diplomas and the other forty-two, who are undergraduates, will resume their studies. The village school board agreed to this at a conference in the chambers of Judge Walter Brewer of Paris, Ill., who acted as an intermediary, declaring that he had no local interest in the dispute but wanted to see justice done to the boys.

Parents Stage Celebration.

When the agreement had been signed by all the parents of the boys and members of the board, the former held an impromptu celebration. Attorneys Frank and Robert E. Cantwell Jr., who represented the students at nearly a hundred court hearings in an endeavor to win them admission to their classes, were congratulated on their victory.

In return for admission to school, the boys agreed to the following stipulations insisted upon by the school board:

1. All litigation pending against the board will be dismissed. This included a mandamus suit won by the boys before Judge William J. Lindsay and which was taken by the school board to the Appellate court.

2. Petitions containing 10,000 names asking the removal of Marion R. McDaniels as principal of the school will be destroyed.

Barred from Athletic Teams.

3. The boys will apologize for having joined fraternities, will pledge themselves not to become members while they are in high school, and will work to eradicate fraternities in the school.

4. The ousted students may not represent the school on any athletic teams or other bodies of students representative of the school, such as a debating team, until May 7, 1927.

This last provision caused many of the parents to hesitate for a long time before signing the agreement. Especially reluctant was Aaron Halperin, father of Robert [Buck] Halperin, captain of this year's football team.

Judge Pleads for Harmony.

After the agreement was signed, Judge Brewer voiced a plea for harmony between the members of the school board and the parents of the ousted boys.

"It is up to you," he told the Cantwell attorneys, "to see that this agreement is kept by the boys. I am sure there will be no discrimination against them and on the other hand, there must be no demonstration when they reënter school."

The boys were expelled May 7. A week later, the first of dozens of legal attempts to gain them readmission to school was started by the Cantwell attorneys and there had been a constant warfare ever since.

2 Killed, 30 Hurt in Jamaica Prison Riot; Five Escape

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 4.—(AP)—A riot among the prisoners in the general penitentiary last evening resulted in two of them shot and thirty wounded. An attempt was made to break out and some succeeded. Five were still at large tonight.

Youngster of 87 and His Friends Back from Europe

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 4.—Three friends from Portland, Ore., whose combined ages total 225 years, arrived today aboard the United States liner Republic, after a European trip. The men were Arthur Devers, 87; John Gill, 75, and Edward Stevens, 63.

She Loses His Love but Retains Ring; He Calls Cop

Edward Dicke, 25, of 4358 Drexel boulevard, thought a great deal of Miss Irma Stuber, 25, of 4358 Drexel boulevard, and bought her a $1,400 diamond ring. His love faded and the ring remained. He demanded the arrest of Miss Stuber. She was arraigned yesterday before Judge Frances Borrelli in the South Clark street court. The case was continued until Sept. 11.

JEWS BEGIN THE SERVICES FOR THEIR NEW YEAR

Solemn services at the Wigwam auditorium, Madison street near Hamlin avenue, inaugurated last night the period of repentance observed the world over by orthodox Jews in preparation for Rosh Hashonah, New Year's day in the Jewish calendar, on Thursday, Sept. 9. Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt of New York led the large congregation in the ancient chants.

Both orthodox and reformed Jews will join in the festivities marking Rosh Hashonah, which begin on Wednesday evening, Sept. 8, and continue on Thursday, the holiday proper. Ten days later the climax will be reached on the eve of the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, Sept. 17, and on the following day, Sept. 18.

Large attendances are expected at Sinai temple for special New Year services on Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, at which Dr. Louis Mann will deliver two talks dealing with problems of the day. The Emil G. Hirsch center next door has been prepared to take care of overflow crowds.

Under the auspices of Temple Sholem, a congregation said to be the largest in the world, will be gathered, as in past years, at Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, where more than 4,500 can be accommodated. Rabbi Abram Hirschberg will speak and Joseph Swiekerath will lead a choir of fifty voices.

Mexican Congressman Killed in Street Fight

Guadalajara, Mexico, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Congressman [illegible] was killed and several persons were wounded during a pistol fight in one of the principal streets of the business section here yesterday. The fight was between rival groups of local politicians as a result of arguments regarding the municipal elections to be held tomorrow.

U. S. HOSPITAL, SHIP SHELLED BY CHINESE TROOPS

Hit 20 Times During Fight Between Wu and Reds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—Announcement that the U. S. S. El Cano had been fired upon by troops below Hankow, China, and that the American church general hospital at Wuchang had been struck more than twenty times by shells and bullets during the bombardment of Wuchang by Cantonese forces, was made by state department officials today following the receipt of cablegrams from Frank P. Lockart, American consul general at Hankow.

The consul general stated that no reports of Americans killed or wounded had been received. He said the American vessel was struck four times by rifle bullets but no one was injured. The fire was not returned.

Wu Holding Wuchang.

"Marshal Wu Pei-fu is still holding Wuchang," the state department announcement said. "Mr. Lockart telegraphed at noon, Sept. 3, that the bombardment of Wuchang was still going on and that firing continued immediately adjacent to Wuchang.

"There was intermittent firing toward the Wuchang side of the river by a Chinese gunboat immediately opposite the concessions and special districts. No outbreak was reported on the Hankow side of the river, although there was intense excitement. Naval units and volunteer forces were at their posts as a precautionary measure.

The consul general further reported that a flood of Chinese rushing into the concessions and special districts for protection had been stopped.

CHINESE PANICKY

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, Sept. 4.—The gravity of the fighting in the Yangtze area is increasing steadily. Stern measures are being taken by the foreign volunteers and naval ratings to prevent the panicky Chinese from entering the foreign concessions.

The panic is intensified by the firing of the northern gunboats anchored before the concessions in an effort to dislodge the Cantonese, who hold Pagoda hill, from which they continue to shell Wuchang with field and machine guns.

Heavy damage is suffered in Wuchang, where the American Episcopal hospital was struck twenty times by shells. The Cantonese range is less than a mile.

GERMAN CAPITAL BACKS REPUBLIC; ASKS WORKER AID

Want Socialists to Join in Government.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The German industrial leaders who for seven years have watched the struggling republic with distrust and resentment today for the first time stood up for "constitutional Germany and the whole hearted recognition of the present state."

In the meeting at Dresden of the National Association of German Industries Dr. Paul Silverberg of Cologne, a director of the organization, expressed the change. "The German employers have battled their way through to the conviction that closer coöperation between the employer and worker, which is necessary to the welfare of both parties, must be expressed by the government by the collaboration of the Socialist and bourgeois parties in the cabinet," he said.

Only Conservatives Opposed.

This move for the reconciliation of labor and capital was greeted with enthusiasm by all of the German industrialists except the few Conservative diehards who seek to cripple the efforts to perfect a republic and lift the country from the post-war depression.

"German industrial producers stand solidly behind the present German state," Dr. Silverberg continued. "That doesn't mean that we do not favor amendments to the republican constitution by legal means. It is a fact, however, that we oppose all illegal opposition to the German republic, which is the basis for foreign confidence in the stability of the German state."

The Socialists, though deriding the peace offer presented by capital, are willing to accept it and reëstablish peace in Germany. The last year has taught them that they may be able to protect the rights of workers, but they are unable to provide them with work. For this they need employers with spirit and enterprise, as Dr. Silverberg told them.

Check Foreign Capital.

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—In order to frustrate an attempt by foreign interests to obtain control of the Credit Lyonnaise, the directors have convened a special extraordinary meeting of the shareholders to alter the statutes so as to insure permanent French control.

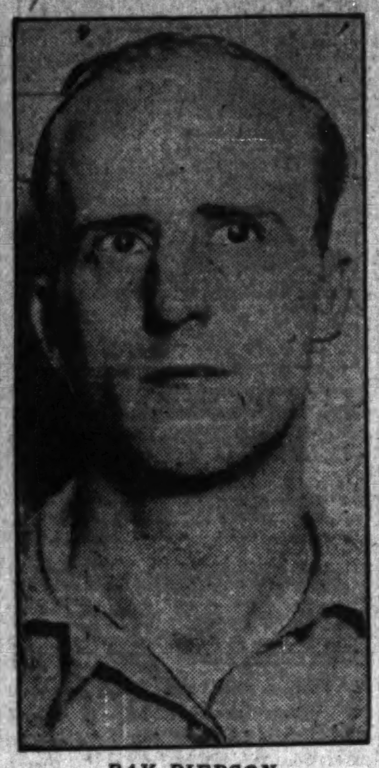
The revelation that foreigners were trying to gain control of the biggest French private bank—it is second only to the Bank of France—has caused considerable uneasiness, coming after the German attempt to get control of the dye industry. Financial circles have been aware for some time of insistent buying of the bank's stock, the price of which has doubled within four months.

The paid up capital of 250,000,000 francs ($7,500,000) consists of bearer shares. Owing to recent large foreign purchases, the directors intend to ask the shareholders on Sept. 24 to create new nominative shares enjoying plural voting and insuring control of the bank by French domiciled shareholders.

It was said today that a leading Berlin banker was the chief purchaser of Credit Lyonnaise stock. However, it is an open secret that he was operating on behalf of "powerful American interests."

Jail Interrupts Their Wedding Plans

MISS BLANCHE McBRIDE.



RAY PIERSON.

Seeks to Free Him

His fiancée seated near him at the detective bureau, Ray Pierson, 25 years old, 100051 Yale avenue, related to Capt. John Stege yesterday how he took $125 from the till of a gasoline filling station where he was manager on Friday so that he might hasten his wedding plans. After tucking the money away in a news stand across the street, Pierson telephoned the police that he had been robbed.

Miss Blanche McBride, 21 years old, 6533 Greenwood avenue, the fiancée wept freely at Pierson's plight. Then she left the bureau bent on procuring a bondsman so that they could be married. Pierson was booked on a larceny charge.

U. OF I. MEDICS TALK REVOLT ON NEW FRAT RULE

Student fraternity members in the schools of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy of the University of Illinois last night were discussing walkout and rebellion as the result of a new rule prohibiting the pledging of new fraternity members until the candidates have been at the school at least one semester.

Leaders in the fraternities said the existence of the organizations was threatened under the new rule, since most of them drew their revenue from first year students.

The students say they will go before the secretary of the university on Tuesday demanding that the new rule be revoked and that they will go on strike if it is refused. They charge that the new rule was passed in retaliation for a walkout last year by seniors who compelled the university authorities to extend leniency to two students caught cribbing.

Patrick Carr Remembered by Employes on Birthday

Employés of Patrick J. Carr, county treasurer, yesterday not only remembered the birthday of "the boss" but those of his wife and daughter as well. Mr. Carr was born on Sept. 4, Mrs. Carr on Sept. 3, and their daughter on Sept. 30. The employés gave Mr. Carr a green gold pocket piece in the form of a miniature book in which were the photographs of his mother, his wife, his daughter, and his sister.

HUNT HOODLUM IN BOMB BLAST ON SOUTH SIDE

2 Families Routed; Eller Attack Still Mystery.

A new bombing occupied attention of police yesterday in the midst of their investigation of the terrific black powder blast set off on Thursday night at the home of Morris Eller, 5552 West Congress street, a member of the sanitary district board and Republican boss of the 20th ward.

The latest bomb exploded at the billiard parlor of Edward Shane, 5125 Wentworth avenue. Evidently thrown from a passing automobile it struck the curbstone between the poolroom and a three story brick building. Considerable damage to both buildings resulted, though the apparent poor aim of the thrower prevented further destruction.

Two Families Routed from Beds.

The families of Charles Schweider and Isaac Rosinski occupy the upper floors of the building adjoining the pool hall. They were routed from their beds by the explosion, but none was injured.

Shane told police that he suspected a hoodlum who had threatened him when ejected from his pool room several days ago. This man, whose identity is known, is being sought.

Bricks Shatter Garage Windows.

The garage of Solbrig Brothers, 6120 South Western avenue, was also an object of attack early yesterday. Three bricks were hurled into the place, breaking six plate glass windows. Gus Solbrig, the owner, said he was unable to account for the attack. He said he recently had joined the Garage Owners' association of Chicago, paying part of his dues, and that he had fully intended completing the payments.

No progress was made toward clearing up the mystery of the Eller bombing. Various theories, including political or private grievances against Eller or his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, are held by police to explain the attack.

WE ARE EATING LESS BEEF, U. S. FIGURES SHOW

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Beef eating apparently is losing some of its popularity in the United States.

Whereas in 1907 the average annual beef consumption per capita was 77.5 pounds, department of agriculture figures show that it fell in 1925 to 62.1 pounds. Per capita pork consumption remained the same, while the figures for veal rose from 7.4 pounds eighteen years ago to 8.7 pounds in 1925.

Percapita consumption of all meat was 159.1 pounds in 1907 and 143.6 pounds last year.

WOUNDED THIEF WINS DELAY IN CAR BARN CASE

Women Appear; Bail Exceeds $600,000.

Ernst De Lavergne, sole male survivor of the bandit crew that shot it out with ambushed police in the spectacular attempt to rob the Cortland street car barns, gained a continuance to Sept. 11 yesterday.

His case was called before Municipal Judge Joseph L. McCarthy in Des Plaines street court on four robbery charges and seven of assault.

De Lavergne, it was explained by Lieut. John Norton of the detective bureau is confined to the hospital, suffering from bullet wounds and was unable to be present.

Sweethearts in Court.

Two girls, sweethearts of the robbers, also under charges, were present in court. They are Gladys Moody and Frances Vaughan, also known as Frances Quinn and as Rose Jennings. They remained silent throughout the proceedings.

Total bonds for De Lavergne and for the two girls, as set by Judge McCarthy, amount to $675,000, involving a total of sixteen charges of robbery and of assault to kill.

A hitherto unsuspected chapter in the career of Miss Vaughan developed during the day when she was identified by Assistant State's Attorney Daniel G. Gerst as figuring as complainant in statutory charges against five young men six months ago.

Her Former Case Dismissed.

Municipal Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt, at the time, dismissed the charges, investigation convincing him the girl was trying to "shakedown" the youths.

Two robbery charges have been placed against Miss Moody and three against Miss Vaughan. In addition to her activities in the car barn case, Miss Vaughan is accused of being with DeLavergne, his brother, Joseph, and William Mulowney, when those three youths kidnaped and robbed Samuel Losef, druggist, of 1427 North Hoyne avenue, on Aug. 1.

Both Joe De Lavergne and Mullowney were killed by Lieut. Norton and his squad in the fight at the car barn.

Ernest De Lavergene is charged by police of robbing Ezeo Nardi, 2401 North Western avenue, of cash and jewelry amounting to $1,000 on Aug. 7, and of robbing Joseph Popielski, 1856 Harvey street, of an automobile.

Gunman Shoots Wildly on Busy Corner; One Injured

Police of the South Clark street station are searching for a man who ran wild and fired several shots at pedestrians early yesterday at 22d street and Wabash avenue. Joseph Meyer, owner of a nearby cigar store, was injured when the glass of a window smashed by one of the bullets struck him in the arm.

SEIZE TWO AS HOLDUP MEN.

Fred Jones, 20 years old, 351 Garfield boulevard, and Owen Bracher, 28 years old, of the same address were arrested yesterday ten minutes after they held up John April of 1511 Trumbull avenue, a taxi driver, at Kostner and Diversey boulevard.

"Once More My Wife Convinced Me!"

says a prominent Chicago attorney

"If I could present facts to a jury, as ably as my wife placed her case before me, I would probably be Chicago's most successful attorney. Ignoring the social prestige of living at Hotel Sovereign, I faced conclusive figures proving that Sovereign living offered us more, at less expense than regular apartment living:—

"First, a luxury of accommodation with an environment of quiet elegance and an atmosphere of true refinement. Then, a retinue of skilled servants to relieve my wife of every detail of housekeeping care. An organized staff to do our every bidding. A chef, with his corps, far surpassing any cook whom we could engage. Dinner parties, even informal dinners for our friends, that would be always comme il faut. And all of this substantiated by friends of ours, who live at Hotel Sovereign. So now, I too live at Hotel Sovereign and . . . I enjoy every minute in my Sovereign home."

INTERNATIONALLY recognized, Hotel Sovereign offers desirable guests a unique hotel-home. While rentals are surprisingly low, Hotel Sovereign makes its greatest appeal to those who know the art of living.

Single rooms—spacious—furnished in good taste, with every nicety of appointment—$90 per month and up. Suites—some with private dining room and kitchen—with beautiful two-room suites as low as $150 per month.

Among other unusual features is the 60-foot white-tiled swimming pool—free to resident guests. Turkish Baths for ladies exclusively. One of America's famous restaurants, with the atmosphere of a smart European cafe, and a fine cuisine—a la carte or table d'hote. The Salle Royale, the Prince of Wales Room and other private dining rooms for large or small social gatherings, weddings, banquets, luncheons.

With polite, dignified, unobtrusive service—genuine Sovereign service—you will find greater happiness here. Visit us, then decide.

"For a stay of a day . . . or a home for the year Hotel Sovereign offers more than any other hotel"

41ST WARD HAS 52 OFFICIALS TO RULE ITS PARKS

Other Examples Cited in City's Complex System.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

One example of the multiplicity of park boards in Chicago is the Forty-first ward. This extends from Addison street to the northern city limits. Its eastern boundary is Tripp avenue northward to Montrose, where it jogs to the east and then northwest on Crawford avenue. Its western boundary is the city limits. The population is estimated at 54,014. These people have but one city representative, Ald. Thomas J. Bowler, but there are 52 public officials who have something to do about the parks and playgrounds of that ward.

How Authority Is Split.

The Edison Park board of five commissioners controls Edison park of 1.1 acres. The Norwood Park board of five other commissioners manages Norwood park of 13 acres. The five members of the Old Portage Park district supervise Old Portage park of 40 acres. The Albany Park district quintet directs affairs in its west park of 2.5 acres. The Jefferson park district five run matters in a park of 1.9 acres at Long and Lawrence avenues.

The 15 county commissioners have charge of the Caldwell forest preserve, of which about 500 acres is in this ward. Then the city bureau of parks, under Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, controls Crescent park of 8 acres, Dickinson park of 1.5 acres, Eldred grove of 1 acre, Mulberry point of 4-10 acre, Myrtle grove of 1.5 acres, Norwood circle of 2.4 acres, Roberts square of 5 acres, Railway garden of half an acre, and Higgins Triangle of five thousandths of an acre. In addition the board of education, with its 11 members, operates 16 playgrounds at seven public schools and nine branch schools, for a total acreage of 17.75.

Ward Has High Average.

Each of these tax expending bodies levies taxes for the support of the parks and playgrounds which each maintains. Counting in the large forest preserve, the average population of the 41st ward to each acre of park area is smaller than in any other ward in the city. The average is 89 persons, while the average for Chicago as a whole is 507 persons.

In the 19th ward, in the southwest section of the city, 42 public officials have a voice in the management of parks and playgrounds. Yet this ward has only one alderman—Donald S. McKinlay. This ward is practically the same size as the 41st. The 19th has an area of 8,919 acres, while the 41st has 8,922 acres. But the 19th has 177 persons per area, as compared with 89 in the 41st ward.

In the Ninth ward in the southern board, south park commission, the Calumet park commission, the Ridge park commission, and the forest preserve commissioners supply park facilities.

Ninth Ward Another Example.

In the ninth ward in the southern part of the city there are also six park agencies with an aggregate membership of 42. In this ward the south park commission, the West Pullman park commission, the Fernward park commission, the city, board of education, and the forest preserve commissioners operate. Sheldon W. Govier, the alderman, probably knows the boundaries of jurisdiction of each, but probably others with like knowledge are very limited in number.

In the Fortieth ward, just east of the Forty-first ward on the north side, the park jurisdiction is divided between the city, River Park commission, Albany Park commission, Irving Park commission, and the board of education. The authority of these five agencies is lodged in twenty-seven different persons.

In the Fiftieth ward the Lincoln park commission, the Ridge avenue park commission, the city, and the board of education have divided up the 89 acres of parks. Twenty-three public officials have a finger in this situation.

27 Park Officials in 22d.

Twenty-two officials have a say in the park managements of the Thirty-seventh ward. These are the city, board of education, the west park commissioners and the northwest park commissioners.

The same number of public officials operate parks in the Forty-ninth ward, although there are changes in the personnel. The park agencies in this ward are Ridge avenue park commission, North Shore park commission, the city, and the board of education.

In the Tenth ward, at the southeastern gateway to Chicago, the south park commission, the city, forest preserves, and the board of education conduct affairs. Incidentally this ward ranks next to the Forty-first in the large amount of park area per resident.

An official of the election commissioners phoned in yesterday to say: "In addition to the benefits from park consolidation you enumerated in THE TRIBUNE this morning you can say that such consolidation would simplify the printing of ballots, the preparation of maps, polling lists, and other printed matter of this commission."

JIDDU GOES INTO RETIREMENT TO FINISH A BOOK

Jiddu Krishnamurti, Hindu philosopher, left Chicago last night for a Virginia watering place to finish a book on the true happiness. He was accompanied by Rajagopal, secretary of the Order of the Star of the East. After completing the book, Krishnamurti will go to Ojai, California, to rest.

Mrs. Annie Besant, international head of the Theosophical society, left for Minneapolis last night to begin a lecture tour of the United States. She will return to New York in October.

Both Krishnamurti and Dr. Besant yesterday gave counsel to the visitors who attended the convention of the American Theosophical society.

TRAIN KILLS RAILWAY EMPLOYE.

Louis Nowling, colored, 21, of 2554 Fulton street, an engine wiper for the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, was struck by a train at Kinzie street and Claremont avenue yesterday and instantly killed.

HARMONICAS CRASH SCHOOL BOARD GATE

PROVE CANADA LOWERS LAKES; CHICAGO PAYS

Engineers Put Blame on Dominion Greed.

United States war department was made against the dredging did Canada call a halt, and it finally was agreed that it should stop. But even while the investigation is in progress, dredging is going on, the Essex Transit corporation being permitted by the Canadian government permit to dredge out gravel for use in paving by Canadian cities. And Canada still is exacting its 20 cent royalty on every yard, it was admitted reluctantly by Louis Merlo of Windsor, head of the company.

Canada Takes; Chicago Pays.

Chicago, forced by the demands of the war department to plan reduction of its diversion, is spending $60,000,000 in the next five years for sewage disposal plants. More millions are spent for water meters. While Chicago, anxious to do all of its part in restoring lake levels, is paying, Canada has been taking, and has made no offer to compensate for the damage it has done, the investigation reveals. At the same time, Chicago has been called the names, and by Canada.

United States government engineers have made a complete survey of the Canadian gravel steal, and the war department has a report showing the extent of the damage, and the resultant lowering of the levels of Lakes Huron and Michigan. Pending a report by the St. Lawrence joint commission, which is studying the controversy, the government refuses to make the figures known.

But a group of 28 nationally noted engineers studied the project for many months, announcing the conclusion that the St. Clair deepening was responsible for at least 8 inches of the lowered levels of the two lakes, while the Chicago diversion could be charged with not more than 5 inches.

Other Digging Without Damage.

Engineers pointed out that dredging in practically all other points of the Lake Huron outlet would have no effect appreciable on the lake levels. Further south along the St. Clair is sand which could be dug in great abundance, and some of the dredging companies operate there without opposition from either government, and without being forced to pay royalties.

But only at Point Edward is there the valuable gravel and there the dredgers' scoop shovels were permitted to run rampant until the United States called a halt.

When Canadian officials were asked to submit their records to show the extent of the work, it was revealed to the investigators that a gag has been placed upon the officials, for blunt refusals met all requests for figures.

A demand was made upon H. B. R. Craig of London, Ont., district engineer for the Dominion government, who has had full control of the dredging work, to produce his tables showing the total yardage removed at Point Edward. He refused to show them. He similarly rebuffed a request for the amount of monies which have enriched the coffers of Ontario province through the royalties.

So a request was made in person upon the Ontario minister of mines at Toronto to reveal the data and he refused, stating he would not give it unless authorized to do so by the premier of Ontario, G. Howard Ferguson, who was not in the city.

Millions of Yards Removed.

Application was also made to the minister of finance for records showing the sums received in royalties, and that was denied the inquirer.

But from officials of the dredging companies—principally the Caldwell Sand and Gravel company and the Essex Transit corporation of Windsor and the United Fuel company of Detroit—it was learned that the gravel removal ran into millions of yards, with Canada's profit at 20 cents per yard.

These officials also told of dredging not always in the path of vessels, but alongside in the shallower waters. Thus the channel was not only deepened, but was widened, which, according to engineers, had an added effect in lowering the levels of the lakes above.

In connection with the exposure of the St. Clair widening it was pointed out here that the ports on Lakes Erie and Ontario, where the shippers have been most vehement against Chicago's diversion, have really small ground for complaint.

In their case the St. Clair project has proved a great boon, for it has drained the Huron-Michigan waters to offset the lowering of levels resulting from natural causes in their own lakes, Erie and Ontario.

A. E. F. DEATH TOLL 77,771, SAY LATEST WASHINGTON FIGURES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Latest figures including those up to June 30, 1926, disclose that there were 77,771 deaths in the A. E. F., including those occurring on transports.

The number of graves registered to June 30, 1926 was 77,608 or 99.8 per cent of the total deaths. From the 77,608 registered graves, 44,253 bodies have been returned to the United States, 604 were sent to foreign countries for private interment, and 30,750 remained in Europe.

Of the number remaining in Europe, buried in American cemeteries 29,815 are buried in France, 431 in Great Britain, and 375 in Belgium, while 130 have, at the request of their families, been left undisturbed where they were originally buried.

ALLEGED CROOK CAUGHT IN WEST.

James McRae Allison, 49 years old, who is wanted here on confidence game charges, was arrested yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal. The charges were brought against him by J. Lester Williams, an attorney with offices in the Otis building, who said he lent Allison $3,500 several months ago and never has been repaid. Detective Sergeant Michael Trant will bring the captive to Chicago.

SEEK TO ENJOIN STANFIELD FROM BEING CANDIDATE

Salem, Ore., Sept. 4.—(AP)—An injunction suit attempting to block Robert N. Stanfield from becoming a candidate for reelection as United States senator, was filed in the Circuit court here today by William M. Stone, an attorney of Oregon City. The defendants are Sam A. Kozer, secretary of state, and Mr. Stanfield himself, and the complain seeks to enjoin the secretary of state from certifying Stanfield as a candidate.

The complaint summarizes the history of the Stanfield-Steiwer embroglio from the defeat of Stanfield for the Republican nomination for United States senator by Steiwer in the primary election to the nomination of Stanfield by a group of about 290 persons in Portland on Sept. 2.

It cites that portion of the state elections laws under which a candidate in the primary election declares that "if I am not nominated, I will not accept the nomination or indorsement of any other party than the one in which I am registered.

3 MEN KIDNAP SOCIETY GIRLS AND FLOG THEM

Bristol, Va., Sept. 4.—[United Press.]—While physicians today treated the badly bruised bodies of Miss Blanche Stone, 22, and Miss Lilly Frick, 24, popular society girls, police searched for three men who kidnaped the girls, carried them in an automobile to an abandoned hut three miles from here, and flogged them.

The girls were strolling on a downtown street Thursday night when an automobile carrying three men stopped near them, according to the story they told today. Two of the men grabbed the young women, pushed them into the car and sped into the country.

SCHOOLS OPEN ON TUESDAY FOR 501,000 PUPILS

Everything Ready, Board Officials Declare.

"All set" were the words given yesterday by the departments of the board of education as school offices closed, not to be opened again till Tuesday—when over half a million youngsters will troop back to school.

Col. Edward B. Ellicot, president of the school board, had the report that there would be no double sessions needed this year to take care of the overflow. The president said, "As far as reports show, we are in good shape. We are better off this year than any year thus far. Every school in the city has been properly cleaned and every repair requested by the educational department has been completed."

More Than Half Million.

Col. Ellicot also corrected the information that there would be an enrollment of only 459,000 by pointing to a letter from Supt. McAndrew of last June reporting an enrollment then of 501,000. With an expected increase of 11,000 this year, the schools will start off for the first time with more than a half million pupils.

William J. Bogan, assistant superintendent, said "We're ready." Likewise John Howatt, chief engineer, who said that yesterday he called for examinations for new men to operate the school plants, because of the number of new schools.

Anne Davis, director of vocational guidance, yesterday reported that last week was strenuous for her department. Over 800 pupils between 14 and 17 who have been working during the summer were given permission to continue their work during the winter. Many more, Miss Davis said, were dissuaded from their intention to leave school. Yesterday a parent asked that his daughter be permitted to work, because he expected her to marry soon, but he wanted to have her contribute to the support of the family for a short time at least. Miss Davis cited this case as an example of the problems of the department.

McAndrew More Cautious.

John E. Byrnes, business manager, and C. S. Gilbert, secretary, echoed the note "We are prepared." Supt. William McAndrew had no comment except that "We hope to open on Sept. 7."

A group of twenty-one boys with harmonicas serenaded the superintendent at his office yesterday. He joined in with them and said, "Any one who can come from New York and turn Chicago wind into harmony was welcome." He offered them the freedom of Chicago's wind.

REALTY MAN HANGS HIMSELF.

Anthony Lightneckert, 63 years old, a real estate dealer, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his home at 8314 South Paulina street. His body was found by his son. According to the police, he had been despondent over business losses.

VIKING RUINS

CANOEMARATHON TODAY IN FOREST PRESERVE EVENTS

A score of entries have been received for the marathon canoe race to be held as a feature of the water carnival this afternoon at dam No. 2 in the forest preserves, it was announced yesterday. The race is from the Wheeling bridge to dam No. 2 and the contestants will be compelled at times to carry their canoes across dry land. Trophies will be awarded to the first three to finish.

Swimming races, a Venetian parade, diving contests, and a canoe tilting contest will also be held at the carnival, which is conducted under the auspices of Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board.

Prizes have also been donated for winners in 100 yard free style senior swimming race, the 100 yard junior free style race, the 50 yard back stroke, the 50 yard breast stroke for women, and the 50 yard free style race for women.

MacMillan Finds Labrador Viking Town 1,000 Years Old

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Old legends telling of Norse settlements made in America by ancient vikings long before Columbus sailed to the new world are given further supporting proof by discoveries made by the subarctic expedition of the Field museum of Chicago.

The expedition, headed by Commander Donald B. Macmillan and including three women and five scientists, returned here today after two and a half months spent in trailing the ancient Norsemen's footsteps and in collecting fauna and flora specimens of Labrador and Greenland. Many rare specimens were obtained and important facts about animal life in the frozen north were uncovered.

After replenishing stores and fuel the expedition's ships, the Bowdoin and Sachem III., were to proceed down the coast to Wiscasset, Me., Commander Macmillan's home port, where they are due to arrive next Friday.

To Return Next June.

Commander Macmillan said he would return to Labrador next June and build a house and establish a scientific station near Nain.

"The new house at Nain will be substantially built," he said, "and we will leave scientists there all the time, the Bowdoin furnishing transportation for men and supplies once a year."

"There is every probability," he continued, "that the ancient ruins on Sculpin island, twenty miles off Nain, Labrador, are the remains of a Norse settlement.

"On the side next to the mainland we found what appeared to be the rock foundations of ten or twelve houses. From their shape there was no mistaking their purpose, but unfortunately there was nothing in the [illegible] inscriptions to prove [illegible] they had been built by the [illegible]

Among the trophies [illegible] was a walrus weighing 1,500 [illegible] shot in Melville bay. It will be [illegible] structed and sent to the Field [illegible] seum in Chicago, as will the [illegible] specimens.

The women spent their time [illegible] rowing, and visiting the [illegible] ple in the villages. Once, while [illegible] ing, they ran into two walruses, [illegible] escaped before the fierce animals [illegible] attack.

Three youths under 20 were with the expedition as members of the [illegible] crew. They were Kenneth [illegible] 19, son of Frederick H. [illegible] Chicago; Joseph N. Classic
SINK FIXTURE

Where Every Day Is Labor Day

The kitchen sink is one machine that operates 365 days a year—several hours a day. No wonder most women hate the very sight of it.

The real beauty of the Classic is that it shortens those hours, makes all that work that pivots around the kitchen sink easier and more pleasant.

You'll notice a big difference in your attitude towards kitchen work the day you add the Classic to your collection of household conveniences. It costs less than most of them, helps more than any of them and there's nothing to pay for maintenance and service.

Your plumber can install one in a jiffy without any muss or bother. Tell him you want a Classic. Prices from $8.00 to $15.00.

PARENTS WHILE UNWED, FIGHT TO WIN CHILDREN

Mothers in Both Cases Appeal to Court.

Two bitter legal disputes for the custody of small children developed yesterday before Superior Judge Joseph B. David. Court attachés were amazed when it was revealed that each of the four children involved is illegitimate. The parents in both cases never have been married, but declared that they were ready to spend years fighting each other for the custody of their children.

Mrs. Fay Holmes, 943 Irving Park boulevard, admitted that she lived for twelve years with Carlton A. Dalzell, 756 North Dearborn street. They had three children, Marguerite, 12 years old; Gordon, 10 years old, and Dorothy, 8 years old.

Calls Ex-Mate Kidnaper.

Two years ago the mother married John Holmes. She took the three children with her. Since then Dalzell, she charged, has kidnaped the children twice and now has the oldest girl. She asked Judge David to give her custody of the girl through the medium of a writ of habeas corpus.

"Well, the father of an illegitimate child has absolutely no right to it," declared the judge. "I'll issue the writ and we'll decide Tuesday what are the merits of the case."

The judge had just finished disposing of that case when Mabel Anderson, 20 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., appeared before him. She also asked a writ of habeas corpus for her year old child, Everett. The infant is in the custody of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. King, 316 West Oak street, she said.

"Clyde McNeely is the father of my child," she said. "When the baby was born he turned it over to his aunt and uncle. I want the child back but they won't give it to me. I've come all the way to Chicago from St. Paul in order to get my baby."

Says Father Would Wed.

King was in court. "McNeely is willing to marry the girl," he told the judge.

"I don't want to marry him. I just want my son," retorted Miss Anderson.

"You don't have to marry him," said the judge. "I'll decide this case Tuesday, too."

BUILDING TRADES WIN STRIKE ON 2 BIG PROJECTS

Contractor Will Employ Only Union Men.

An apparent victory for the Chicago Building Trades council was seen yesterday when the Starrett-Dilks company, contractors for some of the largest building projects in the city, announced that it would hire only union mechanics in the construction of the Jewelers' and De Wolf buildings.

Work on those two structures was tied up a few days ago when a strike was called by the council after the contractors had been working under the Landis award

Strike Called by Council.

The walkout was called under the terms of the decision June 1, whereby the council announced that on and after that date, all work let under the Landis award would be subject to immediate strike.

The Jewelers and De Wolf buildings were singled out as the two projects for the strike, and workmen in the thirteen so-called open shop trades promptly quit. Yesterday, however, the Starrett-Dilks Co. acceded to the union demands.

One Contractor Holding Out.

One Landis award contractor, however, is still operating with nonunion men. Henry Ericsson has held out against the edict by the council, and is steadily working on the construction of the Morton building, Washington and Wells streets.

CRUSHED BY FALLING BOILER.

William Freel, 47 years old, 1142 Barry avenue, was instantly killed yesterday when a three ton boiler which he was installing in the home of John Coekler, 2851 North Racine avenue, fell upon him, crushing his skull.

SEEK WRIGHT AND DANCER TO FACE CRIMINAL CHARGE

Warrant for Adultery Is Issued.

Baraboo, Wis., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Frank Lloyd Wright, architect, and his companion and housekeeper, Mme. Olga Milanoff, Montenegrin dancer, were sought tonight by Wisconsin officers holding a warrant charging them with adultery.

The architect, who for the first time in his seventeen years of hectic love affairs was charged with a criminal offense, was accused in a complaint made by Valdemar Hinzenberg, Chicago architect and divorced husband of Mme. Milanoff.

Hinzenberg entered Wright's tangled matrimonial affairs a few days ago in an effort to regain possession of his 9 year old daughter, custody of which was given to Mme. Milanoff under terms of a divorce obtained in Chicago in 1925.

Sheriff Starts Search.

The sheriff of Sauk county started the search for Wright and Mme. Milanoff, who disappeared a few days ago from Wright's country home, Taliesin. Conviction on the charge constituting a felony is punishable by imprisonment from one to three years or a fine ranging from $200 to $1,000. The couple may be extradited to Wisconsin on the charge if found in another state.

Hinzenberg yesterday obtained a writ of habeas corpus demanding that Wright, Mme. Milanoff or others produce the child and with officers went to Taliesin but found neither Wright, Mme. Milanoff or the girl.

Hearing Is Postponed.

Hinzenberg through his attorney today sought to question employés of the Wright estate in an effort to find out the whereabouts of his daughter. His attorney, however, encountered unexpected opposition when he sought to question them.

The three employés, Will Billington, Cyril Jane and Dan E. Jones, answered by affidavit that they did not have the child and did not know where it was.

The matter was taken under advisement and the hearing continued until 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

ESTABLISHED 1872

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

CHICAGO KANSAS CITY ST. PAUL BALTIMORE
PORTLAND, ORE OAKLAND, CALIF FORT WORTH CHICAGO

September 1, 1926.

Mr. F. D. Cerf, President,
Stutz Chicago Factory Branch.

My dear Mr. Cerf:

Adjectives and superlatives have been greatly stressed in describing automobiles, so in telling of my experience with my STUTZ VERTICAL 8 COUPE I am going to get right down to "brass tacks" and give you an actual record of results.

After having driven this car almost 9,000 miles over all kinds of roads - in all kinds of weather, I can say that I have never seen or driven a car that provides such a thorough combination of mechanical perfection - power - safety - comfort - appearance and economy of operation. Most good automobiles excel in one or two of the above elements, but the STUTZ rates very high in all of them.

Your motor is a wonder - very powerful, exceptionally quiet, and the design is such that lightning-like acceleration is possible. In an actual test I have, from a standing start, developed a speed of 35 miles an hour in only 9.3 seconds. From there on up to 65 or 70 miles an hour is but a matter of a few seconds more - a wonderful performance for a car weighing close to 4,000 pounds.

Your chassis design is such that one travels at high speeds on most any kind of a road in safety and comfort. The STUTZ "hugs" the road, and there is a noticeable absence of "side-sway". Its hill climbing performance is remarkable. I have driven this car for hours at a stretch with the thermometer "flirting" with the 100 mark, but the motor temperature did not, at any time, exceed 180 degrees - a wonderful cooling system. Fuel and oiling systems are perfect. The Timken Hydrostatic Four Wheel Brakes are unexcelled, require very little adjusting and are free from common brake noises.

For sheer beauty and exclusive design, the STUTZ is just "a step ahead" of the field.

Being interested in the technical side of motoring, I recently had my car tested at the Automotive Testing Laboratory. The Chief Engineer stated that the new STUTZ was the most powerful motor he ever tested - far surpassing any other eight cylinder motor in the $3,000-$6,000 field, for actual developed horse power under load. Following is a record of this test:

FUEL CONSUMPTION: Pounds per H. P. hour .71 (.80 is considered very good for any motor regardless of size)

GASOLINE MILEAGE: 14.7 miles per gallon

ACTUAL POWER DEVELOPED: at 10 miles per hour 15.1 H. P.
" " " " 20 " " " 30.4 "
" " " " 30 " " " 44.7 "
" " " " 40 " " " 53.6 "
" " " " 50 " " " 57.5 "
" " " " 60 " " " 54.1 "
" " " " 70 " " " 52.2 "

SPEEDOMETER: 1 mile slow

In closing I want to commend you on the character of your service and the personnel of your company. It has indeed been a pleasure to deal with you and your men.

Sincerely yours,

E. L. McCarthy

New SAFETY STUTZ

THE New Safety Stutz is permanently protected against theft, by The Fedco System, without cost to the car owner. An exclusive feature is Loss-of-Use Insurance, paying the car owner five dollars per day, up to thirty days, for loss of the car's use through theft. This also is without cost to the car owner. The entire car has Underwriters' Class A rating on both fire and theft. Eight body styles, including 7-passenger models, designed and constructed under the supervision of Brewster of New York. All closed bodies automatically ventilated by Hubbard Ventilating Eaves—another exclusive feature.

We invite you to verify the statements of Chicago owners regarding the unsurpassed safety and riding-and-driving qualities of this remarkable new-type car by riding and driving a New Safety Stutz yourself. Phone us for an appointment. Our showrooms are open on Sundays and evenings for your convenience.

The price of the 5 Passenger Sedan is only $2995.00 F. O. B. factory.

A WARNING TO THIS NATION.

Sir George Foster, Canadian representative in the league conference on the American league court reservations, says "the United States pretends to impose its will upon the statutes of the court and to tell The Hague: 'You can do this and you cannot do that.'"

The United States does nothing of the sort, and Sir George, an LL. D., a D. C. L., an educator, a banker, a publicist, and a diplomat, may be assumed to know the accurate use of language and therefore that his assertion is not in accord with the fact. The United States pretends to impose nothing on the court or the league. It has been invited to give adherence to the former. It offers to do so with certain reservations. By what torturing of words can that be called "imposing its will" or telling the league what it can or cannot do? The league is free to accept our reservations or reject them. We may describe it as a bargaining in which both parties are free to accept or reject.

Sir George was allowing resentment or ill feeling to take the place of fair statement, and for our part, as an opponent of our adherence to the court, we thank him for the disclosure. Sir George is a vice president of the league, and his temper is worthy of our notice. Though a Canadian, he has been knighted by his king, and he speaks in the spirit which prevails on the other side of the Atlantic, a spirit of unfriendliness virtually universal from the Urals to Land's End. We say it is folly for us to enter into a community whose every member is hostile to us. We say it is worse than folly to pledge ourselves, with or without reservations, to abide the adjudication of our rights by a tribunal packed with the representatives of nations which make no effort to conceal their dislike of us.

The conciliatory tone of other delegates at the conference does not reassure us. It does seem to express the sentiment of their press or public men at home.

Sir George's address has other misstatements or unfair implications which are of course deliberate, as when he says "the United States signed the treaty of Versailles." The United States never signed the treaty of Versailles. The treaty of Versailles was signed by one group of representatives, who were not empowered to bind the United States. It was rejected by another group, whose consent was under the constitution of the United States essential to the acceptance of any treaty. Sir George knows that, but his animosity could not deny itself the gratification of an innuendo of bad faith. It is a common distortion in Europe, and we cannot correct it, for it is intentional, but we ought to take note of it as warning to keep our freedom intact, at least until the spirit of these nations whose representatives exhort us in the name of good will exhibit more of that good will toward us.

OUR RELATIONS WITH LATIN AMERICA.

A correspondent of the London Times reports, with some measure of resignation, that as a result of the failure of the United States to settle the Tacna-Arica dispute and "Gen. Lassiter's ascription to Chile of all the blame," Chile is all against us and against pan-Americanism. National feeling is expressed, says this reporter, by "a revival of the old distrust of the economic preponderance of the United States in Peru and Bolivia and in the smaller tropical republics; secondly, in a resuscitation in the press of the history of the relations between the United States and Mexico, Cuba, Colombia, Panama, and Haiti," and, thirdly, of a sentimental rapprochement with Europe, especially Spain.

How familiar all that sounds. Is it not the old story and can anything be done about it? We doubt it, and therefore we doubt the wisdom of accepting invitations to arbitrate between Latin American states. The loser will never credit us with disinterestedness, and any decision will be ascribed to some secret motive of ambition.

As for what the Times calls "the history" of our relations with Mexico, Cuba, Colombia, Panama, and Haiti, we know well that as presented by the Chilean press it will be only the myth of Uncle Shylock armed with a gun. We know well this myth, cherished by Latin American politicians, and recognize that it is a real obstruction to the relations which ought to exist. Recently it has been proposed to better understanding that exchange professorships be arranged with Latin American universities, and this seems to us worth trying. In the United States the study of Spanish has increased, and if, on the other hand, in Latin America our history could be fairly presented the educated classes, from which leadership comes, would in time develop a better opinion of American international conduct.

We do not suggest this as a warranty of understanding. It is difficult for nations of different language, culture, and background to understand one another, even where contacts are many, as between England and France. The Latin American and the North American are in temperament, sentiment, and manners far apart, but that has its advantages, and if there were an understanding of a few controlling facts in our history which dispose of the bugaboos of jingo politics, the two races should gain much from friendly intercourse.

WHAT A HISTORIAN THINKS OF PROHIBITION.

On the right of this page today appears a discussion of prohibition by an American scholar and historian, Prof. Dabney of the University of Virginia. We commend it especially to those readers who think that opposition to the 18th amendment is actuated by an intemperate thirst or a selfish sensuality which refuses to be restrained for the public good. We commend it especially to those readers whose conceptions of the constitutional objections to the 18th amendment are dim.

There are many of such and we should be nearer a tolerable and therefore a practicable system of dealing with the evils of the liquor traffic if they would first remove their prejudices against the reasoned opposition to the prohibitionist experiment and then take frank and serious thought of the profound issues of liberty and government involved in that departure from American constitutional principle. The adoption of the 18th amendment disclosed the deplorable fact that a large proportion, perhaps a majority, of this generation of American citizens had a very inadequate appreciation of the nature and value of their inheritance of ordered liberty. The ardent dry thinks of prohibition as if it were no more than the abatement of a village saloon or bagnio, and opposition inevitably appears to him as a stubborn sinning against the light. It is to be doubted that argument or exposition will reach him, but with the large public which holds the balance of power the reasoning against prohibition which is supported by human experience and embodied in our fundamental law will in time prevail.

Prof. Dabney's article closes with a suggestion for which there was not space in the columns assigned to his article and which we therefore present here. He thinks it virtually impossible to repeal the 18th amendment since a mere handful of votes could defeat it. Therefore he turns to the Supreme court, "a small body of able and upright men who hold their positions for life and do not wince when Wayne B. Wheeler's whip cracks over their heads. These men know the constitution. They know that neither sumptuary statutes nor statutes of any kind are congruous with its spirit. They know that legally there is no such thing as absolute government in the American system. Every power of the government is a delegated power. The whole spirit of the constitution breathes hostility to the idea that the individual possesses no rights that are safe from governmental might. Undoubtedly the power of congress, added to the power of three-fourths of the state legislatures, is a formidable aggregation. But the ninth and tenth amendments protect the rights of the individual against even that mass of might. The constitution delegates no power to the national government to meddle with men's meats and drinks, and the 10th amendment declares that powers not delegated by the people are reserved to them. To say that the power of amendment is unlimited is to say that the bill of rights is a scrap of paper, that liberty is but a name, that the government is master of the people instead of their servant, that the creature is above the creator."

If a test case were properly presented to the Supreme court Prof. Dabney hopes the amendment will be held null and void, and he adds, "until it is held null and void the statue of Liberty in New York harbor, erected by the free French people, should be draped in black."

CONQUERING FLOODS.

Secretary Hoover has long been advocating the development of the internal waterways of the nation for transportation, power and irrigation. In his Seattle speech he added a fourth objective: flood control.

Floods are wasteful. The water might be creating hydro-electric energy. It might be useful later in the season for transportation. It might be irrigating deserts. Instead it takes toll of life and property and strews our most fertile land on the floor of the sea.

Our forests have been cut down and the prairie sod broken. Marshes and lakes have been drained. Levees have been built along the banks which prevent the streams from overflowing into their lowlands at high water. The loss of one natural reservoir after another has been reflected in the increasing destructiveness of the floods. There will always be high water in the spring as surely as snow melts and the spring rains come on, but man is directly responsible for the increasing menace of floods with their attendant losses. Fortunately, as Mr. Hoover suggests, man can remedy or abate the evil which he has created if he cannot entirely cure it.

Flood control so far as the United States is concerned may be considered as a problem of the Mississippi valley. More than 40 per cent of the land area of the United States drains into the great river. It may be possible to turn some of the flood waters of the upper Mississippi into the great lakes, but this would not reduce the flow from the Missouri, the Ohio and lower tributaries. The solution lies rather in reforestation of barren lands and in impounding flood waters in the uplands. Thus flood control can become a by-product of the development of power, irrigation, transportation and reforestation. It can be made to pay immediate return in power and transportation and a somewhat more deferred return in the products of the forests and irrigated fields.

Editorial of the Day

MR. BAKER'S DEBT BRIEF.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

Newton D. Baker, ex-secretary of war, has taken up the burden of the cancellation tale. His voice will blend with that of Clemenceau the Frenchman, Churchill the Briton, and of that American banking group favoring cancellation. The Baker conversion seems recent. He said nothing of cancellation in the days of his own beloved chieftain, Woodrow Wilson, who always opposed it.

Nor is it in line with the stand of Mr. Baker's own party, the Democrats. Some of the most vigorous enemies of cancellation are found in its ranks. Mr. Baker, however, has made certain new, powerful, and possibly significant connections since the war. These indicate he may be speaking not only for himself but for those financial interests in the middle west now and finally persuaded to work with certain others in the east who demand that America shall pay the cost of Europe's own war.

Mr. Baker is a corporation lawyer of great parts. Since 1924 he has become less the politician and more the attorney. His plea for cancellation reads more like a lawyer's brief than it does the outgivings of a statesman or even of a party leader.

RELIGION AND WORK—A LABOR DAY MESSAGE

BY THE RT. REV. CHARLES P. ANDERSON, D. D., LL.D.

[Bishop of Chicago of the Episcopal Church.]

I think it was Ruskin who said there are only three ways of making a living—begging, stealing, and working. We do not want to go begging. Our religion forbids stealing. This leaves work as our only means of making a livelihood.

If any one is so fortunate or unfortunate he is not obliged to work for a living this situation puts upon him the moral responsibility of doing some work for the community equivalent at least to his own upkeep; otherwise he would be a parasite on the community. Back of the things that are worth while there has always been hard work. Back of the poem that reads so smoothly it seems to have been written with a few strokes of the pen; back of the picture that looks so natural it seems to have grown on the canvas; back of the green grain fields of the springtime and the yellow harvest fields of the autumn; back of commerce and industry; back of education and progress there has always been constant toil. There is no other royal road to the things that are worth having.

If work is of such dignity and necessity it is something with which religion is directly concerned. A man cannot divorce his religion from his everyday work and life. It has been said, partly in jest and partly in earnest, religion has nothing to do with business or politics. That may be a comfortable doctrine for evildoers, but it is not the gospel of religion. Religion claims everything or nothing. It claims the whole of the life of every man for God. There is no sphere of human life or contact from which religion can be excluded. This does not mean the intrusion of economics and politics into religion, but it does mean the supremacy of religion in a man's economics and politics. The goal of religion is, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord." That means we shall bend all our energies toward bringing it to pass that governments operate under his sway, industry conforms to the moral law of the kingdom of God, commerce is governed by the Golden Rule, and our civilization will become Christian in its structure, its ethics, and its loyalties.

It won't do for a man to say, "Religion is a private matter between me and God." Such a person generally puts the "me" first. Religion is, of course, a relationship between God and me which expresses itself in character and purposes. But because it is this it is also a relationship between my neighbor and me, between my country and me, between my employer and me, between my employé and me, between my customer and me, between everybody and me. The relationship of God to man is defined in terms of righteousness and love. These are the bases of human relationships from the standpoint of religion. "If God so loved us we ought also to love one another" and "do unto others as we would that they should do unto us."

The man who says religion is a private matter between God and himself is apt to claim his work or business is a private matter between him and his conscience. Under that philosophy the employer might say, "The wages I pay, the seven day week I require, the twelve hour day I exact, the little children whom I employ, the profits I make, the liberties I give or withhold, the connivance I have with civic officials, these are all my own private affairs with which religion has nothing to do. Hands off." And the employé might say, "The quality of service I render, the character of work I do, the hours I shirk, the fraudulent work I cover up, the waste I cause—these are my own personal affairs with which religion has nothing to do. Hands off." Both are wrong. Neither a man's work nor his business nor his religion is a private affair. God has to be taken into account. The public has to be considered. No man liveth to himself. A man can no more say his work or his business is his own private affair than he can say God is his private God.

People rightly spend much of their time over such matters as work, wages, and profits. Business and politics largely determine our wages, salaries, incomes, homes, schools, churches, parks, playgrounds, holidays, food, air, and water. These are the things that people think about, talk about, rejoice over, and fret over. These are spheres wherein souls are saved or lost. If religion is not a determining factor in the quality of such things as these it is because it is thinking of something less than those moral and spiritual values which contribute to the upbuilding of the kingdom of God in the lives of men.

There are certain principles which religion would emphasize as lying at the foundation of work and industry. First is the supreme value of human life. Men come before money. Human rights come before property rights. The square deal comes before profits. The welfare of humanity must override all other considerations.

Second, righteousness. That is, right between man and man, right made might and not might made right. This involves coming to terms with such matters as the length and the contents of a day's or a week's work, a fair wage, a just profit, child labor, working conditions, and all matters that bear upon the welfare of the human family. Some contend most of these matters are governed by inexorable economic laws with which religion has nothing to do. There we must take issue. Economic considerations do not abrogate the moral law. The supremacy of Christ over all human affairs is the only ground on which a Christian man can consistently stand.

Third, service. When wages and profits have been equitably adjusted the whole story is not told. There is a third party to be considered—namely: the public. Would any man or firm openly admit they are at work or in business solely for the purpose of making money? At any rate, this is not what they advertise. They advertise service. The bank, the factory, the store, the professions, the labor unions rightly claim they render service. This is their moral justification. It is not enough for one to say he is getting a fair wage or making a fair profit. He ought to be able to go on and say he is putting service and truth and quality into his day's work; he is putting service and truth and quality into the business which he conducts and the advertisements which he prints.

It can all be summed up in the words of him who said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." When this is done men are in a mood to settle on a just and righteous basis the problems which arise in the world of work and industry.

It must not be forgotten, however, that while the right spirit is the prime essential in settling disputes growing out of industry, it takes patience to arrive at just conclusions in many cases. It is difficult for partisans of any cause, even where they are well disposed, to easily see the viewpoint of the side opposite to their own. Often industrial questions require expert knowledge and the survey of many apparently conflicting facts. The church, having in its ranks both employers and employés, ought to be able to take the rôle of a just arbitrator, but in any case all questions must be ultimately settled on the basis of the Christianity which it is the province of the church to proclaim.

How to Keep Well. ◆◆◆
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, in matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

FOOD AND THE CHILD.

Mrs. A. H. P. writes: After reading your article about undernourished children, I want to say a word or so.

While people take their children to doctors more regularly now than formerly, they don't seem to learn the one basic thing from the doctor—how to prepare foods and exactly what to eat.

My little girl is 6 years old and has had a continuous siege of sickness, beginning with rickets, measles, bronchitis, broncho-pneumonia, chickenpox, tonsillitis, whooping cough, plenty of "flu," rheumatism and, finally, removal of tonsils.

After learning she had rickets, I began to learn what to do to save her life, and she is not undernourished.

Parents are too likely to make the preparation of meals an easy, makeshift occupation, but it ought not to be done. Among things you could impress on mothers through your column are these:

Don't serve predigested cereals to children, but cook some whole wheat cereal or oatmeal. Give the reason for serving these cooked cereals, state the quantity of lime, minerals, roughage. State the building value of cereals as a protein food.

Remind them that the water of vegetables contains most of the mineral salts which many—most families—throw away.

Impress the importance of a variety of foods; the necessity of the use of lemons during winter to supplant the quality of foods not ripened in the sunlight.

Make and publish menus for breakfast, lunch and supper. If a specimen weekly menu and instructions for preparation could be prepared and sent to each parent, we would be doing something.

My child revolts because "we have soup every day," but I don't give her much of anything and she has to eat it all. In spite of her long, hard struggle, she is well nourished and is wiry—feels fine. She will overcome her chronic troubles soon, because her tonsils were removed, because she responds to the food I give her, and because I call her inside from her play to drink water. The remainder I make her take, much against her will.

After her breakfast each morning she goes to the bathroom and reports afterwards the nature of her movement (hard or soft). I have taught her to wash her teeth after each meal, and her health habits are a pleasure to her. She is high in first grade and doing well.

Food habits also could be a pleasure. We should learn to like foods we despise, but know are helpful. Many don't read your column, especially those who need your help. If you could get the board of education to print and distribute through the children some menus to parents and a little advice as to the correct preparation, I believe you would be doing something worth while.

I am not preaching, but so many complaints could be avoided and a healthier old life assured by exertion of a little care while the child is young.

BLISTERS UNDER TONGUE.

Constant Reader writes: 1. Operated on for appendicitis last summer. Is it too early to go swimming, play tennis, etc.?

2. I frequently get blisters under the tongue. What is the cause?

3. Will I get cancer of the tongue from breaking these blisters?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Constipation and eating a badly balanced diet are the most frequent causes.
3. Not probable.

OIL STOVE FUMES.

Mrs. V. T. G. writes relative to oil stove fumes inquired about by "Mrs. R. E. B.," I would like to say:

I have used oil stoves for over thirteen years for cooking and laundry purposes. I experienced the same trouble with the short chimney type of stove. I found this to be due to the warping and carbonization of the inner cap. This inner cap of chimney may be removed and cleaned with a stiff brush, making sure all perforations are opened, and restored to original size, until cap becomes warped, when it should be replaced by a new one.

If this precaution is taken the stove should give no trouble in a room having good ventilation.

WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I recently saw in your column where a man who worked as machinist in Chicago had part of his little finger taken off in an accident at his work. He wanted to know how much compensation he would receive and you answered that he was entitled to half the wages if his disability lasted eight days. I do not believe that this rule is general. Isn't there a maximum and minimum amount which an injured person may receive? Wish you would please quote the law. INQUIRER.

The compensation act provides: "If the period of temporary total incapacity for work last for more than six working days, compensation equal to fifty per centum of the earnings, but not less than $7.50 nor more than $14.00 per week, beginning on the eighth day of such temporary total incapacity and continuing as long as the temporary total incapacity lasts, but not after the amount of compensation paid equals the amount which would have been payable as a death benefit—etc."

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 5, 1861.

WASHINGTON.—Confirmation of the death of Jeff Davis comes to this city both by the way of Manassas and Louisville. His disease was congestive chills. Contrabrands from Manassas say that he died at 7 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 2.

WASHINGTON.—Kit Carson is busily engaged in raising a corps of mounted rangers, composed not of half-breeds or savages, but of shrewd practical trappers like himself, who have spent their lives on the prairies. With these Carson purposes coming eastward and offering his services to the government.

CAIRO.—Gen. Grant assumed command of the forces at this post today.

CHICAGO.—For some days past rumors have been rife of disaffection amounting almost to mutiny in the Chicago Hecker Jaeger regiment now in service in Missouri. The Staats-Zeitung contains a letter over the signature of Dr. Wagner, the regimental surgeon, from which it is made to appear that a cabal of Col. Hecker's officers was responsible for the situation. Col. Hecker laid the matter before Gen. Fremont at St. Louis and was told to make himself obeyed at whatever cost. On returning to camp Col. Hecker gave Lieut. Col. Mihalotzy ten days in which to resign and ordered Capt. Lang and Lieuts. Gerhard and Buhl of Company A, Capt. A. Mauff, and Lieuts. Busse and Klokk of Company E, and Major McCune to resign at once.

CHICAGO.—Maj. Gen. Hunter, lately appointed by the war department to the command of a division of the army in Illinois yet to be created, arrived in the city and took rooms at the Sherman house. He has entirely recovered from the wounds he received at the battle of Bull Run. He was serenaded last night at 11 o'clock by a large number of citizens and the Light Guard band. He appeared on the balcony and was introduced to the crowd by Mayor Rumsey. The whole affair was a most pleasant occasion and a graceful compliment to the distinguished officer.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 5, 1901.

NEW YORK.—A chance to end the steel strike with some degree of dignity to the Amalgamated association and to President Shaffer was offered to Shaffer and he rejected it. Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, offered to recognize the union in all mills that it had been able to close and keep closed, but refused to recognize the union in mills that had continued in operation since the beginning of the strike.

POTSDAM.—Prince Chun, brother of the emperor of China, bowed low in the presence of Kaiser Wilhelm and formally expressed regret of his government for the murder of Baron von Ketteler in Peking more than a year ago. The ceremony was as impressive as the kaiser could make it. While Prince Chun was not unduly humiliated, he was made to feel that he could not be received with the honor due his rank until he had fulfilled his expiatory mission.

CHICAGO.—Harry D. Hubbard, private secretary to President Harper of the University of Chicago, was appointed secretary of the national bureau of standards at Washington at a salary of $2,000 a year.

CHICAGO.—The board of education voted to appropriate $40,000 for the purchase of free text books for the first, second, third and fourth grades of the public schools, and T. B. Thiele, chairman of the vigilance committee of the Federation of German Catholic societies, announced that suit will be filed asking an injunction against spending the money for such a purpose.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 5, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Leo Sebastian, an attorney in the First National Bank building, was found wandering about Lincoln park, viciously mutilated by knife wounds. He refused to give the police any information concerning the stabbing.

LONDON.—Attacks by the French on a 17-mile front, from south of Combles to Chilly, gained eight miles of German first line trenches, besides making insecure the other nine miles of the enemy positions. The French night official report hints that the fighting is of the most bitter character, but unofficial reports do not hide the fact that the battle now raging is the most sanguinary since the great allied offensive in the Somme region began.

ROME.—About 450,000 Austrians have been killed, captured or so seriously wounded that they cannot return to the front in engagements with the Italians since the Austro-Italian declaration of war fifteen months ago, according to estimates of Italian military authorities.

HODGENVILLE, Ky.—President Wilson paid tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln before the humble log cabin in Larue county where the civil war President was born. A throng of 25,000 persons welcomed the President.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Charles E. Hughes faced a tumultuous audience here. With cheers for Woodrow Wilson ringing in his ears, heckled by questioners, and halted frequently by Democratic sympathizers, the Republican nominee criticized the administration for its policies. Despite the hostility of the audience, at the conclusion of his speech it heartily cheered him.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet, regent of the Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died at her old family home at Fostoria, Ohio.

IS THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT UNCONSTITUTIONAL?

Charlottesville, Va., July 23.—When the stockholders of a railway company choose directors and president, and empower them to buy locomotives and cars, to lay tracks and build stations, to employ engineers and ticket agents, they do not consider it necessary to tell them not to build breweries or churches, not to establish hospitals or golf links. Nor did our forefathers, after repudiating British authority, consider it necessary to say, in their state constitutions, that their governors and legislatures were not empowered to decapitate all bow-legged men or to gouge out the eyes of all knock-kneed women. They considered it sufficient to state what their governors and legislatures were empowered to do; it being a matter of course that they could legally do nothing else. Whether the right of a bow-legged man to keep his head on his shoulders, or the right of a knock-kneed woman to keep her eyes in her head, be a "natural" and "inalienable" right or not, it is at least clear that no legislature has a natural right to remove the man's head or the woman's eyes.

It is evident, then, that the powers of the state governments, which were created by the citizens of the states through their representatives, are strictly limited powers. No state legislature is legally empowered to embody in law any wild notion that chances to pop into the heads of its members. The people of Virginia, however, well knowing that legislatures, like kings, are often guilty of usurpation, drew, along with their constitution, a list of the more important individual rights with which their legislature was not to meddle; and the other states have closely followed Virginia in adopting similar "bills of rights." Such bills were a clear notification to the legislatures, the creatures of the people, that they must not dare to take away the reserved rights of their creators.

And how is it with the national government? Does it possess the "divine right," once claimed by kings, to do what it pleases? Has it a right, either "natural" or delegated by the states, to do anything that may seem fit to the politicians who compose it? Students of history are aware that the national government is the creature of the states, that, instead of springing full-grown from the brain of Zeus, it was slowly and laboriously fashioned by the convention of 1787, in which each state had one vote, and that it acquired the power to function in no state until the constitution had been ratified by that state itself. George Washington was inaugurated in 1789 as President of only eleven states which had then ratified the constitution.

And what is the nature of this famous document, the constitution of the United States? The first three articles describe the methods by which the congress, the President and the United States judges are selected, and define the extent of their powers. The fourth article enumerates some of the duties of the several states to each other, provides for the admission of new states, gives congress the power to make rules and regulations respecting the territory and other property belonging to the United States, and guarantees to each state protection by the United States. The fifth article lays down the legal way of amending the constitution, with the proviso that no state shall ever, without its consent, be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate. Article VI. declares the continuing validity of debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of the constitution; declares that the constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof, together with treaties made with other countries, shall be the supreme law of the land, and states that no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States. The seventh and last article says that ratification by nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of the constitution between the states so ratifying.

Nowhere in the document do we find any statutes, of either a sumptuary or other kind, regulating the lives of individuals. There is no clause prohibiting murder or burglary or arson or rape. Congress, while empowered to do many things, is prohibited from doing numerous other things. States are also prohibited from doing certain things. But private individuals are prohibited from doing nothing whatever except committing treason against the United States. No private rights of individuals are tampered with in the slightest degree. On the contrary, the liberties of individuals are protected by limitations expressly put upon the power of congress.

We see, then, that the mass of individuals, acting through representatives, created the state constitutions and governments, and that the states in their turn created the national government. Every power possessed by either a state government or by the government of the United States is a delegated power. Neither any single state nor the United States as a unit possesses a single "natural" or "divine" right or power. All state powers and all national powers are delegated.

It is clear, then, that neither single states nor the United States have any legal powers other than those granted in their respective constitutions. When they exercise other powers they are guilty of despotism just as truly as if they were oriental monarchs. So fearful, indeed, were our forefathers of such despotism that the constitution would not have been ratified, had not its advocates promised the adoption of a bill of rights. In accordance with this promise, the first ten amendments were promptly added to the constitution. Of these the first eight provided for the protection of certain important rights and liberties of individuals from governmental tyranny. It was impossible, however, to enumerate all of these rights and liberties. It would have been absurd to state that congress had no power to prevent individuals from getting married, from eating meat, from smoking tobacco or from wearing short skirts. And so the ninth amendment says: "The enumeration in the constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." Notice the word retained. Evidently a man cannot retain a thing which he does not already possess. Each citizen, then, already possessed numerous rights not mentioned in the constitution, rights with which the constitution gave the government no power to interfere.

And look at the tenth amendment: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively or to the people." Notice the word reserved. Neither state nor individual can reserve what is not already possessed.

If words could prevent tyranny, the language of the ninth and tenth amendments would prevent it. But there came a time when political poltroons in congress and the state legislatures, trembling before the organized power of the Anti-Saloon league, ignored the reserved rights of the states and the people, and passed the eighteenth amendment.

Did they have any legal power to put this sumptuary statute into the constitution? Is there no legal limit to the power of amendment? Are the members of congress and the state legislatures endowed with such supernal wisdom and with such ineffable righteousness that the makers of the constitution deliberately intended to grant them unlimited power to trample on our liberties?

The fifth article (the one providing for amendments) clearly states that no amendments shall ever deprive any state, without its consent, of its equal suffrage in the senate. Is that the only limitation upon the power of amendment? Consult the ninth amendment (already quoted above) for a partial reply to this question. Without the assurance that no state would ever be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate, not a single one of the smaller states would have ratified the constitution; and if three-fourths of the state legislatures were guilty of so flagrant a breach of faith as to pass an amendment violating that provision, that amendment would be set aside by the Supreme court, as null and void, unless its members either lost their reason or became afflicted with cold feet. Article VI. declares that no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States. If the Ku Klux Klan were to terrorize three-fourths of the state legislatures into passing an amendment disqualifying Roman Catholics from holding office, would it not be the duty of the Supreme court to set the amendment aside as unconstitutional?

Every document must be interpreted in the light of the known intentions of those who drew it up, and in accordance with its spirit as well as with its explicit provisions. The object of the first ten amendments, or "bill of rights," was to limit national power and protect individual liberties. The first of these amendments forbids congress to prohibit the free exercise of religion, and the whole spirit of the constitution indicates that not only congress, but also congress plus three-fourths of the state legislators were forbidden to prohibit its free exercise. What would the Methodist preachers, who are now so horrified at all criticism of the eighteenth amendment, say if a combination of Romanists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Lutherans were to pass an amendment prohibiting camp meetings and the "mourners' bench?" What would the Baptist preachers say if a similar combination passed an amendment prohibiting the immersion of adults and enforcing the sprinkling of infants? Those familiar with English history will recall the fact that the Anglican bishops and other clergymen ardently preached "passive obedience" to the divinely appointed Stuart kings. They preached it, that is, so long as the kings carried out their wishes and persecuted papists and dissenters. But no sooner had James II. issued his declaration of indulgence in favor of these dissenters and papists than the seven bishops, executing the nimble volte face, turned passive obedience into active resistance and joined the movement to summon William of Orange to come over and boot the last of the Stuart kings, together with his God-given royal rights, out of the country. Many Methodist and Baptist preachers, and some others, are now preaching passive obedience to the holy eighteenth amendment. But if an amendment were passed prohibiting mourners' benches and immersion we should soon see them turn a somersault with an agility in no wise inferior to that of the seven bishops. They would then see how nonsensical is the notion that good citizens ought, with closed eyes, deaf ears and bowed heads, to respect "the law," no matter how tyrannical the law may be. They might then, perhaps, recall the fact that their ancestors are now glorified for having defied the law known as the stamp act, an act technically "legal," but contrary to the spirit of English constitutional liberty. They might then see that, while good citizens respect a law that is respectable, they despise a law that is despicable.

It is a delusion to suppose that all opponents of the eighteenth amendment are mere boozers who desire cheaper beer or whisky. Among them are many who are temperate and some who are total abstainers from alcoholic beverages, but who vehemently resent the unconstitutional interference with their personal liberty under the guise of a constitutional amendment. There are many who could easily do without alcohol for the rest of their lives, but who are indignant and alarmed at the threatened destruction of the federal feature of our government. That feature is the greatest contribution of the American people to the art of government. It enables a vast country to maintain unity amid diversity, to present a united front to foreign foes, while preserving local differences and individual freedom. The federal principle was, of course, not invented in America. It was tried in several Greek confederacies, in Switzerland, in the Dutch republic, in the North German confederacy and in the German empire. But its most conspicuous success on the greatest scale has been achieved in the United States, and this American success has led to its imitation in Canada, Australia, South Africa and the British commonwealth of nations. Yet now it is in danger of withering and dying in the United States, its real home. The eighteenth amendment is a deadly blow, aimed at its heart. This unconstitutional sumptuary statute, masquerading under the aegis of the constitution and upheld by a strange alliance of preachers, moonshiners, bootleggers, manufacturers of "soft drinks" and other seekers after the dollar, is a precedent which threatens to convert our federal system into a great consolidated despotism where organized minorities of faddists and fanatics, terrorizing pusillanimous politicians, may yet ride rough-shod over the corpse of local and personal liberty.

Don't Drown Your Soul In a Greasy Dishpan

DISHWASHING—the monotonous task of the household—the pet peeve of so many women has at last been mastered by machinery.

Invented by the man who built the first household vacuum cleaner, this wonderful electric device washes and dries your dishes while you go about other duties.

One woman in Rogers Park plays the piano while her dishes are being washed by the Conover. She hasn't put her hands in dishwater since the machine was delivered—and unexpected guests never see a stack of dirty dishes, no matter how soon after dinner they arrive.

The Dishpan Has Gone Out of Date

Now you just push a button and the famous Conover Electric Dishwasher will automatically wash, rinse, sterilize and dry the entire day's dirty dishes in less than twelve minutes and they will be handled more carefully than if washed by human hands.

It glides on rubber rollers as easily as a tea cart from table to kitchen. Saves miles of steps and hours of time. Strong and sturdy. Beautifully finished. Takes up little space. And so simple that a child can operate it with ease.

We want you to see the Conover Electric Dish-washer in action—we want to see the surprised smile come to your face as you watch the whole day's dishes go into the Conover—and see them emerge in less than twelve minutes—all sparkling clean and dry—without putting your hands in dishwater.

You may have your dishes washed FREE—no obligation whatsoever—just to prove how really practical this wonderful machine is. Simply phone nearest dealer for a FREE demonstration at your convenience.

A Book of Priceless Information, Yet You May Have It FREE

Do you know how to set a table for a formal dinner; where to put the place cards; how many knives should be placed at each plate?

If you were to serve a luncheon for six what would be the first thing to do? This booklet, "Dishes and Their Correct Use," explains these situations with photos, diagrams and lucid text.

An "Unabridged Encyclopedia of Porcelains" is a very useful and interesting part of this wonderful book.

This is a prize-winning letter reprinted from a late issue of The American Magazine, in their recent "Pet peeve" contest probably speaks your thoughts:

"My Jubilant Spirits Got Drowned in a Dishpan

"Mine's dishes! And the fact that my peeve is common to several million other women doesn't help the situation a bit. It isn't that doing dishes is drudgery, or even hard Work. It's that three-times-a-day-in-the-dishpan complex that my soul has; it's that immersed-in-the-dishpan, bathed-in-dishwater, and gagged-by-a-dishrag spirit!

"I am a slave to the kitchen sink. It's a nice sink, and I'd really like to have some affection for it. But I love it just about as much as the galley slaves of old loved their chains.

"I am bounded on the north by a stack of used dishes, on the south by a pan of hot water, on the east by a dish drainer, and on the west by a boiling teakettle. And while the kettle boils, I stew. And break more nicks in the china. Pretty china, too. But nicked by years of service—and careless, detestable washing. Oh, those nicks on the plates—and those in the deeps of my being.

"I don't mind breaking a dish—much. I can chuck it out and forget it. But a nicked dish!—it is an unbeautiful thing that has to be washed over and over, a constant reminder of some careless peeved moment. I shouldn't mind being annihilated in some big, heroic fashion—there would be front-page headlines in that—but to be disintegrated in dishwater! That is spiritual annihilation! L. B. B."

SENATORS HANG ENCOMIUMS ON BROTHER MOSES

Join in Praise to Help Reelect Him.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—One of the most extraordinary political campaign documents ever put out to catch voters is being circulated in behalf of Senator Moses, in his contest for renomination in the Republican primary.

It is entitled "What His Colleagues Say about George H. Moses, Senior Senator from New Hampshire, and President Pro-Tempore of the United States Senate," and consists of the opinions of the candidate expressed over their own signatures by thirty-three Republican, one Farmer-Labor and fifteen Democratic senators.

The pamphlet containing the facsimile letters and portraits of the senators is issued by George A. Carpenter, Wolfeboro, N. H., a wealthy admirer of Mr. Moses who wrote ninety-five senators asking each his frank opinion of the New Hampshire senator and assuring that "your frank reply will be considered confidential, if you desire it."

Moses Has the Courage.

He received forty-nine replies that he was at liberty to publish.

The replies are illuminating. The senators are no more a unit on Moses than they are on what to do for the farmer. They are in agreement on one detail, however, which is that Moses has the courage of his convictions.

Senator Lenroot [Republican, Wis.], leader of the fight in favor of the world court, wherein he came into collision with the New Hampshire senator, wrote that "Senator Moses and I are personally friendly, and I have a very high opinion of his abilities," but he felt impelled to call attention to the La Follette blot on his friend's escutcheon.

"We disagree upon some very important matters," the Lenroot letter proceeds, "and I have no doubt that he is just as sincere in the position that he takes as I am in mine. I may add that he was a supporter of the late Senator La Follette in his campaigns in Wisconsin and, as you no doubt know, Senator La Follette and I were very far apart politically."

Senator Jim Reed [Dem., Mo.] found in Moses' independence of party dictation a little sermon which he tucked into the middle of his letter:

Senator Reed's Appreciation.

"The republic always will be safe if men of high intelligence and sincerity and independence of thought are placed in control of public affairs. If such men will voice their different views, through clash of opinions, error will almost invariably be discovered and, being honest and courageous, the true course will be followed.

"On the contrary, the menace to the republic is to be found in the disposition of those who are by the constitution charged with high responsibility to subordinate their views to party dictation—or to vote contrary to their own convictions in order to gain votes. Such a philosophy is likely to subject the country to the control of practical politicians who, looking only to temporary victory, fail to consider the ultimate effect upon the public welfare."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] wrote that "for reasons that must be obvious to you" he did not wish to inject himself into the Republican primary contest and contented himself with saying that "Senator Moses has been uniformly courteous and kind to me and on occasion I had his most generous aid."

Copeland Pays Tribute.

Senator Ransdell [Dem., La.] hoped Moses would be reëlected, adding "of course, being a Democrat, I would naturally like to see a member of my own party elected to succeed him, but feeling sure there is no prospect of such a thing, I gladly indorse Senator Moses."

"Of course, I am a Democrat," wrote Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], "and mean enough to think that any Democrat is better than a Republican as good as George H. Moses," and then went on to pay a high tribute to the ability and character of the New Hampshire senator.

Senator Edwards [Dem., N. J.] asked Mr. Carpenter, "If you have any misgivings concerning Senator Moses' qualifications and you are unsympathetic toward ex-Gov. Bass, why not compromise on a good, loyal Democrat."

Here is what Cole Blease, the rampagious Democratic senator from South Carolina, wrote: "In reply beg to say that I am a Democrat, and doubtless in the state of New Hampshire I am supposed to e a 'fire-eater.' Senator Moses is a Republican and in my state he is looked upon as a very black Republican.

An Ardent Partisan.

"However, he is a sincere and courageous senator, highly regarded by his colleagues, both Democratic and Republican. If New Hampshire insists on sending a Republican senator to Washington, I cannot think that she can find a more ardent partisan than Mr. Moses. Then you know he is president pro tem, which is quite a distinguished honor and one of which his state should be proud and this, of itself, should be sufficient to reëlect him so far as his party is concerned."

Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.] observed that "it is often said that our members of congress are less independent and less courageous than those of a former period—but certainly criticism cannot be applied to Senator Moses."

What might be considered a tart reply came from Senator Peter Goelet Gerry [Dem., R. I.], were it not for the fact that the chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee hardly could be expected to say anything else.

"I believe the welfare of the state of New Hampshire and the nation," he wrote, "would be better served by the election of a Democratic senator from that state. I have not the slightest objection to your making public my reply."

SIX SENATORS FACE PRIMARIES DURING WEEK

Interest Centers on New Hampshire, Wisconsin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Six senators are seeking renomination in primaries to be held during the coming week. Those seeking renomination on Tuesday are: Senators Lenroot [Rep., Wis.], Moses [Rep., N. H.], Butler [Rep., Mass.], Oddie [Rep., Nev.], and Cameron [Rep., Ariz.]. Senator George [Dem., Ga.] is up for renomination in the Georgia primary on Wednesday.

Senators Lenroot, Moses, and Oddie have stiff opposition, while Senators Butler and Cameron have no primary fight but face a hard contest in the election. Renomination of Senator George will be equivalent to reëlection in this southern state.

Interest Centers in Wisconsin.

The greatest interest from a national as well as local standpoint is centered in the Wisconsin Republican primary contest. Renomination of Senator Lenroot would not only be a personal victory for him, but also one for President Coolidge and the Republican administration. Senator Lenroot's defeat by Gov. John J. Blaine, the La Follette candidate, on the other hand, would increase the prestige of Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.], and would add one senator to the insurgent group which is constantly harassing the administration.

The administration is not involved in the New Hampshire fight to the extent that it is in Wisconsin. Senator Moses, while a Republican regular and president pro tem of the senate, voted against the Coolidge world court resolution and former Gov. Robert P. Bass, leading candidate against him, has taken the pro-court side of the issue.

Wet Opposes Oddie.

Senator Oddie, whose renomination in Nevada is in doubt, is a strong Coolidge supporter. His opponent, former Representative E. E. Roberts, is running on a wet platform and is conceded to have a chance. Whoever wins will have hard sledding in November.

In Massachusetts, Senator Butler, who is a close friend of President Coolidge and chairman of the Republican national committee, will be opposed in November by former Senator David I. Walsh, who is the only candidate for the Democratic nomination.

The Democratic nominee against Senator Cameron in Arizona will be Representative Carl Hayden, who has been the lone member of the house from that state for more than fifteen years. Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah] also will be renominated Friday, but in a convention instead of a primary.

LABOR PRAYER IN EPISCOPAL CHURCHES TODAY

For the first time since it was adopted at the last Episcopal convention in New Orleans, a prayer for labor, entitled "For Every Man in His Work," will be read in all the Episcopal churches in the country today. The prayer is as follows:

"Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, who declarest Thy glory and showest forth Thy handiwork in the heavens and in the earth; deliver us, we beseech Thee, in our several callings, from the service of mammon, that we may do the work which Thou givest us to do, in truth, in beauty and in righteousness, with singleness of heart as Thy servants, and to the benefit of our fellow men for the sake of Him who came among us as one that serveth, Thy Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

ALUMNAE OPEN THEIR CONVENTION AT SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 14.—[Special.]—Executive business relating to the seventh biennial convention of the International Federation of Catholic alumnæ which will officially open Monday, was discussed today at an executive board meeting at St. Mary's college. Final arrangements for the convention as a whole were discussed.

Three special trains from New York, Chicago, and Pittsburgh, carrying several hundred delegates, arrived today. Numerous women have already registered from distant places.

The program for Sunday includes a processional and organ recital, pontifical mass in chapel of Loretto, a motor trip through South Bend concluding with a visit to and benediction at the University of Notre Dame. The convention officially opens Monday.

J. A. THOMPSON, REVELL OFFICIAL, IS DEAD IN WEST

John A. Thompson, a vice president of Alexander H. Revell & Co., furniture dealers, and for forty years connected with that firm, died yesterday in his home at La Jolla, Cal., near San Diego. He was 63 years old and had retired from active business on account of his health three years ago.

JOHN A. THOMPSON.
[Chambers Studio.]

Mr. Thompson was born in the north of Ireland in 1865 and came to America at the age of 20. He was well known in Masonic circles, having been a member of the Oriental consistory and a Shriner. He is survived by his widow, a son, William G. Thompson; two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Ingold of Apperson, Wis., and Mrs. Anna Brown, and a brother, William G. Thompson, also a vice president of the Revell company. Burial will be in California.

PLANS 'PERFECT PERFORMANCE' OF VERDI'S LAST EPIC

BUSSETO, Italy, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini put finishing touches today on preparations for presenting the opera, "Falstaff," tomorrow. The famous conductor and composer hopes to give a perfect performance in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the death of Verdi.

"You must play better than ever before," Sig. Toscanini has been repeating to the orchestra which he has been rehearsing morning, noon and night. Leading members of the staffs of the Scala and other Italian opera houses, including a number who assisted Sig. Toscanini in the Verdi anniversary of 1913, are working on details.

Hardly a tenth of those who have arrived will be able to crowd into the tiny theater which Sig. Toscanini hopes to make the center of a permanent musical memorial to the memory of Verdi.

EMPLOYES OF SOUTH PARK TO HAVE A PICNIC

Edward J. Kelly, president of the South Park board, announced yesterday that arrangements have been completed for the first of what he hopes may be an annual picnic for the 3,500 employés of the park on Sept. 11 in Jackson park.

The day's event will begin at ten in the morning and continue through till ten at night when Mr. Kelly will present the prizes to the winners of the contests.

DEATH NOTICES

IN MEMORIAM.

DU DELL—Vanny Du Dell. In sad and loving memory of my own dear mother, who passed on four years ago, Sept. 5, 1922.

I cannot say, and I will not say,
That she is dead—she is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land;
And left us dreaming how very fair,
It needs must be since she lingers there.
I think of her still as the same,
I say she is not dead—she is just away.

HER EVER LOVING DAUGHTER,

QUESTION	BUICK	ANY OTHER CAR
How long has the manufacturer built motor cars?	More than 22 years.
How many?	More than a million and a half.
How many in service today?	More than a million.
Is service available all over America?	Buick has 4,000 service stations. Wherever you drive, you are near one.
What, if any, protection does the car's design provide for operating parts?	1. Sealed-Chassis. 2. Triple-Sealed Engine. 3. Vacuum-Cleaned Crankcase. 4. Thermostatic Circulation Control. 5. Automatic Lubrication of engine, fan hub and universal joint. Every operating part protected against outside and inside factors of wear.
What, if any, protection for the safety and comfort of driver and passengers?	1. Buick Mechanical 4-wheel-brakes. 2. Torque-Tube-Drive. 3. Five-Bearing-Surface Steering Gear. 4. Controllable-Beam Headlights. 5. Balanced Wheels. 6. Fisher Bodies.
What new luxuries of performance in 1927 models?	1. A New Engine, vibrationless beyond belief, eliminates noise and rumble. 2. New Giant-Tooth Transmission subdues transmission noise. 3. Newtype Muffler stills exhaust roar. 4. New Vacuum Ventilator cleans crankcase of engine fumes and prevents their entry into the car.
What aids are provided for easy starting?	1. Buick Automatic Heat Control warms the fuel immediately, as the engine starts. 2. Buick's new Thermostatic Circulation Control halts water circulation until proper operating temperature is reached.
Who builds the bodies?	Fisher builds all Buick closed bodies. All have the V. V. Windshield which raises and lowers like a closed car window.
What do owners and the public think of the car?	Retail sales of Buicks now average a million dollars daily. And for nine consecutive years Buick has led, in volume of sales, all members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.
Does the manufacturer build a model that exactly fits your needs?	There are 16 Buick models, one of which will meet your taste, exactly.

Buick welcomes comparisons. Select any car—place its facts in the blank spaces alongside Buick facts—and draw your own conclusions!

UNCOVERS HOARD OF GOLD GUARDED BY 'HOLY' COBRA

Modern India Bares Bit of "Arabian Nights."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALCUTTA, Sept. 4.—Another weird story, involving Hind superstitions about the transmigration of souls now is going the rounds in the central provinces of India.

Rajah Narsingrao, a wealthy landholder in Berars, was trying to discover an old family treasure which, according to family tradition, was buried in his cellars. Opening the treasure vaults, he finally discovered copper vessels piled against the walls of the dark, damp room. Nobody dared to venture into the room, so by means of a pole, servants managed to drag out one of the copper vessels, which was closely sealed, but which was broken open.

Filled with Gold and Gems.

Gold coins dating back to the time of Emperor Akbar of the sixteenth century tumbled out, along with rings and bracelets studded with wonderful gems.

The workmen sent for the rajah, who ordered the remaining vessels pulled out. In carrying out his orders the servants were horrified by the sight of a huge cobra which rushed out of the room and attacked them. Every one ran. From a distance the cobra was seen slithering about the piles of gold and jewels.

The rajah waited a couple of hours, then ordered the jewel filled cans again thrown back into the cellar, which was tightly closed up.

Spirit of Priest in Snake.

The rajah then took a vow never again to open the cellar unless dire necessity for his family arose.

Later, upon searching the family records, he found a letter saying a holy cobra guards the treasure, allowing no one to touch it unless the safety of the family required it. The note also said the spirit of the family priest lived in the body of the cobra.

SAVED FROM CAISSON PIT.

William Torentsen, 34 years old, a laborer, was rescued yesterday from a 100 foot caisson after he had lost his hold on a rope and dropped to the bottom. He was working in a pit at La Salle street and the Wacker drive.

ARTILLERYMEN RIDE OUT TO CAMP

BATTERY PITCHES REGULAR CAMP; LAUGHS AT RAIN

Capt. H. H. Harder with his two lieutenants, Victor Lauer and Philip Munro, rode out with thirty men from Battery D of the 122d Field artillery yesterday for a two day encampment at Camp Lawton in the forest preserve north of the Edgebrook golf course.

Capt. Harder greeted the prospect of rain with enthusiasm. "That's great," he said, "the men will learn how to pitch pup tents so they will be perfectly comfortable in spite of a downpour." The captain expects to set up a regular camp with picket lines, a battery street, and officer's tentage.

This afternoon there will be an exhibition of fancy riding and an inspection of the camp by Col. S. T. Lawton. The men who are all experienced horsemen will do some rodeo stunts for their friends and relatives. Camp will be broken tomorrow at noon.

BODIES OF 15 IN MINE EXPLOSION ARE RECOVERED

Tahona, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Fifteen bodies, all badly burned, had been brought to the surface here today from the Superior Smokeless Coal Mining company's mine No. 29, where an explosion yesterday snuffed out the lives of sixteen.

The sixteenth body was buried beneath debris. Rescue workers declared they would work until the last body was taken from the mine.

CALLS CHICAGO TO WAKE UP AS LARGEST AIRPORT

W. R. Dawes Urges as New Line Is Offered.

Chicago, the central airport for routes to 80 cities of the United States, was predicted yesterday by President William R. Dawes of th Association of Commerce, while word came from Washington that three cabin, four passenger airplanes probably are to be put in service between this city and Minneapolis by Oct. 1.

Mr. Dawes cited seven air routes now centering in Chicago as the "strongest effort yet made to use aviation for commercial purposes," and about the same time the post office department in Washington announced the bid of the Northwest Airways of Detroit to undertake the Chicago-Minneapolis route.

That trip, relinquished after 45 days' notice by the interests headed by Charles Dickinson of Chicago, has been bid for by the Northwest Airways, in which the Ford and other business groups of Detroit are taking part.

Would Run 125 Miles Hourly.

Speed of 125 miles an hour, with a route across Lake Michigan to Milwaukee, as well as the Chicago-Minneapolis line, are included in the bid made to the postal department. The offer includes carrying of mail at $2.75 a pound. They also would carry passengers and express packages.

Mr. Dawes, in his predictions and hopes concerning the future of Chicago as an airport, spoke generally of airplane service as a business factor, as well as "an industry essential as a reserve for national defense."

Calling attention to the air mail service as carrying during June 591,000 letters east, through Chicago, to New York, and 528,000 from New York to Chicago, Mr. Dawes added:

"This is indicative in the business men's faith in our air service. If the business men of Chicago and other parts of the country will enlist their active support of this new venture, the nation will eventually have planes flying upon a system of 17,000 miles per day on regular schedule, connecting more than eighty large cities, and of this system Chicago is the logical center."

John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, declared: "I believe that in an incredibly short time mail service by air will be considered absolutely indispensable by our industries, large and small, and by the principal professional groups."

Gets More Powerful Planes.

B. F. Myers, air mail traffic agent of the government, pointed out the tremendous advantage that will accrue to the service through the recent purchase of 51 Douglas planes of 1,000 pounds capacity each. An increase of more than 100 per cent in tonnage since opening of the direct Chicago-New York route a year ago reveals that the future of the air mail system of the country is assured, Mr. Myers declared.

"Our main problem ever has been to keep the superior advantages of the air service before the business men," he said. "The public generally still has the idea that it costs too much to send letters by plane. Few yet appear to realize that the special air postage is only 8 cents for an ordinary letter."

Thrills Mark Opening Day of National Air Races

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The 1926 national air races opened here this afternoon with two thrilling and keenly contested races for civilian pilots and a spectacular air circus which kept the large crowd interested until night.

Although the start of the first elimination race for the Aero Club of Pennsylvania trophy, the opening event was delayed more than an hour to await the arrival of Mayor Freeland W. Kendrick and Gloria Swanson, motion picture actress who fired the opening gun, the races had an auspicious start.

Rowe Wins from Seven.

Basil Rowe, Keyport, N. J., flying a Thomas Morse S. 4 E, equipped with an aeromarine motor, easily won the first event for low powered motors. There were seven entries in this race and Rowe pushed his machine up to an average speed of 109.59 miles an hour over sixty mile distance distance and was never headed. The course is a triangular one of twelve miles.

The free for all Independence hall trophy race consisting of eighty-four miles over the triangular course was won by C. S. "Casey" Jones of Garden City, Long Island, one of the most widely known pilots in the United States. Jones flew a specially constructed Curtiss Oriole.

Jones, who could place only third in the race for low powered ships, gave one of the prettiest exhibitions of racing flying of the day in the Independence hall trophy event.

Wings Cut Down.

His Oriole, with the lower wings cut down to about half size, swept over the course and just missed the pylons in almost right angle banks at an average speed of 131.11 miles an hour.

His skill in handling his clipped wings ship on the turns enabled him to place ahead of the "mystery" ship in the race. This "mystery" ship was the sesqui Wing Arrow, built by Harold F. Pitcairn, millionaire aviation enthusiast of this city. The sesqui Wing Arrow has gone over the course in a trial test at a speed of 145 miles an hour, but it was second today.

Basil Rowe, flying an Italian ship the SVA, with an aeromarine motor, who selected No. 13 for his entry, was forced down on the sixth lap by engine trouble after it looked as if he would finish third.

Laps One Plane.

In winning the race "Casey" Jones lapped the Lark Flowwy, A. L. Capleton, which finished seventh and last. Three times Walter Beech of Wichita, Kas., was third in this race, while C. C. Champion Jr. of Washington, D. C., with a Wright bellanca WB 1, a monoplane, which can carry six passengers, was fourth. Henry B. DuPont and Louis G. Meister, teammates, flying Buhl-Verville airsters, were fifth and sixth, respectively.

In the first race, the Aero club elimination, Capt. Victor Dallin, formerly of the royal flying corps of this city, piloted a Waco 9 into second place. "Casey" Jones was third and Robert Hewitt, a teammate of Dallin's, was fourth. Beech, in his Travel-Air, was fifth, and two of Pitcairn's ships were sixth and seventh.

CHICAGO'S SMARTEST NEW APARTMENT HOTEL

The

SENECA

Favored by people of importance

THE designers of the Seneca quite frankly planned this newest of Chicago apartment hotels as a town residence for those who are accustomed to the best. It is gratifying to note how immediate and decisive has been the response. Here, for instance, will live the representative of a foreign government . . . a member of a great New York financial firm . . . to mention only two of a number of persons of more than ordinary business and social prominence who have chosen apartments in the Seneca. The location of this interesting building . . . east of Michigan on Chestnut Street . . . has obvious advantages. The Drake Hotel is immediately north. Close by to the east is the lake. The Loop itself is a matter of a ten-minute walk. All apartments in the Seneca are furnished. Keep house or not, as you wish. Real kitchens with Frigidaire ice-units, full-size electric ranges . . . every detail . . . intrigue one to do so. Yet grill and restaurant in building (no extra charge for room service) make it unnecessary. Every convenience is here: maid service if desired; commissary on premises; public garages within a block. Altogether an impelling invitation to efficient and delightful living!

Rentals of from two to eight rooms —with or without kitchen . . . range from $140 to $800. The Seneca will be ready for occupancy October 1st.

"–immeasurably superior"

The AMPICO

Alexander Brailowsky
World Famous
Russian Pianist

"LOVERS of the finest piano playing as well as the creative musician are deeply indebted to your amazing Ampico. My conviction that it is immeasurably superior to any instrument of its type has led me to a decision to record my playing for it exclusively.

"The manner in which it catches and reproduces the whole of what the artist does when imparting his musical message would be beyond belief had one not the evidence, not only of his ears—but that subtler proof—the experiencing of the same emotions as when the pianist plays in person.

Faithfully yours

Alexander Brailowsky

WHEN Alexander Brailowsky, the great Russian pianist, says of the Ampico, "It is immeasurably superior to any instrument of its type," he is recognizing a supremacy that is the sum total of achievement in many fields for—

The AMPICO is Superior

—in making an accurate record of an artist's playing.

—in reproducing from that record exactly what the artist did when playing.

—in its system of installation in the piano which absolutely avoids any distortion of the case or alteration of the action of the piano so that it remains unimpaired and unchanged for playing by hand.

—in offering the largest and most comprehensive library of recordings.

—in the number and distinction of the artists recording for it.

A Budget Plan of Buying

We make it easy for you to own an Ampico at once. Your silent piano will be accepted as part payment, the balance can be arranged on a convenient budget plan extending over a period of years. Our liberal exchange privilege with full credit affords you the greatest freedom of choice with absolute protection.

The Celebrated Mason & Hamlin Piano

When installed in the Mason & Hamlin Piano the superiority of Ampico re-enactment is enhanced by the glorious tone of the Mason & Hamlin, Brailowksy's chosen piano of which he writes, "As the piano is supreme among musical instruments, so I think the Mason & Hamlin is supreme among pianos."

The AMPICO More Moderately Priced

The Ampico with its superior re-enactment, its comprehensive library and distinctive list of artists may be obtained at a more moderate price at Cable's in the Haines Bros. Piano. It is a dainty instrument that has won many honors during an eventful musical career of more than seventy years.

COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa.

He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., have never participated in this verbal competition.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection.

And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

Unexaggerated truth is not spectacular. But in the long run, implicit public confidence has been Dodge Brothers reward, and this they propose to preserve forever by continuing to build just a little better than they tell.

JUDGE LINDSAY TO PRESIDE OVER CRIMINAL COURT

Begins Monday; Decides Special Jury's Fate.

Judge William J. Lindsay will take office as chief justice of the Criminal court Monday, despite the holiday, and formally will open court in compliance with the law, which says this must be done on the first Monday of each month. Chief Justice Thomas J. Lynch, whose term is up, will return to the Circuit court as a chancery judge.

Chief Justice Lindsay will not decide until Wednesday whether he will select a new special grand jury for Special States Attorney Charles A. McDonald, although a venire for this purpose has been drawn.

May Use Regular Grand Jury.

Present indications are he will direct Prosecutor McDonald to make use of the regular grand jury for any further investigation of vote frauds or into the murder of Assistant State's Attorney McSwiggin.

Prosecutor McDonald yesterday informed the Citizens' association he was without power to investigate any of the land purchases of the forest preserve board. He added that he hesitated to ask the court to enlarge his powers lest he be thought presumptive.

To Decide on Ballots Soon.

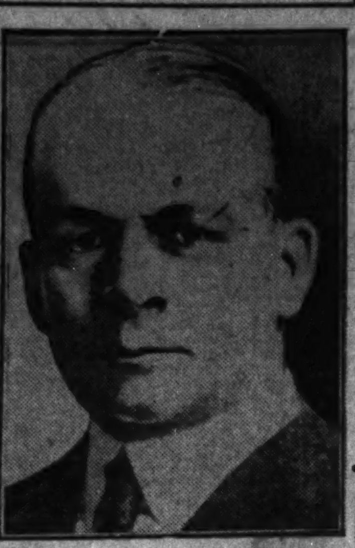
The work of deciding on the validity of 35,000 mutilated ballots cast in the April primary will be concluded by County Judge Edmund Jarecki about Sept. 15, it was said yesterday. Hearing will begin this Wednesday.

The ballots were those which for technical reasons may be thrown out. Some bear pencil marks other than the crosses after candidates' names, some have erasures on them, and others were rendered doubtful because stickers bearing candidates' names were affixed to them.

Eugene V. Debs Plans to Return to Sanitarium

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 4.—[United Press.]—Eugene V. Debs is to go back to the sanitarium at which he regained his health shortly after his release from Atlanta federal penitentiary, it was learned today. Debs has been ill here since his return from Bermuda several months ago. An attack of influenza started an illness which terminated in a nervous breakdown.

New Chief Justice



JUDGE WILLIAM J. LINDSAY.

VOPICKA URGES U. S. TRAIN ALL MEN FOR ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 4.—"I believe compulsory military training should be instituted throughout America." This view was expressed to THE TRIBUNE by Charles J. Vopicka, former American minister to Roumania and president of the American Traders' corporation, with offices in The Tribune Tower, Chicago, who says postwar conditions in Europe have convinced him that not only Americans should receive military training, but all American business concerns should be compelled by law to pay their employés' salaries while they are in government camps.

"After studying European militarism, I believe preparation for war the best self-defense," said Mr. Vopicka. "The best way to prepare the United States for eventualities would be to compel every citizen to undergo a training course, which would include six months' instructions the first year, three months the second, and every four years thereafter until they are 32 years of age let them have thirty to sixty days in government camps."

Mr. Vopicka believes too many people in America are attempting to look out for European interests and thinks it is time for Americans to look out for themselves. America is too prosperous to be safe, he says.

HURT IN FALL ON BOAT.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—First Officer Charles E. Horton, 46, of the Goodrich steamer City of Grand Rapids, was rushed to a hospital when the steamer docked this morning. He was painfully injured in a fall down an elevator shaft in the hold. He lives at 2633 Orchard street, Chicago.

BLAINE IS GIVEN EDGE IN HECTIC WISCONSIN RACE

Anti-Court, Beer Planks Strong Factors.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's nigthmarish campaign gallops to its finish Tuesday with Volsteadism and the world court and the "Madison Ring" as the most protuberant issues, next to the paramount question of getting the jobs.

Vituperation and vitriol are drenching the state, and candidates are lambasting each other with personalities. Inside the old La Follette camp insurgents are whaling each other in a scramble for the state offices, all claiming the blessing of "Fighting Bob" could his voice come from the tomb. It is one of the most fantastic campaigns known even in Wisconsin.

Lenroot Gains Strength.

The fight between Senator Irvine L. Lenroot and Gov. John J. Blaine over the senatorship is the headliner. Two months ago Lenroot was regarded as politically dead, but in the last weeks he has developed strength and the question is whether he has gained enough to overcome the state machine which is one of the most closely articulated in all the states.

Indications are that Gov. Blaine has the advantage, and now that the beer issue, which has been held in the background, is becoming prominent, there is a widespread opinion that if the total vote runs up to 400,000, Blaine may win by 50,000 votes or more.

Blaine has elements of weakness, chief among them the defection of many of the old time friends of the late Senator La Follette and the fact of high taxes. Lenroot's weakness lies in his fight and vote for the world court and in his votes for the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act, and for overriding President Wilson's veto of the Volstead law.

State Is Anti-Court.

Wisconsin is anti-court and it likes its beer. The closing days of the campaign find the Blaine-Ekern-Young Bob orators hammering away on the idea that on these items Lenroot has not registered Wisconsin's sentiment. The Lenrooters, in a counter attack, say that ten years back Blaine advocated a world court plank that would have established an international army on the theory that when a war broke out it could be quelled by calling out the international police force. Lenroot himself, who is making a terrific platform battle, says of the beer issue that Blaine has been on both sides of nearly every question.

Milwaukee Has Big Vote.

One-fifth of Wisconsin's vote is cast in Milwaukee and half the population of the state lives in the area south of Green Bay and east of a line passing through Beloit. It contains Wisconsin's wonderful industrial towns along the lake shore and down the Fox river valley and it embraces areas where old German stock predominates. Here, the beer and world court issues make their strongest appeals. Lenroot has strength in the southeast corner counties like Walworth, Rock, Kenosha, Racine—old stalwart stamping ground—but from Milwaukee northward along the lake and Fox valley and adjacent counties Blaine is expected to roll up pluralities.

Brawl in La Follette Camp.

The governership place has led to a campaign that is little short of a brawl between old La Follette men. Many friends of the late senator are assailing the "Madison ring" and the Blaine-Ekern-Young Bob triumvirate as having frozen out the old war horses. Attorney General Herman L. Ekern, pick of the triumvirate, has for chief antagonist Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman. Zimmerman heads his literature with words of praise from the late "Fighting Bob" and declares he would be the choice were the old leader still here.

W. Stanley Smith, former insurance commissioner, another La Follette disciple, is also a candidate. His attacks are directed chiefly at Mr. Ekern. Charles B. Perry, who is probably the ablest man of the lot, is the candidate of the conservatives.

Zimmerman appears to have a greater show to beat Ekern than Lenroot has to beat Blaine, and right now the governorship is regarded as a nip and tuck race. Zimmerman is getting support among the old time stalwarts.

ARMY NAMES 10 PILOTS TO FLY 16,000 MILES OVER SOUTH AMERICA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—War department officials today tentatively announced the names of the pilots who will take part in the army's proposed 16,000 mile flight through South America late this fall. Maj. Herbert A. Dargue, office chief of air corps, was named commanding officer for the trip. The others are: Capt. Arthur B. McDaniel, Kelly field; Capt. Ira C. Eaker, office chief of air corps; Capt. Clinton F. Woolsey, McCook field; First Lieut. Bernard S. Thompson, Phillips field (Aberdeen, Md.); First Lieut. Leonard D. Weddington, Fort Sam Houston; First Lieut. Charles McK. Robinson, Fort Crockett (Galveston, Tex.); First Lieut. Muir F. Fairchild, Langley field; First Lieut. Ennis C. Whitehead, Wright field; and First Lieut. John W. Benton, Crissy field.

WIFE POISONED, ARREST DOCTOR.

Port Angeles, Wash., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Dr. P. G. West, pathologist of Seattle, reported today that poison was found in the stomach of the exhumed body of Mrs. Paul Moore, wife of a physician at Sequim, Washington. A warrant was issued for the arrest of her husband on a charge of first degree murder.

OSBORNE WOOD ILL; AILMENT IS KEPT SECRET

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Although Osborne C. Wood, son of Maj. Gen. Leonard S. Wood, who has been working as a laborer at the Servel corporation plant here at a salary of $125 per month for the last two months, is confined in a private room at Walker hospital, Dr. J. F. Wynn, his physician, states that his condition is not dangerous.

The doctor, however, refuses to divulge the nature of the disease although he admits he has diagnosed the case. "There are certain cases in the medical profession in which we do not wish to make the diagnosis public," he stated, "and this is one of them."

Wood is improving, according to the doctor, and if he continues to improve at present rate will be able to leave the hospital within a week.

The young man became known through his speculations in the New York stock market in which he is said to have cleaned up more than $800,000, which he lost on the market and at the Riviera.

BASEBALL FANS RALLY TO AID OF ALGONQUIN TODAY

Two Games to Be Played at Cermak Park.

Cermak park, 26th street and Kostner avenue, will be the rallying point this afternoon for hundreds of baseball fans as the good teams, the Jones and the Baumruckers, take the diamond for the opening of a double header to benefit THE TRIBUNE's Camp Algonquin fund.

Under the auspices of Anton Cermak, president of the Cook county commissioners, the games were arranged, tickets printed and sold, and plans completed for the exhibition of ball playing. The second game will be played by the Carrs and the Cermaks.

Star Players in Teams.

All four nines are comprised of particularly good material, as the standing of the teams in the semi-pro league will show. Some of the players are declared to be big league prospects and the rivalry between them assures a fast and furious struggle.

Tickets are fifty cents each and will be on sale at the gate. Plenty of good seats are available. The first game will be started at 1 o'clock.

Yesterday's gifts for the two funds were:

FREE ICE FUND.

[illegible]—Althetas Zuanna Number 22, L. O. T. O.

Total—$7.05.

Previously acknowledged—$2,267.31.

Grand total—$2,274.36.

CAMP ALGONQUIN FUND.

$10.00—Calla J. and S. H. Bradwell.

[illegible]—Althetas Zuanna Number 22, L. O. T. O.

[illegible]—Mrs. R. N. Ridley.

Total—$18.00.

Previously acknowledged—$2,610.16.

Grand total—$2,628.16.

Wrong Credit Given.

Jean Parish and Dorothy Harrold staged a show last week, netting $3.00 for the ice fund, which through an error was credited to their assistant, Mae Siegel. Kathryn Hendrickson, Margaret and Mary Ann Carlson and Bernice Evenson were omitted from a list of girls who earned $3.27 for the Algonquin fund.

An additional gift of $5 has been received for Mrs. Clara Taggart of Evanston, a mother who was deserted and was left with five children. The anonymous gift has been forwarded.

Polish Astronomer Finds Comet; Sends Data to U. S.

CRACOW, Poland, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Prof. Wilk, astronomer, announces he has discovered a new comet of the sixth class. He has forwarded the results of his observations to American astronomical bodies. Last year he discovered the Pelletier comet.

PARK DONOR

GEORGE WOODRUFF.

JOLIET BANKER TO ADD 170 ACRES TO PUBLIC PARK

George Woodruff, vice-chairman of the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago, and chairman of the First National Bank of Joliet, announced yesterday that on Labor day he will present to the people of Joliet 170 acres of land adjoining Pilcher park.

"I believe that any gift that is to be used for the public good best takes expression in land," Mr. Woodruff said, "because it lasts forever and can be enjoyed by the people of all classes and will be as useful to future generations as to the present one."

A portion of Mr. Woodruff's gift has been turned into an eighteen hole golf course which is to be known as the Woodruff municipal golf course. Bridle paths have been formed through the balance of the land which retains all its natural beauty and has every tree known in this part of the country.

Mrs. Woodruff, Senator Richard J. Barr, George Schring, mayor of Joliet, and Theodore Gerlach, president of the Joliet chamber of commerce, will drive the first balls at the opening of the golf course and it is expected 10,000 people will attend the dedication.

TWO NEW CITY PLAYGROUNDS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Two new city playgrounds have been added to the list of ten to be opened before the end of the year, Walter Wright, superintendent of the bureau of parks, playgrounds, and bathing beaches, announced yesterday.

One will be located at Prairie avenue and 38th street, where the city has purchased a plot 200x125 feet for $20,000. The other is a 330x200 feet site on 72d street, between South Park way and Calumet avenue, leased from the board of education.

Equipment has already been placed on the playgrounds at Lawndale and Wilson, 37th and Rhodes, and 33d between Ashland and Paulina, Mr. Wright said. The others are now being improved.

WAR VETERAN IS MISSING.

The Woodlawn police were asked yesterday to search for Raymond Dye, 35 years old, 6222 Indiana avenue, a war veteran. His wife fears he may be an amnesia victim.

FREAK STORMS PLAY PRANKS; WRECK CROPS

(By Associated Press.)

Widespread damage to crops took preëminence yesterday in the havoc wrought by a week of abnormal rainfall in the middle west, accompanied by tornadoes and floods.

Estimates of damage to corn in Illinois ranged upward to fifty per cent in many areas, while in one district the crop was almost ruined by a tornado. The crop is two weeks behind its normal stage because of continued rainy weather.

The death toll remained at three, reported from southern Illinois Friday.

The entire midwest from Nebraska and Kansas to Ohio was within the storm area, but the heaviest losses to industry and agriculture were in Illinois and Iowa.

Tornado Near Joliet.

Tornadoes which accompanied the rainstorms in several sections did $150,000 damage along the Kansas-Nebraska line near Pawnee City, Neb., and $100,000 damage south of Joliet, Ill., where hundreds of acres of corn were flattened.

At Hannibal, Mo., where almost six inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours, more than 300 homes were flooded, a shoe factory employing 1,800 persons was closed by flood, and fire and street departments worked without sleep to maintain a levee along a swollen stream.

An undertaker at Hannibal, called to care for a body, put a rowboat in his hearse and made the last part of his journey in the boat, in which the body was conveyed to his hearse.

A home on the same Hannibal street was lifted bodily by the flood and deposited a block away. Rescue workers braved water waist deep to rescue children from flooded homes.

Landslide Hits Mine.

A coal mine near Peoria stopped work when a landslide struck its buildings.

Water which covered the paved state road between Elgin and Rockford, Ill., receded leaving the road black with thousands of frogs through which motorists found it almost impossible to drive safely.

A siren summoned residents of Milan, Ill., near Rock Island, from their homes at midnight when the waters of Mill creek burst their banks and menaced homes.

Five and a half inches of rain fell at Springfield, Ill., compelling the closing of roads and the rerouting of the paved highway to Chicago.

50 Autos Ditched.

Fifty motor cars were ditched at the roadside near Ottawa, Ill., when a bridge on a Chicago road was washed out.

A farmer, milking a cow near Pawnee City, Neb., was struck by a tornado and laid low by a piece of timber. When he regained consciousness the twister had carried the cow away.

In the same vicinity the wind smashed a bottle of acid against a wall, burning a child's face.

Lewistown and Galesburg, Ill., were without city water. One dike was under water at London Mills and another threatening to burst under the pressure of the flood. Houses in the Copperas creek valley near Peoria were standing in four feet of water.

Estimates of damage to grain crops fixed the amount of the 1926 oats crop still in the field at from thirty to forty per cent, and wheat at ten to fifteen per cent. This grain, it was estimated by grain companies, would suffer a loss on unthreshed wheat of thirty cents a bushel and on oats of ten cents a bushel.

Corn, even on higher ground, was given only an outside chance to mature properly because of the continued wet, cold weather. Several weeks of hot, dry growing weather are needed, agriculturists said.

In Indiana and Ohio lowland crops were still under water today, while in Iowa new rains made crop conditions similar to those in Illinois, though generally not quite so bad.

The end of the rain was not in sight last night. The weather bureau forecast more rain over much of the middle west tonight, with showers predicted for tomorrow in some areas and cooler weather generally.

TYPHOON TAKES 35 LIVES, WRECKS TRAIN IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Reports to vernacular newspapers in Tokio say that approximately thirty-five persons were killed in a typhoon in central eastern Japan today. At Toyohashi, near the city of Nagoya, a schoolhouse collapsed burying about 100 persons of whom twelve may be dead and a score injured.

At Hammamatsu a clothing factory collapsed and eight persons are reported dead. Earlier reports told of five being killed and possibly fifty injured when the terrific windstorm blew a train off the tracks at the same place, but later reports revealed that only a few persons suffered minor injuries.

Two lighters at Kawasaki collapsed and fifteen members of the crew are missing. Forty military airplanes at the Akenogahara airdome were badly damaged.

WOMAN SLAYS DAUGHTER, THEN KILLS HERSELF

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Federal officers failed to find any trace of a safety deposit box at a local bank today in the name of Mrs. Hazel McMahan, 38, who, with her mother, Mrs. Mary Lichliter, 65, was found shot to death at their home here yesterday.

They were searching for the box that Mrs. McMahan is said to have told attorneys contained $112,000 and a quantity of narcotics. Officers advanced a theory that fear of a "dope" ring, in which the younger woman had become entangled led the mother to kill her daughter and then end her own life.

A search of every bank in this city will be made, Federal Narcotic Agent Gwin said tonight, in hope of locating the box.

STEAL AUTO IN PUBLIC GARAGE.

Two bandits entered the Walton garage, 936 North Clark street, yesterday, and forced James Day, colored attendant, to release an expensive automobile to them. The machine is owned by D. M. Haig of Detroit.

Car Owners!

Are You Still Cussing Your Repairman?

IT'S not necessary. Repairmen do good work at a fair price when they know what to do. The time taken in locating the trouble is what runs up the bill—and your repairman is entitled to be paid for his time.

But—even the best of repairmen are not equipped to locate and localize the trouble. It is too often a case of try, try, try again—at your expense.

Take away from your doctor his stethoscopes and his other scientific instruments and how would he find your trouble?

We are equipped with mechanical stethoscopes and other costly scientific apparatus for testing automobiles without dismantling the car in any way. We locate your trouble and give your repairman written instructions as to how to fix it—his mechanics are then in a position to do it efficiently and economically. We take the guess work out of your repair bills. Our fee is only a fraction of what can be saved in the majority of cases. This new scientific method of diagnosing automobile troubles has saved 50% and more of repair bills.

We have no connection or affiliation with any repairman or dealer, but work hand in hand with your favorite garage or repairman in order to give you the maximum of service.

Our fee includes a re-check after the repairs have been made to determine if the work has been properly done. Our findings are guaranteed to be 100% correct or your money refunded.

Roominess without Unwieldy Bulk

in this new 7-Passenger Sedan

SEVEN-PASSENGER
SEDAN

$2495

In the fine-car field the trend is undoubtedly toward Eights

You can guide this new Hupmobile Eight seven-passenger sedan through traffic, you can turn corners and park with a delightful ease that you have never before associated with any seven passenger car.

For Hupmobile has engineered into this car UNUSUAL roominess but without unnecessary bulk; and seven-passenger capacity without unwieldiness.

And it LOOKS the part. It is the trimmest, most beautifully designed sedan you ever laid eyes on.

Compared to the usual thing in a seven-passenger car, it is as a lean greyhound of a private yacht to an unwieldy ocean liner.

You will carry out that comparison, too, when you try this car out for performance.

You will realize that it performs as beautifully as it looks.

You will learn without surprise that this great Hupmobile Eight chassis is compared with only one other car in the world. Competent critics liken it to a fine Italian car, hand-built, and costing several times the Hupmobile Eight price.

We want you to see this car, and drive it. We will be delighted to welcome you at our show room. If it is inconvenient for you to come, simply telephone and we will gladly send a demonstrator to your door, for you to drive as YOU like to drive.

THIRTEEN SIXTY WINS FEATURE ON CRETE TRACK

No Regrets, Favorite, Lost in Mud.

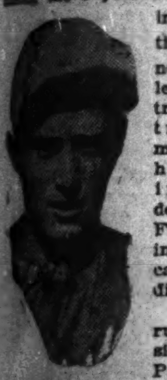
(Pictures on page 3.)

No Regrets, believed unbeatable among the 2 year old thoroughbreds in the west, putting all her gameness into a hopeless battle over a track that was treacherously muddy and not to her liking, fell into inglorious defeat at Lincoln Fields yesterday in the $5,000 Chicago Heights handicap.



JOCKEY JAY ROBERTS.

Thirteen Sixty, running in the silks of Herbert P. Gardner of New York, was the winner by five lengths. Patricia Marian, from H. L. [illegible]'s Chicago stable, was up to claim second money. Aregal rallied and got the show end of the purse. But 15,000 [illegible] nearly forgot to cheer the front runner when No Regrets bowed in defeat. Floundering in the mud, which was ankle deep, trying her best to turn defeat into victory, but weakly ridden by Freddie Sharpe, No Regrets folded up completely in the last sixteenth.

Thirteen Sixty Defies Challenge.

While No Regrets, one of the shortest priced favorites of the Lincoln Fields season, was nowhere at the finish of the most important 2 year old stake run in the Chicago district in 10 years, no credit should be taken from Thirteen Sixty's sparkling run down the stretch and her ultimate triumph by five lengths.

This daughter of John P. Grier-[illegible], at home in the heavy mud, fairly was flying soon after the barrier lifted, and Jockey Jay Roberts shot her into a comfortable early lead. Sharpe got No Regrets away none too well, but she quickly improved her position until she was running close up to Thirteen Sixty a half out. [illegible] was third.

On the turn into the stretch of the six furlong journey Sharpe chose to challenge with No Regrets. He splattered through the mud until he was within a length of the flying leader. Thirteen Sixty never gave an inch. When No Regrets was at the peak of her challenge Roberts gave Thirteen Sixty her head, and she sailed on into a greater lead.

Winner Pays 8 to 1.

That ended the struggle in the Chicago Heights stakes. It was only a question of how far Thirteen Sixty would win. No Regrets, slipping around and carelessly ridden, had nothing left. She gamely clung to second place until Patricia Marian came with a rush a sixteenth from the finish and conquered her. Then, thoroughly whipped, she succumbed to the rush of Aregal for third money in the last strides.

Thirteen Sixty rewarded her backers at odds of nearly 8 to 1 as the few faithful followers in the big crowd cheered. She was one of many outsiders to triumph, favorite players finding themselves crowded out of the picture in nearly every struggle.

While the crowd was not as large as on Saturday of last week, it lacked nothing in brilliancy. An unusually large number of gay parties were making a half holiday of it in the clubhouse. The stands were again packed, and the lawns were thronged with other thousands, who were frequently driven to cover by the intermittent showers.

[illegible]'s Alibi Wins.

The program marked the close of the fourth week of the Lincoln Fields meeting, which ends next Saturday and which has thoroughly reëstablished [illegible] racing in the Chicago district.

But the 2 year old stake was hardly a championship affair. The uncertain track conditions drove Nor'easter and Mr. Washington, two leading candidates, to the side lines. No Regrets probably will do better on a better track, so Thirteen Sixty can claim the $5,000 cash prize and little else so far as championship items are concerned. The secondary feature, a mile and a half race, the first [illegible] run at Lincoln Fields, and the [illegible] Grass, ably piloted by [illegible], was the winner. He led from start to finish, and had only to shake off Open Hand in a desperate drive. Blarney Stone, [illegible], was third.

Another high spot on the card was the Congress Hotel handicap, with [illegible] Alibi an easy victor after [illegible] had him on the front end of the [illegible] all the way.

Onwentsia Polo Team Wins, 18-10, at Detroit

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The Onwentsia Polo club of Lake Forest, Ill., won its first game in the [illegible] memorial polo tourney today after giving a 7 goal handicap. The Lake Forest team swamped the Grosse Pointe quartet of Detroit, 18 to 10.

Donohue Holds St. Louis Nine to Five Hits

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Cincinnati displaced St. Louis from first place in the tight National league pennant race by defeating the Cardinals today, 5 to 0. More than 18,000 fans, one of the largest Saturday crowds at Redlands field this season, saw the game.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

Straw hats floated on to the field in the first inning, when Cincinnati took a lead of four runs. The Reds displayed remarkable fielding, while St. Louis was credited with three errors. Pete Donohue pitched brilliant ball, in addition to making two of the Reds' eleven hits.

Fear was expressed by the St. Louis players for Rogers Hornsby, their leader, when he fell prostrate in the first inning after losing Zitzmann's fly in the sun. After tossing the ball toward second he collapsed and physicians rushed on to the field. In a short time, however, Hornsby resumed his position at second base.

Today's game was the second straight defeat of St. Louis by Cincinnati in the series of three games.

Ray Blades, Cardinal outfielder, who was sent home a few days ago with his leg in a plaster cast, was ordered today by Manager Hornsby to report at St. Louis to have the cast removed and then leave immediately for Cincinnati to join the team. It is probable that he will be called upon to play despite his injury. Score:

Landis Asked to Investigate Pennant Race

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, has been asked by H. B. Carson, vice president of the Oklahoma City Baseball association, to investigate a series of incidents which, he says, have caused suspicion to be cast upon the integrity of baseball in the Western league.

Carson, who has wired Judge Landis a lengthy telegram, calls attention to statements purported to have been made by certain ball players.

A Lincoln player is quoted in the telegram to Judge Landis as having boasted to Oklahoma City fans in the grandstand here during a recent series that Lincoln would see to it that Oklahoma City would not win the pennant this year, saying that the Lincoln club wanted to see Des Moines repeat.

Soon thereafter, according to Carson's telegram to the commissioner, Lincoln dropped a complete series to Des Moines.

Judge Landis also is asked to inquire why certain games scheduled between Des Moines and Lincoln at Lincoln and not rained out were not played and also why Omaha failed to appear at Des Moines for the game scheduled for Aug. 31.

A Des Moines sports writer is quoted as saying that Des Moines and Tulsa could have played the game of July 29, scheduled at Des Moines, which was not played, rain being given as the excuse.

UP TO SEXTON: LANDIS

Commissioner Landis last night said he had turned over to Mike Sexton president of the minor league teams, the message from H. B. Carson relative to the Western league race. Landis said the matter should be settled by minor league officials.

5,000 Fans Apply for Grid Season Tickets at U. of C.

Applications for season tickets at the University of Chicago reached the 5,000 mark yesterday. Application blanks were mailed out Monday to 25,000 football fans who previously have bought tickets to the University of Chicago games. It is anticipated there will be 25,000 season tickets sold.

Tickets may be procured by writing the football tickets committee, 5625 Ellis avenue, Chicago, and including a check for $14.17.

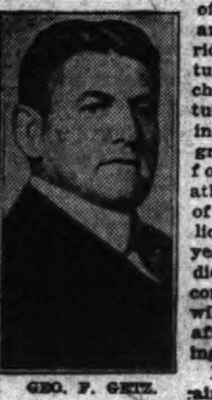
Record breaking performances in the field events, splendid exhibitions of horsemanship and motorcycle riding, push ball, tug of war, and chariot races featured the opening day's program of the fourth annual athletic games of Chicago's police department yesterday on Soldiers' field. The concluding events will be held this afternoon starting at 2 o'clock.



GEO. F. GETZ.

Despite the rain which fell just before the start of yesterday's events, 15,000 were in the stands.

The program was run off swiftly by a committee in charge of George Getz. If the track and field performers were not competing in their specialties police on foot or the mounted squad in charge of Capt. Hogan were giving exhibitions.

Crime Drill Makes Hit.

The act called "Fighting Crime" drew the most applause. A couple in an automobile were robbed of their money and also their car. The bandits were followed by motorcycle police, who turned in an alarm for the squad cars. The detective bureau, in command of Capt. Stege, chased the bandits to houses at both ends of the field. The burglars were captured after many shots had been fired and tear bombs thrown through the windows.

The tugs of war, push ball contests, and chariot races showed weeks of preparation both by participants and those in charge of the games. Even the mass drill by all contestants at the start of the afternoon's program was a credit to the department.

Finals and preliminaries were held in a number of track and field events. At the close of the day's program the team of the fifth district led with 9 points, while the twenty-third and seventeenth were tied for second with 8 points each. Twenty-ninth, second, fourth, twelfth, and fifteenth tied for fourth place with 5 points each.

In the running high jump T. Torpey of the fourth district cleared the bar at 5 feet 6 inches, shattering his old mark of 5 feet 4¾ inches made last year.

Broad Jump Mark Falls.

The other record to fall was in the running broad jump. F. Susebach of the twenty-third district leaped 20 feet 11 inches, which bettered the old record of 20 feet 7 inches made by Dan Ahearn in 1922.

The 100 yard dash resulted in an interesting race between J. Korzyk of the twenty-ninth district and F. McNamara of the second. Both sprinters left their starting holes at the same time, but in the last ten yards of the race Korzyk forged to the front and won by two feet in :10 4-5.

M. McElligott of the fifteenth district, who had a handicap of fifteen yards, won the half mile run after a battle with Brush of the fifth district, who started from scratch.

Horse Races End Program.

Preliminaries in the 120 yard low hurdles, half mile walk, and 880 yard relay also were held. Finals in these events, as well as the tug of war, push ball, and chariot races, will be decided today.

Although yesterday's attendance was a disappointment, receipts already are in excess of other years. According to officials of the benevolent association over $200,000 has been placed in the bank and if weather conditions are favorable today, the big stadium will be taxed to capacity. Summaries:

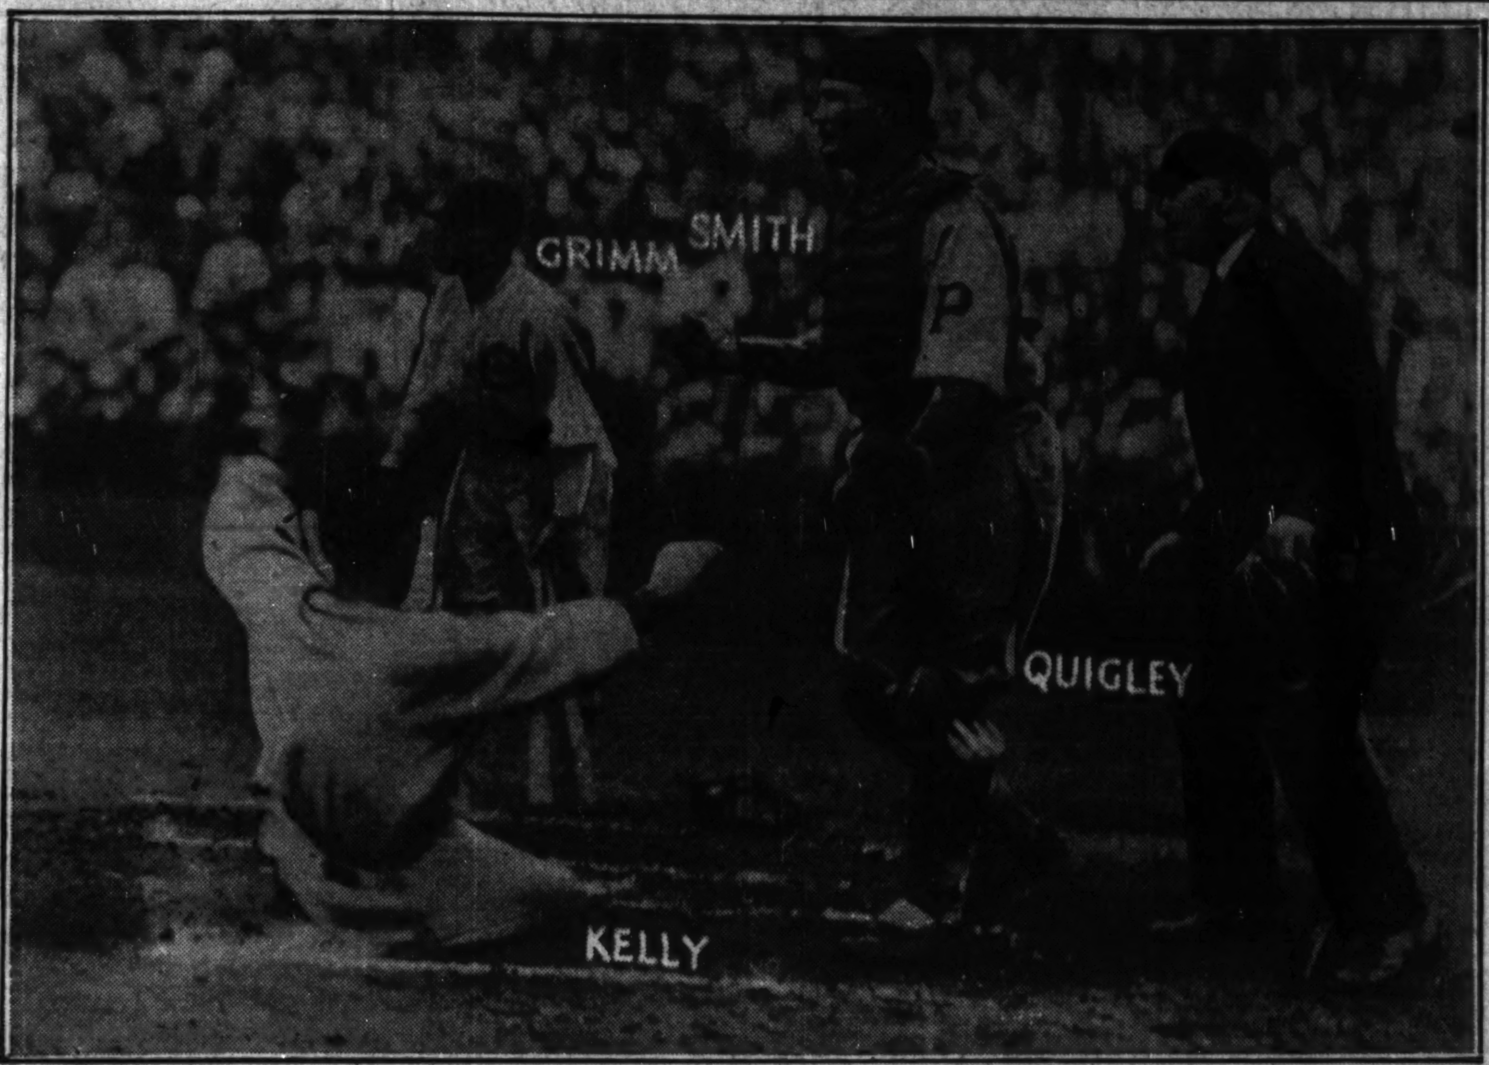
SLIDE, KELLY—AND KELLY SLIDES



Kelly slides over another run for the Cubs in the sixth inning of the first battle against the Pirates when he scores from second on Wilson's single. Catcher Smith of Pittsburgh is waiting for the throw, but it came too late. However, it came soon enough for Wilson to be caught at second base on the return.

Richards and Williams Keep Doubles Title

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards today upheld their supremacy as America's foremost doubles team with a four set victory over William T. Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin Jr. in the final round of the national championships. The scores were 6—4, 6—8, 11—9, and 6—3.

R. NORRIS WILLIAMS.

Tilden's defeat, his third successive failure to regain the title, came after a desperate effort on the part of the national singles titleholder to regain the crown he had held four times with Richards and Brian Norton as partners. He put everything he had into the struggle—marvelous skill, sound tactics, and speed of foot and strokes, but his exhibition could not match the smashing net attack of two masters of forecourt play.

Tilden Complains on Linesman.

The competitive spirit ran high throughout the match. Linesmen were repeatedly called upon to make close decisions, and after frequently complaining about their verdicts, Tilden finally requested the removal of Bill Crocker, professional of the Longwood club, on whose courts the tournament was staged. Crocker was acting as a base line judge.

The episode created a situation said to be without parallel in a national championship final. Tilden was taking advantage of a privilege conferred by lawn tennis regulations, however, and the referee of the tournament, Richard Bishop, was compelled to recall Crocker and send out a substitute.

Richards played flawless tennis today. He was compelled to give one of his greatest displays of volleying to save the title, for Williams was uncertain of his sharply angled shots early in the match and time after time his costly errors threatened to end in his defeat.

Miss Ryan Triumphs Twice.

Four other championships were decided during the day, Elizabeth Ryan of California sharing in a double triumph. After winning the women's doubles tournament with Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston by defeating Mrs. J. D. Corbiere and Mrs. Alfred H. Chapin Jr., 6—1, 6—2, she returned to the court with Jean Borotra to win the national mixed doubles crown by a victory over Mrs. Wightman and Rene La Coste, 6—4, 7—5.

County Forest Preserve's Water Carnival On Today

The first annual water carnival and Venetian night program of the Forest Preserve district will be held today at Dam No. 2 at Des Plaines. The carnival will start at 2 p. m., and there will be a canoe marathon, swimming and diving events, tub racing and canoe races. Venetian night will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Sox Beaten in Slumber Party at St. Louis, 5-3

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—In something that resembled a slumber party more than a baseball game, the St. Louis Browns defeated the White Sox today, 5 to 3. It is doubtful if all of the 500 customers know yet how the contest came out because they were here only to watch the score board for Cardinals' results, and after the first inning of the Cards-Reds game, everybody went to sleep.

JIM EDWARDS.

A study of the score book establishes the fact that the Sox lost because of the one error they made. It cost them three runs. If that error could be wiped out, they would have won, 3 to 2. It happened in the third inning and our aspiring barrister, Moe Berg, was guilty of the mistake. He never could convince any jury of laymen fans that it wasn't his fault. The boy tried to start a double play a tenth of a second too soon and the whole thing ended in a mess.

This Is Way It Happened.

This mistake occurred in the third inning when the score was tied at 1 to 1. One man was out when Rice and Miller got on base with flukey hits. Even the base hits were sleepy things. Then McManus walked, filling the bases, and up came Hargraves, who cut a hot one down to Barrister Berg. It went to him on the first hop. It went fast and there was a double play right in front of him but he was too eager and fumbled the ball. Then he pawed the dirt and missed the ball again and got nobody out. Rice scored on the mistake and after Durst had popped out Robertson slashed a two bagger to right center that scored Miller and McManus. Three runs were over where nary a one was deserved.

Our Jim Joe Edwards was on the rubber and was opposed by Tom Zachary. Both are southpaws, but appear to be normal in all other respects. Zachary was hit much harder than Jim Joe but the hits did less damage.

In the third, the Sox got one on a single by Morehart and a two baser by Whispering Bill Barrett. In the sixth, Whispering Bill led off with a home run into the distant left field seats. Sheely followed with a single and after Falk had fanned, Kamm doubled sending Sheely to third, from where he scored on Berg's out.

Robertson Scores McManus.

The Browns got a run in the second when McManus opened with a triple to right center. He stayed at third when Hargrave grounded out to Kamm and when Durst fanned, but Robertson scratched a single down to Morehart and McManus scored.

That tally followed by the cluster of three in the third when Berg blundered, gave the Browns a commanding position in the fight. They added a run in the eighth when this McManus person, product of Chicago's west side, led off with a double, moved to third on Hargrave's sacrifice bunt and moved home on Durst's sacrifice fly.

SESQUI WANTS HOFF TO VAULT

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Charley Hoff, world's champion pole vaulter, appearing at the Minnesota state fair here, was asked today under what terms he would make appearances at the sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia.

Georges Michel Forced to Quit Channel Swim

CAPE GRIS-NEZ, France, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Georges Michel, champion long distance swimmer of France, was foiled in his attempt to swim the English channel here this afternoon. He entered the water about 5 o'clock, but the weather proved so unfavorable that he had to abandon the swim in little more than an hour.

Jack, Nearing Edge, Plans 3 Days of Rest

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, desiring to avoid the danger of going stale decided tonight to suspend all training activities for three days next week starting Tuesday.

The world's heavyweight champion believes the rest will put him on edge to wind up his intensive training with a feverish burst of energy just as he did at Saratoga Springs three years ago when he trained for Luis Angel Firpo.

Jack Signs Three Partners.

Dempsey is satisfied with his general condition and the force of his hitting and needs only to perfect his timing and judgment of distance against clever, fast moving boxers in the final days of his campaign. Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo light heavyweight, Tom Loughran, light heavyweight of Philadelphia, and Martin Burke, the New Orleans 170 pounder, will be available to develop Dempsey's speed and timing.

Jack Misses Punch; Falls.

The champion today worked out before a crowd of 3,500, the largest that has watched him in action since he established camp here ten days ago.

The titleholder's showing today was an improvement over yesterday, when he gave the impression that he was not boxing any too well. He faced three partners for five rounds. He was hitting hard and he seemed to have plenty of snap and speed. In long range boxing, however, he missed frequently. Once he missed a vicious left hook and fell, landing on his hands.

GENE AGAIN DONS GLOVES.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Gene Tunney was apparently glad to return to fighting togs today for his first workout in Stroudsburg.

Two sparring partners, who have been on leaves of absence, returned today and a recruit reported. All of the trio, Bud Gorman and Billy Vidabeck, who worked with the challenger at Speculator, N. Y., and Harold Mays, Bayonne, N. J., light-heavyweight, just joining the camp, got a chance to swap punches with Tunney.

COMISH STUDIES REFEREES.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania state athletic commission is giving much consideration to the question of the referee and judges of Dempsey-Tunney fight. Some 20 eligibles are on the commission's list.

Kills Self After Doctor Tells Him to Quit Baseball

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Ordered not to play baseball by his physician because of ill health, Herbert Tetzlaff, 22 years old, semi-professional player, yesterday wrote a note explaining his action and then hanged himself to a tree at a summer cottage near here, where he had gone to rest.

"They took life from me when the doctor said I couldn't play baseball. I'm sick of living," the note said.

WILSON'S 20TH HOMER BREAKS UP FIRST GAME

Eighth Inning Rally Decides Second.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Under a shower of hits, aged straw hats, a few pop bottles, and the commanding influence of brilliant fielding and pitching by the Cubs, Pittsburgh's pennant hopes were almost permanently interred yesterday. The McCarthy gang, first with a veritable tornado of safe smacks and then with a snappy but belated rally, played the rôle of pall bearers by taking both ends of a double header, one by the loose margin of 11 to 2 and the other by the slim but important difference of 3 to 2.

GUY BUSH.

Completely outclassed in the inaugural battle because of their pitching and fielding, the present champs made a determined bid to come back in the afterpiece. For seven innings their determination meant something, but in the eighth the Cubs went to it, shoved two runs home and earned a victory for Percy Lee Jones, who had twirled even better than young Guy Bush, who hung up his seventh straight victory by going the route in the first game.

Wilson Gets Twentieth Homer.

Battle No. 1 was just one hit after another for the victors. For a spell they remained under the control of Bullet Joe Bush, the former American leaguer, but in the fifth with the Pirates ahead by 2 to 1 they convinced him he should have remained in his own company. Four men went clattering across in this session, two due to Hack Wilson's twentieth home run of the year. Then by way of giving more weight to their batting averages they slammed five more over in the eighth off a couple other fellows. All these weren't needed because after the fourth inning young Guy Bush yielded only three singles.

Louis Koupal hurled to the Cubs in the nightcap and was hit harder than Jones, but the latter was placed in a pickle because of two runs in the third, putting Pittsburgh ahead by 2 to 1. With Koupal pulling out of one jam after another that pair of tallies assumed formidable proportions, but the break finally came in the eighth and the potent factor was furnished by Senator Tolson, who hit one when requested.

The opening game was an orderly affair for the first four innings. During this time the Pirates were able to assimilate a one run lead. The Cubs got a start by cashing at the plate once in the second on a single by Cooney and a double by Hartnett. A pair of hits by Waner and Cuyler let the champions even it in the third, and in the fourth they went ahead with another that resulted from singles by Mueller and Joe Bush. Then the fun began for everybody except the titleholders.

Adams Starts Rampage.

Adams started the ruction in the fifth with a single and Heathcote bunted. Smith threw the ball late, also wild, to second, so Adams hiked to third and Heathcote to the middle station. Kelly crashed a hit to right and Adams tallied. Waner's return throw was wild so Heathcote also scored and Kelly moved to second. Then Wilson brought on the shower of weatherbeaten straw skimmers by shooting his homer over the left field wall, thereby swelling the inning's total to four runs.

Hits by Kelly and Wilson shoved another Cub over the pan in the sixth and this convinced the Pirate management that the veteran Joe Bush had better be relieved while he was physically intact. The change brought Songer to the front and the Cubs behaved in the seventh, but they were not at all gentle in the eighth, when the cluster of five runs was hung up. The important happenings of this session were singles by Adams and Heathcote, an intentional pass to Wilson, a double by Grimm, and a single by Beck.

McCarthy's Cubs prospered to the extent of one run in the second inning of the nightcap but the joy was shortlived. After two were dead in the chapter Cooney singled to center and Gonzales to right. Jones surprised himself and everybody else by slipping a hit past first base, scoring Cooney and sending Gonzales to third. Adams ended the inning with a fly to Waner.

Pirates Jump Into Lead.

Pittsburgh was able to hop out in front in the third round mainly because misfortune overtook Jones. After one was deposed Koupal put his foot in the path of a low pitch and was awarded the privilege of going to first base. Waner followed with a bounder toward Cooney who knocked the ball down but was unable to hold it. Waner was credited with a hit. A pass to Cuyler loaded the corners and at this point Mueller poked a single into center sending Koupal and Waner over the pan. A double play prevented further damage.

The riotous eighth started inauspiciously with a fly by Heathcote. Then Kelly continued his big day at bat by spanking a single to center. Wilson hit one to right and Kelly raced to third, where Scott took his place. Wilson stole second and a moment later Grimm bounced to Wright, who threw out Scott at the plate. It looked as if the rally was going to fade out, but up came Tolson, swinging for Beck. He clouted a drive past Cronin and Wilson went over the plate with the tying run. Grimm pulled up a third to await happenings.

Cooney soaked one squarely and it squirted off Koupal's glove. Traynor made a dash for the ball and heaved it to first, but too late to nab the runner. Meanwhile Grimm was carrying the winning tally home. Gonzales also singled, but Freigau, who had run for Tolson, was thrown out at the plate. The crowd didn't like the decision, so the usual half dozen pop bottles came sailing out of the stand, but the control of the tossers was as bad as their judgment.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY.

SHUNTED around from one place to another before it finally landed in Philadelphia, the heavyweight title bout between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney was becoming something of a joke. Time is comparatively short for the usual advance ballyhooing.

Some persons therefore question whether the affair will be the success financially and in attendance which has been anticipated. The Wake is not one of the skeptics. If Dempsey had been in the ring more recently, possibly there might be doubt, but this is the first time in several years that opportunity has presented to see Jack in action, to determine whether he has gone back from his former caliber, to observe how the remodeled nose will fare in a glove fest.

Philadelphia not only will furnish so many spectators that local officials there have demanded a fair proportion of the seats for their townsmen, but New York, Washington, Baltimore, and other large cities are tributary. Rickard asserts the advance sale is near the $1,000,000 mark.

From our observations, Chicago will send an unusual delegation. There will be, of course, the usual sporting contingent which attends every title prize fight. But what surprises us is the number of business men who wish to go—if they can secure satisfactory seats—as an "experience." These men never have attended a "championship fight," money is plentiful, and the $200 or $300 expense is no barrier. All over the city we find little groups of this kind forming.

We do not fear lack of interest on the part of the sporting or general public. Dempsey has been so widely advertised over a period of years that his success or failure will be "first page" reading matter on the morning of Sept. 24.

Developing Racing.

A Lincoln Fields patron the other day asked why the leading jockeys of the country were not riding at the new $2,000,000 plant out near Crete. The answer is simple. They are under contract to big stables most of whose owners are eastern men who like to watch their horses run, hence did not ship here for Lincoln Fields' initial venture.

As wealthy Chicagoans take up racing we will have better jockeys. Likewise Lincoln Fields, with stake fixtures, will attract some stables not here this year. One nationally known eastern owner already has stated he will be represented next season by all or part of his string.

And in passing we might remark several of those younger boys now out at Lincoln Fields will be among the crack pilots two or three years hence.

Some Friends.

I've some friends I'm goin' to tell about
That mean a lot to me,
They're just the sort o' people
That a feller'd like to be.
Kinda quiet, unassumin' like,
Don't care a rap for show,
Jes' mindin' their own business,
But always make you know
That they wish for you the very best
Old Life has in his store,
And the longer that I know 'em,
Why—I love 'em more an' more.

And some day, when the storms o' life
Have beaten down this frame,
I'll find new con-so-la-tion
In the mentionin' o' their name.
And courage, too, 'twill come an' sit
Within my humble cot.
If fortune were to smile on me
And cast our common lot
Where I could see 'em now an' then,
And hear their cheery call,
Could know they tho't the same o' me,
Why—that's the best of all. HO-HI.

"In the Money."

Friend Harve: Well, our Cubs haven't won the pennant, and they won't, just as you said they would not. But unless they meet dire mishap they will finish at least as good as fourth. That's "in the money"—for four teams share in the world's series receipts. That's pretty good. We north siders are satisfied with our Cubs. Addison St.

Cutting Down Golf Scores.

Sir: It took me a few seasons to discover a plan which cut my game from 100 to 90, some days a little better.

I look at the par on each hole and play to do one over par. Frequently I get par, but what I really do is stop trying to hit the ball out of the lot. Try it and see what it will do. Most of us fall down in trying to make the green on the second and third shot, distances that none but the best players possibly can make. Be satisfied with one over par. H. S. C.

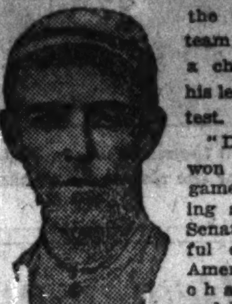
Dutch Ruether Awaits Call He Missed in 1925



DUTCH RUETHER.

Last fall when a world's series was in full blast Walter Henry ["Dutch"] Reuther sat on the bench with the Washington team waiting for a chance to put his left arm to the test.

"Dutch" had won eighteen games while losing seven in the Senators' successful climb to an American league championship, and he figured he should have been given consideration when "Buck" Harris, his boss, was casting around for talent with which to put the Pirate batters on the bum. Harris preferred not to give the southpaw a chance, which may or may not have been a mistake. Anyway, the Senators lost the series after apparently having it clinched.

But a man in baseball turns up strange streets unexpectedly, and the same "Dutch" now is ganging with the New York Yankees, whose position in life is well known. So the fellow who has been knocking about the big leagues long enough to work for five different ball clubs may yet hear the call that didn't come a year ago.

Since announcement was made that the Washington club had turned over Reuther to the Yanks at the waiver price there has been some whispering about the ethics of the transaction. Some seem to believe that Washington acted strangely in permitting a prospective pennant winner to strengthen at this late date. Outright deals are prohibited after June 15, but there is no law against a club claiming a player on a waiver. Any other team in the league could have taken Reuther, because the Yanks, being in first place, had last claim on him.

Indians Idle; Griffs Win Over Red Sox.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Herb Pennock was in form today and the Yankees blanked the Athletics, 3 to 0, giving them the edge in their seven game series with the A's and restoring their lead in the American league pennant race to six full games. Ed Rommel pitched seven innings against Pennock and the Yanks bumped him for all three runs. Score:

DR. M. P. LAWLER, PURDUE TRAINER, DIES AT AGE OF 60

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. M. P. Lawler, athletic trainer at Purdue university for three years, died at his home here today after a 14 weeks' illness. He was sixty years old and before coming to Purdue was for many years employed by big league baseball clubs as conditioner. Born at Pottsville, Pa., he was a graduate of the Orthopedic institute, Philadelphia.

After being with the Philadelphia American league club for years and later with the Boston Red Sox, he went to the University of Missouri as trainer and then came to Purdue, when James M. Phelan became head football coach here. Dr. Lawler's death on the eve of the opening of Purdue's football season, is a blow to the athletic department. He is survived by the widow and three daughters.

ESPINO CAPTURES LAWRENCE STAKE FROM CRUSADER

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—After a stretch duel that brought 25,000 spectators to their feet cheering, William Ziegler Jr.'s Espino and the Glen Riddle Farm's Crusader came to the last sixteenth of the Lawrence Realization stakes at Belmont Park this afternoon fighting head and head in a desperate struggle.

Maiben Rides Desperately.

Johnny Maiben on the Glen Riddle's son of Man o' War, was riding desperately to hold off defeat. Laverne Fator, up on the Negoful colt, was fighting just as stubbornly to gain those few inches that meant victory in the three year old classic of the eastern turf year.

Inch by inch Espino crept ahead, gaining a bit with every stride until his head and then his neck showed in front. The stand went mad with excitement and despair, for the odds-on favorite was being beaten by an outsider in that field of five of the great thoroughbreds of the year. Yells of encouragement mingled with the shrill shrieks of women. Maiben made one last effort to throw his mount forward and the courageous son of the super horse lunged ahead until his nose was at the other's throat and he was gaining.

Spurt Comes Too Late.

But the effort came too late. At that instant they had passed the winning post and Espino had won the thirty-fourth running of the Lawrence Realization stakes.

Berlin Fetes Vierkoetter at Beer Garden

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The freedom of the German capital was given to the German channel conqueror, Hans Vierkoetter, when he arrived in Berlin yesterday by airplane from Cologne. More than 10,000 lined the streets leading to the airdrome. When the machine landed the police cordons were broken through and the swimmer was surrounded by a surging throng of admirers. It was with the greatest difficulty that his wife, with their year old baby in her arms, fought her way to her husband to give him a welcoming kiss.

Herr Vierkoetter had a laurel wreath hung on his neck by a delegation from the swimming clubs, and then was presented by the director of the air company with a silver plated memento. A speech of welcome was made by a representative of the city of Berlin, whereafter the channel hero was hoisted high on the shoulders of well known swimmers and carried to a waiting automobile amid thunderous applause.

The swimmer was driven to a leading beer garden in Berlin, where a students' kommers was given in his honor last night. He was greeted with acclamations in the streets of the city wherever he was recognized for his feat in swimming the channel almost two hours faster than the woman champion, Miss Gertrude Ederle.

VAUGHAN PLANS LITTLE GIANTS' GRID ATTACK

Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—With one or two eligibility conditions cleared up by summer school study, the Wabash football squad faces a promising season with one of the best all round outfits in several years. Vaughan, it seems, will have the reserves he needs not only in the line, but also in the backfield. Sophomores will likely play a prominent part in Scarlet gridiron encounters this fall.

Vaughan has been spending a summer as rigorous as that which he asked his men to endure. First at Camp Taylor, Ky., with his Crawfordsville national guard unit, and more recently at Camp Crosley where he and Ward [Piggy] Lambert of Purdue conducted a preseason training camp for high school players, Vaughan is in topnotch mental and physical shape to coach the Little Giants for this fall.

Start good. Won easily, place driving. Went to post at 4:10. At post 1 minute. Winner, A. Brusca's ch. g. 7, by Short Grass-Marian Hood. Trained by T. M. Doyle. Rib Grass assumed the lead soon after the start, held it unchallenged throughout, winning well in hand at the end. Open Hand raced restrained until the stretch turn was reached, then began gaining and easily disposed of the others in the run home. Blarney Stone raced prominently from the start, but failed to respond when ridden hard in the stretch. Mons Meg raced well for the first mile, then began tiring. Zeus the Second and Sagamook were never very prominent.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $5,000 added. Two year olds. Six furlongs. Handicap. Net value to winner, $5,700; second, $800; third, $400; fourth, $120.

Won easily, place driving. Went to post at 5:14. At post 4 minutes. Winner, B. Gentry's ch. g. 5, by Seth-May Sutton. Trained by A. Goldblatt. Seth's Alibi racing in his best form and favored by the going showed the most speed throughout and won in a canter. Arabian raced under restraint to the stretch, responded well when urged, and quickly made up ground. Fabian also came from the rear in the stretch run and finished going well. Scoop tired. Billy Witt was done after going the first three quarters. Harvey Stedman was speedy for the first half mile, but quit badly.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $1,400 added. Three year olds and up. Claiming. One and one-sixteenth miles. Net value to winner, $980; second, $280; third, $140.

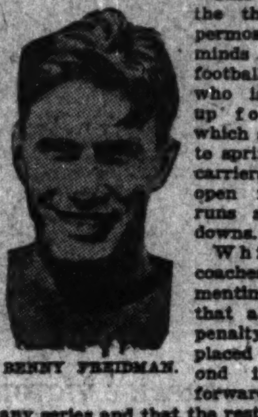
CURB ON PASS TO ENCOURAGE RUNNING PLAYS

Coaches Work for Power Ahead of Ball.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

"Get plenty of power ahead of the man with the ball."



BENNY FREIDMAN.

This should be the thought uppermost in the minds of every football coach who is working up formations which are expected to spring the ball carriers in the open for long runs and touchdowns.

While many coaches are lamenting the fact that a five yard penalty has been placed on the second incompleted forward pass of any series and that the restriction will hamper the open game, this will not be the case if strong running attacks are planned.

Smart coaches are paying little attention to the five yard penalty. The pass will be used just as often as in the past, but the restriction will encourage the development of running attacks, the most spectacular in football. There has been nothing prettier to watch than the running plays of Notre Dame when it had the "Four Horsemen."

Notre Dame's attack of that year was a splendid example of power ahead of the man with the ball. Not only did the backs get into the interference but the same was true of the linemen. The ball carrier ran low, as a general rule, so that the interference formed sort of a screen for him.

When a coach has a fast ball carrier and a fast forming interference, he does not expect every attempt to result in a touchdown nor even a first down.

Warner Likes End Runs.

Pop Warner, the Leland Stanford coach, is a great believer in the running attack and was among the first to get linemen out in the interference. Warner always has believed in fast backs and favors the end running offense to the line battering attack. When Pop was at Pittsburgh, Davies was his great offensive weapon and Tommy generally managed to get away a couple of times in every game.

Coach Zuppke of Illinois did the same with Red Grange. At the start of last year's game with Pennsylvania, Grange hardly got past the line of scrimmage. Red's running plays were called continually until the formations finally permitted the fleet back to get into the open and scamper over the chalk marks for touchdowns.

Notre Dame, with Flanagan as its ball carrying ace, should present a strong running attack with plenty of power ahead of the ball carrier. Flanagan is the type of player who takes advantage of openings quickly, and if Rockne can develop a fast starting interference which will enable the Notre Dame back to get by the scrimmage line, Rockne's eleven will be hard to beat this season.

Freidman Good Ball Carrier.

Capt. Bennie Freidman of Michigan should be another star performer in this rôle. Coach Yost always has been a believer in the running attack and, like other coaches, will instruct his captain to keep trying the play regardless of how many times it fails.

Many leading university and college elevens of the country will start practice this week and all will be down to hard preparation by Sept. 15, the official date for the opening of practice in the middle west and for the larger universities and colleges of the east.

De Palma Wins 50 Mile Race at Syracuse, N. Y.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Ralph de Palma won the fifty mile automobile race at the New York state fair today. Ira Vail was second and Red Shafer third. De Palma's time was 38:02:34. More than 60,000 persons witnessed the competition. De Palma won the ten mile race, Vail was second and Charles Genung third. Shafer was forced out by engine trouble.

Lincoln Fields Race Notes

THE peak of the Lincoln Fields season will be reached tomorrow afternoon with the first running of the Lincoln handicap, which carries $10,000 in added money to the winner. Twelve of the best handicap horses in the west were named in the overnight entries, and as practically all of them like muddy or heavy going scratches are expected to reduce the field but little. King Nadi is the top weight, having been assigned 120 pounds for the mile and a quarter grind.

Jockey D. Dubois was the biggest money maker among the Lincoln Fields riders last week, his fees totaling $396. R. Jones was second with $339 to his credit.

Good Shepherd, making the second start of his racing career, won the second race easily by five lengths and was one of the hottest tips of the season, having been backed from 5 to 1 to nearly even money.

Col. Bob Baker left the Chicago Heights hospital yesterday morning after a serious illness and reached Lincoln Fields just in time to see his 3 year old Red Head win the first race at odds of nearly 25 to 1.

Jimmy McGill, the late Pittsburgh Phil's nephew, watched his Shasta Love finish out of the money in the handicap and then stood by while his veteran campaigner, Fabian, could get no better than third money in the Congress Hotel handicap. But in the last race Ruban Rouge carried his silks to a brilliant victory at good odds. Pequot, the favorite, wound up in last place.

Senator J. N. Camden arrived from Kentucky yesterday and will remain over to see his good filly, Rothermel, perform in the Lincoln handicap. Hennings Chambers, Louisville broker, was also an arrival.

Porto De Oro, one of the few favorites to win during the last two days of muddy going, had to be much the best to win the third race. Heading into the stretch he was eight lengths in front, then bolted to the outside fence. Jockey Dubois pulled him together just in time to nip Sunny Maid by half a length.

While this year's series of stake events at Lincoln Fields have provided the best racing Chicagoans have witnessed in 25 years, Col. Matt Winn has announced that his stake offerings next season will be something that will cause all racegoers of America to take notice.

Capablanca Gives Chess Preference to Nimzowitsch

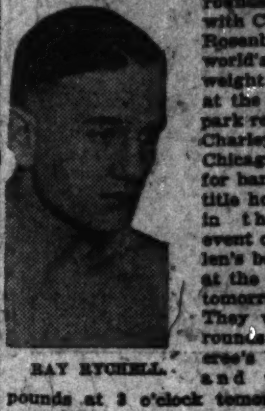
Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Jose R. Capablanca, world chess champion, today declared that A. Nimzowitsch of Denmark would be given preference to a world championship match over Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris. While reports from Buenos Aires yesterday were to the effect that the Argentine Chess club had deposited $500 to guaranteed Dr. Alekhine's challenge, Capablanca said he had received no formal notice of the defi.

SARMIENTO AND RYCHELL AWAIT BELL FOR BOUT

Clash Tomorrow at Cubs' Park.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Peter Sarmiento, the little brown boxer from the Philippines who fought ten rounds to a draw with Charley Phil Rosenberg, the world's bantamweight champion, at the White Sox park recently, and Charley Rychell, Chicago's hope for bantamweight title honors, meet in the banner event of Jim Mullen's boxing show at the Cubs' park tomorrow night. They will go ten rounds to a referee's decision and weigh 122 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.



RAY RYCHELL.

Fans are aware that when Sarmiento goes to the post a fight always results. Peter is known for his aggressiveness and his gameness. His remarkable fight with Rosenberg is fresh in the minds of those who saw it.

Rychell Needs Victory.

Rychell also is an aggressive fighter who will not hesitate to trade punches with the Filipino. If Ray has any hopes of climbing up the bantamweight championship ladder he must win the decision over his brown opponent. A defeat for Ray means a step backward.

In another bout between aggressive fighters, Russie LeRoy of Fargo, N. D., will meet Spug Myers of California. A short time ago at the Cubs' park, this pair of lightweight championship contenders went ten rounds to a draw. It was a give and take affair from start to finish.

Fight for Chance at Title.

The winner of this bout will be in a position to claim a match for the title with Champion Sammy Mandell. Eddie Kane, who looks after the interests of the champion, recently stated that Le Roy, Myers, Petrolle, and Hudkins must engage in an elimination tourney to determine the logical opponent for Sammy, who will defend his title the latter part of the month.

Johnny Hill, another fighting Filipino, will clash with Billy Humphries of England. It will be Hill's first appearance in Chicago since the passage of the Illinois boxing bill.

Tickets can be procured today or tomorrow at Mullen's, 130 W. Randolph street, or at the Cubs' park. Prices from $1.10 to $5.50 will prevail.

Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., goes to the post for the last time tomorrow night before he meets Charley Phil Rosenberg for the world's bantamweight championship at the Cubs' park on Sept. 16. Taylor will meet Bobby Hughes in Bud's home town in a ten round no decision contest.

EYE TITLE

SPUG MYERS.

RUSSIE LE ROY.

These lightweights clash tomorrow night at Cubs' park. The winner will be in line for a championship bout with Sammy Mandell.

GOPHER NET DOUBLES.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Lindsey Helmholz of Rochester and Everett Smith of Milwaukee, paired in the junior doubles in the southern Minnesota open tennis tournament here today, won the championship of the club.

DOCTOR DEFENDS HIS OPERATION ON JACK'S NOSE

Jack Dempsey's remodeled proboscis continued to be the subject of spirited controversy yesterday when Dr. W. E. Balsinger, plastic surgeon of Chicago and Los Angeles, who transformed the heavyweight champion's somewhat punch battered nose into an aristocratic adornment, came to the defense of his handiwork.

"There is nothing fragile about Dempsey's nose," Dr. Balsinger stated, "and it is ridiculous to think that the champion would suffer any ill effects from a hard blow upon it. I used no paraffin whatever in the operation and the nose is capable of withstanding three times as much abuse as the old one."

Dempsey's nose, according to Dr. Balsinger, was built up with cartilage taken from the back of the champion's ear. The old and new cartilage knit perfectly, forming a strong and pliant tip to the new nose.

"The operation has greatly aided Jack in his breathing," the surgeon said.

U. S. NET STARS TO DEFEND DAVIS CUP THIS WEEK

French Team Looms as Dangerous Foe.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The final act in the 1926 Davis cup play will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week when France and the United States meet in the challenge round at the Germantown Cricket club. France is the sole survivor of the field of twenty-four nations that entered the international play and has reached the challenge round for the second time in the twenty-six years history of the classic. The same players who defended the cup successfully last year have been named again to represent the United States, while France will use the three players who competed last year with the addition of Henri Cochet, the young star who surprised the tennis world by defeating Vincent Richards in France and England this spring.

Last year Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste bore the entire burden of play for France, but the strain was too much for them, Borotra wilting in the doubles after carrying Tilden to five sets in the opening day's singles match. While no announcement has been made as yet, it is expected that Borotra and Lacoste again will represent France in the singles, with Cochet and Jacques Brugnon taking care of the doubles.

U. S. Team Same as 1925.

William Tilden, William Johnston, Vincent Richards, and Richard Norris Williams again will compose the American team. Last year Tilden and Johnston handled the singles, with Richards and Williams playing the doubles. The United States made a clean sweep of the series.

How the Americans will play next week is not yet determined. It seems certain that Tilden will play two of the singles matches, for the champion, after suffering repeated defeats early this season, has reached the pinnacle of form and is again regarded as practically invincible.

The choice for the other singles play is between Johnston and Richards. The Californian has played in only two turf court tournaments this season, but his doubles playing has been extremely brilliant. Richards appears to have shown the best form in singles, but Johnston's decisive victories over the French still present a strong argument in the latter's favor.

If Tilden and Johnston represent the United States in singles it is pretty certain that Richards and Williams will be the doubles combination. On the other hand, if Richards is selected for the singles, Tilden and Johnston probably will play the doubles.

Yanks Expect Battle.

While the success of Americans over both French teams in the national doubles at Brookline, Mass., this week augurs well for an American victory in the Davis cup struggle, the French are expected to show greatly improved form in the challenge round. Borotra, who was not here to compete in the interzone match with Japan, may prove a formidable opponent in the singles, while Cochet and Brugnon unquestionably will be better acclimated next week. Lacoste, too, is always dangerous, although to date his playing has been under his usual form.

Should America retain the cup it will be the seventh successive victory for the United States and this country's tenth triumph in Davis cup play. Australia and England are the only other countries that ever have captured the cup.

Julian Myrick, chairman of the American Davis cup committee, will referee the matches.

MOTOR BOAT RACE TO WAUKEGAN IS TAKEN BY LARK

W. S. Bosley's Lark captured the Chicago to Waukegan motor boat race yesterday, finishing within eleven seconds of its scheduled time. A. G. Casterill brought his boat into the Waukegan harbor second, twelve seconds within its scheduled time, while the third and fourth places were taken by power yachts piloted by women. Lucy Lou, piloted by Miss Lucy Rueck, third, and Mrs. O. E. Brown sailed in Margaret fourth.

Boats of the Chicago Motor Boat club, Chicago Yacht club, Columbia Yacht club, and Jackson Park Yacht club competed in the race, which started off the Van Buren street gap. After leaving the gap, the boats proceeded northeasterly to the Chicago harbor light, then in a northerly direction to Waukegan, finishing on a line between the pier and harbor entrance.

Chicago-Detroit Gaelic Football Game Postponed

The Gaelic football game scheduled between the Chicago team and the Detroit organization at Southtown park this afternoon has been postponed indefinitely. A wire from the Detroit team informed the local players that injury to two of its players caused the postponement.

THE SPORTING GOODS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

THE SPORTS BUSINESS.

AFTER an age of catch-as-catch-can management the sport business is now going in for high efficiency, discipline, interlocking directorates, and even ethics when convenient.

The cauliflower magnates of America, feeling the first faint stirrings of the upward and onward sentiment, formed a sort of cauliflower chamber of commerce several years ago. They began auspiciously with a treasury, a slogan, and a code of business practice. The movement was hurled for a humiliating loss when some utterly despicable character reverted to the business customs of the past and laid a stiff, as the technical phrase has it, for the entire treasury, a stiff being a lifeless check in the language of the cauliflowers.

After some dispute the bank agreed to stand the loss, so the cauliflower chamber of commerce got its treasury back. The parliamentarians of this body meet at catch weights, no holds barred, and the official seal bears the Latin motto: "In hoc signo bunkum," which means "Protect yourself at all times."

The deliberations convey a faint tang of burnt blasting powder, suggesting burglary, but the movement still moves and the urge is forward to better things and desks with push-buttons.

The proprietor of the baseball firm no longer is to be identified by the bulge of a wad of sucking tobacco, the size of a cantaloupe, beneath the leather of his cheek. He doesn't suck tobacco and his cheek wears the faint, pink blush affected by well barbered financiers. He can and does make speeches and when he hurls a few ringing phrases against the chandeliers at the business men's luncheon, he describes his gesture with the shapely fingers of the office fellow, not with the kinky digits of a survivor of the meat-hand era of baseball.

Time was, and not so long ago, when the ball player used his judgment, if any, in the sudden complications of the game. He also called his manager Red or Dinny or Joe, as the case happened to be. Frank Chance was either the first manager or one of the pioneers in the movement to establish the manager as a chief clerk and one to be mistered.

Now the juvenile plowhand who comes up wearing warts as big as shoe buttons and freckles the size of flapjacks to try his arm in the big leagues soon learns that the manager is not necessarily the bosom pal of the players. Also he discovers that the majority stockholders are not to be mentioned by such as he except on fête days, and then only with obeisant cap touching and lowering of the voice.

The player may be important in print and in the lineup but the employer has put him in his place. This may humiliate the spirits of some of the old raw meat addicts who respected no manager they could lick. But it would thrill the heart of Judge Gary to bounce around with ball players for a season and hear the reverence with which they pronounce the names of Mr. Stoneham, Mr. McGraw, Mr. Dreyfuss, or Mr. Griffith.

Suppose the recruit lasts long enough to play a game of ball on the big lot and then goes up to bat with instructions to bunt. Instead, he bends his mop handle over a pitch that has "sock me" written all over it, for a home run that wins the game. He is certain to be bawled out and likely to be fined for that. So he is bewildered when he reads an article by the manager some days later in which the manager deplores the wane of enthusiasm that used to contribute such dash and vigor and romantic rivalry to the game.

The fighter or wrestler confronted with an inconvenient challenge always has answered with the tactful evasion: "See my manager." But of late, Harry Greb has been formally designated as a business, not an individual, and a receiver has been appointed by the honorable supreme court of the state of New York.

Faced by a business matter today, Mr. Greb would say: "See my receiver," just as Trudy Ederle was instructed to say: "See my attorney."

The new system is rather bloodless but no more mercenary than the old régime under which the bartender ran his squee-gee over the wood to make a dry spot where a champion and challenger could sign articles for a fight on a gravel scow. The drinking saloon, happily, now is extinct and the agreements for the Dempsey-Tunney fight were validated in Tex Rickard's office in the new Garden. No crayon enlargements of George Memsic or Chicken Duffy adorn the walls of Mr. Rickard's offices, and the only thing that suggests the headquarters of a fight promoter rather than the board room of a bank is a silver inkstand flanked by little boxing figures.

The interlocking directorate is a new and dubious development. It has been tried cautiously and in strict confidence. Under this system Joe Theeph, manager of Kid Falls, also may be a silent partner in the management of Frankie Fowl. The boys meet and the bout is not so good. Also, it is not so bad, for the boys split a couple of lips and put on a great show of vigorous infighting.

Or you have a fighter who has been built up to $200,000 for each bout. You discover that the political, diplomatic, and financial intricacies of handling such a prize fighter call for specialized talent. So you sell shares in your boy to certain persons who are gifted along the desired lines and they become members of the cabinet, so to speak, without portfolio.

Each of these stockholders has fighters of his own. So you match your big one with a fighter belonging to the minister on political relations. The public does not know of the connection so the customers are mystified when your big fighter somehow lets the other guy put a rousing battle to lose the decision by a shade. Then you rematch them.

This system is striving toward perfection. Perhaps, one day, all prize fighters will belong to one big stable and lie down together in one big stall.

60 Illini Grid Candidates to Report Sept. 15

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—There is a general stir in the University of Illinois athletic camp now that football practice is set to start within ten days. Sixty players have been asked to report Sept. 15 and Bob Zuppke's aids are coming in to make ready for the opening.

As usual, "Jus" Lindgren, old time Illini captain and tackle, will help Zuppke with the line. Lindgren has been concerned with Illinois lines for years. "Lindy" follows his profession of chemist during the year but arranges to give much time to coaching.

"Milt" Olander again will be an assistant to Zuppke. Olander played under Zuppke for four years and was a member of two championship teams. After graduation in 1922 he went to Western State Normal college at Kalamazoo, Mich., where he coached for two years. Then he returned to Illinois to succeed Burt Ingwersen as freshman coach when Burt took charge at Iowa. Olander made good and "Zup" promoted him to assistant varsity coach.

The varsity coaching cabinet will be completed with Leo Klein, who will coach the ends. Klein played under Zuppke in 1915, 1916 and 1917 and then on the service team at the Municipal pier, Chicago.

Frank Rokusek, football captain in 1924, again will be a member of the coaching staff. "Roke" was assistant freshman coach last fall and also did much of the scouting. Coaches Voyles, Kalsinski, Smith, and Sogolow, members of the athletic department, are others who will have a hand with the freshmen. Matt Bullock, trainer, is a fixture.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question R. E. Burlingame, Statesan, Wis., was awarded $5.

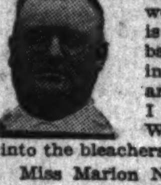
The Question.

Which would you rather attend—the world series, the Dempsey-Tunney fight, or the Army-Navy football game?

Where Asked.

In lobby of city hall.

The Answers.



Otto Thomsen, 3719 N. Hermitage avenue, elevator starter—I would choose the world series. Baseball is my sport. It's too bad the Cubs won't be in the series, for they are my favorite team. I like to watch Hack Wilson knock the ball into the bleachers.

Miss Marion Nelligan, 6220 Justine street, stenographer—I'd take the Army-Navy football game. There will be more color in that contest than in the world series or the championship fight. Football is an American game for red blooded Americans and it furnishes far more thrills than any other sport. I hope I'll be able to get a ticket.

Thomas C. O'Brien, 650 North La Vergne avenue, elevator operator—I'd rather see the world series. You can see boxing matches or football games any time, but give me baseball all the time. If that race in the National league doesn't stir a person's interest, then there's nothing exciting in sport. I'm pulling for the Cardinals.

Miss Grace C. Riley, 4034 West Monroe street, secretary—I'd prefer the Army-Navy game, first of all, because I like football and secondly, because the service elevens represent the highest type of American manhood. This year's contest will be particularly interesting because it will be played in one of the greatest stadiums in the country.

Edward Walter, 2243 North Kedvale avenue, student—Give me the world series. I like baseball because it's a cleaner sport than football or boxing. Those games are dependent on blood or broken bones for their main thrill. I'm sorry the Cubs have little chance of getting into the series.

BRICKIES MEET SPARTA TEAM IN SOCCER TODAY

Two of Chicago's leading soccer teams, the Bricklayers and Sparta, will play the final tilt of their two game pre-season series at 27th street and Kostner avenues today.

The clubs, both members of the new Midwest league, met last Sunday and battled ninety minutes to a 1-1 tie. A few changes are expected to be made in both sides today. Davie Coutts and Hugh Hill, both of whom have been troubled with injured knees, and Billy Berryman may start for the Brickies.

The Olympias will play Jugo-Slavs at 47th avenue and 19th street.

After today's games are over the local players will start training for international games.

Rockne Drops 'Easy' Games from Schedule

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—One of the most unusual football schedules ever framed for an eleven during the last decade has been drafted for Notre Dame this fall.

Usually a football team is given an opportunity to get into shape through the medium of so-called easy games. This system is not to be used at Notre Dame during 1926. Ten games have been booked. Nine of them are major contests and the other one cannot be called a setup.

Practice Opens Next Week.

The Notre Dame squad reports Sept. 15. Between then and Oct. 2 Rockne must drill the candidates and at the same time sift the squad of from 75 to 80 players into four units, first, second, third and fourth strings.

Beloit opens the season. Last year the Wisconsin eleven forced Notre Dame to the limit. Beloit has practically the same team this year.

On successive Saturdays come contests with Minnesota, Penn State, Northwestern, Georgia Tech, Indiana, West Point, Drake, and Carnegie Tech, while Dec. 4 will find Notre Dame on the Pacific coast playing the University of Southern California.

Five Games at Home.

It a 50-50 proposition as far as home and traveling dates are concerned. Five teams, Beloit, Penn State, Georgia Tech, Indiana, and Drake, will be met on Cartier field, while Notre Dame will journey to Minnesota, Northwestern, Army, Carnegie Tech, and Southern California.

Drake university appears for the first time on a Notre Dame schedule and will play the homecoming game. It is expected Indiana will draw the most state interest. The two universities will meet after a cessation of hostilities for several years.

Duck Season in Illinois Moved Back to Oct. 1

BY BOB BECKER.

There will be no September duck shooting in Illinois and Indiana this fall. Uncle Sam has written out a new "time card" for hunters, with the result that opening day for ducks on Illinois and Indiana marshes is Oct. 1 instead of Sept. 16. However, what has been taken from the start of the water fowl season has been tacked on the finish, as instead of closing Dec. 31 the open season will end Jan. 15.

Uncle Sam also says no mud hen shooting until Oct. 1, so the complete schedule for your shooting irons is as follows:

Illinois—Opening date on yellowlegs and rail, Sept. 16. Ducks, mud hens, geese, brant, and jacksnipe, Oct. 1.

Indiana has approximately the same schedule: Ducks, geese, jacksnipe, and mud hens, Oct. 1; yellowlegs, Sept. 16, but the season on rail in Indiana opened Sept. 1.

Michigan hunters can start their fall cannonading Sept. 16, as the law on water fowl in that state is the same as that which was in force last year. Wisconsin water fowl regulations are also unchanged from last year, so that September is still the opening day in the Badger state.

We know of dozens of Illinois hunters who are now making their dates for duck shooting downstate so as not to be disappointed in guides and accommodations. This is a wise idea, as open places for free lance hunters are none too numerous in the famous Illinois river duck country, and it behooves the city hunter to get set for his shotgun sport several weeks ahead of the time when he expects to hunt.

RAIN CANCELS RACES.

Barrington, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Rain caused postponement of Cook county fair races here today. Sunday's card will consist of the 2:15 pace, 2:20 trot, sixth trot and pace and two running races.

Calypso Wins R Class Race to St. Joseph

The Sir Thomas Lipton cup winner, Calypso, owned by Commodore Hollis E. Potter of the Chicago Yacht club, yesterday romped off with double honors in the first leg of the Chicago Yacht club's triangular race by winning first place in the R class and making the best corrected time on the dash from Chicago to St. Joseph, Mich.

The Ottawa Beach Yacht club's Joyant, sailed by a crew of picked Grand Rapids, Mich., yachtsmen, beat Intrepid, winner of this year's Mackinac Island race, and the Chicago Yacht club entrant Celeritas, by a minute and ten seconds in the P class event.

The Jackson Park Yacht club's banners were carried to victory in the schooner class by Fame, owned by Weston and Dunlap, whose defeat of Privateer and Elizabeth was one of the biggest surprises of the races. George Fox's Kayoshk of the Chicago Yacht club won handily in the yawl division, and Siren beat Jackson Park II. in the Q class.

In the Sewanhaka class Gus Nylund's Springtime was the victor, winning easily over Columbia, flagship of the Jackson Park Yacht club.

Severe squalls from the south aided the boats in crossing the lake in fast time.

The boats will leave this morning on the second leg of the journey which will take them to Michigan City. The final leg will bring them back to Chicago tomorrow with the finish line stretched off the Casino pier.

RAIN POSTPONES GRAND CIRCUIT AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Unfavorable racing conditions on the track at State Fair park here caused the cancelling of the third heat of yesterday's races at the Great Western Racing Circuit meet here today.

Chicago to Play London in Chess Over Cable Wires

London and Chicago chess teams will play by cable, Nov. 6, for a British-American trophy presented by Samuel Insull of Chicago.

The lord mayor of London and William E. Dever, mayor of Chicago, will make the first moves, after which the play will be continued by teams of six members each. These players, who contested this week in the national and western chess championships here, will represent Chicago: Samuel D. Factor, captain; Orrin Fink, H. Hahlbohm, L. J. Isaacs, Edward Lasker, and A. Margolis. The British team has not been selected.

The telegraph company has guaranteed a two minute cable service in reporting each move. Dr. John Dill Robertson, former health commissioner of Chicago, will donate a silver cup as a brilliancy prize.

POSTPONED GAME IN JUNIOR LOOP IS CARDED FOR WEST

Ten baseball games in the American league which were washed away by rain during the last invasion of the western clubs in the east will be played in the western cities, President Ban Johnson said yesterday.

Following is a list of the postponements and the dates on which they will be played off:

Aug. 18—Chicago at New York, to be played in Chicago, Sept. 20.

Aug. 17 and 18—Detroit at Washington, to be played in Detroit, Sept. 15 and 16.

Aug. 18—Cleveland at Philadelphia, to be played at Cleveland, Sept. 24.

Aug. 21—Cleveland at Washington, to be played at Cleveland, Sept. 11.

Aug. 21—Detroit at Philadelphia, to be played at Detroit, Sept. 20.

Aug. 25—St. Louis at Washington, to be played at St. Louis, Sept. 20.

Aug. 22—St. Louis at New York, to be played at St. Louis some day during Yankees' visit.

Aug. 24.—Cleveland at New York, to be played at Cleveland, Sept. 15.

Aug. 24—Chicago at Philadelphia, to be played in Chicago either on Sept. 11 or 12.

THE CAR YOU CAN RECOMMEND TO YOUR BEST FRIEND

Every day Oldsmobile owners recommend Oldsmobile Six to their friends—and this is why . . .

. . they selected Oldsmobile for what it could do and how it did it.

Then, in the crucial test of trial-by-miles, they found it asked no favors, feared no road. Their judgment stands confirmed.

And now—because of a policy pledged to progress and because that policy has produced improvements and added features of known worth—Oldsmobile stands out more than ever as, "The car you can recommend to your best friend!"

PUTTING WINS CHICAGO OPEN FOR MAC SMITH

Champion Outdriven by Several Rivals.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

MacDONALD SMITH.

When Eddie Loos, Lake Shore pro, missed by inches an eight foot putt to tie MacDonald Smith for the Chicago district open championship on the seventy-second hole at the Evanston Golf club last week, the camp chair gallery, gathered around the green, groaned aloud. It happened to be the one missed putt they saw which cost a tie for the championship. What they didn't see and didn't groan over were the many putts, wide or short by an inch or less, that cost a stroke no less surely than the one on the last green.

In that tournament, as in most others, it was putting that won. The drives of Smith, the winner, are straight and long, but he can be outdriven by a dozen others who played. His approaches are fairly accurate, but often they are wide or over, but he almost never takes more than two putts to the green and gets quite a few one putt greens.

Hagen, though he finished only fifth, also upheld "putting wins." Hagen was beaten on his last poor round. As it turned out he needed a 69 to beat MacDonald Smith, while he took a 78. Hagen usually, and especially in the last round of a tournament, will take not more than 32 putts. On that last round he took 39.

Sinks Long Putts.

On his second and third rounds of 66 and 68, which put Hagen in the lead at the end of 54 holes, he sank two putts of forty feet or more, three or four of 25 feet, and several other long ones. After the finish he said, "I couldn't say so then, but when I started the final round I thought I had the tournament won."

And it was putting that beat him in the afternoon. Hagen blamed it on his liver. Not in the spirit of "establishing an alibi"—for despite a personality which many persons dislike, Hagen is one of the most honest of pros in blaming himself and not "bad luck" for a faulty shot—Hagen said he saw spots dancing before his eyes as he sighted his putt on the first green of that last round. Heat and an upset stomach were playing tricks on him.

Poor Putting Beats MacDonald.

Taking another angle—Bob MacDonald took the lead on the first round with a 68, but on his succeeding rounds his drives were as far and straight as usual, his seconds and approaches were to the green, but his putts wouldn't drop and he finished far down.

And finally there's the proof of statistics. Of the six men who finished with scores of 285 or less for the 72 holes, three of them had one round of 66, one had a round of 65, one had a round of 69, and the other two rounds of 70, even par. Two putts to the green, merely "perfect" putting, means 36 strokes. And on a round in 66 that leaves only 30 strokes to get the ball from 18 tees to 18 greens. Some golfers can do that, occasionally, most of them can't, and none of them can do it consistently. They've got to have some one putt greens to win. That was the outstanding fact of the Chicago District open.

RAIN HAMPERS GOLFERS ON LOCAL COURSES

C. C. DAVIS won the senior club championship at Olympia Fields by defeating Fred Gardner, 3 and 1. The club championship reached the semi-finals. Lester R. Taylor defeated Arthur F. Henning and today will play Fred Bangs who defeated Conrad Karkow. In the lower bracket Don Hamilton won from H. E. Roelke by default and today will play Walter Crowdus, who beat John P. Field. Edward M. Peter won the medal play contest on the first course, with 83—9—74, and C. F. Valentine was second with 97—23—74. C. C. Taylor and John N. Davis went into the final for the T. A. ELMHURST.

The club champion will be decided today when L. W. Brodt and Jack Pentecost meet in a thirty-six hole final. Brodt defeated Dick Pentecost, 3 and 1, in the semi-final yesterday, while Jack Pentecost won his way to the final by downing F. W. Wilkins, 5 and 4. The ball sweepstakes results follow: J. F. Wesol, 97—29—68; Dick Pentecost, 74—5—69; Jack Pentecost, 74—4—70; H. Rossiter, 84—13—71, and H. Hulseberg, 87—16—71. Jack Pentecost, 61—2—59, and W. Zimmerman, 65—6—59, tied for the Roinger trophy.

MIDLOTHIAN.

C. S. Woolman won the Lloyd Washington trophy with 92-23-69, and Miss Josephine Morse took the women's club championship by defeating Mrs. H. G. Eckstein Jr. 4 and 3. In the ball sweepstakes, E. W. Booth won in class A with 75—5—70. C. G. Jenks was second, 88—16—72, and H. J. Curry, third, 85—12—73; Ned Sawyer, fourth, 76—2—74. In classes B and C, C. S. Woolman was low with 92—23—69, and J. P. Patterson second with 108—30—78.

OAK PARK.

R. D. Stevenson topped the qualifiers for the club championship with 79 and also won the ball sweepstakes with the same score. In the medal play, S. T. Spitzer was low in Class A, 80—9—71; R. I. Read, low in Class B, 85—15—70; E. G. Johnson, Class C winner, 97—21—76, and J. H. Skiles beat in Class D, 90—27—63. In the Class B ball sweepstakes, R. I. Read and L. Faulkner were low with 85s and in Class C, E. G. Johnson won with 97.

INDIAN HILL.

Four matches were played in the first round of the club championship. E. N. Cummings defeated H. B. Butt, 3 and 2; R. O. Lord defeated N. L. Hoyt Jr., 3 and 1; G. Ridgeway defeated John C. Harding, 3 and 2; R. F. Sherman defeated G. P. Oleson, 2 and 1. In the 18 hole match play against par William Howell and G. S. Parker were tied with 3 up. P. B. Eckhart finished 1 up; H. T. Walsh, all even, and Roger Sherman and R. C. Price 1 down.

SKOKIE.

Earle, 83; F. W. Hill, 83. S. J. Gilfillan won the Saturday cup with 84—20—64 and R. N. Cunningham was runner up with 85—14—71. George Murch won the putting contest, with 34.

EXMOOR.

W. W. Watkins won the match play against par, 1 up in 18 holes. F. C. Mercer was second, 1 down and three tied for third with 2 down. They were W. W. Shoemaker, F. A. Cuscadon and B. F. Lewis.

T. LOTT won the right to meet Lee M. Thiltges this morning for the Calumet club championship, when he defeated F. B. Van Wormer, 1 up, in a semi-final match. Today's play will be over eighteen holes. Ball sweepstakes winners were H. F. Burnham, who captured class A on an 82—11—71; A. T. Brainerd, 85—14—71, who led class B, and C. S. Orne Jr., who took class C honors with 109—20—89. Feature matches in the third round Ashcraft cup play list Lee Thiltges as the conqueror of J. F. Gilmore, 4 and 2, in class A. A. T. Branerd defeated H. W. Bond in class B, 3 and 2. In class C, L. C. Coyner defeated G. A. Moore, 7 and 5. Lee Thiltges had the low gross honors for the day, 39—37—76.

EDGEWATER.

The summaries at the end of the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six hole holiday medal play gave the first low net prize to I. C. West, 78—6—72. Second low net was awarded C. P. Myers, 82—8—74. The second eighteen holes will be played tomorrow morning. The feature match of the second round play for the club championship saw J. R. Murphy beat A. J. Kasper Jr., 1 up. R. J. Rich beat H. D. Fargo, 3 and 2, in a semi-final of the class A midsummer tournament, while A. E. De Reimer defeated C. W. Jordan, 2 and 1, in the class B division of the same tournament, semi-final round.

LAKE SHORE.

Those who survived the first round of match play in the club championship will meet this morning in the second round. PARK RIDGE.

Dr. A. O. Young and W. W. Springer will play for the club championship as the result of semi-final matches. Dr. Young defeated his brother, Dr. W. M. Young, 4 up in 36 holes. Springer defeated Beverly F. Hall, 1 up in 37 holes. In match play against par, W. Von Beulow and F. W. Gale tied for first, 3 down.

ONWENTSIA.

Rudy Knepper stepped into his usual place at Onwentsia by topping the medal play with 72—1—71. Wolcott Blair, 88—17—71, was second, and George Folds, 75—3—72, third.

RAIN that ranged from a drizzle to a downpour hung out the "No Game Today" sign at many of the golf clubs in the Chicago district yesterday, among them Knollwood and Shore Acres, while those that staged contests had fewer contestants than usual. Many of the clubs are putting on three day contests, which started yesterday and will continue through today and tomorrow.

SOUTH SHORE.

The H. E. Sever trophy is offered to the winner of the thirty-six hole match play against par event. Eighteen holes were played yesterday, while the second eighteen will be played tomorrow. One-half handicap is allowed. The leaders at the halfway point: Eustace Vynne, 73—8, three down; James G. Sullivan, 81—16, four down; Marshall W. George, 84—13, 5 down, and James F. Sheehy, 78—10, 5 down. First round play for the club championship ended with Eustace Vynne the winner over Charles B. Young, 4 and 3; James P. McGrath victory over William F. Lancton, 7 and 6, and Richard H. Fleming winner over Arthur R. Camp, 3 and 2. Other scores: Clarence F. Wiley defeated James H. Murray, 2 up; Clement A. Nance defeated Frank W. Harless, 6 and 5; Fred T. Wiggins beat James F. Meagher Jr., 1 up; James F. Chelius defeated Sam A. Dee, 1 up; William F. Lafferty won over Charles E. Foust, 1 up on the nineteenth green. The pairings for the second round, which is to be played before next Saturday evening, are Vynne-McGrath; Fleming-Wiley; Nance-Wiggins, and Chelius-Lafferty.

Wallace Beats Erickson for County Golf Title

William Wallace, veteran public links golfer, qualified for membership in the mud runners' union yesterday by retaining his Cook county amateur championship in two matches over the Garfield park course. He defeated R. C. Whipple, unattached, 5 and 4, in the 18 hole semi-final round in the morning and won from C. Erickson, a young fellow player from Jackson park, 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final in the afternoon. Erickson in the morning had defeated Frank Hayes, Garfield, runnerup to Wallace last year, 3 and 2.

Erickson Misses Putts.

Wallace outdrove his opponent in the final, but his work with the short clubs again decided the match, as it had all his other matches in the tournament, while Erickson, less experienced in tournament play, was nervous and missed several short putts.

Erickson won the first hole, but Wallace got the next three and they halved until the seventh, which Wallace won. Erickson won the next two with 3s and made the morning turn 1 down. Erickson squared the match on the tenth, but Wallace won the eleventh, thirteenth, and fourteenth and they halved the rest, so Wallace was 3 up at the halfway post.

Wallace Holds Lead.

Erickson clipped his opponent's lead by winning the first two holes of the afternoon round, but Wallace took the third, sixth, and eighth, while Erickson got the seventh and ninth, and they turned into the homestretch with Wallace 2 up. Erickson won the tenth, but Wallace got the next two, holing the thirteenth, and won the fifteenth. The match ended on the sixteenth when they halved it in [illegible].

In the first flight Owen [illegible], Garfield, won by defeating P. [illegible], Melrose Park, in the final, [illegible].

What Next! Now a Woman Bids for Job as Golf Pro

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The first woman golf professional in England and perhaps the world, was brought to light today with publication of an advertisement reading:

"Young girl desires post as golf professional. Good player and coach. Has been with well known professional eighteen months."

The girl is Miss Sophie Seymour, sister of Mark Seymour, the pro at the St. Leonard's club, Hastings, and a cousin of Abe Mitchell.

For more than a year she has been learning how to make and repair clubs and perform the other duties of a club pro. She goes around the St. Leonard's course in 79 or better, and her style is practically flawless.

SNELL WINS GOLF TITLE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Although 3 down with 5 holes to play, Albert Snell of Phalen, St. Paul, rallied, evened his match with Earl Larson of Glenwood, Minneapolis, at the thirty-sixth, and won out on the thirty-seventh to capture the Minnesota junior golf championship here today.

Now-the complete 1927 line of PEERLESS cars

$1395 and up

NO matter which of these three superb Peerless cars you select (from the low priced Six-80 to the custom-built Eight-69) you get a car rich in beauty with power sufficient for every requirement. And with it a freedom from vibration and an out-and-out dependability that's truly refreshing.

POLAND SORRY HER U. S. DEBT IS NOT BIGGER

Attitude Indicates Financial Soundness.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Aug. 2.—[By Mail.]—There's at least one member of Europe's I. O. U. club of debtor nations who is not kicking about paying off her indebtedness to Uncle Sam. Poland has only one complaint to make about the money she owes the United States. It's not enough.

This attitude is an excellent indication of the financial soundness of the young republic emerging from a revolution so violent, that although it changed the government and pitched the country into confusion for a month, did not prevent the national treasury from mailing its promised semi-annual remittance to Mr. Mellon. Americans visiting Poland encountered no prejudice on account of Poland's debt to the U. S. A., but every American traveler is looked upon as a millionaire and expected to live up to it with wild spending like Warsaw used to know back in the days of the Russian grand dukes.

Per Capita Debt $12.

Few of the Poles holding this general misconception are aware that every American citizen shoulders a chunk of the American public debt, about fourteen times as great as every Polish citizen carries. The per capita indebtedness in Poland is $12, as compared to $170 in America.

Poland's small public debt amounting to less than two per cent of its national wealth, estimated at $18,000,000,000, is one of the principal facts upon which international financiers base their judgment of the republic's present prosperity and future prospects.

Of this indebtedness amounting to approximately $350,000,000, Poland owes $178,000,000, or more than half of it to America. It is the bill for surplus supplies sold to Poland by the United States army and navy departments, supplies furnished by the American relief administration, flour provided by the United States Grain corporation, and services rendered by the United States shipping board. The debt carried interest originally at the rate of four and one-half per cent.

Extended Over 62 Years.

In November, 1924, Secretary Mellon and the Polish Finance Minister signed at Washington a refunding agreement, later ratified by congress and the Polish diet, by the terms of which payments on the debt were extended over a period of sixty-two years, bearing interest at the rate of three per cent for the first eight years and three and one-half per cent thereafter.

With all of her foreign obligations regularized since the first of 1925, Poland was able to balance her budget this year and at the same time so reduce her importations as to bring about a balance of trade greatly in her favor. Although the zloty, which is the national currency, has fallen in one year from five to ten to the dollar, the [illegible] elements of solvency are responsible for stopping a still further decline.

Mistrust Own Currency.

It cannot be denied that the Poles have a widespread mistrust of their own currency and their banking system. This distrust has become part of the Polish citizen's psychology which forces him to exchange his zloty savings for foreign currency, preferably American dollars, and then to hoard them in the Polish woolen sock. Ample reason for this lack of confidence is to be found in the brief but hectic record of the republic's finances. Political and administrative inexperience worked havoc with the finances of the country when the Poles took over control at the end of 1918. A government without financial reserves was called upon to reconstruct a country devastated by war and to invigorate an impoverished population facing famine and epidemics. Inflation was the easiest way out, with the result that the Polish paper mark declined from [illegible] to the dollar, as it stood in 1918, to [illegible] million for a dollar at the end of 1923.

Drastic financial reforms bringing [illegible] to thousands were enforced in 1924, when the zloty was created as an equivalent to the gold franc and the [illegible] of 570 trillion printed paper marks was stabilized at 1,800,000 to the zloty. At this rate they were redeemed and retired from circulation by the Bank of Poland, which, although chartered as a private bank with $20,000,000 capital, was supervised by parliament. By these measures the currency was brought back to a gold exchange standard with restrictions which amounted to a suspension of exchanging it for gold.

Money Lying Idle.

The hoarded dollars lying idle, estimated at anywhere from 50,000,000 to [illegible], constitute nonworking capital sorely needed by the country at present to finance its foreign needs, but efforts to bring it out from its hiding place have been unavailing to date. The latest effort was the founding of a "dollar bank" by the government together with a patriotic appeal for deposits on the understanding that they would remain in dollars and could be withdrawn in dollars. By the end of July the response to this effort was not promising. The Pole continues to hoard his own money and his own banking system and the invisible revenue of some $50,000,000 remitted annually to Poland from 3,000,000 Poles in America remains invisible and unavailable for purposes of credit.

Interest Rates High.

Foreign confidence in Poland's banking is not of the highest either, particularly since the loss of $2,000,000 by American business firms last year. The Polish bankers responsible protected themselves with a law whereby they were allowed to list as assets all foreign drafts sent to them for payment by business firms in Poland. By this manipulation of funds the money was turned over to the bank's creditors when it failed. Protests by the United States and Great Britain have resulted in the promise that the law would be amended to give security hereafter to creditors from abroad, but no actual steps have been taken to restore either the loss or foreign confidence so necessary to Poland's future.

EXPECT CROWDS AT G. O. P. PICNIC ON LABOR DAY

Politics and Sports at Riverview.

Between 40,000 and 50,000 persons are expected to attend the basket picnic and Republican rally at Riverview park tomorrow. This is an annual attraction of Labor day and is usually the largest Republican picnic of the summer.

The major committees in charge of the affair are headed by T. O. Wallace, clerk of the circuit court; Oscar Reum, plastering contractor, and Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general.

Probably the success of these north side Republican picnics is due in large measure to the rule which prohibits political speeches of more than five minutes.

Most Candidates to Attend.

Practically every Republican candidate for office in the county probably will be present because the baseball game, races, contests, dancing, and other features attract an enormous crowd. Frank L. Smith, candidate for United States senator, who has not made a speech since he was nominated, said some time ago that he would be present and has sent no regrets since.

George E. Brennan, Democratic candidate, has plied Mr. Smith with questions on many occasions and it is possible Mr. Smith may reply at the picnic, though Smith has been in Connecticut recuperating from a major operation.

But It's Not All Politics.

The crowd, however, is attracted to this annual picnic by the nature of the program. Eleven pretty widows competed last year for the honor of being adjudged "the handsomest." Twenty-one entries for this same contest have been filed this year. Seventeen women have filed entries for the name of being picked as the woman with the reddest hair. The bathing beauty contest has attracted a larger number of entrants.

It has been years since there were not more contestants in the dozen races than could compete at one time on the track at the park.

OUTER DRIVE IS OPEN AGAIN FOR HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

The outer drive from 16th street to 23rd street, which has been closed since Aug. 24, for resurfacing, was opened to traffic yesterday. The unfinished portion from 13th street to 16th street will be opened today and tomorrow to facilitate the handling of Labor day crowds.

This section will be closed again Tuesday but traffic will be routed west of the Field Museum until the surfacing is completed.

The work was necessitated by the fact that the outer drive is built on filled land which has settled, leaving a rolling surface. The top is of permanent asphalt and was applied at a cost of

WHY DENY YOURSELF THE BEST IN MOTOR CAR BODIES

The finest of the new cars in all price classes have now been announced—Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac.

All offer vastly greater values than ever before in motor car history.

All register amazing advantages in performance and ease and economy of operation.

But the greatest factor of their new glory is described in a single phrase—Body by Fisher.

Here are exclusive conveniences and niceties which do, indeed, make the car with Body by Fisher superior in its class.

No matter what mechanical developments may allure you, it is the body of your car with which you live most intimately—that is why the General Motors units, makers of the best of the new cars in all price classes, point so proudly to the emblem—Body by Fisher.

With the finest of the market to choose from there is no reason why you should deny yourself the greater safety, beauty and comfort which only a Body by Fisher can give.

Speed Traps Swept from County Roads, Survey Reveals

Three Months' Crusade Wins Important Motor Reform.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

THREE months ago the thousands of summer automobile tourists, converging on Chicago from all points of the highway compass; some 350,000 automobile owners and drivers in Cook county, and scores of big truck fleet owners, faced another season of legalized highway banditry on the congested roads entering Chicago.

At that time more than a dozen recognized speed traps were in operation 24 hours a day at points along the 400 mile paved road system of Cook county alone. In numerous other villages where trapping the motorist was not a general practice, ignorance of the state laws and the natural desire for fees were prompting magistrates and justices of the peace to levy unreasonable and illegal court and bond fees in vehicle law cases. In some villages these fines and fees ran to thousands of dollars a month and no one was exempt from the official toll. Cook county roads, it was established, were being patrolled for revenue rather than for safety and the motorist who escaped the petty graft, high handed control of public highways and at times serious brutality in motor law enforcement considered himself lucky rather than law abiding.

Yesterday investigators dispatched through the county and adjacent territory reported that the main roads are entirely cleared of speed traps; that courtesy to motorists has become the rule in all villages and open territory of the county and that the careful driver may enjoy the open roads with absolute assurance of official protection.

This improvement, considered the most important reform in Chicago motoring conditions since the automobile came into universal use, has been brought about through three months' intensive crusade on the part of organized motorists and Cook county authorities. Briefly, the following steps brought about the reform:

Establishment on May 30 of a "Friend of the Motorist" department by THE TRIBUNE and an invitation to motorists to report, with evidence and reasonable proof, all abuses of vehicle law enforcement in their experience. Hundreds of complaints were received, studied, and the speed traps located from them.

The Chicago Motor club, representative in the middle west of organized motordom, then jumped into the crusade and developed a bureau of more than a dozen experts, headed by Joseph H. Braun, general counsel and accorded full investigating powers by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. This bureau took over the big task of collecting and investigating all motorist complaints and whipping the evidence into shape for the prosecutor's office.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller was appointed by State's Attorney Crowe to command the coöperative investigation, to bring guilty officials to speedy justice and to clean up the county roads. He succeeded in two months' time in winning criminal indictments against five village police chiefs and justices of the peace, in surveying and revising the record keeping and court procedure in twenty towns and villages, and in completely wiping out two of the most dangerous traps in the United States—those operating in Broadview and Markham.

The five officials awaiting trial on charges of criminal conspiracy to extort include Joseph Huszar, former chief of police of Broadview, and Edward J. Wareham, justice of that village; Harry Morley, former chief, and H. J. Cox, motorcycle officer of Markham, and George Liesenfelt, former justice of Markham. Huszar is also charged with robbery with a gun and assault with intent to kill. The Markham police department, originally a five man affair, and justice court has been abolished and an entire new personnel appointed in Broadview.

In addition to the direct results of the speed trap prosecution, the crusade has resulted in a uniform "fair play" code adopted for the use of every village police department and police court in Cook county, as outlined and urged by the Cook county association of police chiefs, justices of the peace, magistrates, and constables, and the voluntary adoption of rigid enforcement rules by Forest Park, Oak Park, Maywood, Berwyn, River Forest, and other towns and villages.

State's attorneys of 39 counties in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, called into conference by the motor club, are cleaning up their jurisdictions in the same way, with Lake county in Illinois leading the campaign through grand jury action. Several speed traps on Wisconsin roads have been abolished in the crusade which has spread now over the entire country, and legislative action is promised to curb the fee system which allows arbitrary enforcement methods in outlying towns.

Additional indictments are expected this month when evidence against three or four more Cook county villages will be presented to the September grand jury by Prosecutor Mueller. Following the trials, it is planned to submit all evidence of abuses to the Illinois legislature and urge a revision of vehicle law enforcement in the state to abolish motor arrest fees and put motor prosecutions into courts of record.

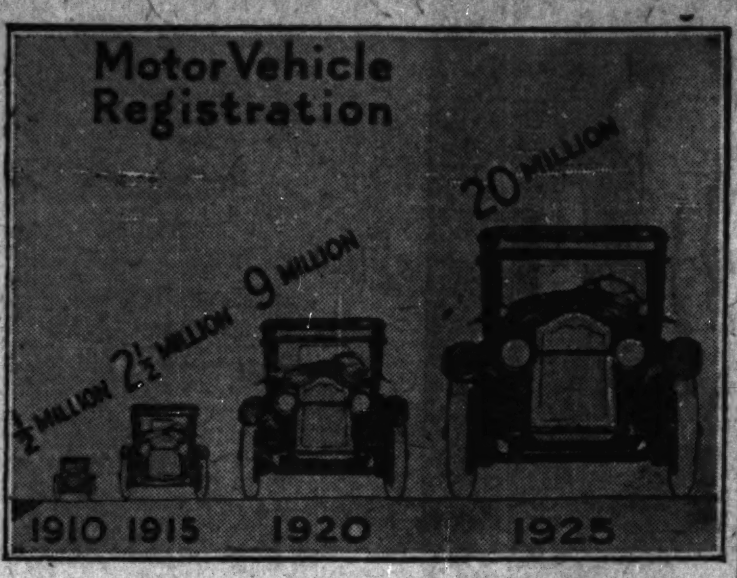
Better Roads.

The national parks, seven in the United States and three in Canada, are now linked together by improved highways. The main gateway to Canada is Niagara Falls, and 253,185 miles of improved highways traverse the dominion, connecting with chief cities on the border.

VIBRATION.

A small amount of vibration is not necessarily a detriment to the automobile horn, since it helps to prevent horn failure through sticking of the rotor when the battery is weak. If the horn bracket is only slightly loose, let it be.

FITTING PAVEMENT TO TRAFFIC NEEDS



The increase in motor registration since 1910 is illustrated by the graph. Back in 1910 nine foot pavements were luxuries. Such widths were sufficient to handle traffic then, as is indicated by the graph. Today, with 20,000,000 cars operating, pavements of less than forty feet in width are virtually useless for large cities.

Michigan Widens Famous Tourist Road Along Lake

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—West Michigan is to widen its tourist trunk line, a magnificent forty foot super highway along the Lake Michigan shore line from the Indiana state line to Holland, it was announced to the motoring public today by the Michigan Tourist and Resort association.

The new route is a relocation of the famous West Michigan pike, M-11. Survey work commenced Monday on the first link between Holland and Saugatuck and state surveyors are now occupied with preliminary work of securing the right of way and studying scenic features for the best route. From the south limits of Holland, southwest to Saugatuck, in a straight line runs the new road to correct such old conditions as the ten corners that the motorist has to turn in leaving Saugatuck for Holland. This section will be concreted in 1927.

Relocation work is also commencing on M-11 between Sawyer and Stevensville and twelve miles of this road will be worked upon this year. The relocation between Benton Harbor and South Haven will take the motorist through Riverside. The Glenn to Saugatuck relocation will be rushed as rapidly as possible to hurry the shore line scenery into the view of the tourist. The state plans to finish twenty foot construction work on the whole road and then immediately double its width, survey and right of way work calling for a forty foot highway.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

H. J. LEONARD, president of the Stearns company of Cleveland, indicated yesterday that an entirely new line of Stearns-Knight motored cars will be announced within a week. It was learned that these new cars will be listed in the "luxury" class and will include many entirely European developments.

August sales of the Pontiac and Oakland models in Chicago distanced any like period in history, according to local officials who are engaged in a hard competitive battle with the Detroit sales branch.

F. D. Cerf, president of the Stutz Chicago factory branch, announced the appointment yesterday of I. N. Hatch as service manager at Stutz headquarters, 2500 Michigan avenue. Mr. Hatch was service manager for Marmon in Boston when Col. Gorrell, now vice president of Stutz, was in charge there.

Factory and sales officials of Chrysler, commenting on the trend toward simplicity in the designation of various new car models, predicted that the speed capacity or horse power of automobiles will eventually be adopted. The company has standardized the naming if its models to indicate their performance capacity of 50, 60, 70 and 80 miles an hour.

With the introduction of the special six series now on display, all Nash car models are powered with seven bearing crankshaft motors.

Motor Life Saver.

At Redondo Beach, Cal., there recently was tested a new motor driven life buoy designed to enable a rescuer to reach a drowning person quickly.

It is four feet long and looks like a small motor boat. On the stern is a bar to which one or more persons can cling. A button on the stern bar starts and stops the motor, while the operator acts as the rudder.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

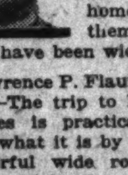
He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to the Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune. For today's question William P. Leider, Webber farm, Lake Villa, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

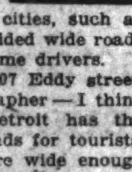
Where in your summer tours have you found the best roads entering big cities?

The Answers.

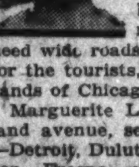


E. H. Hadick, 3811 North Seeley, police sergeant — The roads leading into New York, Philadelphia, and Detroit are wonderful and add one hundred per cent to the pleasure of the tourists and home drivers who use them. Many of these roads have been widened.

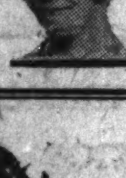
Lawrence P. Flaum, 5234 Dorchester, clerk—The trip to Los Angeles is practically made what it is by the wonderful wide roads that run into the city. Many cities have realized the value of wide roads and have already built them. Detroit is one of them.



Earl N. Herlan, 7515 Cornell avenue, bookkeeper—Every motorist who has made long trips knows the difficulty in getting into most big cities. It's all because of narrow roads and congestion. Detroit has built wide roads into the city and some of the northern cities, such as Minneapolis, have provided wide roads for the tourists and home drivers.



Miss Jackie Zenz, 1307 Eddy street, stenographer — I think that Detroit has the best roads for tourists. They are wide enough to keep traffic moving. South Bend and some other Indiana cities have good roads running into them. We need wide roads into Chicago not only for the tourists, but also for the thousands of Chicago drivers.



Marguerite L. McGinn, 1850 Waveland avenue, secretary —Detroit, Duluth, Denver, Fresno, and St. Paul have good wide roads to carry their tourist cars. The roads all over the country are wonderful these days, but those around cities are overcrowded.

WHEAT FALLS TO NEW LOW PRICE; CORN IS WEAKER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Prospects of better weather next week were a bearish influence in the wheat future market and led to considerable liquidation by longs. Prices reacted sharply from the early levels and December delivery dropped to a new low point for the season. Longs were also free sellers of the other grains and declines in prices were general.

Wheat shows a loss of 1⅛@1⅝c for the day, while corn declined ⅝@1⅛c. Oats closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher while rye was down 1⅝@2¼c. For the week, wheat shows a decline of 1⅞@2⅜c, May showing least weakness. Corn shows a loss of ⅞@1⅞c for the week for September with deferred deliveries ⅝@1c higher. Oats were ⅛c lower for September and ⅜@⅝c higher for others. Rye closed the week 2⅜@3⅛c lower.

Reaction in Market Starts.

There was fair buying of wheat at the opening which was prompted by the weather conditions and by the firmness at Winnipeg. Demand proved to be limited, however, and market soon reacted. The prospect of remaining long over the holiday with better weather in sight was too much for most holders and unloading movement commenced in the final hour. It is expected that there will be a large movement of Canadian wheat after threshing is resumed and that this wheat will get to call for export. Winnipeg reported that country points took in about 1,000,000 bu Friday. Many traders do not believe that the Canadian Pool will allow the United States to sell its surplus first. No important export trade was reported at the seaboard. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝@1c higher. September wheat closed at $1.29⅝@1.29¾, December at $1.32⅝@1.32¾ and May at $1.38¼@1.38⅜.

Corn Hurt in Reaction.

After an early show of firmness the corn market became very weak. Buying at the outset was scattered and was followed by the continued wet weather over the belt, which is regarded as harmful to the crop. The advance in prices attracted realizing sales by the longs and subsequently there was heavy selling. A number of the local longs unloaded because of the prospect of better weather next week. It is generally believed that a long spell of fine weather would make a large crop of corn. Rain, on the other hand, will increase the danger of frost damage. Buying was largely by shorts and against indemnities. Receipts were light and spot market firm. Shipping sales fairly liberal. September closed at 74⅝c; December at 82⅜@82½c, and May at 88⅝c.

RAW SILK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—SILK—Raw: [illegible]

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

All American grain exchanges and Winnipeg will be closed on Monday, Labor day. Liverpool will be open.

The grain trade was very bearish at the close yesterday, because the early strength faded away so rapidly when a little selling appeared. There was active buying of bids on December wheat and corn, wheat bids being 2c under the closing price, and on corn were 1⅛c below the market, while offers on corn were up 2c and wheat 2½c over the regular close.

Local bulls on corn, who were big buyers on Friday on wet weather reports, began selling December at the opening yesterday and saw the market fade away 2⅛c from the top, which was 1c higher than the previous day's close, with the finish right at the low point, due to predictions of clearing weather.

* * *

The weekly weather forecast is for mostly fair the first half, with probably a showery period in the latter half, with temperatures near normal in the region of the great lakes. For the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valley and northern and central great plains, mostly fair with normal temperatures are predicted.

The corn crop in the nine surplus states, as estimated by the Murray-Clement-Curtis crop report, is 1,680,000,000 bu, compared with 1,634,000,000 bu in August, and 2,029,000,000 bu harvested last year. Iowa is given 413,000,000 bu, against 483,000,000 bu last year, and Illinois 323,000,000 bu, compared with 388,000,000 bu last year. In the four northwestern spring wheat states the wheat crop is estimated at 165,000,000 bu, or 7,000,000 bu more than in August, compared with 201,000,000 bu harvested last year, and 243,000,000 bu two years ago. The wheat crop in the United States and Canada is estimated at 1,271,000,000 bu, or 41,000,000 bu more than in August, and practically 200,000,000 bu in excess of last year's harvest. In 1924 the two countries raised 1,125,000,000 bu. The world's crop is estimated at 2,940,000,000 bu, or 20,000,000 bu less than in August, and 5,000,000 bu under last year's harvest.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for wheat was very light yesterday. Italy was reported in the market, but no figures were given. Foreigners seemed to be out of market, expecting lower prices Tuesday.

Local sales of wheat were 64,000 bu, including 29,000 bu for export. Corn, 137,000 bu; oat, 73,000 bu; rye, 3,000 bu, and barley, 15,000 bu. Deliveries on September contracts here were: Wheat, 519,000 bu; corn, 321,000 bu; oats, 419,000 bu, and 63,000 bu rye.

Choice grades of wheat here were a trifle firmer, with millers best buyers. No. 3 and 4 grades were unchanged, and lower grades easier and hard to sell. Sample grades sold at 80c to $1.16 or 14 to 50c under September. No. 2 hard was 1½ to 2c over and No. 2 red 1½ to 1¾c over.

Wheat prices at St. Louis were steady to 1c lower; at Omaha, unchanged, Kansas City, unchanged to ½c lower, and Minneapolis unchanged.

Official receipts at Chicago yesterday were: wheat, 112; corn, 25; oats, 108; rye, 5, and barley, 27 cars.

Developments in the cattle trade last week indicated the strong position of the market and the wide demand for good beef. Receipts were largest since last December, at 70,300 and the average price highest of the year at $10.00, showing an 85c advance over the low week in April. Quality graded good for this season, offerings carrying a larger per cent of well finished natives than a year ago, when the range of prices was considerably wider than at present.

While total arrivals of cattle last week show a gain of 8,100 compared with the corresponding week in 1925, range offerings decreased 12,800, making the native total 20,900 greater than a year ago. Receipts yesterday at 1,000 included about 200 milk cows billed "through" to Mexico City.

Beef steers and light heifers advanced 25@50c in face of heavy supplies, both selling as high at $11.00, highest of the season. Top weighty steers reached $10.90, also a new high. Most cows and weighty heifers declined 25@50c. Calves slumped unevenly 25c to $1.00, weighty vealers off most. Stockers and feeders were little changed, with top feeders at $8.60. Range cattle sold steady to 25c higher than a week earlier, best western steers reaching $9.00.

Hogs Clear Steady.

A small supply of 6,000 fresh and stale hogs cleared at generally steady prices on the week-end session, with the price range as narrow as any in ten days. Light weights suitable for shipping demand showed strength, while butchers in spots were obtained at a slight decline. Top and average prices were unchanged at $14.25 and $11.60, respectively, comparing with a top of $14.25 and average of $11.40 the previous Saturday. Light are 10@25c under the previous week's close, and mostly 35c below earlier in the week, while medium and weighty kinds show gains of 15@25c during the week, maximum upturns in packing grades. Light weights slumped sharply, as 150@200 lb. averages increased in numbers in mid-week, daily top falling from $14.60 Monday to $14.15 Thursday.

Total hog receipts at Chicago last week dropped to 108,500, second smallest since week ending May 22, and smaller than any corresponding weekly total since 1922. Estimated average weight at 272 lbs, compares with 277 lbs the preceding week, 251 lbs a year ago and 243 lbs two years ago. General average price of hogs last week at $11.65 stands 15c above the previous week, but compares with $12.00 a year ago.

Estimate Week's Receipts.

Monday being a holiday at Chicago stockyards all stock arriving that day will be counted in with next Tuesday's receipts which are estimated at 26,000 cattle, 36,000 hogs, and 24,000 sheep, comparing with 26,722 cattle, 31,302 hogs, and 32,491 sheep Monday, Aug. 30, and 21,776 cattle, 33,760 hogs, and 22,317 sheep Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1925, following Labor day holiday a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 52,000 cattle, 90,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 43,597 cattle, 83,104 hogs, and 84,127 sheep a year ago. Chicago is the only western market closed on Labor day, working a hardship on local packers.

HEAVY SALES OF LARD

There were heavy sales of lard by one house, estimated at 2,000,000 lbs, while 1,000,000 lbs September was bought to cover shorts. The market had a heavy tone and closing trades were at losses of 12½c on September, 7½c on October, and 15c on January. There was nothing doing in short ribs, and they closed nominally unchanged to 15c lower. Bellies were unchanged to 15c lower. Liverpool lard was 6d@1s lower. Cash trade was moderate. Shipments for the week were larger than the previous week, but sharply under last year's. Hogs were steady to 10c higher; receipts light. Prices follow:

COTTON MARKETS

With the Chicago cotton market on the Board of Trade, the only one open on Saturday, there was a good business, within a narrow range of prices. New York was a liberal buyer, and southern interests sold freely to hedge purchases of spot cotton. At the close, futures were 1 to 2 points higher, except on January, which finished 1 point lower. Liverpool was easy and closed 1 point lower.

Spinners takings for the week were 242,647 bales, against 213,521 bales previous week and 240,918 bales last year. Weather over the cotton belt was unfavorable, with heavy rains reported in many sections. Prices in Chicago follow:

WHEAT IS DRAWN SOUTH BY LOW BARGE LINE RATE

BY HARPER LEECH.

Traffic through the Welland canal for May, 1926, the last month reported in the department of commerce survey of current business, totaled 653,025 tons against 719,765 tons in May, 1925, and 695,335 tons in May, 1924.

Through the St. Lawrence for the same months of the respective years the traffic was 745,970 794,803, and 744,510.

Last year the all water route from the lakes to Montreal enjoyed one of the greatest traffic movements in its history. There is a probability that the 1925 record will not be equaled this year.

The reason is quite interesting to Chicago.

Turn to the figures of tonnage handled by the Mississippi Barge line: May, 1924, 69,916; May, 1925, 97,349; May, 1926, 95,605, with a June, 1926, haul of 90,000 tons against 75,283 in June, 1925.

Because of the coöperation of the government owned river barge line and the shipping board, the cheap ocean rates now prevailing from gulf ports to Liverpool, and the heavy southwestern wheat crop compared to a less impressive yield northward, one through all water ship lines from Chicago to Montreal is not operating this year. The movement of the southwestern wheat crop this year was very interesting. Because of the more general use of improved agricultural machinery harvesting and threshing wheat in one operation, the railroads had to amass a great number of cars for quick movement. Texas had a big crop. Farm organizations, politicians from south and west united in asking help of the shipping board. They asked that 35 ships be sent to gulf ports to move the crop. Something over 20 were sent—they proved enough. The low barge line rates plus the ocean rates practically abolishing the old differentials in favor of the north Atlantic ports, drew the wheat southward.

Lakes shipmen say that if the Lakes to the Gulf canal were now open a considerable portion of this wheat would have moved through the canal through Chicago, across the lakes' chain and on to Montreal. When the canal is opened somewhere along its line a division point will arise—dependent upon the rate structure. Traffic will flow north and south of that point.

The contest of the two routes this year recalls the old fight between the route to the sea down the river to New Orleans and the other route—Ohio-Lakes canals, Lakes and Erie canal to New York. That was before the railroad age.

For those who think that inland waterway traffic is a thing of the past the following figures may be interesting. It refers, of course, to tons, not to dollars, but a large share of the river tonnage of the United States today consists of the transport of coal from West Virginia to Pittsburgh, the town where steel made a thousand millionaires. Overseas foreign commerce of the United States in 1925: 82,119,000 tons. River transport in United States, 1925 [excluding Detroit river]: 102,432,000 tons.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—DRY GOODS—Primary markets closed generally today on account of the holiday. Sales of cotton cloths last week reached half a million pieces in the gray goods division. Cables on burlap and silk markets indicated little price change. The week's business was larger in all lines than during the preceding week.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

While trading in local unlisted securities was less active during the last week, interest centered largely on the buying side, resulting in a general improvement in prices.

Acme Steel Goods showed an advance of 2 points, selling up from 70½ to high and last sales at 72½. Barnhart Brothers and Spindler first preferred was 2 points better, with sales at 101. Brunswick Balke Collender was in good demand, moving up to sales between 100 and 101. Celotex issues were traded within a narrow range, the common showing little change, closing at 193, while the preferred sold at 93@94. W. F. Hall Printing was ½ point better, 29½ being freely bid, with offerings at 30. Interstate Iron and Steel common improved to 81½ bid, without attracting sellers. The preferred was unchanged at 103½@104½.

Although Keystone Steel and Wire preferred was up 5 points to 115 bid, the common was neglected at 44@46. Little change was noted in the McCord issues, the class A preferred being quoted 74@76; debenture stock, 20⅝@21½, and the common, 9@9½. Numerous transactions in Northwestern Yeast were noted between 174 and 176. After early strength, resulting in high sales at 8½, National Theaters reacted to 7⅝ bid, 7⅞ asked, ex-dividend 30c.

Bank shares were again reactionary, First National losing 3 points to 588@593. Union Trust was an exception, selling at 418, an advance of 6 points. Union Bank of Chicago was wanted at 235. Central Trust Company of Illinois relinquished 2 points at 303@307. Continental and Commercial National was quiet but steady at 453@456. State Bank of Chicago was freely offered at 792, with small lots wanted around 785. Illinois Merchants' Trust maintained its previous gain in again selling at 604.

WEEKLY METAL REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The steel market during the past week was again quite active, and despite the phenomenal activity during the summer months, there were no evidences of any falling off in the demand. There has evidently been no accumulation of supplies. Pig iron was more active in the east with shipments large.

Recent reports of increased activity and a firmer tone in the London market, brought in a little domestic buying of copper early in the week. The demand tapered off later.

Tin advanced further on the decrease of 425 tons in the World's Visible with Consumers fair buyers, although at the 66c level for prompt straits there was some selling for a reaction.

Lead was steady and unchanged.

Zinc was steady but demand was not very active.

Antimony was firmer with a better demand from dealers.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—LEAD—Firm at 8.90c. ZINC—Slab quiet at 7.45c.

Electric Public Service.

R. L. M.—Electric Public Service company will serve without competition through its subsidiaries 18 communities in Ohio and Oklahoma with electric light and power and two additional companies in Oklahoma with natural gas.

The company is issuing $2,000,000 fifteen year 6 per cent secured bonds, series B, making a total of $2,700,000 secured bonds now outstanding.

These bonds will be secured by deposit of all of the capital stocks of subsidiary companies [except one, of which about 90 per cent of the stock will be so pledged] and all the outstanding bonds of subsidiaries, with the exception of $678,000 now in the hands of the public.

The company's properties are appraised at more than the total amount of bonds, notes and preferred stock now outstanding.

The bonds are followed by $1,250,000 notes, $500,000 preferred stock and 30,000 shares of no par common stock.

Net earnings of the company and subsidiaries for the year ended April 30, 1926, were $297,270.

These earnings are over 2.45 times total annual interest requirements on all outstanding bonds of the company, including this issue, and over 2.13 times annual interest requirements on all bonds of the company as well as annual prior charges on all securities of subsidiaries outstanding in the hands of the public.

These bonds are a suitable investment for a business man's funds.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows a deficit in reserve of $12,850,440. This is a decrease in reserve of $20,194,010 compared with the week before when excess reserve of $7,343,570 was reported.

* * *

Terms of the proposed merger of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., and Continental Tobacco Co., have been sent to stock holders by Philip Morris Consolidated, Inc., which plans to take over the two companies. Authorized capital of Philip Morris Consolidated, Inc., will consist of 300,000 shares of class A stock, $25 par, cumulative from February, 1927, at 7 per cent. Annually and 1,200,000 shares of no par common of which 425,000 shares have been issued to present stockholders. Holders of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., and Continental Tobacco may exchange their shares on the basis of one-half share of the new stock and one share of common for each share now held.

Bank clearings throughout the country continue to make a satisfactory showing, R. G. Dun & Co. report. Total exchanges this week were $8,132,169,000 an increase of 0.4 per cent over the same period of 1925. The week this year includes only two days of the heavy September first settlements, whereas a year ago there were three days. Bank clearings a year ago were record figures for that period.

PLANS 9 STORY SHOP BUILDING FOR BOUL MICH

To Stand on Site of "Dream Castle."

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

PHILIP MAHER.
[Raymor Photo.]

The growing business district just north of the river is to receive an acquisition in the form of a new shop and office building which it is said will be one of the most handsome of its type in the city. The building will stand at the northwest corner of Michigan boulevard and Erie street.

This corner was one of the most interesting of the near north side a few years ago, for it was here that was located the "dream castle" of Harry I. Sheldon, torn down when many of Chicago's old landmarks were razed to put through the boulevard link. But more of Mr. Sheldon's pathetic romance farther down.

The structure will be erected by Arthur L. Farwell and it will stand nine stories high. It is to occupy the entire site, sixty feet on Michigan avenue and seventy-five feet on Erie street. The property is just south of the red brick building occupied for some years by O'Brien's art store.

Shops Are Feature.

Philip B. Maher is the architect. The first and second floors are planned to permit of occupancy by one firm or they may each be occupied separately.

And since our Michigan boulevard shops usually have articles that appeal especially to the eye, and particularly to those of the always wishful sex, the show windows are to be given unusual attention. There are to be one large window on Michigan avenue and three smaller ones on Erie street. The first and second floor shop windows will be treated as units, making the upper ones almost as desirable as the lower.

The framework of the show windows will be delicately wrought in bronze of green antique finish, while the division between the sections will be of finely fluted pilasters and paneled slabs of verde antique marble.

Beauty Is Foremost.

The exterior is to be of buff Indiana limestone on the Michigan and Erie sides, but the building will not be of the shirt front variety, which is growing so unpopular in Chicago. The west and north sides will be of pressed brick of a color that will harmonize with the limestone.

And further there will be no unsightly tanks or penthouses on the roof that might mar the beauty of America's greatest thoroughfare. These objectionable necessities are to be made an integral part of the structure.

The entrance to the first floor shop will be at the Michigan and Erie corner, with doorways on both streets. The entrance for the upper floors will be at the north end of Michigan. All the doors will be of bronze. The lobby will be of marble.

Set Back at Top.

A feature of the structure will be a setback at the ninth floor. Buttresses are arranged in a way that will give large window space, while the windows will be of the casement type. Further there will be saw tooth skylights that will furnish north light.

The ceiling on the ninth floor will be sixteen feet above the floor, and thus with the novel lighting unusual effects may be obtained for shops or offices. The edge of the roof is to be of purple and black slate.

But to return for a moment to the romance of Mr. Sheldon. Many years ago this gentleman while on a tour of the world met a charming Irish girl named Nora Blake. Mr. Sheldon wooed and thought himself the winner. He returned to Chicago and built for his intended bride a magnificent residence after the style of a noted old castle in her Irish home.

Came Back Alone.

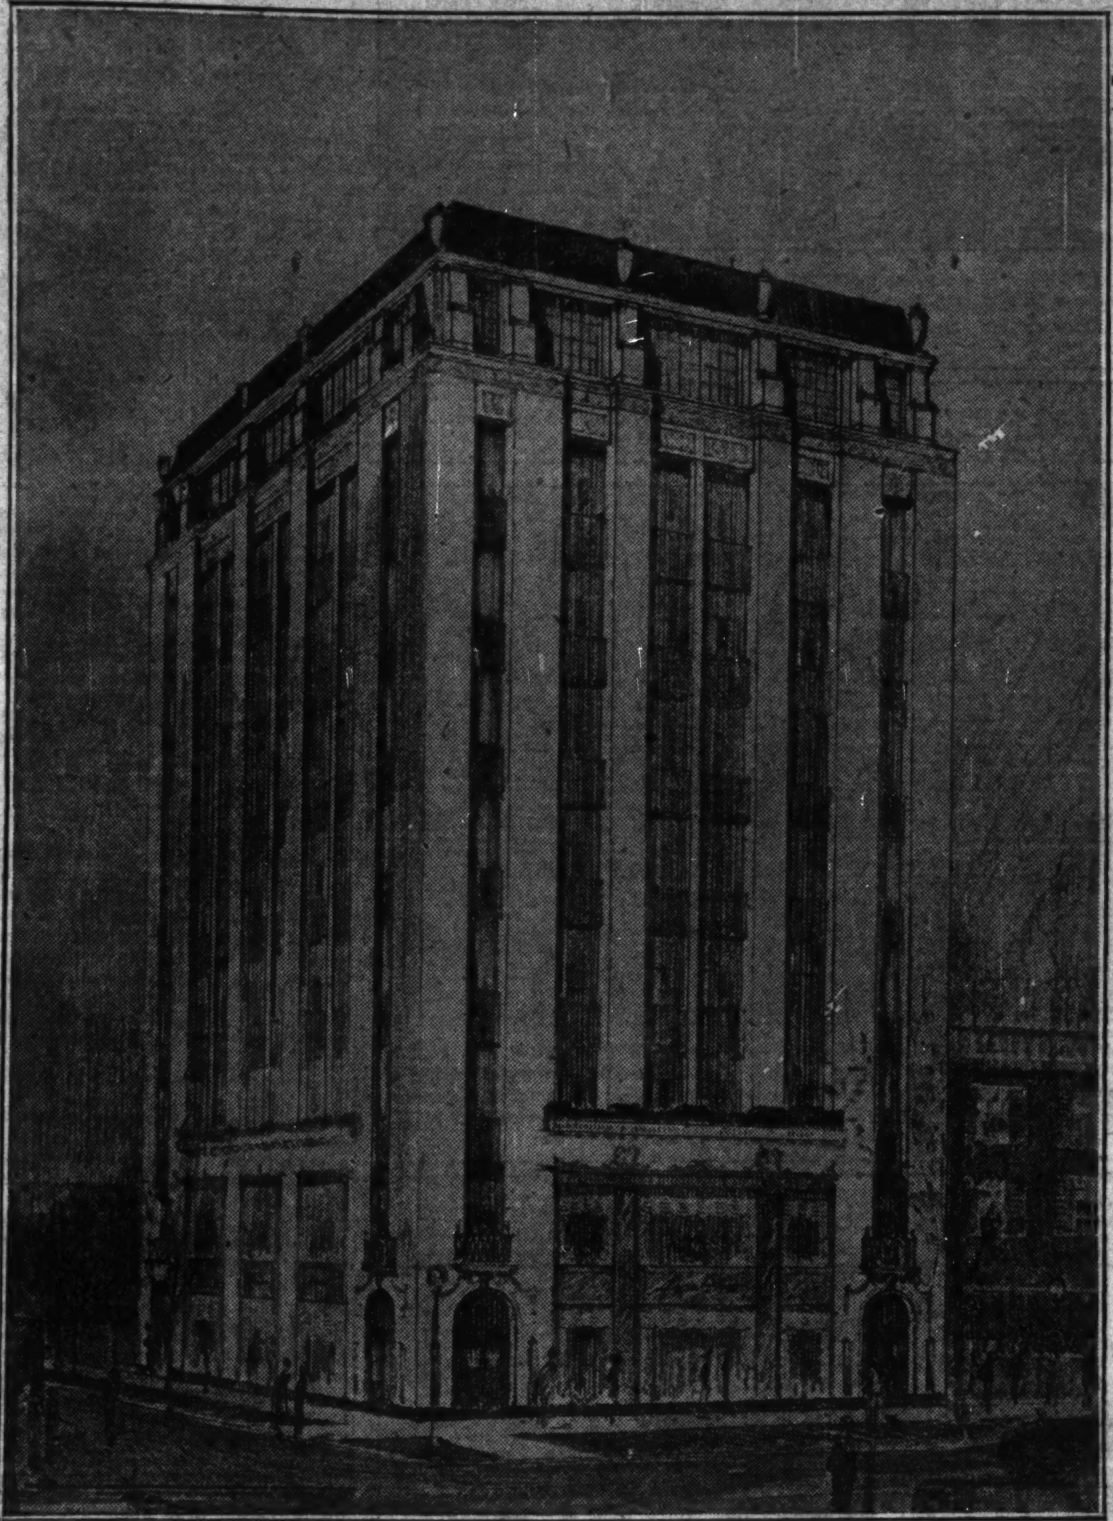
The Chicagoan went to Ireland to claim the girl—but he came back alone; why, no one but himself ever knew. And so he lived in his "dream castle" for years with a sister and his memories, until he could no longer bear the strain, so the story goes. He and his sister moved and the house stood vacant for some time, but the vacancy permitted Johnnie and Roberta and all the other children of the neighborhood to gather on the steps and let their imaginations run wild with fanciful tales about the romance.

Mr. Farwell leased the house in 1918 for use as a furniture shop. His new project will represent an investment, with land and building, of about $1,000,000 it is said. Frederick M. Bowes of the Bowes Realty company will have charge of the renting of the building.

SYNDICATE BUYS BIG FRONTAGE IN FAR SOUTH SIDE

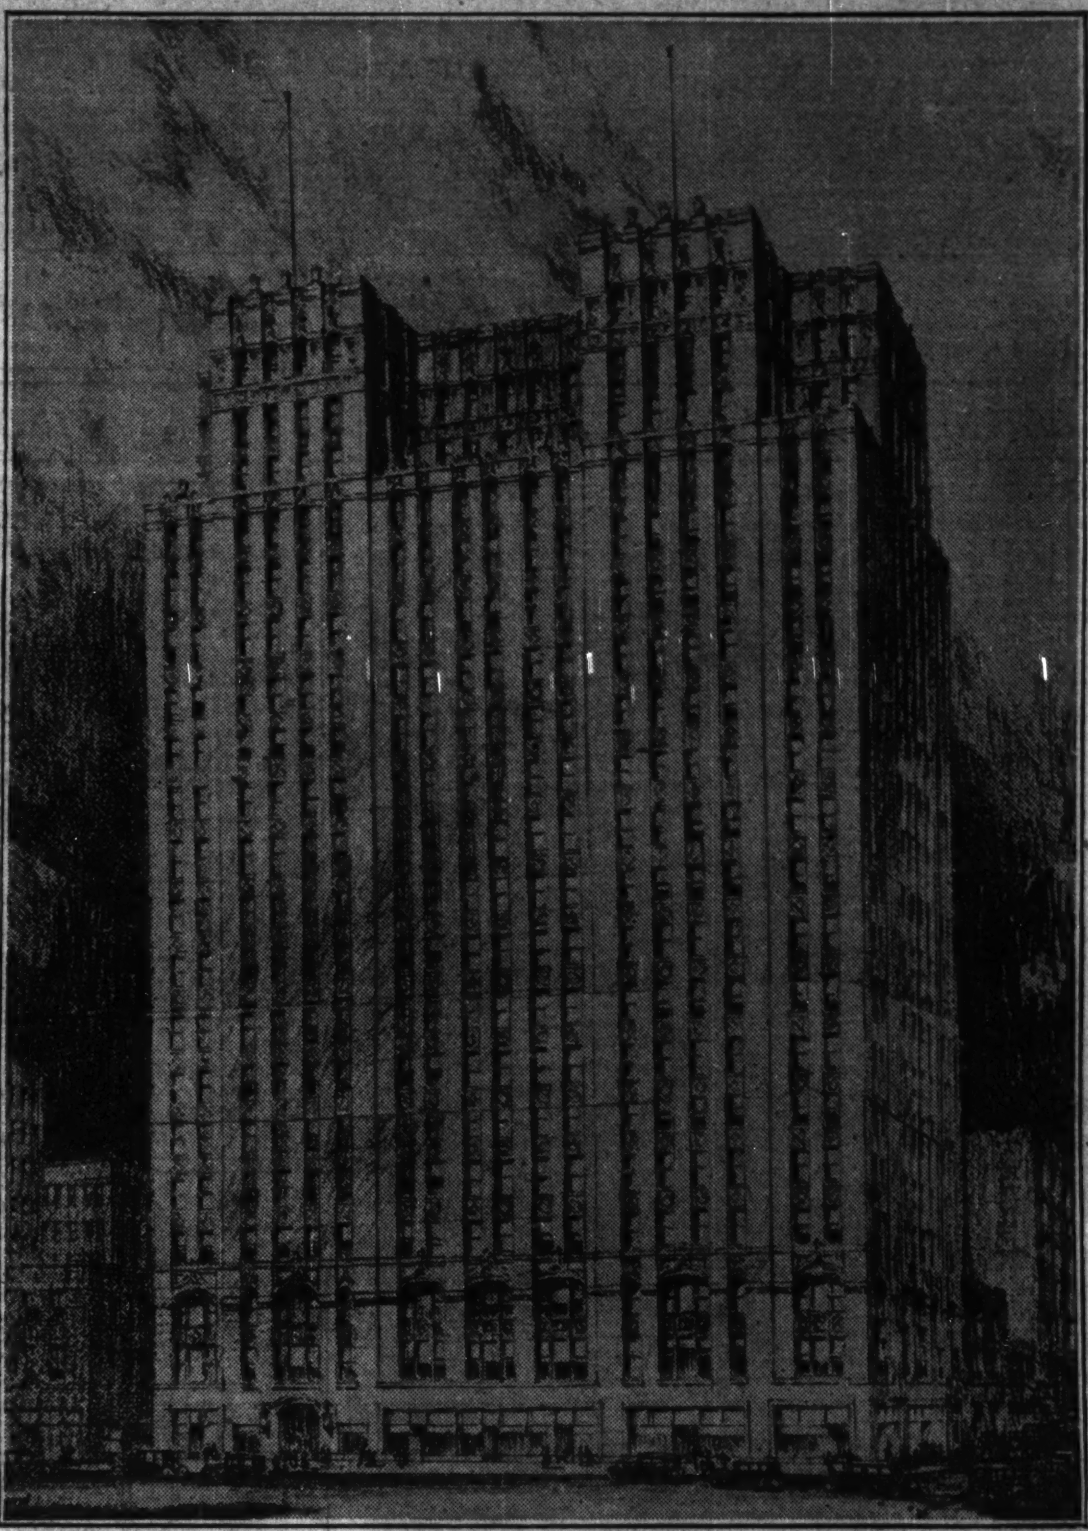
France C. Wayne of Wayne, Baltzer & Co. headed a syndicate which purchased the block in Parnell between 93d and 95d streets, 600x125 feet, west front, from John Kean. The syndicate has purchased 1,075 feet of property in 94d and 93d between Halsted and Parnell, making a total of 1,675 feet along these streets. For the district it has purchased 9,000 feet in the last six months.

AT MICHIGAN AND ERIE



Arthur L. Farwell plans to erect a nine story shop and office building at the northwest corner of Michigan boulevard and Erie street. The structure and land will represent an investment of $1,000,000 it is stated. Philip B. Maher is the architect. The exterior will be of Indiana limestone, bronze and marble. Frederick M. Bowes of the Bowes Realty company will have charge of the building.

MONUMENT TO MILADY'S CHAPEAU



Alfred S. Alschuler designed the above $3,000,000 "Millinery center," to house sixty or seventy of Chicago's leading millinery manufacturers and jobbers, at the southeast corner of Wabash and Harrison, as told about in detail in an adjoining column. This big hat mart will front eighty feet on Wabash and 172 on Harrison. Note the use of setbacks in the roof treatment.

TWENTY STORY HAT MART TO BE READY IN 1928

Most Space Already Contracted For.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

JACOB KULP.
[Moffett Photo.]

Chicago's claim to title of "America's second greatest millinery market" is going to be nailed down with a bang and a definite bid made for first place in the headgear field with a $3,000,000 twenty story millinery center to be erected at once at the southeast corner of South Wabash avenue and East Harrison street by Jacob Kulp, head of the La Salle street firm of Jacob Kulp & Co. Aaron Auerbach, connected with the millinery industry for more than three decades, has been associated with the project since its start.

This means that the millinery trade will be kept identified with Wabash avenue and also with Michigan boulevard, only half a block away from the new center.

Practically All Space Rented.

Most of the space on the floors above the first already has been contracted for. It is planned to have the new Millinery Center entirely completed and ready for occupancy by May 1, 1928. This is the date that Woolworth takes over the Ward building on Michigan, just north of Madison, which means the many millinery firms now tenants there must seek other quarters. Most of these, it is understood, will move directly into the new Millinery Center.

Architect Alfred S. Alschuler has designed a striking structure, in which setbacks are used more freely and to better advantage than so far has been done in the loop. The east wall, which will be the most conspicuous one from Boul Mich, will be treated architecturally the same as the Wabash and Harrison elevations.

Club on Top Floor.

An elaborate club is planned for the top floor for the use of the tenants. The building also will have a public restaurant.

It is contemplated having a postoffice substation and express offices in the building, to facilitate the delivery and receipt of packages, an important factor in the millinery industry.

Live steam will be available for the firms which use it in their manufacturing processes. Both the manufacturers and jobbers will benefit by the north frontage, which means they will have the north light, essential in this business, where determining color of materials is an important factor.

Lower Floors to Jobbers.

It is planned to rent the lower floors up to and including the fifth, to jobbers. Above these space will be rented to manufacturers. There'll be several shops on the Harrison and Wabash first floor fronts.

The new Center will house between sixty and seventy of the leading millinery manufacturing and jobbing concerns.

WORLD'S BIGGEST COUNTRY CLUB IN CHICAGOLAND

Pistaqua Heights Now 795 Acres.

J. SCOTT MATTHEWS.

The Pistaqua Heights Country club appears to have reached its goal of becoming the largest country club in the world. The club some months ago acquired 515 acres of land near Pistakee lake midway between McHenry and Ingleside and now it has just bought a 280 acre farm belonging to the estate of George J. Sayer.

The recent purchase brings the club's acreage to 795 and on Oct. 15 forty more acres will be acquired, making a total of 835 acres. The club's aim is to secure approximately 1,000 acres. Olympia Fields, which hitherto has been called the world's largest club, has 690 acres.

According to officials the club proposes to have six or seven golf courses eventually, so that the members may have diversity of choice. In consolidating the club's lands from a dozen sellers, a number of houses were acquired, which will be used for golf shelters.

Has Many Shelters.

The various shelters scattered about the grounds will really amount to branch clubhouses, it is stated. Of course there will be a central clubhouse and administrative building, a picture of which was recently published in this department.

About a half of the club's property lies in McHenry county and the other half is in Lake county. A new water course is to be constructed, which will be more than a mile and a half long. It will connect Pistakee lake in McHenry county with McNeill's lake in Lake county. The waterway will provide unusual hazards.

The artificial lake on which the main clubhouse will be built and which connects with Pistakee lake is now completed and has been named Lake Matthews in honor of the president of the organization.

Every Kind of Sport.

While golf will be the main attraction, other sports will play an important part.

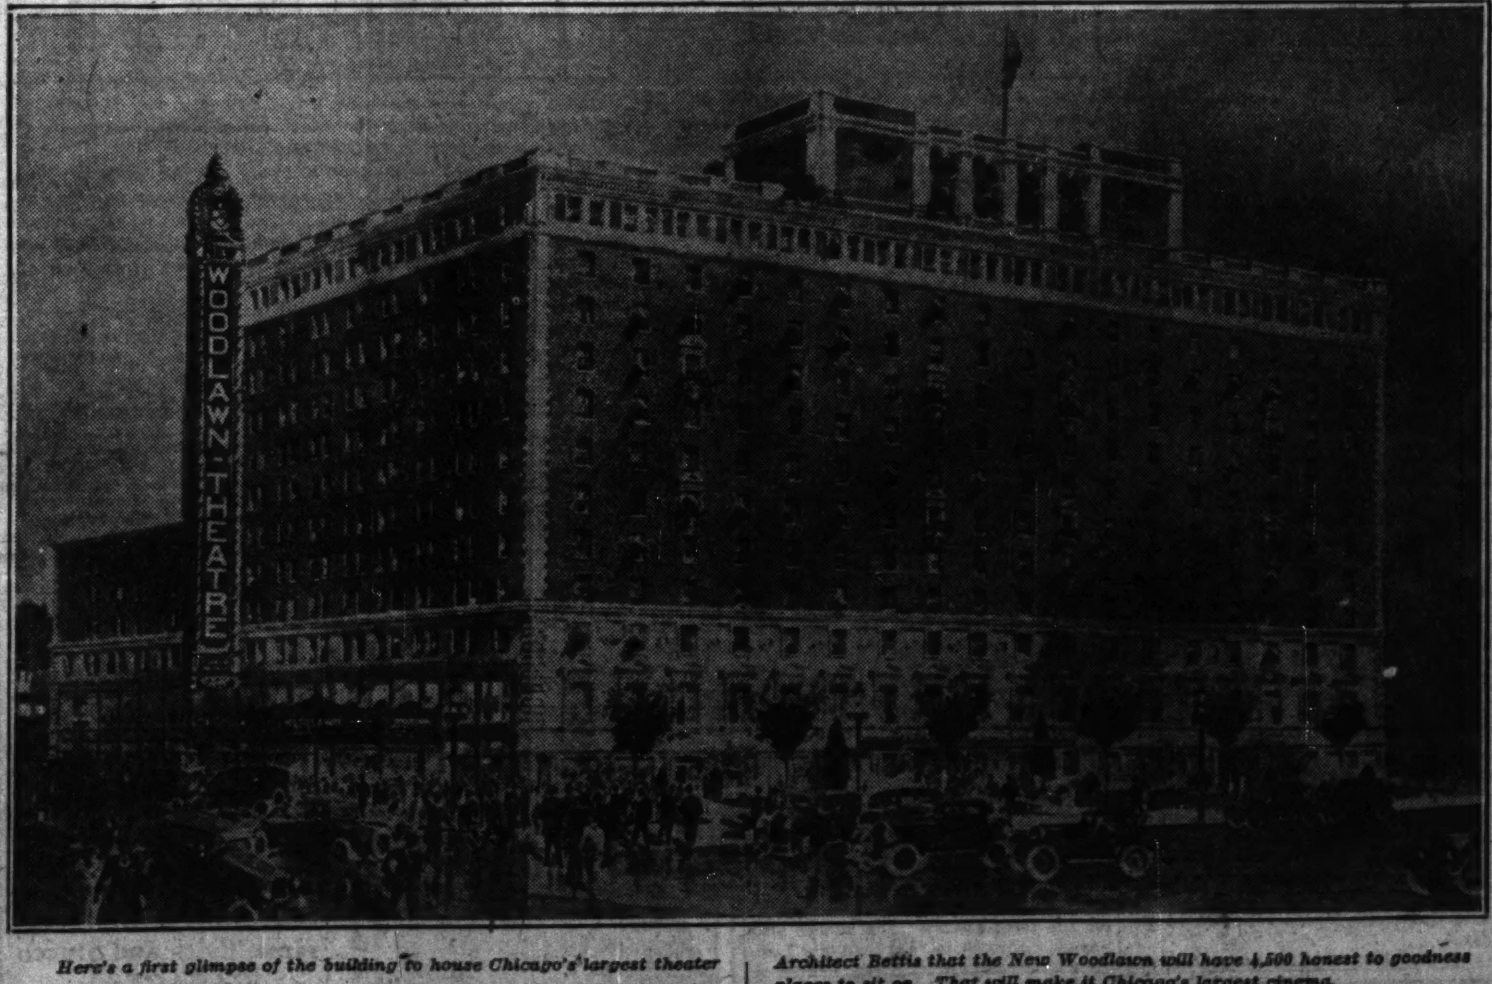
NEW WOODLAWN THEATER—CHICAGO'S BIGGEST CINEMA



Here's a first glimpse of the building to house Chicago's largest theater—the New Woodlawn—and a 500 room hotel, to be known as the University. The project is that of Andrew Karzas, announced last month, as involving a $5,000,000 expenditure. The plans are by Architects Charles H. Bettis and C. Howard Crane, who designed the Selwyn, Harris and Roosevelt in this city and the Theater Guild playhouse and others in Gotham.

The movie manager usually has a good imagination when it comes to announcing seating capacity, so you can usually knock off a thousand or more seats from his figures. This time, however, we have the word of Architect Bettis that the New Woodlawn will have 4,500 honest to goodness places to sit on. That will make it Chicago's largest cinema.

The theater ground area is as large as that of the Roxy theater in New York, which claims 6,000 seats (of course, knock off a thousand or so to be on the safe side), so one can see the New Woodlawn will be a spacious playhouse.

The opening date is set for September, 1927. McKey & Poague are to be the renting agents of the commercial section of the big project, which will include shops, a special floor for doctors and dentists, etc. F. W. Fitzpatrick of Evanston made the above rendering.

ST. PAUL PLANS WORLD'S FINEST TICKET OFFICE

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad has leased for fifteen years the corner store in the new building now being erected at the northwest corner of Clark nd Monroe. According to Edward Hayden of the St. Paul, one of the most elaborate and attractive ticket offices in the country will be installed. It probably will be finished in American walnut. It will open about April 1, 1927.

Physicians in Syndicate for Real Estate Profits

With a large proportion of the city's population making money in real estate, a number of physicians of the central, north and northwest sections have come to the belief that money earned in this manner is just as good for spending as that obtained by extracting tonsils and passing out pills. So we have the Physicians' Fellowship Trust Estate for which E. Raymond Olsen is broker.

The estate has just acquired a 380 acre tract at Itasca, 19 miles west on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

The estate plans to offer a portion of the tract for sale immediately. It is also proposed to lease a part of the property to a syndicate which wishes to form a Physicians' Country club, which would be open to druggists and dentists as well as to doctors.

One of the principal powers back of the estate is the Physicians' Fellowship club of which Dr. A. J. Alcorn is president. The club has 500 members.

CATHOLIC BISHOP BUYS CICERO SITE FOR NEW CHURCH

The Catholic bishop of Chicago has taken title to the block bounded by 36th and 37th streets, and 57th and 58th avenues, Cicero, as the site of a church and school. McMahon and Hoban and Daniel Sullivan of the J. W. McCormack Realty company were brokers.

Hoosier Steel City to Have a Plan Commission

The city council of Hammond, Ind., has passed an ordinance authorizing the creation of a plan commission.

$3,000,000 DEAL REPORTED FROM INDUSTRIAL AREA

To Erect Two Huge Storage Units.

S. SCOTT JOY.

Herewith is an announcement of one of the most important deals ever made in the Central Manufacturing district. Perhaps real estate news of this kind lacks the glamour of a transaction involving the Boul Mich, South Shore drive or Sheridan road, but it is industrial Chicago that makes possible the commercial and residential palaces on our show streets.

In this case a sum of $3,000,000 and buildings which will have a floor space of 1,355,000 square feet bear witness to the importance of the transaction.

S. Scott Joy has entered into a contract with John A. Spoor, Arthur G. Leonard and Frederick H. Prince, trustees of the central manufacturing district, for the purchase of land and buildings known as Units A, B, C, and D of central manufacturing district, Universal freight station and Loft building, together with 98,000 square feet of land east and adjoining the loft structure. This property is located at 2001 Pershing road.

Two New Units.

On the vacant land to the east two new units to be known as E and F will be erected. They are to be of concrete construction, six stories high, and will be identical in design to the other buildings. The units already constructed have a total of 885,000 square feet, while those for which plans have been drawn will have 470,000 square feet.

It is stated that the entire project, including land and buildings, will have a valuation of $3,000,000. The sale is made subject to the present leases.

Under One Control.

The units to be constructed have been leased to the Central Storage corporation, an organization recently formed. The officers are I. M. Nicolson, president; S. Scott Joy, vice president and secretary, and G. M. McConnell, treasurer.

Roger Sherman and G. M. Sundheim of Tenney, Harding, Sherman & Rogers was attorney for Mr. Joy and the Central Storage corporation, and F. C. Hack of Winston, Strawn & Shaw was attorney for the trustees. The trustees of the district were represented by H. E. Poronto and J. C. Erickson. Hodge, Nicolson & Porter were the brokers and will be rental agents for the new units.

DR. ERLE FISHER BUYS PROPERTY IN CASS STREET

Edward B. Ballantine, formerly manager of the Casino club and now associated with the Ruppert Realty company, has sold to Dr. Erle F. Fisher the property at 816 Cass street, lot 25x72 feet, for an undisclosed consideration. Dr. Fisher contemplates remodeling the building and occupying it as his office when the present lease expires. Neil J. Ruppert was broker.

SOUTH PARK WAY-47TH CORNER IS SOLD: $225,000

The twenty-five flats and ten stores at the southwest corner of South Park way and 47th were bought by Richard C. Day, attorney, from Jacob E. Elliott at a reported $225,000, subject to $175,000. Ziv, Loomis and Silvertrust were attorneys.

News of the Architects

CHARLES H. BETTIS
[Koehne Photo.]

Charles H. Bettis and C. Howard Crane, who a few years ago did some fine architectural work in Chicago designing the Selwyn and Harris theaters and prior to that the Roosevelt, and who then journeyed to Manhattan where they designed the Theater Guild playhouse and other important buildings, are back in Chicago. At least, Mr. Bettis is. He's opened offices on the top floor of the new Masonic temple, in Randolph street. Just now he's busy on the new Woodlawn theater, shown for the first time in another column of this section.

JULY BUILDING THROUGHOUT U. S. BREAKS RECORD

Asbestos Workers Plan Unique Celebration.

BY THOMAS WREN.

HUGH MULLIGAN.

All records for volume of construction in the United States were shattered in July, according to the statistics compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America.

The volume of construction, according to the survey, handled in July was well above that recorded for August of 1925, when the previous peak was reached. The index on construction operations, based on the 1913 average, shows a jump from the March level of 120 points to the present position of 229. This is the greatest increase within a four month period ever recorded.

The total volume of construction performed during the first seven months of this year was 4 per cent greater than the amount registered during the corresponding period of last year.

This fact, points out the survey, assumes added significance when consideration is given to the trend of operations earlier in the year. Until the end of April, operations lagged behind the figures set at corresponding stages in 1925. It was in May that the present phenomenal spurt started.

Unique Labor Fête.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is expected to attend a unique labor union celebration in Chicago on Sept. 23. The festivities will be staged by the Asbestos Workers' union in honor of its charter members, twelve of whom are still active at the trade. These men helped to launch the union nearly five decades ago.

At that time the American Federation of Labor wasn't in existence. The national as well as local union was then called the Knights of Labor, but this organization hit the rocks with the advent of the A. F. of L. The Knights of Labor leaned more to fraternal lines than to the orthodox labor organization.

After the banquet, which will be held in the Capitol building, the twelve veteran asbestos workers will be presented with suitable tokens by Hughie Mulligan, business agent. Then it will be on with the dance. Joseph Mullaney and H. Holland, international president and vice president of the Asbestos Workers' union, will come to Chicago to attend the celebration.

Americans in Luck.

No other country in the world lives as well as the United States. Its artisans are better paid than those of any other country. How well off American workers are may be seen by a comparison of our weekly wage rates with those paid in England, the next highest country. The United States department of labor compiled the following schedule:

	U. S.	England.
Bricklayers	$66	$17
Masons	65	17
Carpenters	60	24
Plumbers	60	18
Painters	58	17

Operates Risk Line.

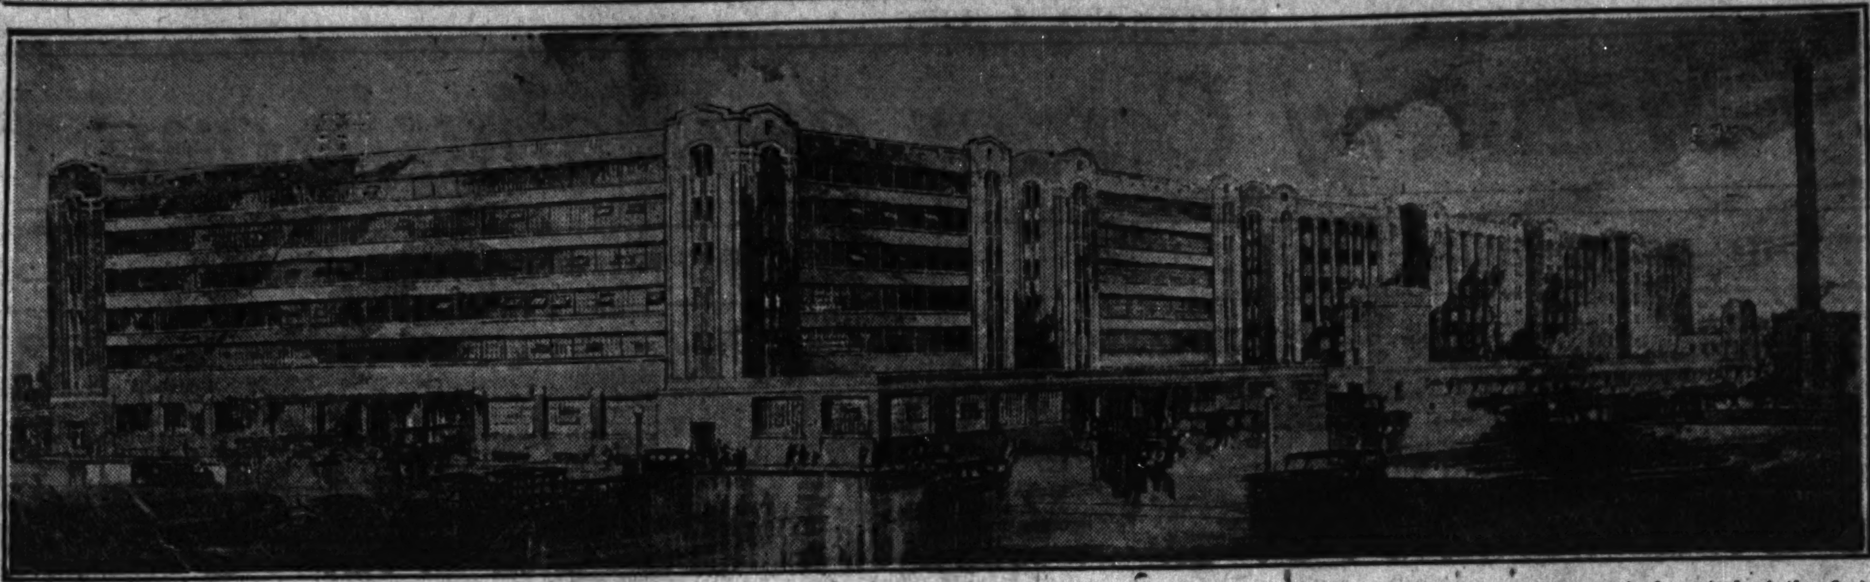
The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers claims the distinction of being the first body of organized labor to launch and successfully operate a regular old line insurance company. The Union Coöperative Insurance association was incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia in 1924, the result of a resolution presented at the seventeenth convention of the electrical workers held in Montreal in 1923. The entire issue of stock, $100,000 capital and $100,000 surplus, is owned by local unions and individual members of the electrical workers' organization.

To date the association has written approximately $40,000,000 worth of business for electrical workers, their families and members of other labor organizations. Their reserve fund amounts to $1,500,000, and claims paid to beneficiaries to date amount to $700,000.

E. R. LITSINGER RENTS BUILDING ON W. JACKSON

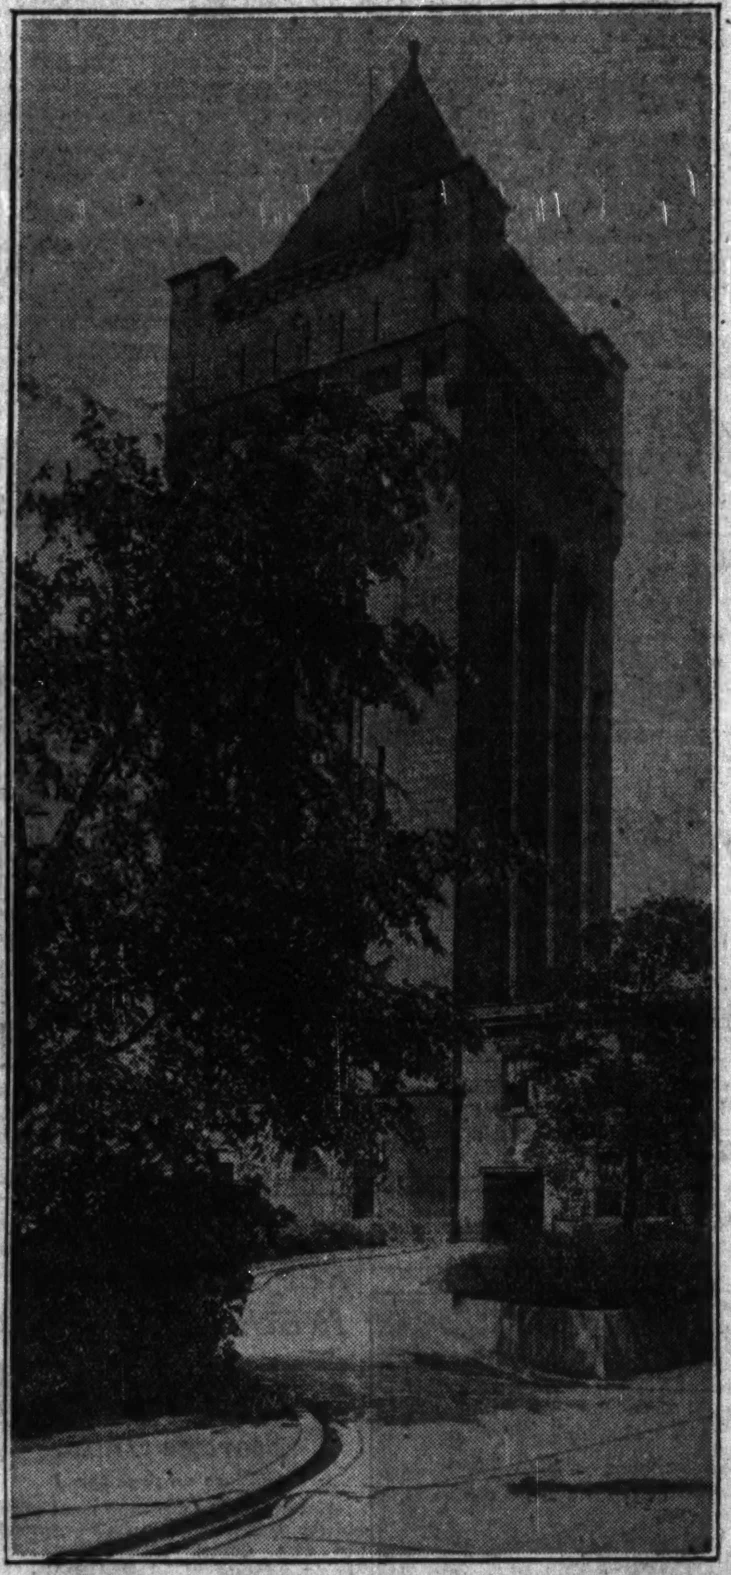
Edward R. Litsinger, president of the Litsinger Motor company, has made a lease with the Auto Car company covering the three story building at 913-25 West Jackson boulevard, at the southeast corner of Sangamon. The lease covers a term of eleven years and eight months, commencing Dec. 1, 1926, at an annual rental of $27,000. Mr. Litsinger will remodel the building and us it for his Ford agency. Paul C. Loeber & Co. represented the lessors. Litsinger, Healy and Reid were attorneys for the lessees.

A REASON FOR CHICAGO'S GREATNESS



The above picture shows how a huge industrial building in the Central Manufacturing district will appear when completed. The first four units, A, B, C and D, are now in operation and two more—E and F—are to be erected. The new units will have a floor space of 470,000 square feet, giving the entire building 1,355,000 square feet. S. Scott Joy is the architect. Mr. Joy is a member of a new corporation which has acquired control of the first four units and which is building the new ones. The entire transaction involves $3,000,000, it is stated.

7 TANKS—NARY A ONE IN SIGHT!

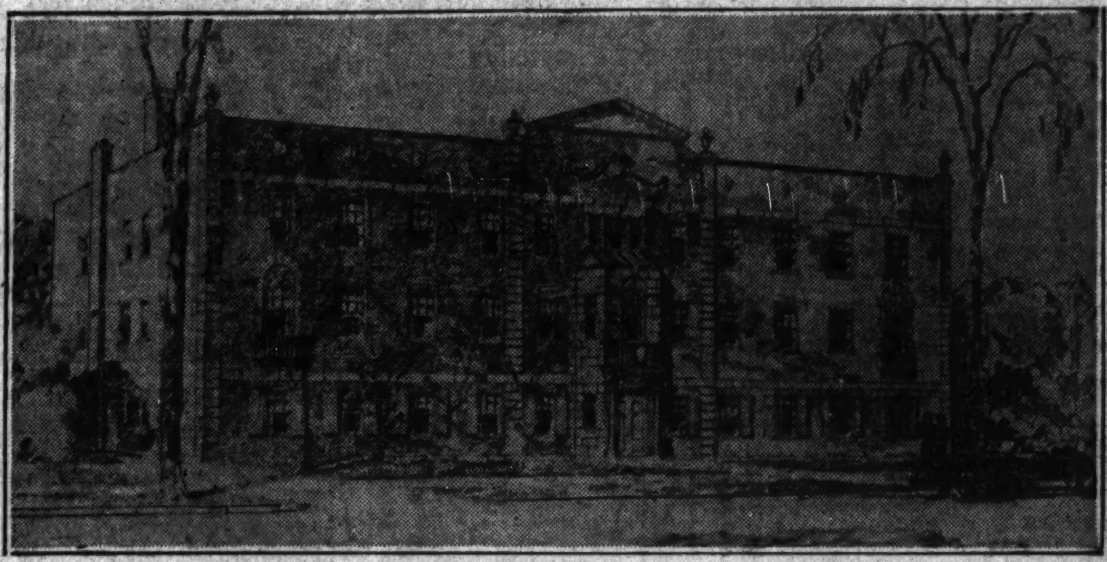


"Unsightly water tanks have no place at the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company," writes an official of that huge concern to The Tribune. And he confirms this statement with some pictures of how eight big tanks are hidden from view in two attractive towers.

"This tank problem was given first consideration by the engineers when the plant was laid out in 1903," he said. "The tower building, 115 feet high (shown above), holds seven tanks, one of which has a capacity of 86,500 gallons. It also houses the office of the plant police and fire departments as well as the works' motorized fire fighting apparatus."

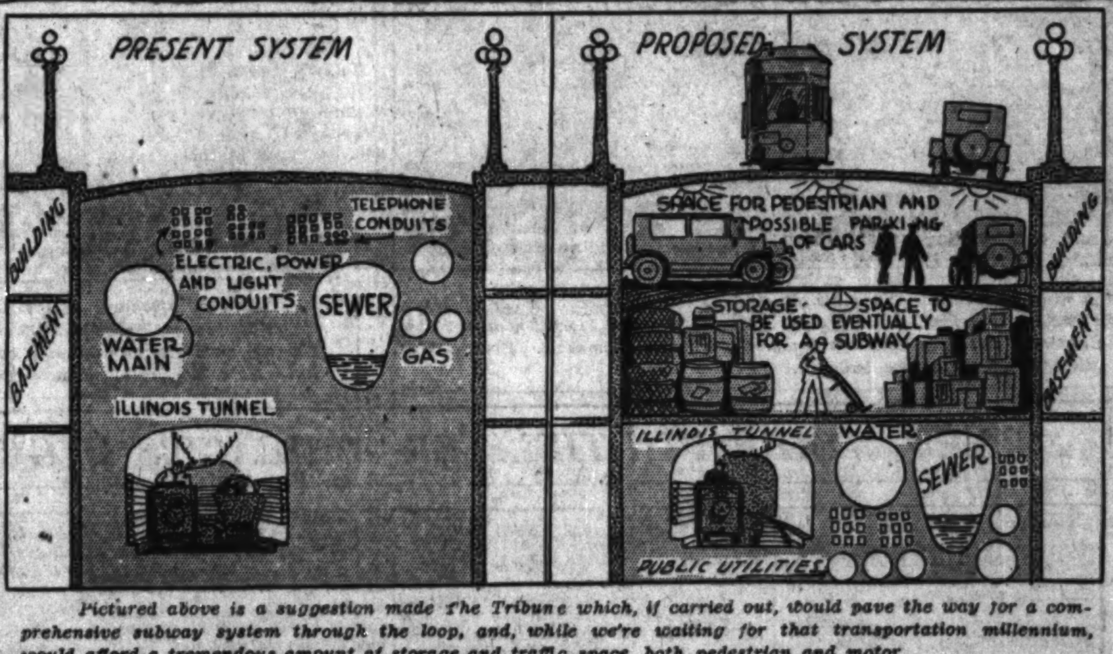
The second tower, on the main building, is at 22d street and 48th avenue. It hides a tank containing 54,900 gallons. The eight tanks give a circulation of 3,000,000 gallons of water in twenty-four hours.

FINDS HOMES FOR ORPHANS



The Evangelical Lutheran Home Finding Society of Illinois, a Norwegian organization which finds homes for orphans, will improve its property at 4840 Byron street with a $100,000 building. The structure will house eighty children and it is planned so that the largest ward will contain only four beds. The society is twenty years old. Work is to start at once with completion in five months. Olsen & Urbain are the architects. F. M. Holcomb made the above rendering.

A SUGGESTION FOR DAD DEARBORN



Pictured above is a suggestion made The Tribune which, if carried out, would pave the way for a comprehensive subway system through the loop, and, while we're waiting for that transportation millennium, would afford a tremendous amount of storage and traffic space, both pedestrian and motor.

Briefly, it suggests that instead of the present old fashioned method of shoreing up the walls of skyscrapers below the street level, the ground, from building line to building line, in our loop thoroughfares, be scooped out and several levels be established.

This would give a lower level for the grouping of the various public utility conduits, now scattered about underground, as shown on the reader's left in the above picture. This would obviate the eternal tearing up of pavements to get at a wire or pipe.

Above these would be levels which could be used for storage purposes, both merchandise and motors, and for pedestrian traffic, until old Pa Dearborn rolled up his sleeves and made up his mind to have a subway. Then he wouldn't have to do much more than lay rails and install waiting rooms, for his subway would be already dug for him.

LEASES GARAGE IN CLARK STREET; RENT $479,000

The Statler garage, housing 350 cars, at 2419-23 North Clark street, has been leased by David Packer, I. A. Sally, and Louis Kirschbaum to J. S. Stall for a term of fifteen years at a term rental of $479,000. Peter J. Manusos was broker. Morris M. Chaikin handled the legal details for the lessors, and Abraham Meyer of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt represented the lessee.

Kotz's Shoe Stores, Inc., Lease Shop in Evanston

A lease on the firm's seventh shop in the Chicago district has just been closed for a term of years by Kotz's Shoe Stores, Inc., at 619 Davis street, Evanston, with W. E. Barbour. Allen M. Weber & Co., chain store specialists, represented the shoe company and Quinlan & Tyson represented the lessor.

H. R. MISCH GETS $1,060,000 FOR 35 YEAR LEASE

HERMAN R. MISCH

Edward Oplatka, Emil Reinisch and the Ginsburg brothers, who own two department stores known as "The Leader," have leased from Herman R. Misch the three story building at the northwest corner of 18th and Paulina streets for thirty-five years from Jan. 1, 1927. It is stated that the term rental will be $1,060,000, with the average for the term $30,285. The lessees also have contracted to purchase the Lion Dry Goods store from Mr. Misch. Mr. Misch entered the business world 41 years ago as a cash boy for Moeller Brothers, in Milwaukee avenue. He went into the dry goods business for himself at the age of seventeen. And now he will devote his time to his realty interests which are considerable.

Epstein and Feiwell were the attorneys for all the parties in the transaction. Rosenberg and Lurie were the brokers.

SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE SALE.

W. H. Riley Co. sold the six flats at 5336 South Michigan to Hattie Hill.

CAFETERIA TO EXPAND.

The La Salle cafeteria, in the Madison Terminal building, Madison and Canal, has leased additional space, through Ross & Browne, for a term of years.

FLORIDA STILL DOING BUSINESS, SAYS ATTORNEY

"Coming Back? Hasn't Been Away."

JOHN H. GARNSEY.

"When will Florida come back? Well, Florida hasn't been anywhere and is still doing business at the old stand," is the introductory comment by Attorney John H. Gernsey, a member of the Joliet law firm of Garnsey, Wood & Lennon, in a letter to THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Garnsey's review of conditions in Florida is so interesting and written with such an apparent knowledge of that much boomed state, that we give part of it.

"It is true that a lot of boomers who came into the state from New York, Tennessee, California, and other places, have played a wonderful game of roulette with prices of real estate and have won—or lost—a lot of paper profits.

"It is also true that a Georgia bank syndicate established a system of branch banks which never ought to have existed anywhere, and the system went broke, but no one has been permanently hurt.

Florida Still There.

"But Florida is still there. Last Saturday night a Vincent Lopez orchestra played popular dance music at an Italian hotel at Venice, and the people who trotted and charlestoned in the center of the big dining room might have been, so far as appearances and surroundings were concerned, at any White Mountain, Adirondack, or Michigan summer resort.

"The mosquitoes were no worse, the breezes were cooler, the food was just as good, and the women as well dressed. This was Venice, Florida, mind you.

"It is as difficult to find parking space for one's automobile as it is in any northern town. The traffic policemen and the red, yellow and green lights are just as necessary here as they are in Waukegan or Fort Wayne, and if you want a lower berth from Jacksonville to any other point in Florida, you must reserve it the day before.

Thirty Years Ago.

"When I first visited the west coast of Florida thirty years ago as the guest of Henry W. Plant, Tampa was an important city, but outside of Tampa there was not much to boast of except scenery. Bradenton—then known as Bradentown—was a small village. Sarasota was almost nothing; Punta Gorda and Fort Myers were established places with a certain amount of trade, but the fishing was the main thing. There were no roads worth mentioning, and no railroads at all south of Tampa.

"Now, Palmetto, on the Manatee river, fifty miles south of Tampa, has just finished shipping out over 5,000 carloads of fruit and truck; Punta Gorda shipped over 10,000,000 pounds of salt water fish last year.

"Sarasota county is about to become the scene of an immense sisal hemp industry. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has started a huge farm development on 27,000 acres of land. The postoffice receipts at nearly every west coast postoffice were heavier in July just past than they were a year ago in the same month.

Ringling Still Spending Money.

"John Ringling is still spending money in real, honest to goodness improvements, including the new $250,000 museum which he has just given, and John McGraw's new home is nearly ready for occupancy.

"The facts of the Florida situation are that there has been as much misrepresentation as to failure as there has been as to success, and that while Florida will always be, on account of its all-the-year climate, a playground and a vacation state, yet it has natural resources in great abundance.

"The great mistake has been in assuming that Florida is a land of ease and plenty, where work is unnecessary and where money grows like bananas.

But You've Got to Work!

"George Tait raised four crops of lilies on the same acre of land last year, but he worked.

"Olan English started work on a ten acre patch last December, planting cucumbers and tomatoes. He has paid for his land and for his five-room bungalow from the vegetables raised in eight months and has money in the bank, but he has worked. His receipts from carload lots of vegetables shipped in April, May and June, as checked from the shipping receipts and his bank statements, were $8,453.57.

"On the other hand, men have come down to Florida and attempted to do things for which Florida is not adapted, have failed and gone back north with ugly stories about the worthlessness of the soil, the impossibility of the climate and the hostility of the natives.

Good Soil and Bad.

"The soil of Florida is like the soil of any other state of the Union: some is good and some is bad, and one coming here to farm should know the difference. It is the same with business; the situation should be studied with intelligence, because conditions here are the same as they are anywhere.

"When the dust has settled and the actual situation has become cleared up, Florida will be found in good condition, and no one will have lost and no one will have made enormous sums overnight, but the profits will have been legitimate, large, perhaps, but not inordinately so. Those who have made the most money will be those who have done the most work with the greatest intelligence.

Sees Future as Producer.

"To the outsider who has nothing invested and does not expect to get anything out of the state the general situation appears good in all those parts of the state where there is a possible development of natural resources.

"Parts of Florida will always be playgrounds, with a season which will be longer and cover most of the year as climatic conditions are better understood, but the greater part of the state has a future, not as a playground but as a productive factor in the development of the nation.

"Those who have watched the state for the last thirty or forty years know this, and they are ready to profit by it. Take their advice."

CITY PURCHASES SITE FOR PLAYGROUND AT PRAIRIE AND 38TH

The city has purchased from the Olivet Baptist church the vacant property at the northwest corner of 38th street and Prairie avenue for an indicated price of $20,000. Walter Wright, head of the bureau of parks, playgrounds and beaches, states that the city will install a standard playground on the site. The property, in the colored district, lies in a section of the city which has long felt the need of recreational space for children.

WILL ERECT 200 CAR GARAGE IN HARPER AVENUE

A garage accommodating 300 automobiles, with stores in the front part of the building, is to be erected at 6343-49 Harper avenue by Hyman Levin. Mr. Levin recently purchased the property there, measuring 100x100 feet, from Albert Hackel and Ernest J. Batten for a reported $67,500. The purchaser is razing the old improvements on the site. Holland & Schuchter handled the legal details for Mr. Levin.

NEW METHODS INSTALLED FOR REALTY SCHOOL

Intensive Course Planned for "Y" College.

An intensive course in real estate will be given this year at the Chicago Central College of Commerce of the Y. M. C. A. at the classes sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate board. The board has been supervising these classes for a number of years and its experience has led to the adoption of new methods.

The board has reached the conclusion that the opening or beginning course in real estate education should be of the greatest practical value rather than the so-called "survey" course. Therefore, a new type of course has been outlined.

It is recognized that a knowledge of real estate markets, of the conditions in Chicago and the Chicago district which make real estate desirable and therefore valuable, must be analyzed and studied by the real estate man if he wishes to give the highest type of service to his clients.

Cover Many Subjects.

Some of the subjects to be covered in this new course are: The Effect of Neighborhoods Upon Real Estate Values; The Effect of Transportation Upon Land Values and Future Growth; Market Conditions on the North, South and West Sides of Chicago, and A Careful Study of Chicago's Development and the Possible Future Trend.

The lecturers, who have been carefully chosen by the Chicago Real Estate Board, are prominent leaders in the real estate field in Chicago.

List of Speakers.

Their list of subjects is as follows:

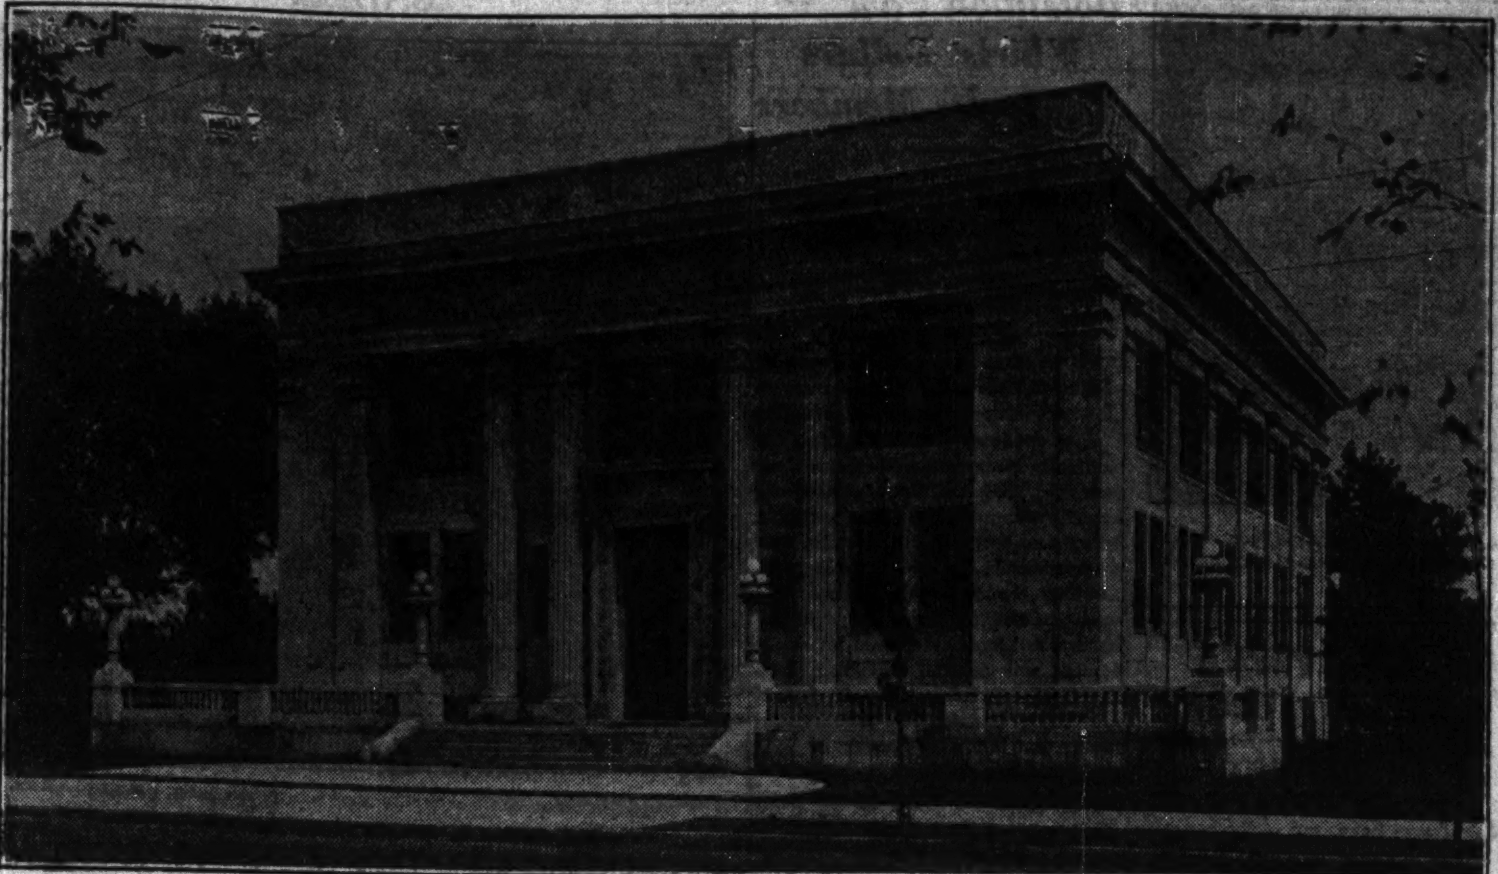
1. Sept. 21, 1926.—Paul Steinbrecher, of Paul Steinbrecher & Co.: "Present Day Opportunities in the Real Estate Business—Qualifications for Success."
2. Sept. 28, 1926—Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary, the Chicago Real Estate board: "The Merchandising of Real Estate—What Makes It Valuable and Why Do People Buy and Sell Real Estate."
3. Oct. 5, 1926.—John P. Hooker, of Hooker, Slosson & Gallup: "Chicago's History from the Real Estate Standpoint, and Probable Future Development."
4. Oct. 12, 1926.—Mark Levy, of Mark Levy & Brother: "The Effect of Transportation on Land Values and Growth of the City."
5. Oct. 19, 1926.—Louis T. Orr, of the Howard & Orr Co., Inc.: "The Effect of the Neighborhood on Land Values."
6. Oct. 26, 1926.—Albert O. Anderson, of Albert O. Anderson & Co.: "The Chicago Zoning Ordinance; Building Restrictions; City Planning."
7. Nov. 2, 1926.—Henry G. Zander, of Koester & Zander: "Chicago's Subdivision Market."
8. Nov. 9, 1926.—Bartholomew O'Toole, of Bartholomew O'Toole & Co.: "The Market for Homes."

On Apartment Market.

9. Nov. 16, 1926.—Fred W. Grapperhaus, of F. W. Grapperhaus & Co.: "The Market for Apartment and Business Property."
10. Nov. 23, 1926.—Albert W. Swayne, of Albert W. Swayne & Co.: "How to Market Co-operative Apartments."
11. Nov. 30, 1926.—Louis B. Beardslee, of L. B. Beardslee & Co.: "The Effect of Industrial Property Upon Values and Upon Growth of the City."
12. Dec. 7, 1926.—Edgar N. Greenebaum, of Greenebaum Sons Investment Co.: "How Real Estate Transactions are Financed."
13. Dec. 14, 1926.—Alex Friend, of Alex Friend & Co.: "Chicago's West Side Real Estate Market."
14. Jan. 4, 1927.—John J. Ready Jr. of Ready, Cormack & Strauss: "Chicago's North Side Real Estate Market."
15. Jan. 11, 1927.—James J. Carroll, of Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke: "Chicago's South Side Real Estate Market."
16. Jan. 18, 1927.—Joseph K. Brittain, of Joseph K. Brittain & Co.: "Ethics and Professional Organization of the Real Estate Business."
17. Jan. 25, 1927.—General review and final examination.

Classes will meet every Tuesday evening at 6 p. m. in the auditorium of the Chicago Central College of Commerce of the Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Opening sessions will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21.

A BIT O' FINE ARCHITECTURE IN HOOSIERLAND



Perhaps one of the most attractive medium sized business buildings in the middle west and an outstanding example of what can be done by an architect of imagination and ability to dignify and make impressive what usually is a commonplace structure is shown above. It's the recently completed headquarters of the Northern States Life Insurance company, at the southeast corner of Hohman and Waltham, just across the state line in the fast growing city of Hammond, Ind. Childs & Smith of Chicago are the architects. The building is of Indiana limestone on all sides and cost $175,000. It's 70x100 and stands on a 150x150 lot.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To Sept. 5, 1916; 10 Years Ago Today

The South Side Renting Agents' association, John A. Carroll, president, will hold a dinner at the Edelweiss garden, 60th street and Cottage Grove avenue, during the week, at which will be discussed the various needs and progress of the south side.

JOHN A. CARROLL.

Perry L. Smithers of the Booth Fisheries company paid at the rate of $75 a front foot, a record figure, for 91x300 feet of vacant in Chestnut street near 12th street, Wilmette, and he will improve at once, it is stated, with a fine residence. Paul Schroeder & Co. negotiated the purchase.

H. F. Wilkins sold the property at the southeast corner of Dearborn street and Burton place for an indicated consideration of $56,000. The Chicago Title and Trust company took title for the purchaser, whose name is withheld. The lot is twenty-five feet front, with a three story brick dwelling containing about fourteen rooms. Mr. Wilkins, who is vice president of the Cudahy Packing company, purchased the property about three weeks ago. It has been known as the Stanley residence.

To Sept. 5, 1906; 20 Years Ago Today

The first fall meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board after the summer vacation, which was held at the Midlothian Country club, was a most successful affair, being attended by about seventy-five members of the board. It was a decided innovation, and while it was ostensibly a regular business meeting of the board, the element of recreation entered more largely into the affair. It was arranged by President Frank G. Hoyne, who is also president of the Midlothian club.

FRANK G. HOYNE. [Walinger Photo.]

Rand, McNally & Co. have contracted to buy from C. W. Lasker the leasehold and building at 332 Clark street for $15,000. The land fronts twenty-five feet, with a depth of 105, and is improved with a three story brick building.

The Chicago Telephone company bought from William P. Sidney a tract 318x126 feet at the northeast corner of Fillmore street and South 41st avenue, a nominal consideration being given. The company will establish a division headquarters on the property.

To Sept. 5, 1896; 30 Years Ago Today

The corner stone of the new edifice of the St. Bernard congregation will be laid by the Most Rev. Archbishop Feehan. The building is located at the northeast corner of 66th street and Stewart avenue. It was designed by Martin Carr and is the first marble church in the city. The Rev. P. B. Murray is the pastor of the comparatively new parish of St. Bernard.

REV. PATRICK A. FEEHAN.

Plans have been completed by Theodore Lewandowski for the "Relic House," which will be built by William Lindermann at North Park avenue and Clark street, overlooking Lincoln park. The structure will be of steel, stone and terra cotta. It will be six stories high. The building will house the relics from the Chicago fire which were collected by Mr. Lindermann. The structure will cost upwards of $50,000.

The Schloesser block at the northwest corner of La Salle and Adams is undergoing a thorough renovation. The main entrance has been lowered so it is on a level with the street. The interior is being improved with marble wainscoting and mosaic floors.

Brokers' Notes

Dwight B. Yoder, for the last three years associated with Earle Shilton and before that with the American Bond and Mortgage company, has opened his own offices in the Michigan-Ohio building, at 612 Upper Michigan avenue, where he will specialize in near north side property. Ward E. Coppes, formerly with the Central Trust company of Illinois, will be associated with him. His telephone is Superior 5828.

DWIGHT B. YODER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

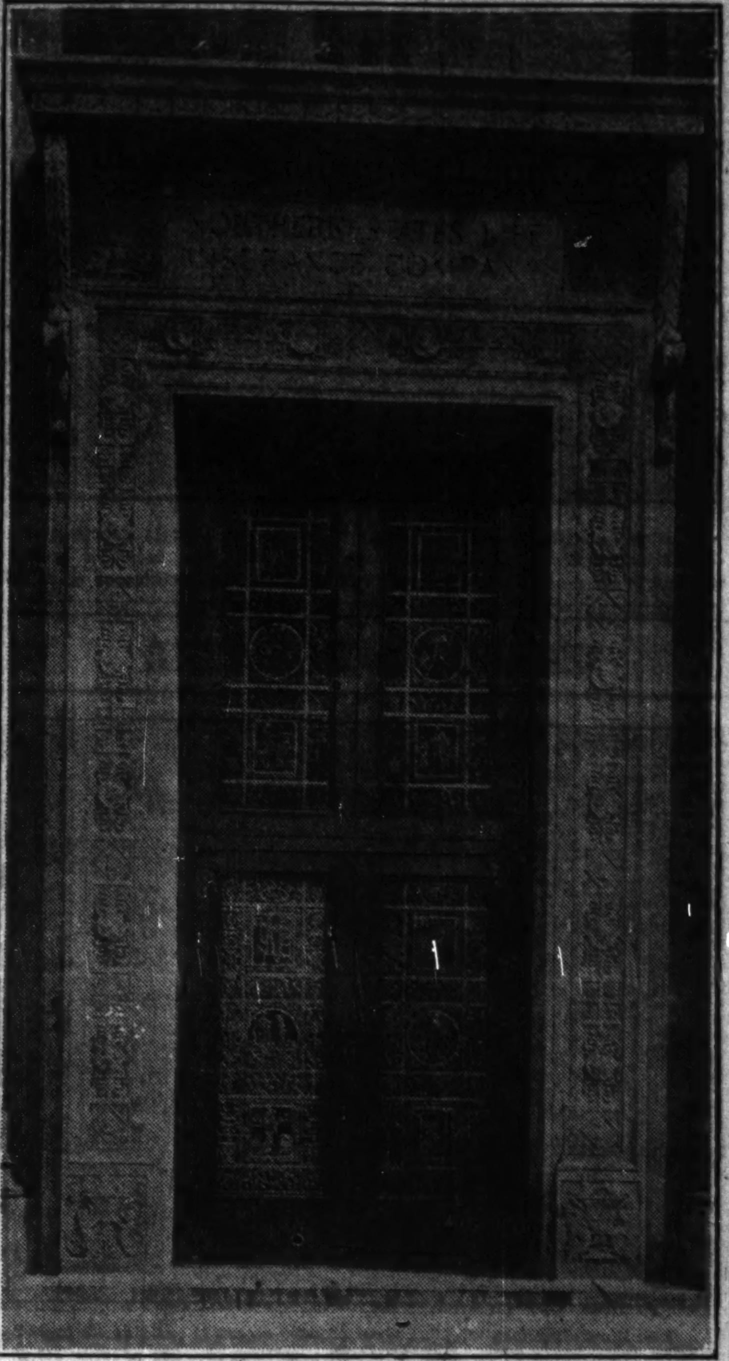
Butler, Fett & Co., announce that they have taken over the office of Westervelt & Co., realtors, at 22 South Crawford avenue. Roy Westervelt, who had been at that address for ten years, has retired from the realty business.

George Little of Little & Reininga, has sold his interest in the firm to Henry Reininga, who has formed a new firm known as Reininga & Co. F. E. Schneider and A. Jacobelt, formerly with Little & Reininga, are associated with Mr. Reininga.

E. P. Gaines, formerly general manager of the Interstate Realty corporation, has been made put in charge of the Hinkamp & Co. office in the Straus building.

C. M. Coyle has been appointed general director of sales for the H. Wallace Caldwell Realty company. He formerly was a divisional sales manager for Krenn & Dato and also was vice president and director of sales for Harry A. Roth & Co.

AN IMPOSING ENTRANCE



This is a closeup of the imposing entrance to the new Northern States Life Insurance company's building, just completed at Hammond, Ind., from plans by Childs & Smith of Chicago. The doors are of hollow bronze with gilded leaded glass. Mr. Smith got the idea from the doors on the Florida winter home of Edward Bok of Philadelphia. All the rest of the entrance is of hand carved Indiana limestone.

JAMES B. DAY CO. BUYS CLYBOURN AVENUE FACTORY

Shellacs, lacquers, enamels, stains and floor wax instead of pianos will be turned out of the six story and basement factory building at 1872-80 Clybourn avenue. This change follows the purchase by James B. Day & Co., varnish manufacturers, from Charles H. Smith of the plant formerly utilized by the Smith, Barnes & Strohber Co., piano makers.

The property, having a ground area of 40,000 square feet, faces upon Clybourn, Clay and Marcey streets, and the purchase price was a reported $150,000.

Founded 25 Years Ago.

An eight car switch track of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway serves the property, providing excellent transportation facilities. It is also located close to street car and elevated railway transportation.

The Day company was founded twenty-five years ago by James B. Day, and had its first premises in Illinois street. The firm now occupies buildings in Ohio and Superior streets and the present purchase will permit of considerably increased manufacturing facilities. The making of lacquer will be given special consideration.

The Day company plans improvements to the property to cost in excess of $100,000.

Bank Plans Building.

Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co. were the brokers in the transaction. John T. Booz and John S. Brown attended to the legal details for Mr. Smith.

Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co. represented the Chicago Trust company in the purchase of fifty feet of east frontage in Sangamon street, south of Monroe, on which the bank is to erect a building for storage purposes. The price was not disclosed.

LEASES EDGEWATER RESIDENCE.

August Bontoux has leased the fourteen room residence, lot 100x150, at the southeast corner of Kenmore and Rosemont, from Isidore H. Horween for five years for a reported $42,000, with an option to purchase for $90,000. Charles F. Belfield of the E. E. Stults

KAPLAN REPORTS LEASING SEVERAL SMALL STORES

Store in building at the northwest corner Lawrence avenue and Bernard street to Reichenthal Bros., chain millinery stores, operating twenty-one shops; Harry Lanski as lessor; total rent $30,600 on a ten year lease.

Store at 135 East Garfield boulevard, rented to Benson Bernstein, operating Benvil Art shops, rent commencing at $175 monthly, graduated to $225, on a term lease; Meyer Katzman as lessor.

SELLS LOTS TWICE IN 6 WEEKS.

Jack Teller has bought from the Calumet National bank, as trustee, the 100x125 on Yates avenue, east front, 300 feet north of 79th, at an undisclosed price, for an investment. Louis A. Snitzer, broker, reports having sold this property twice within six weeks.

Schroeder to Handle Sale of North Brook Heights

Paul Schroeder has been selected by a syndicate of Wilmette and Highland Park men to handle the selling of their new subdivision, North Brook Heights, which is to be partitioned into three-quarter acre lots.

Forest Preserve Buys Ten Acres at Keene and 106th

The Forest Preserve district paid $12,500 for ten acres at Keene and 106th streets.

PORTAGE PARK BAPTIST BUYS CHURCH SITE

The Portage Park Baptist church has purchased the property at the southwest corner of Dakin and Lamon avenue from William C. Townsend and Chester C Scholl for an indicated price of $9,000. The congregation proposes to erect a church on the site to cost about $60,000.

THE REV. CHARLES F. FIELDS. [Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

Plans are now being drawn by Architect John A. Nyden for the structure, which is to have an auditorium seating about 1,000. The pastor of the church is the Rev. Charles F. Fields. Sorensen and Olson represented all parties as brokers in the purchase of the property.

CONVENIENCE AND CHARM FOUND IN ENGLISH COTTAGE

Of Red Brick and Half Timber Work.

Are you interested in home plans? "Small Homes" plan books may be purchased for ten cents at the Public Service office of The Tribune, 11 South Dearborn street, and in the branch in the lobby of The Tribune Tower. They will be sent out by mail on receipt of thirteen cents in coin or stamps.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT. [Chambers Photo.]

This small house of the English cottage type is a thoroughly pleasing residence, designed and built for Mr. and Mrs. George W. Rodormer, Park Ridge, Ill., by Rowe, Dillard and Rowe, architects, 127 North Dearborn street, Chicago.

A great deal of charm and quaintness have been captured in this frankly small home. No masquerading for effect in either exterior line or interior content.

In fact, its admitted lack of pretentiousness, of unnecessary appendages, such as irregular dormers, overhanging eaves, oddly assorted brackets, projecting bays, account in large measure for the excellence of its appearance.

This cottage does not follow in entirety the English tradition. For instance, the owner preferred double hung windows instead of casement, so in this case the fenestration is after the builder's taste rather than in rigorous adherence to period standards.

Observe, however, the dignity of the window openings, clinging closely to one size and distributed with an attention to regularity rather than to any haphazard looseness of arrangement. It is hard to imagine why some houses have been given such an appearance of a punch-me-where-you-like box, by the placing of their windows in apparently any spot the designer hit upon first.

Of Red Brick.

This exterior has been carried out in red brick, with a varying range of colors. The half timber woodwork is in dark brown, the stucco cream and the roof a blend of asphalt shingles in slate blue and light and dark green. Split width of shingles have been used to give texture to the roof and to simulate the effect of slate as far as possible.

The ground in front of the house has been terraced to the first floor level so that while there is a full basement underneath the house no basement windows are visible from the front.

A center of interest is focused on the hooded entrance to the vestibule and a cheerful note struck by the sunny sitting porch on the side of the house. It is eighteen feet long, and as the house is planned facing the south it has a southeast exposure. According to the planning of this house it is not inclosed, but this is a matter of individual preference.

Maximum of Sunlight.

The wall surfaces of the interior are thoughtfully arranged with a view to allowing the maximum of sunlight and the best possible provision of space for the needed furnishings.

The entrance from the vestibule is into the living room, which is separated from the service portion of the house by a narrow central hall, with a closet for wraps at the front end and a stairway leading to the basement from the back. The stairs to the second floor are reached, two steps up, from the north end of the living room.

Both dining room and kitchen are moderately large for a house with the general overall of 25x38. It is well equipped with built-in features, cupboards, cabinets, ironing boards, etc. Other built-in features in the house include the coat closet in the vestibule, built-in drawer cabinets in the bedroom closets, bookcases on either side of the living room fireplace, drawer cabinet in bathroom and linen closet in the hall on the second floor.

A Large Bedroom.

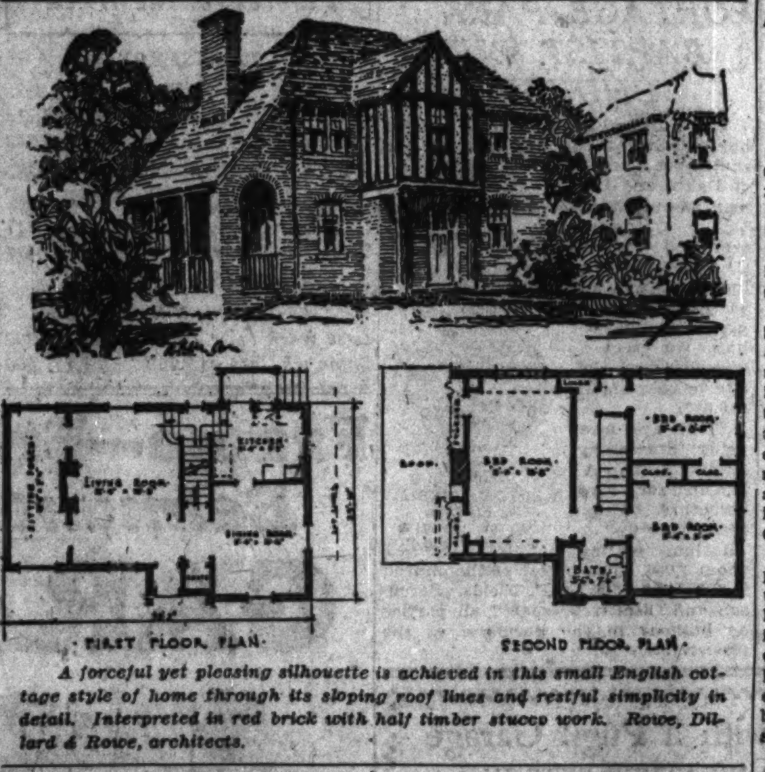
The master bedroom dominates the second story and is a spacious, sun lit, comfort affording room. Note the two large closets, one for storage purposes if desired, the opportunity for a second fireplace and the provision for window seats at the north and the south end of the room.

A bedroom like this, of such generous size, can often have its utility greatly increased. It can include a sewing table and writing desk, adding a note of coziness about the fireplace.

The other two bedrooms are sizeable, with ventilation on two sides and ample closet provision.

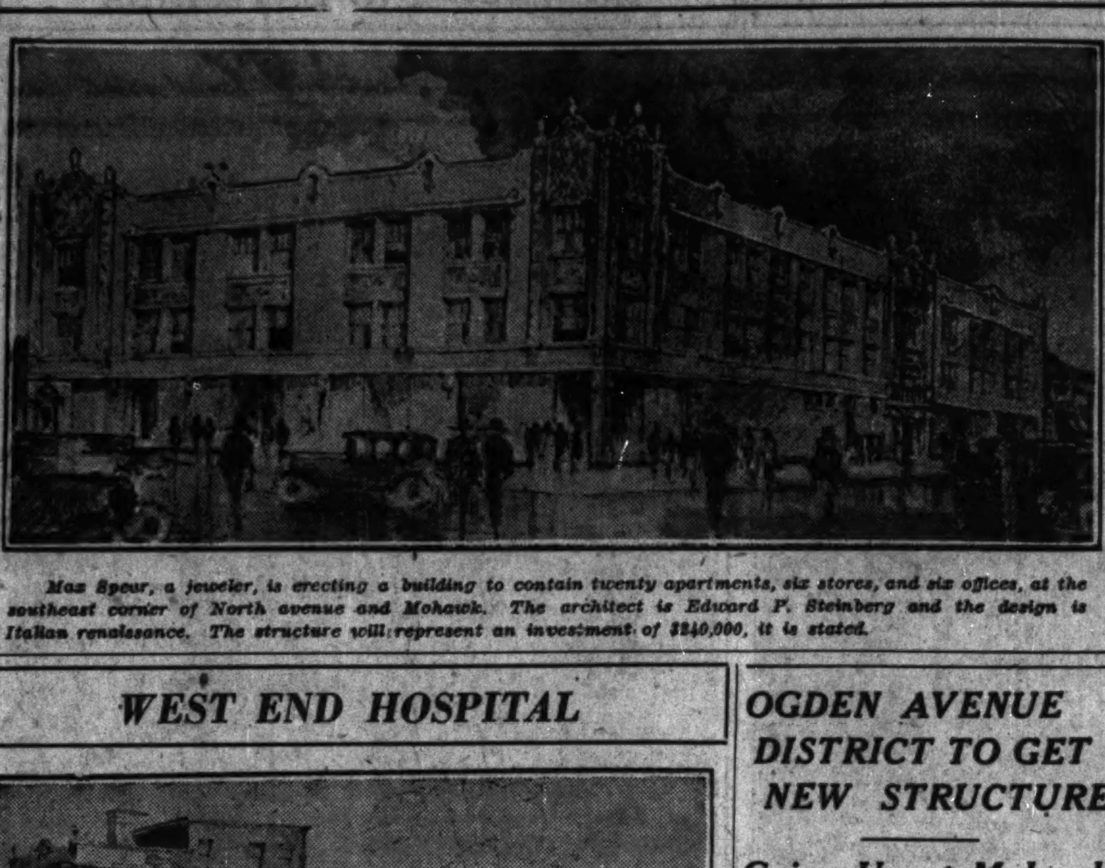
The cost of a house like this is approximately $12,000 in Chicago territory.

RESTFUL SIMPLICITY



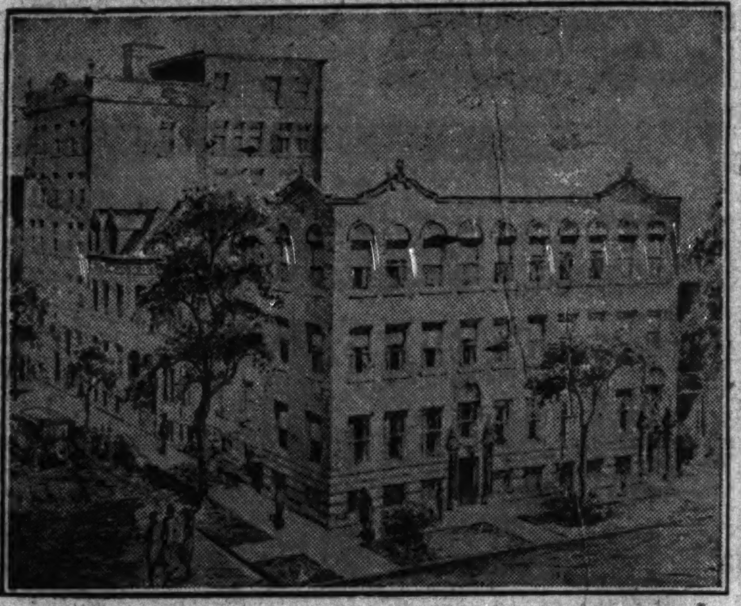
A forceful yet pleasing silhouette is achieved in this small English cottage style of home through its sloping roof lines and restful simplicity in detail. Interpreted in red brick with half timber stucco work. Rowe, Dillard & Rowe, architects.

STORES AND APARTMENTS



Max Spear, a jeweler, is erecting a building to contain twenty apartments, six stores, and six offices, at the southeast corner of North avenue and Mohawk. The architect is Edward P. Steinberg and the design is Italian renaissance. The structure will represent an investment of $240,000, it is stated.

WEST END HOSPITAL



The West End hospital, 2038 West Monroe street, is building its fourth addition as a result of its expansion. The addition consists of a six story fireproof building and a three story one of semi-fireproof construction. Adolph Proskauer is the architect. The improvements will cost $215,000 and will increase the capacity of the institution to 300 beds. Dr. Benjamin H. Breakstone is president of the hospital.

OGDEN AVENUE DISTRICT TO GET NEW STRUCTURE

Going Up at Mohawk and North.

Work is to start soon on an attractive building at the southeast corner of North avenue and Mohawk street to cost about $240,000. It will contain twenty apartments of two and three rooms, six stores, and six offices.

The owner is Max Spear, who will occupy the corner store with a jewelry shop. He is to have a luggage shop in the basement, directly under the jewelry store.

Edward P. Steinberg designed the building, which will be in the style of the Italian renaissance. The exterior is to be of face brick with terra cotta trim. Entrances will be located in both North avenue and Mohawk street, and it is hoped to have the project finished about the first of the year.

The building is near the intersection of North and Ogden avenues and is one of a number of similar modern structures planned as a result of the improvement in the neighborhood following the cutting through of the latter named thoroughfare. Mr. Steinberg stated that in the next three years more than $1,000,000 will be spent on small buildings in this district.

E. & S. Lowenstein made a loan of $128,500 on the North avenue and Mohawk building.

HARTMAN'S AGAIN DENY REPORT OF NEW BUILDING

EDWARD G. FELSENTHAL.

A further denial regarding the reported Hartman building on Cicero, near Roscoe, comes to the real estate editor from Edward G. Felsenthal, secretary and treasurer of Hartman's.

"My attention has been called to an article which recently appeared in your column to the effect that we are contemplating or had taken a new location for a store in the vicinity of Belmont and Cicero avenues.

"So many people have asked me about this that I think I ought to inform you that we have not considered at all any location in the neighborhood in question. Real estate men are constantly submitting locations to us and the location in question may have been submitted, but, as I say, we have given no consideration to it whatever.

"It appears to me as though some one is trying to put something over on the public in this connection."

The item in question quoted a real estate broker to the effect that the Hartman concern had entered into an agreement with the agent of Harry Rosenberg for a ninety-nine year lease for the avenue east frontage, between Roscoe and Henderson, 266 feet, for a net rental of $20,000 annually, with no revaluation, ostensibly as the site for a big furniture building.

THE TRIBUNE also quoted A. Drey, assistant to the president of Hartman's, that he knew of no such deal.

Lease North La Salle St. Hotel Before Completion

Henry L. and Leo H. Fox have leased the Laurel hotel, now under construction at 1512 North La Salle, from Dec. 1 for twenty years at a term rental reported by M. G. Frankel, who represented all parties, to be $768,000. Benjamin E. Cohen and Daniel C. Horwitz were attorneys.

Motor Accessories Firm Leases 6 Story Building

The six story building at 162 North Franklin, formerly occupied by Parke, Davis & Co., has been leased by John C. Hoof & Co., motor accessories, through Willoughby & Co.

FARM AND GARDEN

ENDLESS WHEAT FIELD

[Photo by H. Pollard.]

CANADA'S CROP OF GOLDEN GRAIN.—Western Canada is covered with great fields of wheat like the one shown above. This is a scene snapped in the Rosebud district of Alberta. With thousands of acres like this scene, dominion growers expect to thrash out a crop of between 315,000,000 and 350,000,000 bushels of wheat this season. Approximately two-thirds of the 1926 export crop will be sold through the producers' coöperative centralized selling agency at Winnipeg.

Dominion Pool Whirls Dollars to Its Members

Canada Wheat Growers' Rivalry with U. S. Stiffens.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

FORTUNE hunters in Canada may soon have to dig for their nuggets somewhere else besides the pits of dominion grain exchanges. Canadian farmers with coöperative ideas borrowed from the United States are rapidly taking over the task of selling wheat and coarse grains through their interprovincial central selling agency. Old line commission merchants, who once handled the great crops of Canada, are already deprived of their commissions on half the grain sold. Dominion exporters of the old system are losing out on the profits from nearly two-thirds of the wheat sent to foreign countries.

More than half the wheat grown in Canada this season will be marketed by the Canada Coöperative Wheat Producers, Ltd., the farmers' organization, with headquarters at Winnipeg. Just how far the wheat pool idea will be developed at the expense of the independent commission merchant's business no one knows or can make an intelligent guess about. If the pool develops at the rate it has been going, taking in more farmers and more grain, there will be little wheat left in another decade for the old line commission man to handle.

The new system is the outgrowth of a long struggle to organize wheat growers of the western provinces, especially since 1919, when two men through the government board handled the grain so successfully from the growers' point of view.

A Five Year Contract.

Each farmer signs a contract, agreeing to deliver all of his wheat for five years to his coöperative organization. Each pool member must be a grain grower. He pays a fee of $2 to cover organization expense, and also pays $1 for a nominal share in the organization to comply with company laws of the province. New contracts will be signed in 1928. Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Manitoba all have separate provincial organizations which have to do with the production side of the business, but when it comes time for marketing the grain is all turned over to the central agency at Winnipeg. The marketing agency is run by a board of nine men, three from each province.

The provincial organizations are self-governing and differ only in details. Their names are fashioned the same—Saskatchewan Coöperative Wheat Producers, Ltd., for example.

The wheat is handled through country and terminal elevators owned or leased by the poolers. The goal of the coöperative officials is for the farmers to own all the country elevators needed to handle pool grain. Sixty-five per cent of the grain sold coöperatively this year will be handled through grower owned elevator facilities. The poolers already have terminal elevators at the head of the lakes with a total capacity of more than two and a quarter million bushels.

Dumping Is Prevented.

Under the old system three-fourths of the grain produced in Canada was dumped onto the market within a period of three months immediately after the crops were harvested, but by having country and terminal elevator capacity the poolers are able to feed the grain to the consuming market as it is needed.

Canadian growers willingly sign contracts to insure the delivery of grain in large quantities because it has made it easy for farmers to finance their marketing through a joint arrangement with the eight principal Canadian banks. A total line of credit of about $35,000,000 finances the three provinces. Many times that amount of credit was needed to finance the marketing of the crop under the old system, poolers claim. When the pools were first started bankers were not as liberal in loaning money to the farmers as they are today, so the provincial governments stepped in and advanced money for the organization of the pool in that province and the Alberta government advanced $5,000 to start the work. In both cases the money was paid back the first year. When the Alberta farmers started selling through the pool bankers asked for protection and the provincial government guaranteed advances up to $250,000, which was soon paid back.

Farmers have no trouble in getting backing from their provincial governments, because they have put enough agricultural members in parliament to make sure their movement has plenty of support. In Alberta, for example, 43 out of the 60 members of parliament are classed as "farm members."

Finely Organized.

The central selling agency has branch offices at various points in Canada and foreign countries, including Calgary, Vancouver, Toronto, New York, Paris, France, and London, England. The main terminals are located at Port Arthur and Fort Williams, Ont., and Vancouver, B. C. Most of the grain goes to the eastern lake terminals.

The growers are all paid on the same basis. For example, last year they were given an initial payment of $1 a bushel on the basis of No. 1 northern wheat delivered to Fort Williams, two interim payments of 20 cents each in May and July, and a final payment is yet to be made. From the final payment one-half cent a bushel is deducted to cover the overhead expenses and two cents a bushel is deducted to be used in buying more elevators. The pool officials also have the authority to deduct an amount not to exceed one cent a bushel for a commercial fund to be used as a credit basis. Each farmer's account is kept separate.

Raising the Price Level.

From the elevator fund collected in Saskatchewan the poolers in that province recently bought an elevator system from the Saskatchewan Pool Elevator company, Ltd., for $11,059,310. The Saskatchewan Coöperative Wheat Producers, Ltd., now owns 571 elevators. George W. Robertson, secretary of the organization, says that by this transaction the wheat growers in his province have concentrated their whole coöperative marketing efforts in one organization, which is along the lines of present day business practices. The Saskatchewan coöperative is now the largest grain handling concern in the world. The poolers have paid $1,500,000 down on the newly acquired elevator system. From the 1925 crop nearly $3,800,000 was deducted from the growers' payments to be put into the provinces' elevator funds. This money is being used to buy and build elevators. The tendency is to buy elevators already in existence.

The pool is believed to be a great help to the small grower and is credited with having narrowed the margin between street wagon sales and the car lot sales. It is said to have increased the general price level of grains in Canada, and in general the poolers claim they get a better price than the nonpoolers.

Mr. Robertson at Regina, Sask., has information which indicates that the poolers get more than the men who sell through the old system. At Sutherland, Sask. nonpoolers got a gross return of $1.29, or a net return of $1.11 a bushel for wheat, while the men who sold through the pool got a gross of $1.40, or a net of $1.22½ a bushel. The nonpoolers delivered, between Sept. 3 and June 8, 23,731 bushels of wheat to the Southerland elevators. At Ardath, Sask. nonpoolers delivered 44,747 bushels, between Aug. 3 and June 4, at an average gross price of $1.34, netting the grower $1.15 a bushel. The range of prices at Ardath elevators was 98 cents up to $1.37 a bushel, depending on the time of sale.

Competition Will Be Keener.

Poolers do not boast about this difference. They are convinced that the nonpoolers would get much less for their wheat if the central coöperative selling agency was not operating to feed grain to the market gradually and as it is needed. A few of the nonpoolers occasionally get more than their neighbors who sell under the coöperative plan and this always works a hardship on the pool.

Market experts believe that Canadian growers have already developed their marketing system to the point where they are able to sell their grain at a greater advantage than the producers in countries where the coöperative method is not used. United States growers may soon find that the development of coöperative marketing in Canada will make competition keener than ever on foreign markets. Canadian growers have their representatives in Australia and South America helping wheat raisers organize in these two exporting countries with the hope that the three countries can work together. H. W. Wood, vice president of the Canadian Coöperative Wheat Producers, Ltd., is now in Australia and W. J. Jackson, director of the Alberta pool, has been commissioned to go to Argentina. This is the outgrowth of the international wheat pool conference held in St. Paul at the beginning of this year.

There is some dissatisfaction over the grading of wheat in Canada. The grading is done by the dominion government under the direction of the board of grain commissioners. Farmers say they lose on grading. Last year their wheat was put into [illegible] different grades and after it had been dried and blended, it was classified under ten different grades. Coöperative leaders think it is possible and fair to classify wheat under ten grades and pay the growers on that basis.

Fall Catalog Is Out

"VAUGHAN'S 1926 Fall Catalog," said a customer who had seen it, "is a beautiful, interesting, inspiring, authoritative and complete manual of fall planting. I know of no book that equals it in its field."

We invite you to inspect this book. It is yours without cost, by mail or at our store. We have tried to answer in its 56 pages all the questions about fall planting which garden makers ask us.

In eight full color pages we illustrate in their true colors 28 varieties of tulips, 3 peonies and 14 annual flowers for fall sowing. There are dozens of pictures in half-tone. There are 9 special feature articles entitled:

"Every Garden Can Grow Peonies"
"Why They Go Crazy About Irises"
"Bulbs Start the Garden Season Six Weeks Sooner"
"Success with Rock Gardens"
"Flowers All Summer in the Border"
"Tulips for Color Scheme Planting"
"Autumn Is the Time to Make a Lawn"
"Bulbs for Indoor Gardening"
"The May Flowering Tulips"

The list of Spring Flowering Bulbs, Perennials for Fall Sowing, Peonies, Irises and Ornamental Shrubs and Trees we believe to be the most complete issued by a seed house. The first step in fall planting is to get Vaughan's Fall Catalog.

MISS CAROLYN FRANCES CASE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Case of Hubbard Woods, is to make her debut at a tea on Dec. 11 at her parents' residence. A dinner dance for young people will be given on Dec. 22. Miss Case was graduated in June from Smith college.

The picture of Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth and Mrs. John Wentworth was taken aboard the Aquitania as they were sailing for Europe. The senior Mrs. Wentworth will spend some time on the continent, while her son and daughter-in-law will join Mr. and Mrs. Honore Palmer in an expedition into Africa for big game.

Miss Jane McLennan, who was one of the busiest of last winter's debutantes, has been spending the summer on a ranch in New Mexico, in preparation for her second season. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McLennan, and the younger members of the family are at their camp at Bruele, Wisconsin, for the late summer.

Viewing the Effects of Modern Freedom

By Mme. X.

"IT is no longer a mode; it is an evolution," remarked a wise and witty woman, one of Chicago's most conspicuous social leaders, speaking of the present vogue for short hair among members of her sex of all ages. The remark was made in a group of well known society women who were discussing fashion, past, present, and to come. The days when we all wore long skirts, tight stays, puffed sleeves, big bustles, high collars, elaborate coiffures, and other uncomfortables were referred to as if they were as ancient and remote as the dress of the Aztecs or Coptics.

To the philosopher it seems probable that our present sane and extremely comfortable fashions are a reflection of a mental attitude which requires freedom and all that makes for health as the basis of life today. Nor is it likely that these modes will suffer radical change while this present state of mind continues. Of course, those who come after us may develop other more artificial standards of thought which will be reflected in the attire and in the other adjuncts of life, for our homes, dress, and environments are merely the expression of our personalities. But it is safe to predict that none of the present generation of women will ever return to the slavery that once was theirs, no matter what Paris dressmakers may decree.

Freedom in the Extreme

There are, however, certain features of this passion for bodily freedom that are, to say the least, peculiar and open to comment. To speak of the fundamentals of the present day woman's attire, underwear; except for stockings, with many of my kind, it is practically nonexistent. It appears, according to report, that it is quite the fad to put on summer frocks over the "altogether," that term coined by the elder Du Maurier in his once famous novel, "Trilby."

This is perhaps not objectionable until the lightly clad wearer goes to a dressmaking establishment to try on new frocks, and slips off her one garment, the frock donned for the day. It is at this moment that well founded opposition meets these lightly clad and says, "No, you may not try on any of our merchandise unless your wear something between your body and our goods."

This situation has arisen in Paris and in Chicago, and probably in New York and other communities. It is rather hard to understand how any one could expect any other attitude on the part of the sellers of ready made garments. We may still be in the first stages of consideration of hygiene and what makes for decent sanitary precautions, but this mental attitude on the part of would-be buyers presupposes either an archaic ignorance on the part of sellers' and buyers' indifference to the rights of others, or a criminal carelessness.

In the forefront of the latest modes are the women of America and France. The daughters of Albion are more conservative and hold longer to old customs and costumes. I do not know whether her imperial majesty Queen Mary still requires of her court ladies the long and full skirts which were de rigueur at Buckingham palace and at Windsor only a few years ago when the rest of us were already glorying in the greater freedom of short and easy frocks. But it is rumored that this autocratic lady is even today addicted to several petticoats and to the old fashioned snug stays which, thank heaven, have passed into the limbo of forgotten cruelties. If press illustrations are accurate, she still clings to long and somewhat full skirts and to elaborate coiffures, heedless of the fact that even quite elderly and highly conservative ladies have abandoned these.

Even the Conservative Are Shorn.

That the short hair mode has spread to many otherwise cautious and utterly unradical women is remarkable. But, as most of them look so well with their shorn locks, one wonders why the rest of their ilk don't eagerly accept this new freedom. All the shorn insist that they never will return to the slavery of long hair.

Not that short hair is without its responsibilities. Bobs and shingles have to be kept carefully at just the correct length and also have to be of just the right pattern, for there are as many different styles of clipped hair as there used to be of pompadours and other hirsute modes.

The fashion of closely shingled hair is at the same time the most trying and the most becoming. It must be slicked close to the head and reveal entirely those long lost appendages, the ears. It should be brushed severely back from the forehead and show every contour of the cranium. If the shape of your head and ears be faultless, if your nose isn't too large, nor your forehead too bulging, if your ears are set on at just the correct angle, in short, if you are quite beautiful, this style is deliciously becoming. Otherwise it is fraught with danger. But clipped hair with long, well kept locks brushed smoothly from the front to meet at the back, with a well adjusted marcel — well, that is a mode that makes any woman of any age look chic, interesting and attractive.

Among the well known Chicago social leaders with carefully coiffed and entirely becoming bobs or shingles are the Mesdames George A. McKinlock, C. M. Ely, Stanley Field, Waller Borden, Ogden Armour, Howard Linn, Samuel T. Chase, Volney Foster, Chauncey B. Blair, Donald M. Ryerson, John A. Carpenter, Kellogg Fairbank, John H. Winterbotham and Noble B. Judah. In fact, the unclipped are rapidly being reduced to a self-conscious, explanatory minority.

Weather and Modes.

I am told on good authority, that of one of the oldest, most highly considered modiste and millinery establishments, that velvet is going to be the favorite dress material for the coming winter. Whether this has anything to do with the current meteorological prophecies that it is going to be one of the coldest seasons known in recent years I don't know. Perhaps it works the other way round, and the weather man, hearing that velvet was to be the vogue, is turning on the cold weather to match the mode. Another fashionable material, if reports be trustworthy, is to be moire, which is coming in many colors. This may presage a wet winter, if watered silk be an augury.

Hats seem to be even more close fitting than ever, probably to meet the requirements of the shingled heads. Long haired dames are going to be put to it to get the modish hats of the winter on their hirsute nobs. One reason the short hair fashion is so generally becoming is because it gives the effect of a small head, and the smaller the top piece the taller a mortal looks. A large head, while it may betoken brains, is apt to make the body look smaller. As a matter of fact, the efficient brain is not necessarily in the oversized skull. It is the quality, not the quantity, of the gray matter that produces results.

A prime requisite for modern fashions, if the wearer is to find them becoming, is a certain degree of slenderness. In previous modes the overfat female could, as Shakespeare would say, get away with it up to a certain point. But in those of today her failing is cruelly revealed.

I think one reason for the present day aversion to too much flesh is that it usually betokens a tendency to self-indulgence, and, of all the vices, that of gluttony is the most unforgivable. And if gluttony and indolence are mated, the result is disastrous, and nowhere is the disaster so revealed as in the modern garb of woman. So here's to the short-haired, lean and lithe modern woman! May she live long and continue to set the modes!

Invasions Leave Their Mark.

In the last two decades of the eighteenth century the wholesale migrations of the aristocracy of France affected to a marked degree the countries invaded, when, driven out by the horrors of the French revolution, this class found refuge in neighboring countries, some even coming so far as the then young and remote republic across the seas, to the almost undiscovered continent of North America. Those Gallic refugees carried with them an elegance not prevalent at that time outside of their native land. Their manners, their superficial learning, their manner of living, their cuisine, all were ahead of that of other contemporary peoples and had a real effect on their new neighbors.

It will be an interesting study for the chronicler of the future to explore and study what will be the fruits of the Slavic eruption on the continent, in England, and in this country. By the thousands the aristocracy and bourgeoisie of Russia have fled the red terror of their native land and taken shelter wherever the storm drove them. It is not too much to say that the Russian is the most instinctively artistic of modern races. Music, drama, painting, literature—to all of these they bring a fire, a passionate sincerity, a genius not to be found in other races today.

There is enough of the oriental in the Russian to give that strain of metaphysics which is often lacking in us occidentals. It is this quality that has enabled so many of them to survive the appalling hardships to which they have been subjected. Metaphysics, as you undoubtedly know, is that science which takes us out of the actual into the abstract; it deals with the things of the mind, not those of the body. If, when surrounding nature is distressing and horrible, one can retreat into the world of the mind, as the real oriental does so often, life is endurable.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson described once to the writer seeing a large group of Russian refugees gathered together in the shelter of a huge, bare barn of a place in Constantinople, where the winter wind blew and where they sat on the bare ground. There were representatives of many classes, for the most part people who had known comfort, even luxury, in their former existence. Were they discussing their plight and how to relieve it? They were not; they were almost without exception discussing metaphysics and kindred matters, and for the most part seemed oblivious to their bleak surroundings. Perhaps their presence in groups in other countries will give an impetus to the consideration of the intangibles, the things purely of the mind. Perhaps, too, their artistic genius will penetrate our practical lives and teach us joy in music and art. We Anglo-Saxons have much to learn in these directions.

Russians in Chicago.

There is an interesting, though not large, group of Russian refugees established in the heart of Chicago's beau monde. Head and forefront of this band are Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, who have, of course, a special claim on Chicago because the former is a great grandson of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, and also of a Chicago pioneer, H. H. Honoré. His maternal grandparents were Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Grant, Mrs. Grant being a sister of one of our best known citizens, the late Mrs. Potter Palmer. Prince Cantacuzene is firm in the belief that he will some day return to Russia and to the family estates in the Ukraine, a province of south Russia. This is why he keeps the use of his title in a land where such titles are not known.

Other Russians here have dropped, at least for the time being, the use of theirs. Young Nicholas Galitzine, who belongs to one of the oldest of the Russian families that has the title prince, is just known as Nick Galitzine. Similarly young Lyof Tolstoi, grandson of the famous Count Lyof Tolstoi, the writer and philosopher, has passed up his right to the title count, and is just Mr. Lyof Tolstoi.

Col. George Voyvodsky prefers to be introduced as Mr. Voyvodsky. He has left far behind him the horrors of the war and the revolution, in both of which he was an active participant, and is devoting himself to the business of being an Amercian citizen and working in a Chicago bank, though he belongs to one of the oldest Russian aristocratic families, his lineage going back in written records to the sixteenth century.

Among the most attractive of this small but attractive Russian contingent are Capt. and Mrs. Dimitri Ivanenko, who are spending the summer at Lake Forest, where the captain is teaching the science—or is it the high art?—of riding to the increasingly numerous contingent there who are interested in riding horseback. He also trains horses for riding and occupies a unique and important place in that sport loving community. Mme. Ivanenko is an exceedingly attractive member of Lake Forest's gayest and smartest set. She is slender, is brunette in coloring, with brilliant dark eyes and an exquisite complexion. She is one of the best dressed women in a well dressed set. The Ivanenkos are occupying Clifford Leonard's place until December, after which their plans are, as yet, uncertain.

A Charming Countess.

Many people will remember pretty Countess Irene Keller, who spent a couple of years in Chicago. She had many friends here, chief among whom were Mrs. Willian Prescott Hunt and Miss Marie J. Rozet. Valiantly did the little countess work to earn her living here, struggling against such odds as delicate health and an utter lack of experience. Not long ago she married an American business man. His name has skipped my memory, but now she is living in Pittsburgh and probably learning to become an American housewife, and to take her place among the many activities of the modern American woman. Perhaps she will send for the small son she left to the care of others when she fled before the red storm.

Still another Russian is making his mark in Chicago, Ivan Lasaref, who was twenty years with the Moscow theater. He is working at what he calls the Chicago Laboratory theater, in the Fine Arts building. He dubs it a laboratory theater because it is not a school but is a place designed to try out people who think they have dramatic talent. In Russia he started the Maxim Gorki theater, which was somewhat on these lines. Interested in his project are Mrs. William Monroe, Miss Emily Hamill and Lionel Robertson. Miss Hamill is appearing in some of the plays which Mr. Lasaref presents certain evenings each week in his workshop.

There are at present twelve neophytes who hope to present drama according to the standards of the Moscow theater. Nicolas Remisoff, the well known Russian artist, is instructing them in the fine art of makeup and also in the importance of scenic effects. If, through the ministrations of an ex-member of that famous Moscow troupe, young Thespians in Cook county can absorb some of the exquisite art of that remarkable band of actors, we shall profit in a measure from the Russian débacle.

Drama at Ravinia.

Ravinia's classic groves seem irrepressibly addicted to drama and music. Besides the open air opera, which closes its most successful season tomorrow night, the locality harbors a colony of earnest folk who are dedicated to the fine arts. Lionel Robertson has a cottage there which is the rendezvous of many artists and musicians. On Sunday evenings he gives his studio over to short dramatic pieces, acted by members of the Laboratory theater, where plays, acting, makeup, and scenery can be tried out.

For more than a quarter of a century Miss Anna Morgan has been associated with her salon or studio where she gave instruction in the high art of recitation and presenting drama. Many who have attended her "soirées dramatiques" will hear with regret that she is giving up the enterprise. Famous actors and actresses have, in times past, been entertained there, among them Sir Henry Irving, his son, Henry the second, Miss Ellen Terry, Joseph Jefferson, John Drew, Edward H. Sothern, Miss Julia Marlowe, and Richard Mansfield. Miss Morgan is not retiring entirely from her activities; she is merely giving up her studio.

That Exciting Border Line.

A couple of amusing stories were brought back last week by an adventurous pair of travelers who crossed and recrossed the Canadian border in a motor car. A man who was held up on one of the Americo-Canadian highways by a lack of gasoline spied a truck approaching. As it drew near he held up his hand as a signal to stop, hoping to get some gasoline from the truck's supply. The huge van slowed down as it came near, the driver leaned over, handed the astonished motorist a fifty dollar bill, and sped swiftly on his way before the stranded car owner had time to make his request or to disclaim the gift.

The other tale is of an American woman sojourning in Canada who greatly desired to take back to her husband a present of a bottle of genuine Canadian whisky, a rare treat in these arid days, but wisely cautious friends strongly advised her against trying to pass over the border with such illegal luggage. When the United States customs officer who boarded the train at the border asked her if she had any liquor, she said: "O, no, I haven't any. I wish I had. I wanted so much to bring some to my husband, but my friends wouldn't let me." The officer made only a cursory inspection of her dress suitcase. But he returned a half hour later and said to her, somewhat sternly: "Open your bag."

"But you've already looked at it, and I told you I had nothing dutiable," she replied. "Open your bag," he repeated. Greatly disturbed and somewhat trembling, she complied with his command. Stooping down over the opened bag, he drew from his coat a quart bottle of whisky and said: "This was all I could collect on this train inspection."

Wasn't it Benjamin Franklin who said that honesty paid? He put it less abruptly, but no less truly.

Flowers Still Needed.

Just a reminder, lest we forget: The flowers for the flowerless committee waits your contribution five mornings a week at gate 16 at the Northwestern station. It's a good way to start the week. The blossoming season is waning. Gardens are already taking on that charmingly disheveled air when stems have grown too long and petals fall at a breath. In a garden, middle age is as attractive as verdant spring or summer's effulgent exuberance. It is so with some people at that period of life. There is a mellow, understanding quality about them that compensates for the absence of youth's fire and hope.

News of the CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Vocational League Plans Benefit Party

THE first large benefit on the woman's club calendar for the fall is a card party on the afternoon of Sept. 30 at the residence of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Lake Shore drive and Bellevue place. Mrs. McCormick has given the use of her house to assist the workers for the Vocational Supervision league, whose coffers will receive the proceeds.

Mrs. Clair E. More, chairman of the committee on arrangements, reports almost all tables sold for the event. Mrs. Edward Dwight Pomeroy is president of the league.

The organization, one of the most helpful in Chicago, seeks to give technical or vocational training to the child more than 14 years of age, in cases where it would be impossible for him or her to remain in the public schools because of inadequate funds in the home. Preference is given the oldest child in a family, the physically handicapped, though mentally normal, and the highly gifted child.

Any cases taken at random are typical of the histories of children as they appear in the league's records. But far from being dull reading, they all are filled with the romance attending life as it is found among these less fortunate children.

By striving to grant scholarships to those who are worthy, the league helps children to attain the goals which so often even their young eyes can see, yet they little hope to realize. A scholarship is a sum of money paid monthly to a child whose school record is good, who craves the opportunity of completing a desired course of study, but whose family cannot keep him in school without outside financial assistance.

There are many scholarships for institutions of higher academic work, and this organization aims to bring the same aid to children who could not even attend high school without its help.

The league maintains offices in the Board of Education building and the list of those eagerly awaiting scholarships is longer than can be taken care of. The moneys secured on Sept. 30 will go toward making ambition realized a sure thing for these youngsters.

ART AND ARTISTS

Mohammedan Art at the Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE comes a time when it is just as well to count up possessions we already possess as to dilate upon future benefits still, alas, upon the knees of the gods. There is always the chance that the future may betray us. Though the past is incapable of treachery, the present is actually under our eyes and occasionally to sweep its breadth with a discerning glance, missing none of its attributes, is only to render justice where justice is due.

The Art institute has a notable collection of Mohammedan art, a collection which it is preparing to stress by a new installation in gallery 9 in the Hutchinson wing, that section of the museum where to enter is almost to think one's self in the caves of Ali Baba. Cool, glimmering pewter, delicate and colorful china, wallpapers of soft, lovely design, these are but part of the treasures revealed by the first steps through the long hall which has for its far end a descent down monastical gray steps into the Alexander McKinlock memorial garden.

The collection of Mohammedan art is being installed by Miss Doris K. Wilson, assistant curator of oriental art. Naturally the nucleus of the museum collections of far eastern art is the Gunsaulus collection of Persian pottery. This is to be installed as a part of the new gallery's exhibition. With these pieces there is more or less public familiarity. However, many important objects are being added, recent acquisitions and certain pieces that have never been displayed. One of these is an archway of colored tile. It is over twelve feet wide and more than three hundred years old. The palace of the Persian Shah Abbas, of which it was part, was built at Ispahan in either 1600 or 1603.

The tiles are in brilliant colors with yellow and blue the prevailing tints. The archway was purchased recently in England by Russell Tyson, a trustee of the Art institute and chairman of the committee on oriental art.

Purchases from Persia.

Arthur Upham Pope, advisory curator of Mohammedan art, another interested member of the Art institute, is responsible for the purchase in Persia, where he traveled for a year and a half recently, of a large number of objects that have just been received. The purchase of these curious treasures was made possible by the generosity of Henry J. Patten, Martin A. Ryerson, and Frank G. Logan, all of whom are enthusiastic members of the Orientals, an association formed by the Art institute for the promotion of its oriental collections.

Among these pieces purchased by Dr. Pope are textiles, manuscripts, and pottery. A detailed description is impossible for the present because many of the cases are as yet unpacked, but, counting the possessions of the present, the treasures are among those most to be admired of any owned by the Art institute today.

It is really only recently that much attention has been paid to Mohammedan art, except in relation to the rugs of Persia and Asia Minor. Within the last ten years, however, French, German, and English scholars have been doing some extremely serious research work and the results of their labors have stimulated the ambitions of collectors. Dr. Pope, who is responsible for the newly acquired collection of the Art institute, is considered one of the foremost authorities in America and his work is thought highly of by European scholars.

Friends of American Art.

There is another accomplishment in the art world of Chicago today, having for its center and main spring the Art institute, which could well be mentioned in this present discussion. From several authoritative sources lately the rumor has gone forth that contemporary American landscape painters have no superiors among the world's artists. That is a pleasant rumor. A group of business and professional men in Chicago have banded together confident in the truth of the rumor. They call their association "Friends of American Art" and they back their faith in American art with American dollars.

The organization has purchased already one hundred and twenty-two paintings and eleven pieces of sculpture, besides a number of etchings. It has spent to date the sum of $272,335 on works by American painters, sculptors and etchers. All of the objects purchased have been given to the Art institute for the benefit of the public. It has been the aim of the society to acquire works of art executed by the foremost artists of America, in their prime.

Of Whistler's work, the Friends have bought "In the Studio"; to represent the genius of Sargent, they purchased "Portrait of Mrs. Charles G. Dyer," a portrait painted in Venice in 1880, and "The Fountain," a figure painting. Nearly all our artists of established reputation are represented in this collection, and those who are not will eventually be included, according to the plans of the society.

On the other hand, in case a painting has been purchased from an artist and the artist later produces a work of superior merit, the society arranges to acquire the later work through exchange and payment of the difference in price, if there is one. Chicago artists are liberally represented, there being no less than twenty-five Chicago men who have sold their work to the Friends. Also in the collection are splendid examples of the early American painters, such men as Benjamin West, Thomas Sully, Gilbert Stuart, John Trumbull, John L. Copley, Richard Savage, and Ralph Earl being worthily represented.

A selected group of paintings from this collection of the Friends of American Art, made up of twenty-five canvases, is at present being exhibited in the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco. Chicago artists represented in the exhibit include Frank G. Peyraud, Katherine Dudley, Abram Poole, Grace Ravlin and Walter Ufer.

George Inness Jr.

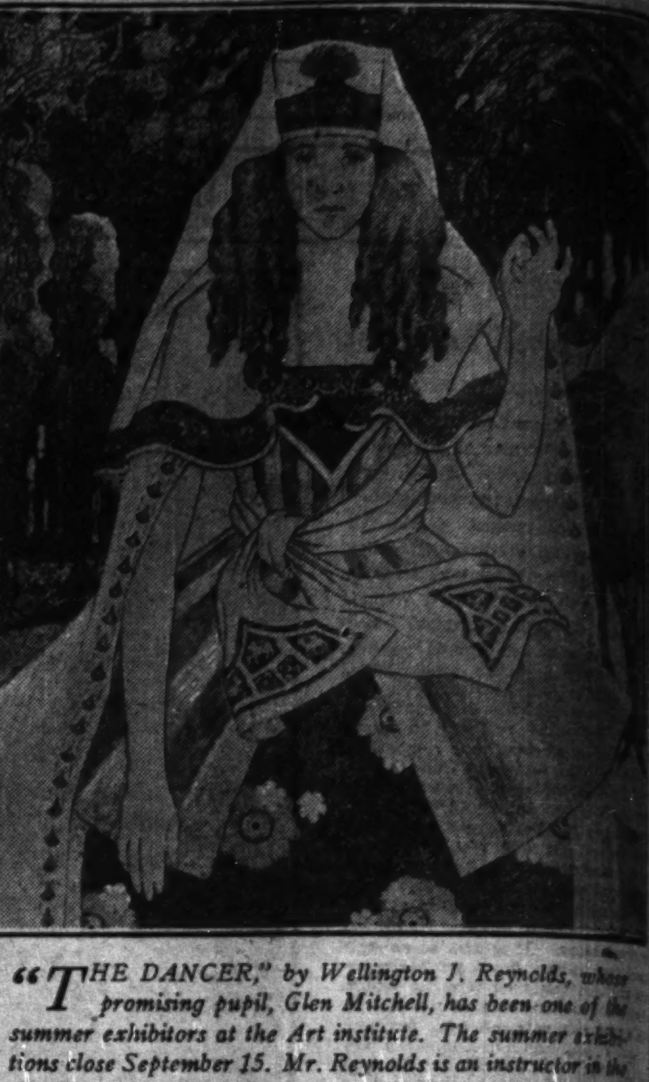
The death of George Inness Jr. this summer lent a sad interest to the splendid collection of paintings by his father, which was the gift to the Art institute of Edward B. Butler, one of the trustees, some years ago. Two early paintings by George Inness Jr. are recent additions to the famous collection.

Of the son's work the Art institute owns nothing, though he was a well known painter in his own right and during his career as an artist won many signal honors. He won a gold medal in the Paris salon in [illegible], a silver medal at the Panama exposition in Buffalo in 1901; a silver medal at the Charleston exposition in [illegible] and a gold medal in 1902 at the American Art society exhibition in Philadelphia. The Metropolitan museum owns his "Shepherd and Sheep," and the Montclair Art museum his "Sheep Grazing."

News of Art and Artists.

The head of the art department at Northwestern this year will be Miss Anna Helga Hong, a painter of distinction and an artist interested as well in house designs, indeed, one who rather specializes in such work.

Charles Killgore, an artist who has done at various times much interesting work in the art department of The Tribune, has left again for Europe to paint and sketch in Spain. His European trips are becoming an almost yearly custom. Before sailing he spent a few weeks in the [illegible] summer painting in California mountains.



"THE DANCER," by Wellington J. Reynolds, whose promising pupil, Glen Mitchell, has been one of the summer exhibitors at the Art institute. The summer exhibitions close September 15. Mr. Reynolds is an instructor in the Art School of the Art institute and last summer was awarded an important medal in the Paris Salon, an honor rarely achieved by an American painter.

NEWS OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

Summer Visitors Linger at Resorts

By Howard White.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Labor day in former years brought the season to an abrupt end at most of the resorts, but since the world war activities have been extended well into the fall and society has been remaining at Newport, Bar Harbor, Southampton, and the mountains until October. In fact, some of the members of the summer colonies remain even later. The younger ones of the younger set have to depart for school and college, but many of them return for the week-ends, making life at the resorts for two or three days almost as gay as at the height of the season.

By the end of the month, however, most of the smart set will have returned to the city or country estates on Long Island, along the Hudson river, in Westchester county, at Tuxedo, and in the Morristown section of New Jersey. Country weddings, horse shows, racing and polo and hunt meets will be the attractions until the season formally opens with the premiere at the Metropolitan Opera house and the National horse show, which will be held in Madison Square Garden this year.

Racing Season Opens.

The racing season on Long Island opened last Tuesday with a large attendance. Society, especially the Long Island set, was out in force and there was much entertaining at the Turf and Field club before the bugle sounded. The United Hunts will hold a meet next month, and polo at Meadowbrook will begin next Saturday for the Monty Waterbury cup and will continue for several days. Some of the best players in the world will participate, including the famous Argentine team, three prominent English players and all the members of America's international four.

Society folk, especially those of the Long Island and Westchester hunting sets, are greatly interested in the Cathedral cup horse show, which will take place at the polo field of the Westchester-Biltmore Country club in early October. The exhibition will be given to raise funds for the sportsmen's bay of the Cathedral of St. John's the Divine, the building of which edifice has attracted universal attention among the members of the smart set.

An Important Wedding.

Miss Elizabeth Van Rensselaer Halsey, daughter of Lady White-Todd and of the late Charles D. Halsey, will be married Sept. 18 at the Church of St. George's-by-the-River, Rumson, N. J., to Robert Gilchrist Ilsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Finley Ilsley of this city. After the ceremony a large reception will be held at Lady White-Todd's summer home, Brightwood, Rumson.

Miss Halsey will be given away by her oldest brother, Van Rensselaer Halsey. Her cousin, Miss Katherine Van Rensselaer Strong of New Brunswick, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be the Misses Edythe Elliman, Marion Simmons and Madeline McCarter of Rumson; Catherine Potter, Helen and Violet D. B. [illegible] of New York and Philadelphia.

Beekman Ilsley will be best man for his brother.

An International Match.

One of the most prominent of the late summer weddings, although it was a quiet ceremony, was the marriage of Mrs. Mary Cutting Holland, who became the bride of Hon. Lionel Forbes Sempill. The marriage took place at the home of Mrs. Holland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cummock, at Monmouth Beach, N. J.

The Hon. Lionel Forbes-Sempill is the son of the 18th Lord Sempill of Craigrevar castle, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. He is the brother of the present Lord Sempill, who won distinction as an aviator during the war, when he attained the rank of colonel.

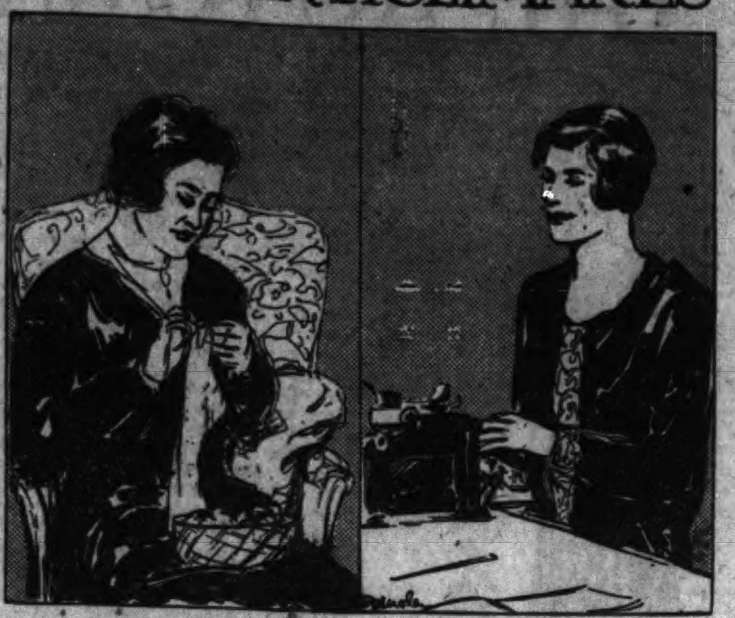
AVOIDING LIFE'S ANTICLIMAXES

by Doris Blake



THE domestic woman and the bachelor work woman are accused by an English writer, Olive Mary Salter, of developing one side of themselves only. One has hitched her wagon of life to the forces of her brain, the other to those of her body. And the weight of life is too much for either one of those forces alone.

The domestic woman has produced beautiful, healthy children, whose every physical need she has faithfully and efficiently provided for. But there comes a time when she finds herself unable to satisfy their growing mental demands. She cannot feed, or clothe, or heal their brains, as she has done their bodies. The nourishment of her brain has dried and disappeared. And her children know it and are leaving her to seek it elsewhere. And therein lies the tragedy of what the English writer calls her anticlimax.

The bachelor woman who chose the career has overbalanced in the opposite direction, says Miss Salter. Her physical life has starved and withered. The children of her brain are sturdy and splendid, but they do not suffice her. They have no material reality, and she lives in a world of material realities. This is her anticlimax.

All Women Have Them.

All women, Miss Salter explains, much more than men, are subject to the law of climax and anticlimax. A man sees his life in a straight line before him, and pursues it evenly to the end. But a woman sees hers in ups and downs. She divides existence into epochs. There is the school epoch, for instance; the have-a-good-time epoch, and the work or the husband epoch, according to whether she is domestic or work-a-day. The height of each epoch is a little climax in itself, and she goes so fast from one to another that she scarcely notices the inevitable anticlimax in between.

But the final climax comes at length to both the domestic woman, that is, the woman who goes in for husband and babies, and the work woman who substitutes a career for these absorptions.

In Miss Salter's opinion, the domestic woman feels the climax first. She has married an attractive and agreeable husband who loves her none the less because they have now "settled down" a little from the first fine careless rapture, she to her domestic cares, he to his office and golf club. She has furnished the house nicely and has acquired most of the extras her heart languished after. Her dress allowance provides a comfortable sufficiency without scope or excitement.

A Case in Point.

Miss Salter illustrates her point with a woman who has brought three jolly babies into the world. "It would have been all quite well for her a couple of generations ago. She could have looked forward, then, to renewing her romance of life almost at once in the romances of her children. At 17 her daughters would have been married; at 20, her son. She would presently find herself a grandmother. Joyful climaxes would present themselves once more. In the meantime all she needed to occupy herself could be found in Betty's or Evelyn's bottom drawer. Home made trousseaux, hand sewn linen, would have been expected of her—and appreciated."

But things are different for mother of the Nineteen-Twenties. Betty at 17 is in high school and playing games with the boys. Evelyn is nearing 19 and she means to get a scholarship for the university, and she is dead keen on the studies she plans to take up. Thoughts of marriage are postponed in the girls' heads, and in Roger's, who at 22, does not feel capable of supporting a wife.

A dreary period of waiting—upon other people's interests—begins here to stretch itself ahead for mother.

"It seems she is not much wanted by anybody. Her husband has his golf, and his club, and his business. It is hardly to be expected that he will suddenly lose interest in them now, because his wife happens to be at a loose end. Indeed, it never occurs to him that she needs his companionship. He assumes she is busy with the children, as she used to be. And so she would have been years ago, but not now. The Nineteen-Twenties hold out a thousand interests to Roger, Betty and Evelyn, every one of which is calculated to make them thoroughly bored with mother.

"Mother is a creature who knows about bed making, puddings, price of butter, hot compresses, and so on. None of these subjects can arouse the intellectual enthusiasm of Roger, Betty and Evelyn beyond a certain point. They are kind and polite about them all, being fond of their mother—and edge out of the front door as soon as possible."

The Tragic Point.

Thus mother reaches the point of tragedy in the purely domestic woman's life—the point where her children have outgrown her.

At 20 the working woman adores her freedom. Her charming youth provides her plenty of men friends. At 30 all is still satisfactory. She is getting more and more interested in her work. Men friends are dropping off a little—but it is just as well. She is busier than ever.

At 40 she is at the top of the tree. It was strenuous and has taken the bloom off her a bit. She is getting a little set and particular in her ways. The business of being on her own has hardened her a little. It shows in her face and in her quick, incisive voice. Now she is at the top the work is not so absorbing as it used to be. It doesn't lead anywhere. It's jumpy and lonely in the bachelor chambers. "I've missed something in life," she muses. "What is it? Where are all those men with whom I used to be friends?"

Only One Side Developed

These two women, in Miss Salter's judgment, have developed one side of their natures at the expense of the other. Every woman has within her two great potentialities for creation: the mental and physical. In order to balance a pair of scales evenly, says the Englishwoman, you must have a little weight, at least, in either pan.

For the home woman Miss Salter advises some definite work of her own outside of the daily round of domestic duties; a little career in miniature, which can give her self-respect and make her husband and children respect her.

With professional women the problem seems more difficult to solve. "But," Miss Salter asks "why should not she, as well as the domestic woman, have her other side, her softer side of life, her own means of escape from a large and hard and exacting world into a small one designed especially to please herself and those dear to her?"

STRANGE WEDDINGS

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra-modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune.

Mother Might Decide.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 and have never been out with a fellow. A good looking fellow has asked me to go out with him. Do you think it would be right? ALICE."

It would, indeed, provided he is the right sort of chap and you feel you'd enjoy yourself with him, dear. Why not let your mother decide for you, Alice?

No One Will Notice It.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a fellow 17 and love a girl two months older than I am. I have only gone out with her a few times, but am sure she loves me. Do you think the disparity in ages will make a difference? ED."

Not the slightest, Ed. No one will ever suspect it, for you must admit the ladies always look younger than the men.

Wait for the Right One.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 24 years old and the last one left out of seven in my family. My folks urge me to get married because they think I am getting old. I have several girl friends that I go out with now and then, but somehow I can't fall in love. Do you think I should marry or wait until the right one comes along?

"DISGUSTED."

Wait for the right one, Disgusted, as you cannot expect to find happiness if you marry some one you do not love.

Too Late Now.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow who has moved, and did not see him for a long time. I have moved, too, and he does not know where I live. Please advise me how I can see him again. ANXIOUS."

I know of no way unless it is a chance meeting, Anxious. Your love wasn't returned, otherwise he'd have made it a point to see you before you moved.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Effeminate.

Wifey was an expert swimmer, but hubby was a novice in that art. She was trying to teach him the crawl, but he was not an apt pupil.

"You will never swim the channel unless you improve mightily," she taunted him.

"That is too sissy a job for me, anyway," was his prompt rejoinder.

R. G. M.

Handing Him a Rose.

Charmingly self-confident in her new spring outfit his wife sallied into his office.

"Well," exclaimed hubby, "have you seen anybody you like better than yourself today?"

"Not 'til I came in here," was the gay reply. E. J. R.

His Favorite Kind.

Husband—I like those clinging gowns on you, my dear.

Wife—I'll say you do. This one has been clinging to me for over a year.

O. E.

Ouch!

He—Why isn't dinner ready?

She—I've been downtown bargain hunting and couldn't get home in time.

He [sarcastically]—Looking for something for nothing, I suppose.

She [sweetly]—Yes, dear; trying to get you a present. V. B.

Intentional.

Mr. [excitedly]—You just missed that post!

Mrs. [learning to drive the car]—That's what I aimed to do. L. K.

Easy!

Mr.—Talk about women having any capacity for dealing with financial questions! Have you any idea, for instance, how much money is in circulation in this country?

Mrs.—I presume it's all in circulation—except what you happen to get hold of.

J. A.

Lovely's Synonym.

I was writing a letter to a friend and became puzzled as to whether there was an "e" in lovely.

I called to my husband who was upstairs, "Bob, how do you spell 'lovely'?"

He quickly answered, "Claire."

That is my name. C. L.

That's Something.

Hateful Husband—Your extravagance is simply appalling. When I die you'll probably have to beg.

Wonderful Wife—Well, I shall be better off than the poor women who never had any practice, at any rate."

A. DeG.

Paying.

Mrs.—Let me tell you, sir, that woman has more honor than a man.

Mr.—Yes, but I'll be hanged if man doesn't pay for all that's on her.

Proper Clothes for School

NOW the shops are full of alluring raiment, and now the departing schoolgirl and college girl look wistfully windowward. Mamma, even, is caught because the time is short before school and college open. One of the departing schoolgirls came to me with her troubles about a wardrobe. Her mother I do not know, but the girl is a friend of a friend, and plaintively she said to me, "Do please write a story about what a girl must have to go to school, or do talk to mother about it. She evidently thinks I am going into society or a fancy dress ball. I'll be a guy if I buy the things she wants me to have, and I don't like a dressmaker, anyhow. I hate fittings. Poor mother! She has never seen any young girls' schools since she went herself, from Richmond, years ago."

It sounds simple just to go and buy what you need to go away to school or college, and one would think that no mistake could be made if one went to a reliable shop. But such, alas, is not the case, and many a mother has jeopardized her daughter's popularity by the simple mistake of not dressing her in good taste. The worst thing she can do for her—the worst possible plight a girl can find herself in—is to be overdressed. Usually it is the girl whose tendency it is to overdo her wardrobe. When one is very young one longs for beads and feathers and all the mundane trappings of sophistication. Many a deb longs for a shaky princess gown of green sequins that would do honor to a movie vamp. One deb I know who has no one to advise her wears a corset on her eel-like hips because she thinks it makes her "figure look older." A year from now she will no doubt be discarding it—but just now she wishes for that "aura of the metropolis" that she is too young and eager and fresh to accomplish.

Simplicity Is Best.

It is especially true of girls who have lived in small towns and who make a trip to some city to buy a wardrobe for the school year. At home they dress sanely and simply and neatly—perhaps not in the height of fashion, but tastefully withal. Then they come to some shop and they need clothes for occasions such as do not occur at home. The result is they buy ball gowns for dinner and reception gowns for simple Sunday afternoon wear. Their more sophisticated companions judge them as vulgar because they are overdressed, whereas they are only unaccustomed to the various clothes needed in an unaccustomed life. The best thing to do is to stay on the side of simplicity. If you are a bit underdressed no one can criticize you. Your simplicity will recommend rather than condemn you.

In many cases boarding schools write letters to the prospective pupil, telling her exactly what is needed for her wardrobe, just what linens and just what clothes. Some schools even go so far as to have uniforms for school wear. It is much easier to fit out the girl for the seminary or the finishing school than for the college year. The customs of the various seminaries and finishing schools differ so in locale and in management that they run from utter simplicity to almost social elaboration. So, if your daughter is going to one of these, I advise you to write the school and ask painstaking and particular questions about what she will need in the way of clothes. I would not advise sending a young girl to any school where dress is stressed. The best schools will send a list of things needed and that list will be found simple in the extreme.

College Needs.

The girl going to college will need more things because she will add to her school life a good many social activities, so that she will require gowns for all occasions. Her own bed linens and towels may be needed, or may not, according to the place she selects to live, but she will need a comprehensive wardrobe wherever she happens to be.

She should have, first of all, a warm cloak of dark color. One of the sport furs would be nice, because it could be worn for all occasions except evening dress. Then she needs warm dark dresses of wool also on the sport type, since that is the smart thing for young girls at present. This year's materials are jersey, velveteen, crepella, wool velours, and a new wool crêpe of rough surface. These frocks may be made in one or two piece models.

With them she shoud not wear high heeled shoes. To do so stamps her as ignorant. Such frocks call for leather shoes with either low French, or, better still, low walking heels. They should be in colors to harmonize. That is, a girl in college should never wear conspicuous footwear. Her shoes to wear to classes and on the campus should be either brown or gray or black. She should be neatly gloved, either with washable leather or fabric gloves.

Her hats should be of felt or velours. Though many girls go without hats—and custom says they may—still it is just a little better taste to wear a hat on the street, even if others do not.

For Various Occasions.

For afternoon wear, for teas, etc., the college girl will need two dark silk dresses. They should be simply made, never trimmed with lace or beads. With these she should have a velvet hat. The tam variety is good this year. A nice outfit for tea would be a black velveteen dress and a black velvet tam, with patent leather shoes. These shoes may have French heels if she prefers them, and she is over 16.

She will need at least two evening gowns. They should both be simple enough to wear to a café to dinner and to the theater afterward, if she is invited to go in a party. They should never be elaborate—not even for the prom. So the best plan for such gowns is to select chiffon in some lovely color like rose, or French blue, or soft shades of green or red. Have them made in a simple but fluttering manner.

A young girl is never becomingly gowned when her dress is very decolleté, so if these dresses are cut simply in the neck line they will do for simple as well as more formal evening occasions. She should have an evening cape, made of velvet. This may be of some bright pretty color, but it should never be of metal broche, or too elaborately trimmed with fur. A soft roll collar of the self material is best.

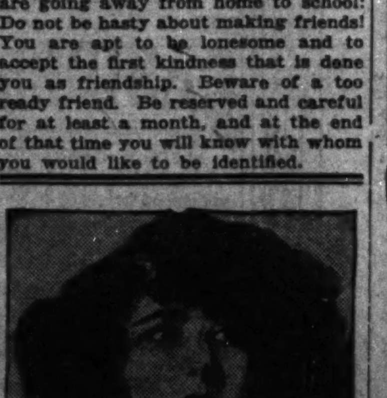
A pair of black satin and a pair of silver slippers will suffice for evening wear. The black satin can be worn with the gowns on simpler occasions and the silver for more elaborate affairs.

These are a few simple rules for clothes. There are many other things that will have to be left to the girl's own judgment, and she will be wise when she is puzzled to ask the advice of some older woman about where and with whom and when to go certain places.

First Weeks Are Important.

If it is possible, a mother should come with the girl to whatever place she intends to stay and establish her before leaving her. The first four weeks of the girl's life away from home are the hardest and at once the most decisive as to her future. Older students form their own judgments of the newer ones at that time and proffers of friendship are often made.

A word of warning to all girls who are going away from home to school: Do not be hasty about making friends! You are apt to be lonesome and to accept the first kindness that is done you as friendship. Beware of a too ready friend. Be reserved and careful for at least a month, and at the end of that time you will know with whom you would like to be identified.



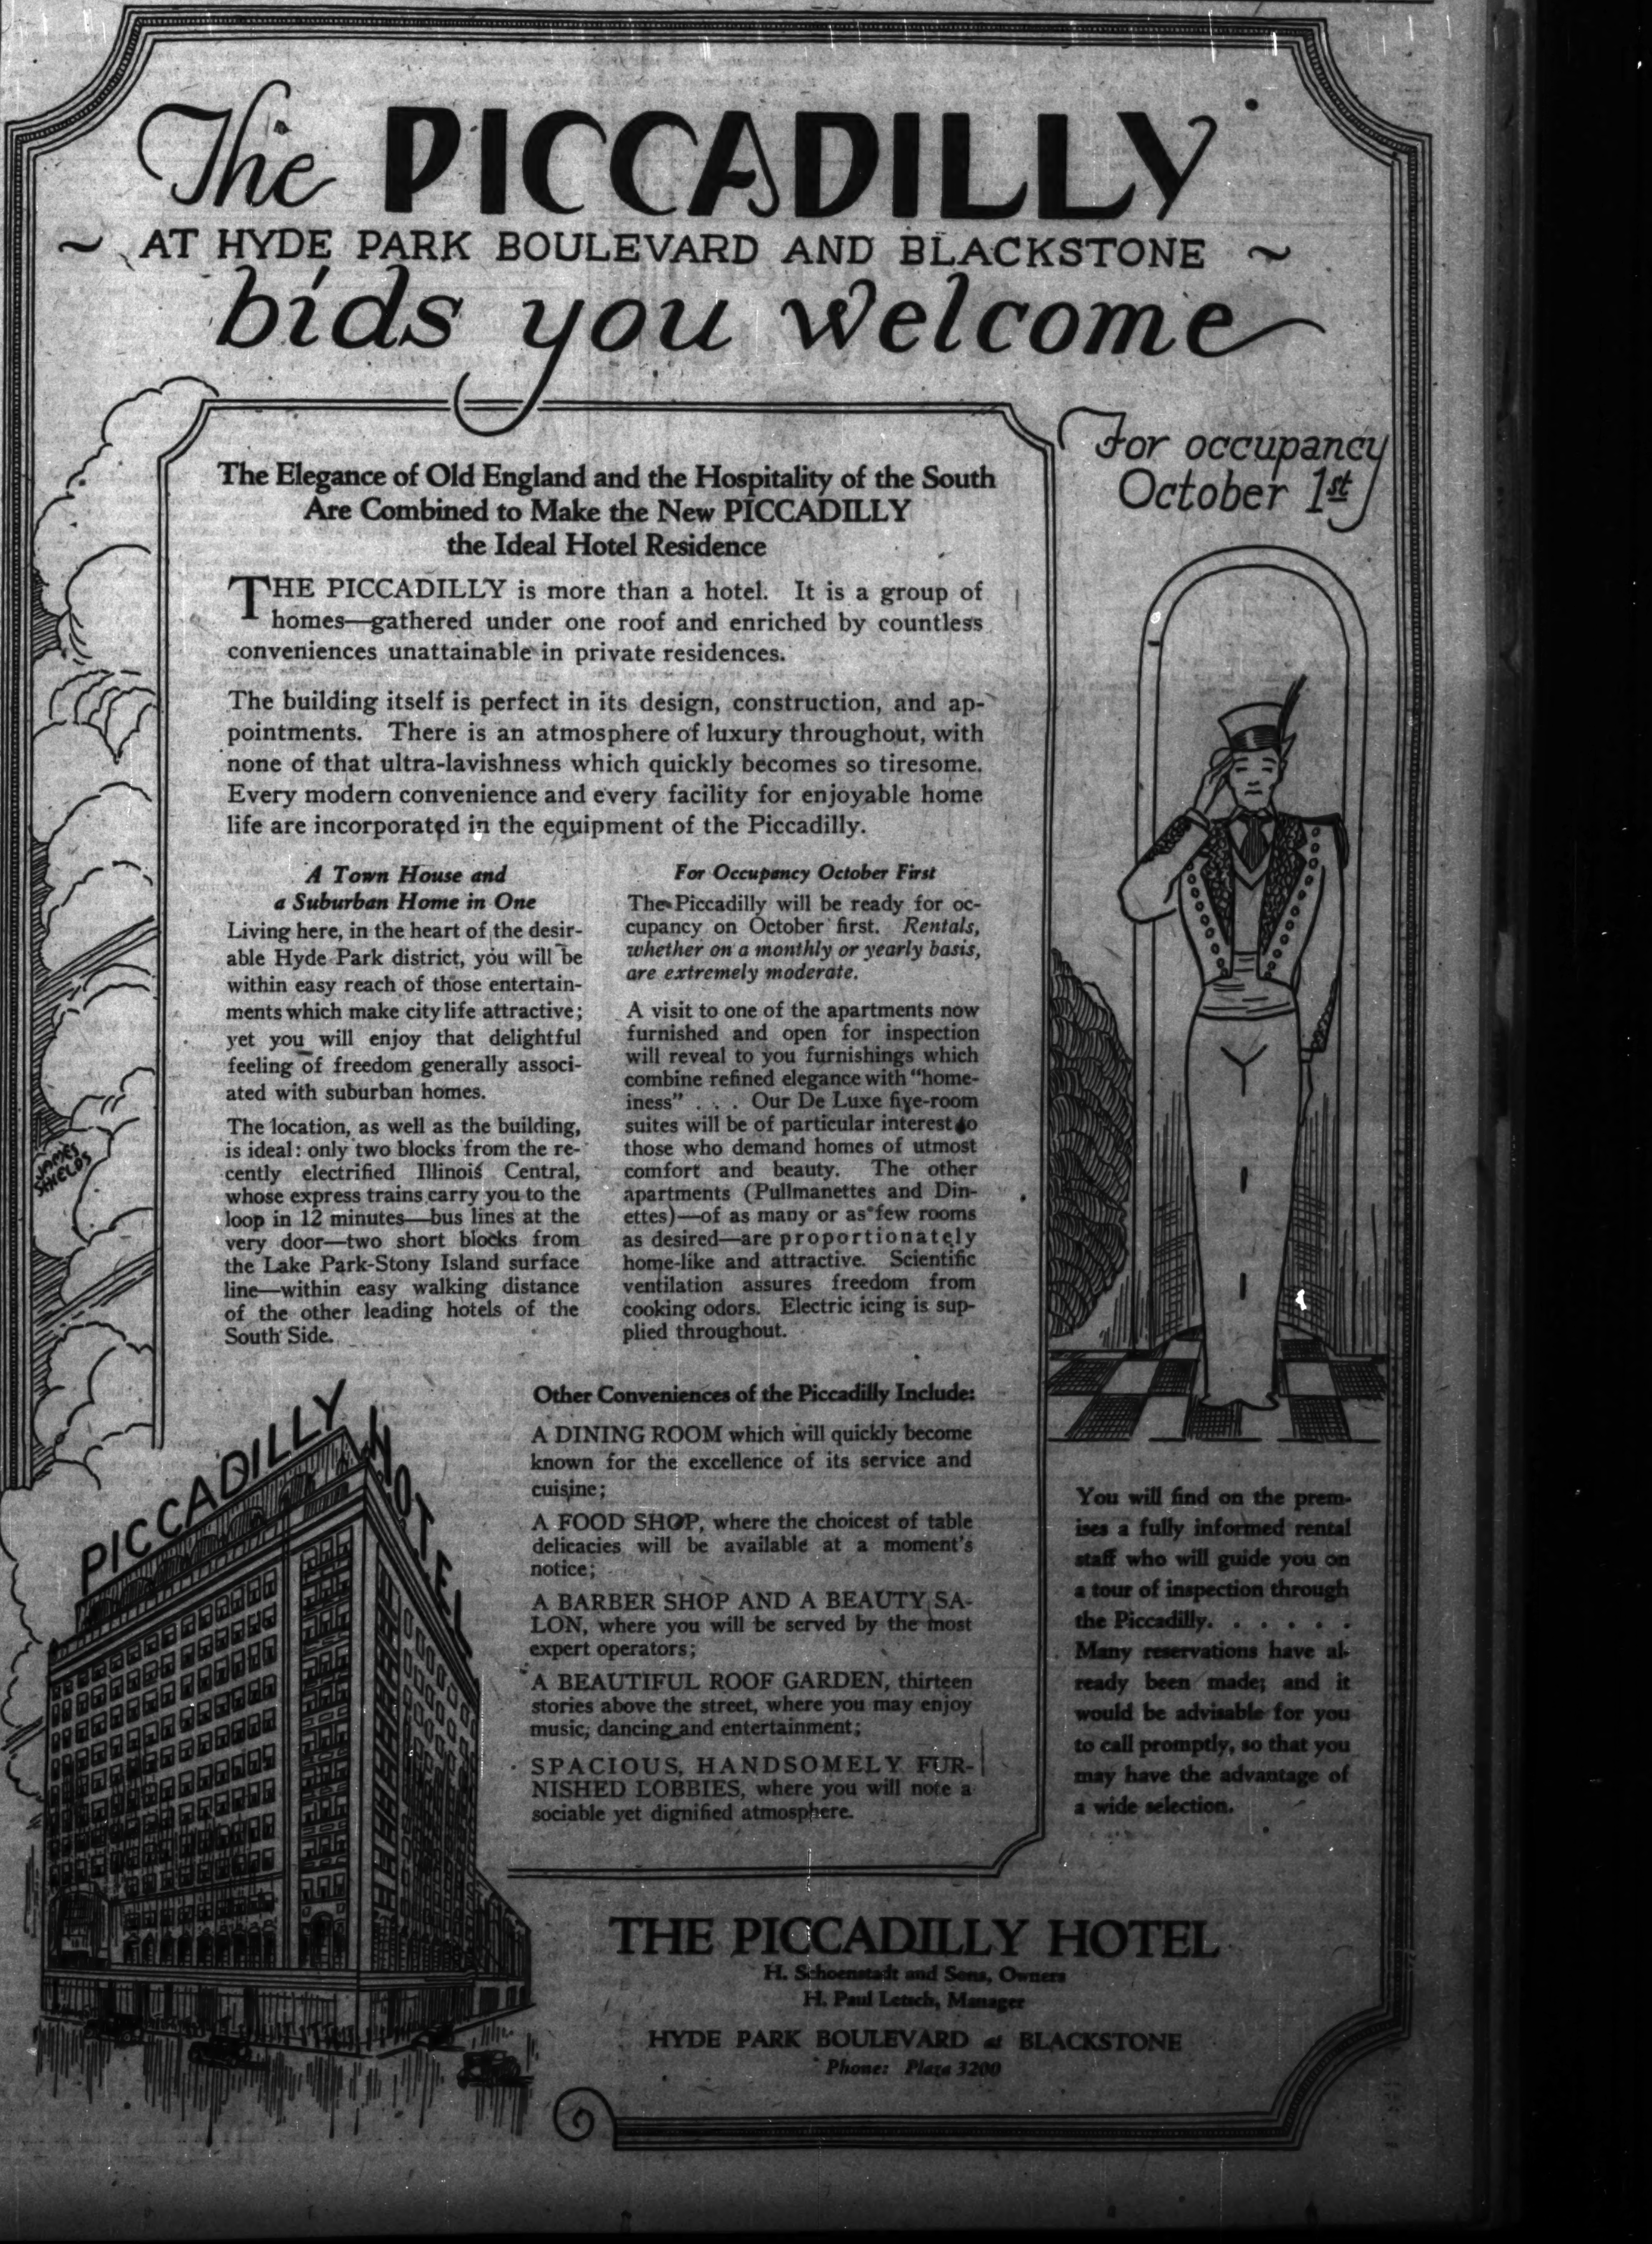
How I Dress My Hair

By Edna Wallace Hopper

The thousands who see me daily on the stage wonder at my beautiful hair. It is wavy, glossy and abundant. Nearly everyone thinks that some wonderful hair dresser gives it daily care.

Not so—I'm too busy for that. I never go to a hair dresser, have never had a Marcel wave. I simply apply twice weekly a hair dress which great experts made for me. It is not sticky, not greasy. Before they made it I never dreamed a liquid could do so much. Now all toilet counters supply it as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c.

Nothing else I know of gives a girl or woman so much added loveliness at once. No one can resist it when she knows. My guarantee is enclosed with every bottle, so it costs you nothing if it doesn't please. Go try it at my expense.—Advertisement.



The PICCADILLY

~ AT HYDE PARK BOULEVARD AND BLACKSTONE ~

bids you welcome

For occupancy October 1st

The Elegance of Old England and the Hospitality of the South Are Combined to Make the New PICCADILLY the Ideal Hotel Residence

THE PICCADILLY is more than a hotel. It is a group of homes—gathered under one roof and enriched by countless conveniences unattainable in private residences.

The building itself is perfect in its design, construction, and appointments. There is an atmosphere of luxury throughout, with none of that ultra-lavishness which quickly becomes so tiresome. Every modern convenience and every facility for enjoyable home life are incorporated in the equipment of the Piccadilly.

A Town House and a Suburban Home in One

Living here, in the heart of the desirable Hyde Park district, you will be within easy reach of those entertainments which make city life attractive; yet you will enjoy that delightful feeling of freedom generally associated with suburban homes.

The location, as well as the building, is ideal: only two blocks from the recently electrified Illinois Central, whose express trains carry you to the loop in 12 minutes—bus lines at the very door—two short blocks from the Lake Park-Stony Island surface line—within easy walking distance of the other leading hotels of the South Side.

For Occupancy October First

The Piccadilly will be ready for occupancy on October first. Rentals, whether on a monthly or yearly basis, are extremely moderate.

A visit to one of the apartments now furnished and open for inspection will reveal to you furnishings which combine refined elegance with "homeiness" . . . Our De Luxe five-room suites will be of particular interest to those who demand homes of utmost comfort and beauty. The other apartments (Pullmanettes and Dinettes)—of as many or as few rooms as desired—are proportionately home-like and attractive. Scientific ventilation assures freedom from cooking odors. Electric icing is supplied throughout.

Other Conveniences of the Piccadilly Include:

A DINING ROOM which will quickly become known for the excellence of its service and cuisine;

A FOOD SHOP, where the choicest of table delicacies will be available at a moment's notice;

A BARBER SHOP AND A BEAUTY SALON, where you will be served by the most expert operators;

A BEAUTIFUL ROOF GARDEN, thirteen stories above the street, where you may enjoy music, dancing and entertainment;

SPACIOUS, HANDSOMELY FURNISHED LOBBIES, where you will note a sociable yet dignified atmosphere.

You will find on the premises a fully informed rental staff who will guide you on a tour of inspection through the Piccadilly. . . . . . Many reservations have already been made; and it would be advisable for you to call promptly, so that you may have the advantage of a wide selection.

GET THEE BEHIND ME, SATIN, SAYS THE AUTUMN CRÊPE

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—I hinted gloomily last week that Studies in Style Life were rapidly becoming Studies in Still Life. As I look at more radio sketches from Paris and more offerings of our own local talent I am confirmed in my pessimism. Save for a few novelties of detail and a few pranks in line there is so little change that one is tempted to believe all the whole Parisian crew of couturiers were working solely in the interests of that universal type, the woman who wants to wear last year's clothes all through this year.

Nor is there any breath taking innovation in the matter of fabric. Of course there are always a few experiments in this respect, and our present season registers no point of departure from previous autumns. For example, the fabric wizards have frosted certain weaves until they look like farm house windows in mid-winter. In this same frosty breath one refers to the black broadcloth frosted in white which is exploited by Premet, and to the numerous frosted velours.

Then, too, they have been jazzing up kasha quite a bit and kasha clou d'or, which, translated, means simply kasha with a nail-head of gold, is being exploited now in New York. This metalized kasha is especially good for the jumper of the fall sports frock in combination with a skirt of plain kasha. In fact, it bids fair to make quite a hit (neat association of ideas considering the nail part of the fabric).

Undoubtedly the most spectacular fabric effort of the season occurs in the crocodile pattern. It really would seem that the reptilian age is being reacted today in the fashion world. Not only is Eve's original relationship with the serpent to be traced in shoes and bags and other accessories, but this autumn brings us the spectacle of a whole school of crocodile patterns. The surface of the aquatic monster's hide is reproduced variously in gold and silver cloth, in black wool, velours, and in rayon. What with the simultaneous vogue of tiers we may now speak feelingly of shedding a few crocodile tiers.

As to velvet, here again we encounter the habitual autumn emphasis. Of course, however, the traditional weave has benefited by some brand new experiments. There are numerous speckled and printed velvets that look quite different from anything of which Van Dyck ever dreamed and there has cropped up, also, a variety of velvet faconnes. In the same connection with which we refer to speckled velvets we may touch upon, too, those novel woolens which make use of a tweed weave to exploit the dot theme.

Black satin has not only retained its former clientele, but has got itself some new customers. And when one mentions this material one is brought straight to an important manifestation of the autumn. It is the wide vogue of the satin crêpe. From both New York and Paris, in a thousand deft contrasts between dull and shiny surfaces of the fabric, come these models of the ambidextrous weave. They are used for all occasions, but they register with especial force in those street frocks designed for September days.

The dull crêpes, too, are used. Georgette, for example! Street frocks, afternoon creations and evening models all record our undying fidelity to this familiar weave. Do not let us forget, either, that when it comes to the fashionable autumn ensemble the crêpe frock is a favorite consort for that velvet, velveteen, broadcloth or velours coat which is recommended by the authorities.

There is nothing commonplace about some of these embroideries. For instance, they sometimes employ ostrich flues for the embroidery medium. A second new note comes from the employment of silk embroidery on leather encrustations applied to the garment. And even when the motifs are developed in more bromidic ways there is always some touch of originality to redeem present day embroidery from any appearance of being a platitude.

Let us take, to begin with, the frock of gray crêpe—it may be flat, or georgette, or crêpe Elizabeth—sketched at the left. This model is of interest primarily in revealing the sanction given to one piece models opening down the front to disclose a panel that offers some note of difference. Sometimes the panel is of contrasting material, sometimes it is merely embroidered or plaited, but usually it is accompanied on either side by a full length revers. In this case the panel is plaited and the revers are covered with the same delicate tracery of silver thread notable on cuffs and collar. The silver note is repeated in buckles at belt and collar.

This model is charming either developed by itself or in the society of a coat. If the ensemble path to chic be followed then one can do nothing better than to make the accompanying wrap of black broadcloth or velvet and trim it with gray fur matching the gown. Incidentally, let me remark that gray is used to quite an extent by some of the great Parisian hierarchy, notably Lanvin.

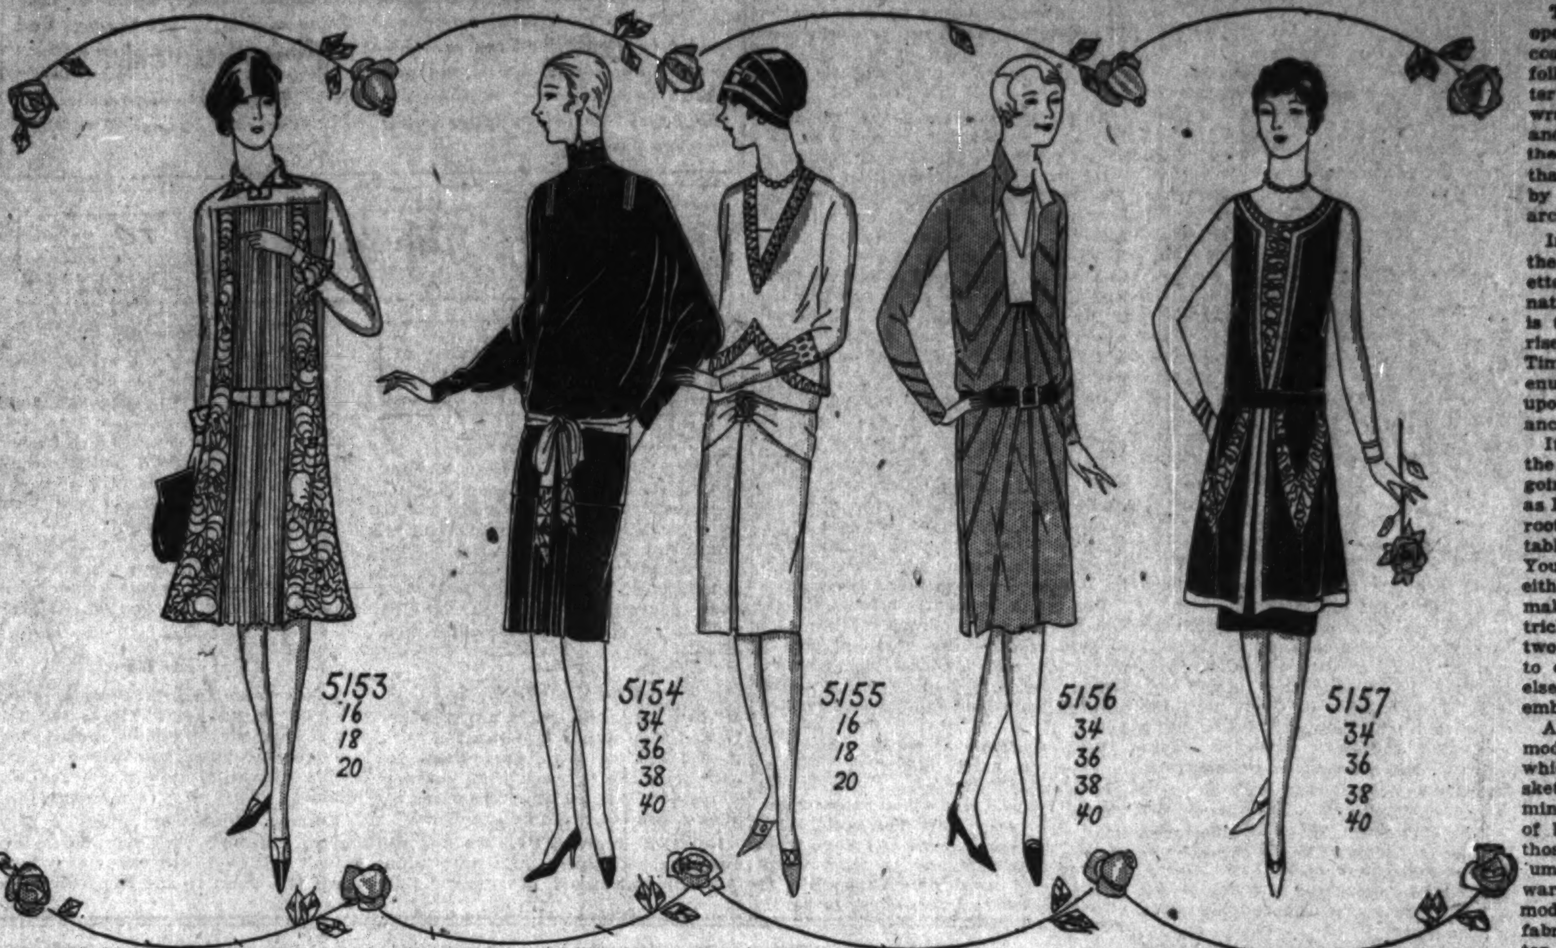
In the center of our page we show the ubiquitous satin crêpe in a silhouette which almost succeeds in dominating the fashion landscape. This is the one which develops a marked rise of the waistline in the direct front. Time and again we find this doctrine enunciated and repeatedly it draws upon the bolero for a complete utterance of that doctrine.

It would seem from a reference to the autumn color card that we are going in for as ardent vegetarianism as Bernard Shaw. Thus we have beetroot red and now, latest to the vegetable recruits, come eggplant purple. You may make our central sketch in either of these tints, provided you make it of satin crêpe and do the same tricks with bolero and girdle. These two are of the dull side of the fabric to contrast with the dull finish used elsewhere. The trimming used is gold embroidery.

Another manifestation of the new mode is the troubadour sleeve of which I spoke last week. Our second sketch from the left shows you the minstrel lay of the land in a creation of black satin crêpe. Here you see those wide sleeves cut in one with the jumper and tapering from elbow downward into a snugly fitted line. This model is made of the shiny side of the fabric with only the girdle and the top of the choker collar to remind you of its double life. Both this collar top and the ends of the girdle are ornamented with encrustations of red and gold. In passing, let me say that such encrustations occupy almost as exalted rank in the trimming world as does embroidery itself.

Another reminder of the trimming aristocracy consists of seaming in new and spectacular designs. The fact of it is that many an autumn model achieves that "different look" solely through the manipulation of seams. Bearing testimony to this fact is the fourth model from the left, one of golden brown crêpe with belt, vestee and collar lining of brilliant red. The seams, all of which are banded in self material, make some telling new points.

Crêpes being the thesis to which I have devoted myself today I shall direct your attention finally to the georgette dinner dance frock at the extreme right. This is made of a pinky mauve georgette, banded in pale flesh pink georgette attached with silver thread and showing a vestee and skirt encrustations of brocaded georgette with a design of silver on a flesh pink background. The contours are of vital interest inasmuch as they point to the popularity of wide skirted tunic effects posed over a narrow foundation.



A gray crepe frock, seen at the extreme left, is embroidered in silver and demonstrates a few new tricks in revers and front panels.

Second, the newest sleeve of the season, is encountered in a black satin crêpe using the dull side for collar top and girdle and decorating these details with encrustations of red and gold.

In the center, the front upward movement of the bodice so often allied with the bolero is illustrated in an eggplant purple satin crepe embroidered in gold and employing the dull side for girdle and bolero.

Fourth from the left, a brown crepe trimmed with red achieves its look of difference through clever seamings bound in self-material.

Last, the new tunic effect is sought in a dinner gown of pinky mauve georgette banded in flesh pink georgette and allied with a flesh tinted georgette brocaded in gold.

2694—Woman's or miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material with ⅝ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

2716—Woman's or miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material with 1¼ yards of 18 inch contrasting.

2744—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 32 or 36 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE long lines of Pattern No. 2716 help make a figure look slender; and this is a point that will interest women of all ages, I fancy. The front and back of the dress are each cut in one piece from neck to hem, while at the sides there are circular insets cut in a pointed outline across the top. These insets give a graceful flare, but do not take away from that long line effect. One of those brilliantly colored novelty bandings is used for the front inset, collar and cuffs, and furnishes all the trimming necessary. At a yoke depth on the front the dress is slashed and a slight fullness thrown across the bust; this is always a good feature. The full length sleeves are cut in one piece and at the wrists gathered into narrow bands.

Of course it would also look well to make the front inset, collar and cuffs of the dress material if that is your choice, or of the same material as the dress is made of, but a contrasting color. Navy blue kasha or flat crepe would make up smartly if the dress is for afternoon wear, or coral crepe Roma, if becoming, would be lovely.

Girls' frocks are always interesting to make, and pattern No. 2744 is a dressy design, sure to delight. Wouldn't a chiffon printed voile make an adorable party frock, without using any contrasting materials or trimming? The dress is easy to cut and make, waist and skirt being cut separately and joined at a low waist line. The outline at the bottom of the waist is pretty, a scalloped instead of a straight edge. At the neck the dress is slashed down sufficiently to be able to put it on and off; and this slashed opening is underfaced and joined to a collar and tie strings that are cut in one piece. The string ends are long and add grace to the dress. The two piece skirt is flared and should be bound around the lower edge, and the long shoulders form short sleeves. Of course there is the usual one piece section to lengthen the sleeves to the wrists, if desired.

Skirt and waist should have seams finished, using French ones, and of course the skirt must be handled with care so it will not stretch where it flares. After both waist and skirt have been pressed they should be joined, pinning together first at each point, and then in between. Next they should be basted, and then finished. This isn't especially easy work and probably the easiest way will be to clip the waist edge all around and then turn in the edge towards the wrong side, making a quarter inch seam. Then pin in place on the skirt, allowing the same width seam there. After this first basting has been done, the skirt edge can be turned in and hemmed or stitched down. Cover the joining with a narrow shaped or bias band, using the same as for the bottom of the dress and sleeve edges.

Pattern No. 2694 is a charming design for an afternoon or informal evening frock, and it isn't difficult to make, either. It is cut to preserve a slim appearance, having the long, unbroken back line and the front in panel style. Even the shirring at the hips is placed in such a manner that it doesn't detract from this slim look. There are shirrings also on the front of the shoulders, a becoming feature. This shirring never looks well unless the stitches are small and evenly taken, and in order to accomplish this you must take time, and not hurry. The shirrings at the hips are drawn up close so as to preserve the close fit at the hipline, and the insets make the dress ripple gracefully, and yet the effect is one of straightness. At the bottom, for size 36, the dress measures about 2⅛ yards.

The dress is slashed at the neck and the edges are bound, and a round collar finishes the frock. The sleeves may be long or short, but the long ones will be smarter.

A Quaker gray flat silk crêpe, rose crêpe de chine or midnight blue crêpe Elizabeth are among the colors and materials that will make up prettily.

WILD FRUITS.

AT THIS time of year woods and pastures, hedgerows and roadsides, and even the park tangles of shrubbery yield fruits of wonderful tangs, and berries—to be shared generously with the birds without being entirely given over to them—to pot or jelly, to make into juices and to combine with what is called for to make rare desserts. The motorist who knows his botany can profit greatly by gathering these wildlings—if he will but stop.

In driving through sections slightly or not at all rural, quantities of elderberry blossoms have been seen this year, which means bushels of the fruit for various purposes for which the old cook books give the directions. One camper has remarked that stewed elderberries makes a passable dish of startling hue. Wild grapes have a rival use, and make interesting jellies. Hawthornes last spring gave promise of yielding the usual abundance of haws—tiny things to nibble, but all right for the saucepan.

The thorn apple hangs late, yet up to freezing is excellent for a remarkably handsome and interestingly flavored jelly. Wild crabs may be tiny, and seemingly all cells, but seed and cell do their part in flavoring a juice for a jelly that has its own worthwhile character.

Barberries with apple, or alone, make interesting conserves. An old-fashioned one was made with molasses and it tasted West Indian. Another, and even more brilliantly red fruit, that of the high-bush cranberry though not widely identified and used—the birds must be the gainers—is used by folk who have the time and inclination to make the rarer sorts of jellies. The bush is one beloved by the landscape gardener yet it grows where it listeth, and so often gives its beauty where no one notes it.

Wild Fruit Recipes.

One needs go to the old English cook books in particular to find of what service the wild fruits have been in filling preserve closets with charming rarities, but the more intelligent people of all Europe have used the wild fruits in something like the same measure they have used game, the great variety of which they know about, as we do not. By the way, we import to this day from England bramble jellies—blackberry—and the goldfish marmalade they send us seems a bit wild, though in a gayer way. It is an orange jelly with many tiny bits resembling fish suspended in it.

In our American cook books the wild fruits get some mention. Southern cook books are likely to give persimmon recipes, though the fruit is not confined in habitat to spots south of the Mason and Dixie line. In North Central Illinois there is one town at least that specializes in persimmon pudding.

Russian Recipes.

In that late publication called "The Borzoi Cook Book," a compilation and translation of Russian recipes, it tells how to make an interesting jam with the berries of the wild dog-rose which it tells us, in parenthesis, is the eglantine. The dictionary says it is the sweetbriar, but it is the poetical use of the word eglantine that has made this lovely word lovelier, or a name of delight. The recipe reads:

"Choose ripe, large, sound berries from a dog rose bush (eglantine). They should be hard. Scrape each berry and cut off tip. Through opening remove pulp with the aid of a bodkin or tiny spoon, and wipe inside to remove any pulp that may remain. There are fine hairs which must be removed. Drop berries into cold water and rinse several times, shaking about to make sure that all little hairs are gone. Put into saucepan, pour over boiling water, put on fire, and as soon as the water boils again pour berries out on a sieve and pour cold water over them. Then put a clean cloth over the sieve, and put each berry standing with the little hole underneath, to drain well. Prepare sirup. For every pound of berries use three pounds of sugar and two and three-fourth cups water. Let boil twice then put in berries and cook till tender. Remove scum which forms on jam. When tender pour into china bowl, tie a cloth over it and let stand for several days. Every now and then move the bowl about, so that the berries are well filled with sirup. Pour into jars and close with air tight stoppers or parchment paper. Keep in a dry place."

A Scotch American List of Jams.

Marion Harris Neil was a Scotch woman, and yet in her American book on "Canning, Preserving and Pickling," she gives a dozen or more recipes for using our American wild fruits, one of which, "wineberry," is certainly rather a new one to most people. What is it? As would be expected, since she was born in the British Isles, she makes use of the rose hips for jelly and puts them also into vinegar. The mulberry, the mountain ash, the elderberry—jam, wine, wild grape and elderberry jelly—and especially the barberry—five recipes—get attention in this book. Damsons receive attention, but in her recipe for "matrimony jam" the kind of plum to use is not mentioned. This recipe of entertaining name reads: "Two pounds apples, two pounds plums, two pounds pears, eleven cups sugar. Pare and core the apples, and stone the plums. Put the stones of the plums and the parings of the apples into a preserving pan with two cups of water. Simmer for thirty minutes and strain. While this is cooking peel and core the pears. Cut the apples and pears, and have them ready. Put the strained juice in the preserving pan with two cups of sugar, and when it boils, put in the apples, pears and plums. Boil for thirty minutes, then pour into glasses and cover."

Persimmons and Wild Grapes.

In "Next to the Ground," by Martha McCulloch-Williams, there are gratifying descriptions of the persimmon and wild grape, with due mention of their value to Brer Possum. She says that the persimmon tree is a sylvan immortelle. You never see a dead one. They spread and sprout and grow and bear, and grow in clumps in open fields or singly in the woods, and there are many varieties. "The early trees are often bare before frost, covering the ground underneath with their fruit, which is round, deeply flattened at either end, and of a deep tawny yellow, and thickly covered with the richest blue bloom. This early ripe fruit is lusciously sweet and juicy. Late persimmons hang on all winter, and are thus a real godsend to the wild things in the time of deep snow."

On page 160 of this book there is a description of the muscadine grape, and a few words about the wine that is made of it, the "proper making being tedious work."

The Early Golden Persimmon.

It seems that the horticulturists of the University of Missouri have become interested in the superior native varieties of this fruit in that state, and it is grown in home orchards just as all sorts of persimmons, especially large ones, are grown in California, and have had their story put into an interesting bulletin there. The Early Golden of Missouri has a fruit that may be one inch and a half in size and is ready to use before frost, being good to eat the last of September or first of October. The tree is considered valuable as an ornamental or shade tree.

Persimmon Pudding.

The following recipe was procured by a co-worker right from a persimmon region, but she did not care for it greatly because she says it "tastes exactly as perfume smells," yet after having a man beseech me most earnestly to get him such a recipe, because in his family persimmon pudding was "the thing" for Thanksgiving dinner, I was glad to get this: "One quart persimmons, two eggs, two cups sweet milk, one cup sugar, one cup flour, one-fourth cup butter, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt. Wash the persimmons and rub them through a sieve. Add the pulp to the milk and then the dry ingredients, sifted, and the eggs. Put into a buttered baking dish and bake one hour at 250 degrees."

That there are a number of ways of making this pudding was made certain when the following letter was received: "Can you give me a recipe for persimmon pudding? The recipe that I am looking for has no bread in it but is made of the fruit pulp, sour cream, soda, and flour, with other ingredients. I had this recipe, but have misplaced it and very anxious to get it again."

Persimmon Pudding with Bread.

Two pressed down cups of bread, one cup of milk or more if needed, two eggs, a cup or more of fruit pulp, a little salt and sugar or to taste, a bit of soda and spices to taste or just a little cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake in medium oven.

Persimmon Preserves.

The following recipe is one of nine persimmon recipes published half a dozen years ago by Flora G. Orr: "Put a thin layer of sugar in the bottom of a jar; then a layer of whole ripe persimmons, then a layer of sugar and so on until the jar is full. The sugar will soon dissolve and form a sirup. Press the upper fruits down under the sirup or add more sirup to the jars. Seal, and store until used. The sirup may be drained off and the fruit served like dates, which they will resemble very much in both appearance and flavor." We discovered this fact by making the bread pudding with dates instead of persimmons.

The Pawpaw.

Of late years there have been some interesting attempts to bring into greater prominence one of the fruits [wild] called pawpaw, which somewhat resembles a banana. Some government work was done with it and the decision was that it was not good cooked but that frozen and chilled dishes made of it were quite satisfactory and agreeable. But do not tell a Hoosier that the pawpaw is a new and strange fruit. Two years ago there was talk of giving a pawpaw banquet on the Wabash and several Hoosiers got excited when the strange papaya of Florida got into print and use as a pawpaw. Mr. Meredith Nicholson was quoted as saying: "The pawpaw is a food for the gods and we Hoosiers feeding upon it become not as other men. Our Hoosier women derive their beauty and wit and charm from it." And he said more than this. The pawpaw banquet was to be held to make the pawpaw known nationally, which it seems is called the "Hoosier banana." We dare to say that it might also be called a Kansas banana, because we ate it first in Kansas. It

My Greatest Thrill

Snowed In.

My most thrilling experience occurred in the northwest, where winters are severe and transportation always uncertain. I boarded a train [two small coaches and an old locomotive] with a few others one afternoon, in the middle of an extremely cold winter, to make a short run on a branch line.

A light snow was falling on the already white prairie and the train plowed through slowly for an hour, when it ran against a snow filled cut-out. Here we were completely blocked and after several attempts to back up and then buck the snow, we settled down for an indefinite stay in what might have been a human refrigerator. Snow drifted in around us until we were unable to see out of the windows, for with darkness came a heavy snow and a terrific wind—a western blizzard.

There was no food on the train. A coffee salesman donated his samples, and coffee was made in primitive style. Unfortunately, the only other salesman handled tobacco.

The coaches were heated by small stoves in each end, this being a constant worry. Would the supply of coal hold out? The night dragged along, hunger increased the fires slowed up to conserve the supply of fuel. Our seats became unbearable. There was little or no ventilation on account of the extreme cold outside and the scant amount of heat on the inside. What took place in the minds of other passengers might make a story. My thoughts dwelt on the warm places of the world, on home and on the outcome of my then sorry lot.

We watched a clear day dawn. Tears of joy were in the eyes of one woman passenger. Several of us crawled out to bath our faces in the snow, and all shouted a greeting when we heard the whistle of the snow plow. Egg sandwiches were brought to us, but they were frozen, and it was not until noon that we were able to sit down to a warm dinner—almost tweny-four hours after the start of what turned out to be my most thrilling experience.

Hanging to Life.

While fishing one day along a deep and swiftly flowing stream I was attracted by the incessant flopping of fish beneath a willow across the stream and decided to get across and try my luck there.

My only chance to cross was a near by railroad bridge, a single track affair, and narrow, built merely of spaced ties.

I had made my way to the center of the bridge, walking along gingerly, when a whistle of a locomotive behind me startled me. To my horror the monster was almost upon me. In an instant I was flat on my face on the ends of the ties. Grasping one beneath either arm, I let myself gradually down, hanging suspended by my arms as the train rushed past my face a scant foot off.

To have dropped into the river would have meant certain death by drowning, for I could not swim.

Through the Ice.

A girl friend and I were skating alone on one of the Madison lakes one Sunday evening a few years ago. Suddenly the ice ended abruptly and we went hand in hand into the cold water. That made plenty of thrills all at once. It was dark, nobody was within calling distance, perhaps the girl didn't know how to swim, perhaps neither of us could get out. Maybe the legendary scene of the little German boy Hans' mittens being found next day frozen to the edge of the ice would be enacted again, perhaps my sheepskin coat would weigh me down before I could get it off.

But the girl did know how to swim and after a few pieces of this ice had broken off with us, we managed to pull ourselves out. The final thrill was that we rated a banner headline in one of the Madison papers.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

CASTORIA

When Baby Complains.

There are many ways a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a manner not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation — Wind Colic — To Sweeten Stomach

Flatulence — Diarrhea — Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

RESULTS OF JEALOUSY

JEALOUSY—father of doubt, suspicion, and anxiety. We're all acquainted with the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business quarrels, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. Hiding.

Mother just received callers and I, not caring to meet them, went upstairs to go to bed. Instead of being in my own room I was in hers when I heard voices in the hall.

Supposing she was bringing her friends to see her newly furnished room, I hid in the closet. The guests were about to leave, when mother said, "You must see my closet."

Whereupon she opened the door and revealed to the astonished visitors a stooping figure with a red face.

Right in His Soup.

While attending school, I ate my luncheon at a nearby cafeteria which was also the favorite place of one of my instructors.

One day it so happened that he passed along just ahead of me and, while doing so, I noticed a thumbtack on the counter.

I picked it up and said in a joking manner, "How would you like to have this in your soup?"

I had no sooner said it than the thumbtack slipped out of my fingers and right into his soup. I dreaded to go to that class for the rest of the year. A. S.

Seated Together.

I was given a single reserved seat at my son's commencement. My husband was unable to attend. I entered the hall just ahead of a slight acquaintance, a bachelor.

The usher took both tickets at once and led the way. To the utter surprise of both of us, we had seats directly beside each other.

No one else had yet been seated in that row, so there we sat—a married woman, apparently leaving her husband for this bachelor friend.

These thoughts were bad enough for both, but matters were made worse when acquaintances of "my partner" passed us with knowing but inquisitive smiles on their faces." MRS. M.

Why She Refused.

It was my first trip to the big city, and my older brother was trying to keep me from showing my ignorance. He succeeded until we went into the restaurant for dinner.

Among other things I ordered cantaloupe, but the waiter shook his head.

"We have no cantaloupe," he said. "Honey dew?"

"No, thank you, I don't care for honey," I started to explain, and stopped as I felt my brother's warning kick under the table.

But it was too late, and I suffered keen embarrassment as the people at the neighboring tables laughed with the waiter. M. C. W.

Gift Was Spurned.

We have a friend visiting us and she asked if we had a shawl, as it was cold. I gave an old green one that had been lying around the house for about two years and that every one hated.

As I gave it to her I said, "Here, take this one. No one around here likes it."

She turned red and said, "I gave this to your mother a few years ago for a Christmas gift." I. W.

She Brought Her Sewing.

I am fond of embroidery and always have something at the office to work on during the noon hour. As we were not busy, I was sewing during office hours when one of the bosses came in for a card. I eased up out of my chair, laid my sewing in it, and pushed it under my desk. When I handed him the card he wanted to put a notation on it, so he pulled my chair from under the desk and sat on the needle.

I never knew why I was not fired. L. M.

A Sudden Drenching.

I had persuaded my father to let me help him sprinkle the lawn, and while I had the hose turned on the street parking something bit me on the arm. Of course, I jumped, and this caused the hose to change its direction, and the stream hit full blast an open car full of people that was just passing. I suppose they thought I did it purposely, for they stopped the car as soon as they could and one of the men got out and started back towards the house.

By that time I had explained to father how it happened, so he went to meet the angry and wet man who was approaching. I was sneaking into the house to avoid any possible unpleasantness, but father insisted that I come forward and offer an apology for the ducking I had given them, even though it was accidental. They took it rather ungraciously, and I was glad when they departed. Hereafter I shall confine my efforts to the rear lawn. L. W.

TIPS TO THE BUSINESS WOMAN

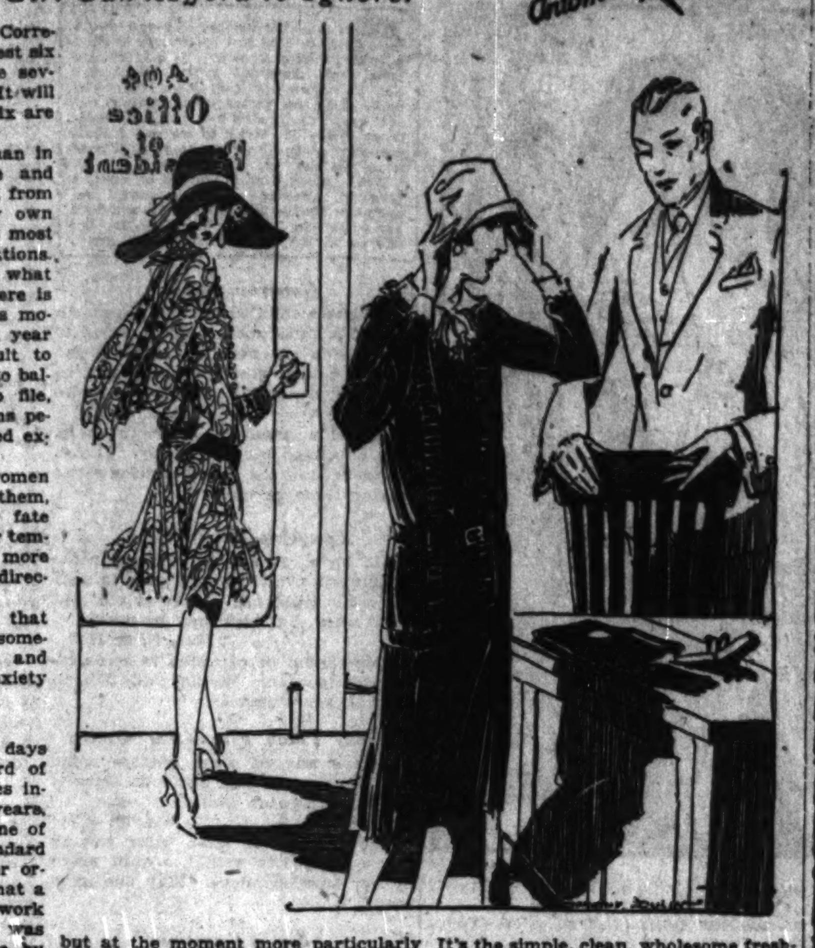
by Antoinette Donnelly



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Look your best six days a week—and let the seventh take care of itself. It will—and handsomely if the other six are handled intelligently.

This is my advice to the woman in business, advice gathered here and there from employment bureaus, from employers direct, and from my own observations on the type that is most popular around business organizations.

The ear of the young worker is what I particularly desire today. There is a fair sized army of her at this moment struggling through a first year with notes more or less difficult to transcribe, with figures difficult to balance, with papers confusing to file, with a hundred different problems peculiar to the worker with limited experience.

The majority of these young women hope to marry. A number of them, no doubt, expect to meet their fate and will right in the path of their temporarily adopted careers. And more power to them in matrimonial directions!

But with the new freedom of that pay envelope of theirs they are sometimes apt to do foolish things and reflect in their dress an overanxiety to be noticed.

Making a Good Impression.

When I say look your best six days of the week, I mean every word of it. With all the other efficiencies incorporated in business of recent years, the efficient appearance is not one of the least, by a long way. The standard of looks in the bigger and better organizations is high. The idea that a girl cannot accomplish a lot of work without looking as though work was all she had to live for has gone by the boards along with many other old fogy notions.

Employers want good looking women in their establishments. They want them smart looking—BUT they do not want them gaudy. They do not want girls around who suggest the footlights in any way whatsoever! Business men, my dear young women, are far too jealous of their business reputations to risk their standing with frivolous looking females about.

I speak of this too gay appearance, first, because, being young and amateurs at makeup, it is on cosmetics as well as on clothes that you younger women are apt to err.

The beauty standard in business, as I have said, is high, and the latitude permitted in good dressing for office hours broad. But the type of beauty in business is a business type of beauty, which is never flamboyant, never theatrical, never tawdry nor cheap.

With your pay envelope you are now confronted with the question of what to put your money into that will best serve your ambitions to look attractive.

Start a Savings Account.

My first plea would be to start a savings account at once, if you have not done so already. I'm thinking of the feeling of security it gives you, but at the moment more particularly of the steadying factor of a savings account when it comes to making purchases. It is my own observation and that of others to whom I've talked that the worst dressed among the younger business women are those who buy extravagantly. By that I mean buying a number of dresses in a season that have a certain flair, but no wearing quality. It is absolutely true that you can be better dressed on two dresses chosen for quality, cut and wear than you can on half a dozen chosen because they caught your eye in a shop window. Also, you are better dressed for your own advancement, business or matrimonial, if you do not put your all into one extravagance like a fur coat and have to save on dresses, shoes and expenses of personal upkeep that are going to matter more in the greater number of hours spent indoors.

If the question comes up with you as to whether you should put more money into a party dress than your daytime frock, most unqualifiedly I'd advise the economy on the party frock. It's better business. You wear the daytime dress oftener and you wear it longer.

One need not say to the young business woman: Wear a black dress or a dark blue one. You are entitled, nowadays, to wear the color that is most becoming to you and to the occasion. The occasion will limit your choice some, but still you will have variety enough in shades to suit manifold types. The pastel shades are out, of course, as they are for party occasions, and garish colors, too, are for other hours.

Be simple. This is not the dress rule merely for the woman in business, but for the well dressed woman no matter what her vocation.

Good Taste Is Important.

Don't overload yourselves with jewelry. A simple string of beads, yes, a bracelet, if you will, and a ring. But don't hang yourself with baubles. They're bad taste anywhere. In an office they are cheap.

And about cosmetics: You see older women applying makeup and you think if you don't it shows you're not on to all that you should know. The older woman uses cosmetics less lavishly, for one thing, and for another she is trying to restore the effect of youth, which you have no reason to do. Don't try to look sophisticated. There's time enough for that when the old world has stamped experience on your face. Even that you need never acquire if you keep the right spirit in your heart.

The vamp has gone out of style in the movies. She's dead as that extinct bird you've been cross-puzzling over. It's the simple, clean, wholesome freshness of youth that is wanted of you by everybody, including your esteemed employer.

Rules of Living.

There are rules of living I'd ask you to begin implanting in your daily curriculum in order that you may have that quality of beauty that gets the business girl somewhere. Begin your morning with a shower. Take your warm bath the night before. Get the habit early of doing exercises the first thing when you get up. Eat a wholesome breakfast with fruit, a cereal, a bit of bacon and an egg. Walk part way to work. Eat a luncheon in quiet and choose foods that will stick for the afternoon. Walk part way home; rest a few moments before partaking of your dinner.

Have a good time while you're young, by all means. But don't spend every night dancing in smoke filled halls and robbing yourself of needed sleep. Divide your evenings for pleasure so that two or three late hour occasions do not run in succession.

Whether you marry or whether you don't it is these early year habits that are going to make your success. And it is these very rules of personal hygiene I urge that are going to bring your appearance up to and keep them at the standard of business beauty we're talking about.

Be crisp, clean, fresh about yourself. Use cosmetics sparingly if you must use them. Be fastidious about the care of your hair, teeth, skin and finger nails. Your features may be plain, but if you are neat, wholesome and clean you'll still measure up to the standard of beauty favored by employers.

Beauty Answers

L. J. W.: IT IS BECAUSE OF YOUR poor circulation that you feel the cold. A cold shower every morning would improve the circulation. If possible arrange to take a walk of several miles a day. I have a set of exercises called "My Youth Preservers," which you may do at home if you haven't the time for outdoor exercises. Send along a stamped, addressed envelope for them.

MISS M. R.: I HAVE SOME splendid exercises for development of the busts, which I'll be glad to send you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope. At night, bathe the busts with hot water, then gently massage with cocoanut oil for about 15 minutes, that the oil may be absorbed into the tissues. Then bathe with cold water. If you will keep up this treatment for several months you'll find a great improvement.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

FALL BRIDAL HATS.

THIS season when the bride sets the wedding date for early fall she will have a wonderful selection of delicate shades to choose from for her wedding hat, which can be either felt, satin, or faille silk. The colors come under such fascinating classifications as Powder Puff and Fairy Tale shades. In the latter a blue much like periwinkle is called Blue Beard blue; the Peter Pan green is a shade between apple and deep river green; Cinderella gray is a little darker than the opal gray which has been shown so much; Mother Goose tan is a soft shade of tan with a glint of gold in it; Sleeping Beauty pink is also a soft, pretty shade; Aladdin's Lamp runs into the wood shades which have been shown for some time; Brier Rose is in the raspberry shading.

In the Powder Puff shades the colors run a little stronger. The Steeplechase and Jockey Club blue remind us of royal blue, with which we are so familiar. In the greens there are jungle, wintergreen, paradise; also Eve, Eden and Locarno. The midnight sun, sun-god and totem are in the burnt orange shadings. In the browns we have sweet-meat, toast, tiffin, and stroller's tan. If the bride wishes to choose any of the colors named, the bridesmaids wear tones a little darker.

Felt hats are preferred for the occasion. A slight mushroom in front, the back a brim turning up tight to the crown. The crowns are tacked and dented in on all sides. Any style that suits the bride's face is the correct style. In most of the smart shops hats are being fitted to the customer's head. A nice thing about selecting a felt hat for the wedding hat is it can be worn that day and then used also on the wedding trip. Little trimming is needed—a narrow ribbon around the bottom of the crown with a smart tailored bow on the right side, and a single initial pin complete the hat shown here.

My Idea of a Real Vacation

To Alaska.

An enjoyable vacation, one that I have always looked forward to, is a trip to Alaska—"Seward's Folly," as it is sometimes called.

One could go by the coast train to Oregon, and from a seaport there take a steamship to Alaska.

The first stop would be Juneau, Alaska's capital city, at the foot of the mountains. It certainly would be wonderful to compare the daily transactions and lives of these people with ours.

With keenest delight I would go out to see the beautiful Mendenhall glacier, about ten miles from Juneau, with the picturesque Auk lake at its base, surrounded with beautiful pines and firs.

Then there would be visits to salmon canneries and mines, and hikes up the mountains. The Indians in this country especially are known for their beautiful handicraft.

There are numerous points of interest—Douglas and Ketchikan—and then the more barren parts north of these cities. Nome and Seward are interesting cities.

I am certain that after taking a vacation as interesting as the one described above one could feel that it was the most enjoyable as well as educational one that one had ever had. E. K.

Bring Out the Hidden Beauty

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or wrinkled complexion is one fair to look upon? Mercolized Wax will gradually and gently peel off the devitalized surface skin, revealing a new, fresh, white, beautiful skin underneath. The new complexion is a perfectly natural one, therefore in no way to be compared with a make-up. The wax leaves no trace but that of increased loveliness.

A New Skin—Your Own!—at small expense and effort. Simply apply Mercolized Wax at bedtime as you apply cold cream; wash it off in the morning. Fine, almost invisible skin particles are flecked off with the wax. No harm possible. No detention indoors. The lively young, healthy underskin is brought gradually to view—you have the exquisite complexion of robust girlhood—and every one will tell you.

You Look Years Younger—Assist Nature if she needs your help. Obtain an ounce of Mercolized Wax from your druggist or department store, use as directed—and you will bless the day that you made the acquaintance of this wonder working product.

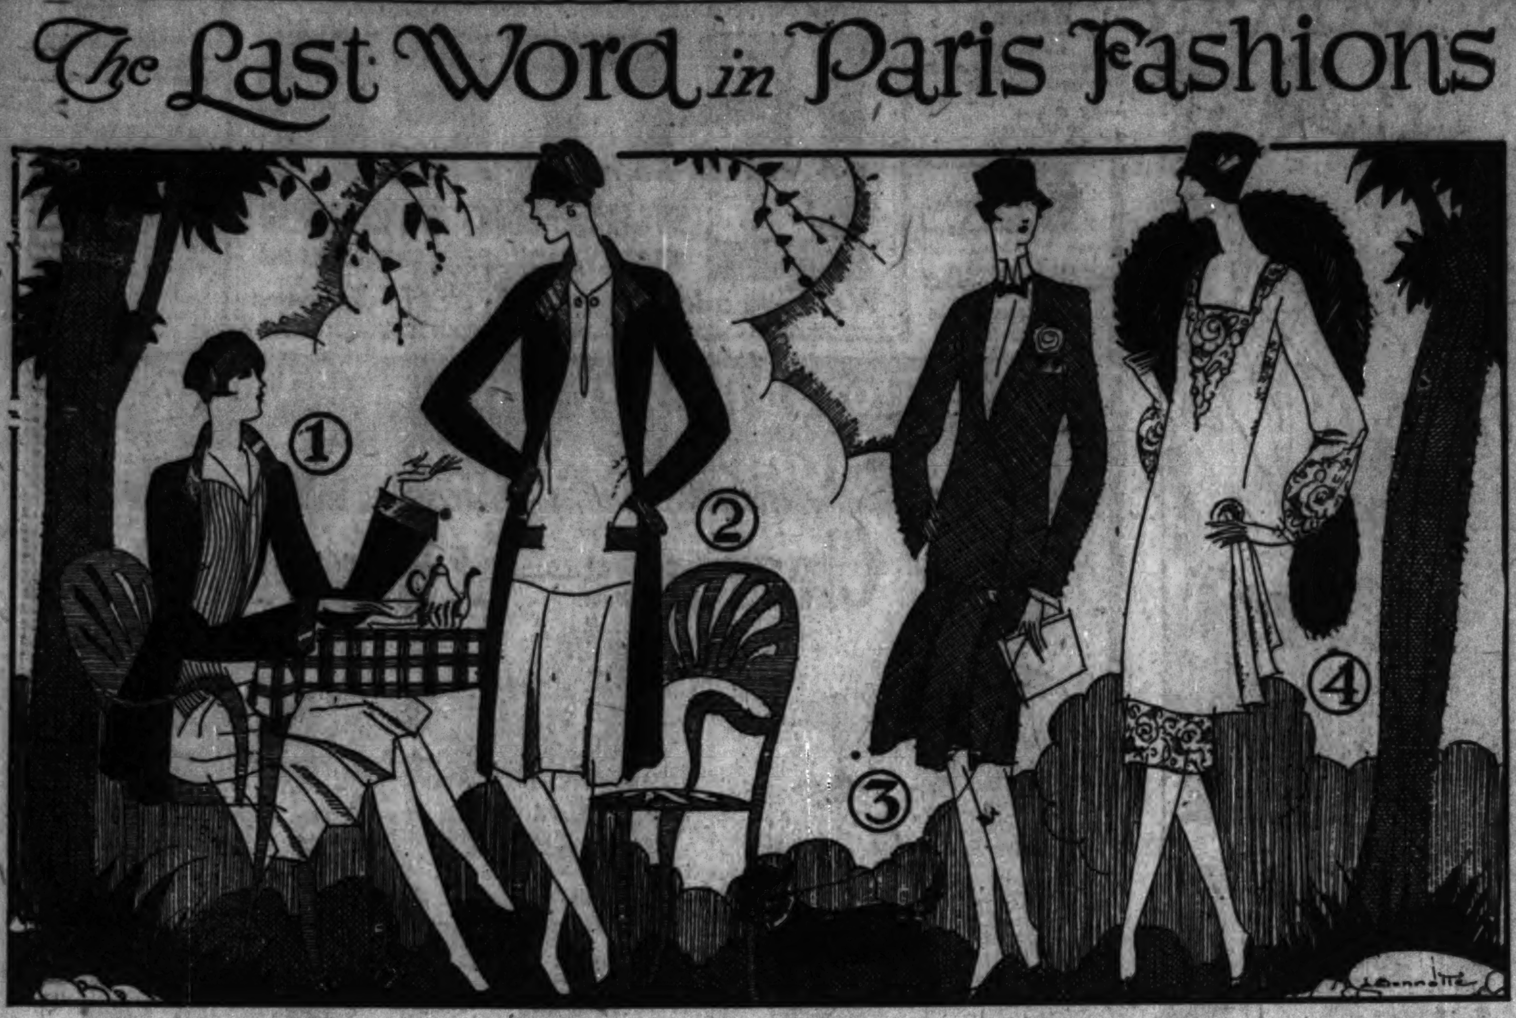
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



1.—Plum red velvet jacket and gray broadcloth frock make a popular Paris autumn ensemble.

2.—The long straight coat is brique velvet and the frock peach beige kasha. Throw in a belt across the hips in back on coat and dress and you have a smart fall ensemble.

3.—The tailleur occupies an important place in the fall fashions of Paris. A tailleur in rust colored woolen with gilet of rose crepe.

4.—Beige moire, embroidered in tones of brown, gray and black. Note the knee length tunic and one-side movement.

Here's First News from Autumn Fashion Front Line in Paris

By Bettina Bedwell

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—We are in the midst of the autumn openings in Paris. Some dozen or so of the fifty fall fashion shows have already occurred, and there is activity all along the front line of fashion. Buyers from America, North and South, Sweden, England, Italy, Germany, and the lesser provinces are massed and waiting to go over the top with the new mode. Journalists are the stretcher bearers who take the wounded and dead offerings off the field and either bury them decently or help to nurse them back to life. Before the actual slaughter starts they send home the news of the couturiers' armies of new models, so you can decide for yourselves whether they ought to be killed or allowed to live.

I was talking recently to an important buyer for a magnificent American store, and he was complaining because he had so far seen no fashion radical enough to come up and hit him in the eye. Well, poor man, I think he is going to have a lot more disappointment, because I am certain that no Paris couturier is going to launch any style so different from what we have seen as to walk up and assault a defenseless person's vision with its strange and untoward appearance. So there will probably be no occasion for women to turn down their thumbs in the sign of death.

The Paris couturiers are creating their autumn styles for the women who will wear them, and not for the purpose of causing the buyer's pulse to miss a beat in the excitement of finding something new. There is plenty that is new, but it is not spectacular, and there you are!

First off, I want to talk about color and fabric, because you must have material, and it has to have color before you can even commence an autumn style. Therefore, let's begin at the A B C. Daytime now, night later. One first fabric lesson in the new mode is the union of velvet and broadcloth, of, if you like, velvet and some other wool—both either plain, or velvet plain with the wool printed in a small design, or melange [mixed]. This combination is favored by Paris style creators for sports and for street costumes. Generally these fabrics come in new colors and warm tones. There is a lot of red for daytime, and so far couturiers are divided on the kind of red that should be worn. There are some who favor a crushed raspberry red, others, and in greater numbers, want a plum red that is almost brown. Still others want the red of the brique, lifted into the seventh heaven of delicacy.

Our first model today shows the velvet and broadcloth combination and the majority red, which is a brownish plum color. There is a jacket made of velour anglais, or velveteen, a finger tip length with sleeves that show a broadening influence at the wrist. It is guiltless of any form of fastening, so you hold it together [and it barely meets in front] if the breezes from Lake Michigan are sufficiently stiff. Otherwise you just let it go and follow its own sweet line. The band collar and the band cuffs of this jacket are gray broadcloth, something between a pearl and a slate gray.

The dress is the same fabric and the same color. Paris had nothing to do with the American gray vogue of this spring. Nobody over here wore gray. But now, that gray has run its course in Etats Unis, Paris has decided that gray is, after all, quite a nice color. So now we have a Paris vogue for it. As I said before, the frock in our first model is gray broadcloth, with a waist made of fine, hand-run tucks, and a skirt that falls in geometric folds from the knees to the hemline. In France there is a matter of four or five inches between the knee and hemline. In America, they tell me, the knee and the hemline are one. Paris couturiers, speaking in the person of Lucien Lelong, do not like the knee length hemline. They say that anything exaggerated becomes ridiculous, and this includes the hemline. Not too long, not too short. Think about that. Knees are a treat when you don't see too many of them. Anyway, Paris styles insist that the skirt shall be well below the knee, and there is no authentic information that Parisiennes lose any chic or any charm thereby.

To go on to our next model, this also promotes the vogue for velvet and broadcloth—this time honest to goodness velvet of the panne persuasion. The coat is a sort of rosy brique, straight line and unassuming, with a belt across the back only just at the hips. Remember this is a fashion detail for fall. The dress is a sort of peach-beige kasha. Kasha is still strong in Paris, where elegance, rather than novelty, is the sign of chic. The coat with its belted back also places further emphasis in the rear with a deep shoulder yoke and a bit of blouse over the top of the hip length belt. The coat is lined with peach-beige kasha, and the collar, revers, and cuffs are of the same material.

The frock has a vareuse blouse—nothing particularly new about that, but the fact that this blouse has a belt across the back only is new. The back is also bloused in keeping with the line of the coat. For the rest of it, there are inset pockets with diagonal kasha bands to set them off, a plain round neck, slit down the center front and attached by two buttons, and a skirt with three inverted plaits. This tricorne-plait system in autumn skirts is particularly significant. Put two inverted plaits at the sides of the skirt front, and one at the center back, and you have a sports skirt that is sure to be chic throughout the entire season. I say this advisedly.

Let's get on to the tailleur. The tailleur is an essential part of the Parisienne's wardrobe. Time was America alone wore the tailleur, but now it is Paris that wears it "whether or not," and the new autumn season is no exception. It is a different tailleur. First of all, there is the fabric. The new autumn tailleur is made of a rather rough woolen fabric, and in the case of our third model, a rust brown [a much stressed color]. Double breasted, yes'm, just like the prince of Wales and the Ensignes, and with a skirt that flares a lot in front and follows a straight and slinkly line at the sides and the back. There is a gilet of rose pink crêpe de chine, with a nicely stiffened arrow collar and a tiny tie of black satin, and there is a boutonierre made of a rubberized rose with three small green leaves. Every detail is important if you want Paris chic.

The fourth model shown here is an example of a great come-back—the return of the tunic. Tunics are amongst us once more for autumn styles, and foremost are the tunics that begin at the shoulders and end at the knees. If, as in this model, the tunic has a one-side-only flare of plaits or godets, it is particularly favored. The color of this frock is beige, a regular honest beige, and its sleeves, neckline, and underskirt are decorated with embroidery done in brown, gray, and black. Not an exciting color scheme, but one which is never tiresome or banal. The material is a moire, a fabric Paris likes extremely for autumn frocks, coats, and ensembles.

ATTRACTIVE GUEST ROOMS.

COMBINATIONS and arrangements which we dearly love, but which we would not care for as regular diet, may be indulged in satisfactorily, in the decoration of the guest room. We must remember, though, that livable comfort should pervade the room just as surely as does a pleasing color scheme. There should be good springs and mattresses on the beds, convenient lighting arrangements, comfortable chairs, and a substantial bureau or chiffonier for the man guest, as well as a frivilous dressing table for the woman. Too often, a guest room is purely feminine in character. We are liable to lose sight of the fact, in planning, that as frequently as not, the guest, or guests, are men. Can you think of anything much more foolish than a great, husky man ensconced in a beruffled, beribboned, little bedroom? Might as well give him a lace cap, too, and be done with it! It is a good idea to remember, in planning a guest room, to make the room impartial as to gender, gaily colorful, and luxuriously comfortable, so that it will be warmly and happily remembered.

Distinctive and different from the general run is a room done in black and white and red. The walls are covered with a white paper, with red "peppermint" stripes running diagonally across it. Woodwork is painted black, to match the black enameled furniture. At the windows are white China silk curtains, quite full, weighted at the lower edges with alternating black and red beads of heavy glass. Covers on the twin beds are of glossy black fur, for winter use, and shirred black taffeta for summer, with a long pillow cover of red damask.

Beneath one of the windows a set of open book shelves is built in. Placed nearby is a chaise longue, upholstered in red damask, matching the pillow covers. It is fitted with several small black satin cushions, and is accompanied by an end table with a black glass top, on which are kept smoking accessories, and a black iron lamp with a white parchment shade, banded in black and red. Side lights and a lamp between the beds have shades to match. A deep red carpet covers the floor.

Of an entirely different character is the guest room in a small house done in the colonial style. This room has white wall paper decorated with fine, green circles, widely spaced. Woodwork is painted white. At the windows are roller shades of beautifully flowered glazed chintz. Curtains and valances are of ruffled rose colored organdy. A wing chair and a little slipper chair are upholstered in glazed chintz matching the roller shades. Pieced quilts, covering the twin four post beds have rose as their dominant color on a white ground. Glass lamps, with accordion plaited shades of glazed chintz, are conveniently placed. Hooked rugs lend a note of interest to the floor, which is painted a deep, dark green.

The room illustrated today embodies an interesting color scheme. The walls are done in a lemon yellow paper. Woodwork is painted a deep ivory, to match the furniture which is decorated with touches of gold in its paneling. Scalloped lambrequins and draperies at the windows are of heavy taffeta in brilliant turquoise, spattered with mauve colored rosebuds, and bound with mauve at the edges. They are lined with ivory sateen. Beneath them hang glass curtains of mauve chiffon, picoted instead of hemmed, across the lower edge, so that their light, filmy effect is not spoiled. Covers on the twin beds are of turquoise taffeta matching the draperies. A shade on the little black lamp between the beds is of finely plaited mauve chiffon over ivory silk finished with bands of turquoise velvet and a tiny bunch of French silk flowers. A small, comfortable arm chair is upholstered in heavy turquoise satin and is given an extra cushion of black satin, piped with coral. Deep mauve chenille covers the floor.

Less pretentious and delightfully effective is a cottage guest room. The color scheme is based on an unusual plaid gingham. It is done in saffron pink, corn yellow and light old blue. The walls are saffron, and the woodwork is blue. Peasant furniture of simple, sturdy lines is painted blue to match. On the beds are covers made of the plaid gingham, boxed to fit, and hanging straight to the floor at the sides. They are finished with bands of plain blue. Glass curtains at the windows are of corn yellow marquisette, with over curtains, valances and tiebacks of plaid gingham. In one corner of the room is a fourfold screen, upholstered in the gingham. It successfully hides an old fashioned washstand. Almost completely covering the floor are strips of rag rugs, dyed a deep, dark blue.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Generous Offer.

"I have a child's high chair, a stroller, and a good warm baby bunting to give to any one needing them. I also have a woman's winter coat, size 36 or 38, some one may be able to make use of. Mrs. C. F."

Here's a generous offer to make both baby and mother happy. If you are in need of the above articles write me for them at once.

Encyclopedia to Give.

"I have a set of Encyclopedia Britannica which I would give to any one who could use it. It is old and quite worn, but still may be used. "Mrs. R. G. H."

This should be of value to some interested reader. Would you like to have these volumes?

Needs Patch Pieces for Quilt.

"Have any of your readers some silk or cotton scraps of goods suitable for making patch quilts? "A. P. S."

The pieces left from your sewing would look quite well in a quilt made by our correspondent. May she have them?

For a Vacation.

"I have been working all summer and in order to have a vacation bought an old Ford to take a trip. However, it needs tires badly and I wonder if any of your readers have any old casing, tubes or rims which may still give a bit of service? Anything in this line, size 30 by 3½, will be greatly appreciated. J. R. P."

Perhaps some corner of your garage holds just the equipment this young man needs to make his vacation an ideal one. Let me know if you can help him.

Art Student Needs Lettering Books.

"I am an art student working my way through school. I need some lettering books and I can't afford to buy them. If any of your readers have any not in use I will be most thankful for them. M. S."

Have you the books this ardent young student needs to complete his education? If you've already mastered the art you might pass them on to him.

Use for That Tent.

"The doctors tell me my life might be prolonged somewhat by living out of doors and I want to go back to my native state. I need a tent and my small pension will not permit me to buy one and pay my way back. Could one of your readers help me? E. W."

If you've finished with your camping equipment for the summer, this would be a splendid way to dispose of the tent. This poor fellow could make good use of it and it might be the means of restoring his health.

For a Blind Person.

"I have some Braille Magazines to give any one wanting them. The contents consist mostly of articles on current topics and would probably be of greater interest to some one who knows Braille, rather than to one just learning it. Miss P."

Any one familiar with the Braille system could make good use of this offer. If you are interested, write me at once.

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the filmy sea nettle which floats in the waters of most coasts in the summer time and stings the occasional swimmer should have as a cousin the coral polyp, the sturdiest builder of the ages!

These sea nettles spend their lives floating like so many parachutes in the atmosphere of the blue waves. Capture one of them and place it on a newspaper in the sunshine, and in a day or two there is left little more than a stain.

The sea nettle belongs to a family known as polyps, which word means "many feet," when it is taken apart. Each of its streamers is a foot or an arm with which it reaches out for its food.

There are as many kinds of polyps in the ocean as there are flowers on the land. Only one of these, however, has ever amounted to anything. All of them have lived a while and gone back to the water from which they came but this one. It is the coral polyp. It is a sea nettle that has learned the knack of doing one small thing beyond its fellows. This trick of this particular bit of jelly that floats in the water has done a tremendous thing. It has built continents.

The coral polyp learned to separate lime from the sea water. The oyster does the same thing for the making of its shell. When the coral polyp had got the knack it settled down to one spot instead of floating willy nilly about the ocean.

It settled on a rock. It got lime for its house and cemented that structure tight on the rock. In a little while it died and the jelly part of it disappeared. But the tiny house stuck to the rock. The rock was just a little bigger because of it.

When a thousand billion of these polyps had died and left their houses stuck to this same rock, it was a good deal bigger than it had been before. It came a little higher up toward the surface of the water.

This sort of thing went on for a million years. The lime that the coral polyps had added to this rock had brought it to the surface of the ocean. In the end it became an island. The seed of a mango tree caught here, grew, threw out its roots to gather in the floatage of the ocean. Cocoanut trees grew and men came to subsist on their fruit. So were many new lands born to the world, structures greater than those of even man himself.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

A family in the next block have six little "steps," the oldest being 9 years and the youngest 6 months.

Judy returned from playing there one morning, and announced, "O, muvver, I's been havin' the bestest time over to Browns!"

"Is that so?" returned mother. "I suppose you were playing with Neddy." [Neddy is just Judy's age.]

"Nope," corrected Judy. "I was playin' wiv, O, you know, the one that's des one size smaller!

After a great deal of persuasion, Billy's father at length consented to let him have a dog. So the dog was duly purchased and handed over to the delighted Billy.

"Now," cautioned his father, "this is no ordinary cur, but an expensive Boston bull pup that will have to have a great deal of care."

Shortly afterwards, on his way to the store for some special dog biscuits, Billy hailed one of his friends and told him of the arrival of the dog.

"What breed is your dog?" inquired his friend.

"Oh gee," was the answer, "I can't remember the name but he's an expensive little fat dog with a pug nose."

I had taken Billie to the barber shop and found his father there ahead of us, seated and completely covered with towels, etc., except for his feet.

Pointing to them Billie said, "Those are my father's shoes. Is my father in them?"

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP
PEPSIN

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No Other Laxative Can Replace Dr. Caldwell's in the Confidence of Those Who Use It

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grown-ups, so compounded that elderly people who are constantly forced to take a laxative find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for thirty years, and over ten million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

Write "Syrup Pepsin," 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for a free sample bottle.

CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Nickel Nurser.

I was driving through on a state highway from Toledo to Cleveland. Just beyond the city limits of the first named place, I came upon a fairly well dressed man, walking in the direction in which I was going and carrying a heavy suit case. Having plenty of room in my coupé, I stopped and picked him up. It developed that he was going to Elyria—through which I would have to pass, about thirty miles before I reached Cleveland.

"Well, sir," he began the conversation, after having told me where he was bound, "do you know how much money I saved last year by getting rides this way from town to town? Well, sir, my wife and I figured it out the other night and—"

Such was the line of his talk, and it lasted almost continually until we had completed over 100 miles and were about to enter Elyria. Of course, I had him doped out as a confirmed nickel nurser, but the most lovable of his traits had yet to come to the surface.

When we had passed through the Elyria city limits, he said his house was only one block off the main highway and he would appreciate it if I could drive by that way and save him the walk. Foolishly, I consented to do this, and we pulled up in front of his house. His wife was on the porch and I had barely come to a full stop before he dashed out of the car and ran up to her, the two falling into an enthusiastic embrace.

I was about to go, when I remembered that his case was still in the car, and being in rather a hurry, I decided to take it up to him. When I reached the porch steps he looked up and saw me, then said, "Would you just as soon take it around to the back porch?" L. A. S.

Too Bad.

My neighbor used to borrow coffee from me quite frequently, and always returned a cheaper kind. After this happened sveral times, I put the coffee she had returned aside, and the next time she came to borrow I gave it to her. Next time I saw her she said, "you don't use as good a brand of coffee as you used to." S. L. D.

Pretty Terrible.

The woman who used to live in the apartment beneath us began to borrow from us as soon as she moved in. After she had lived below us about a year and had in no way other than words expressed appreciation for what we had done for her, she came up to ask us to lend her all our straight chairs, as she was going to give a large lunch and bridge party.

I hesitated about making the loan, but my neighbor urged that I come to the party. She overruled my excuse that I did not play bridge by explaining that she always liked to have a table of ladies who did not play bridge, to play bunco or in other ways enjoy each other's company.

After some coaxing I accepted the invitation and lent the chairs. When I arrived at the luncheon I found that there was a charge made for the meal in the name of some charity. As my neighbor had not mentioned this detail, I was without my purse.

However, my neighbor said she could wait for me to run upstairs and get it. After the meal I found those who did not play bridge were expected to wash the dishes. It took us all afternoon, as there were about sixty guests.

As the people were departing she sold them all the leftover food for more than store prices.

The next day she asked my son to carry chairs up to me. Two of my mahogany dining room chairs were badly scratched, but she neither thanked me nor made any explanation. Believe me, I never lent her anything again, and so thereafter she circulated tales about what an inconsiderate neighbor I was. I hope I never meet her like again. R. G. W.

Enough Was Enough.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was my roommate. She never furnished anything for herself that I had. She used my face creams and powder. She even used my soap and tooth paste. She never bought any candy or fruit, but she considered herself an invited guest to everything I bought or received as gifts.

One day she said to me, "Say, I wore a pair of your silk hose to the dance last night. If you'll let me have some soap I'll wash them for you."

I gave her the soap and started packing my belongings. That was too much cheek for me, so I moved. R. C.

Too Busy.

The cheekiest person I know is a neighbor of ours who is constantly borrowing things. The other day when my mother was out she asked if she might borrow some of our best dishes and silver for a party to be held at her home that evening. I consented and gave her about half of our dishes and silver.

The next morning about 10 o'clock she called me and handed me a pan full of dirty dishes saying, "I'm going out for the day and did not get up early this morning, so I won't have time to wash these dishes. Be careful of my pan and return it as soon as you can."

Cheek—and then some. M. M.

Niagara Falls

If you've never seen Niagara you've missed one of the world's most interesting sights. Here's a wonderful 6 day vacation trip, by motor to Detroit, boat to Buffalo—includes the great Gorge, Whirlpool and Rapids, returning by steamer via Cleveland and Detroit with motor across Michigan.

$58.95 includes all expenses excepting meals.

We arrange independent tours everywhere—cruises to the West Indies, Mediterranean, around the world, etc.

Sunday Dinner at the Terrace Garden
A Favorite Relaxation at Chicago's Morrison Hotel

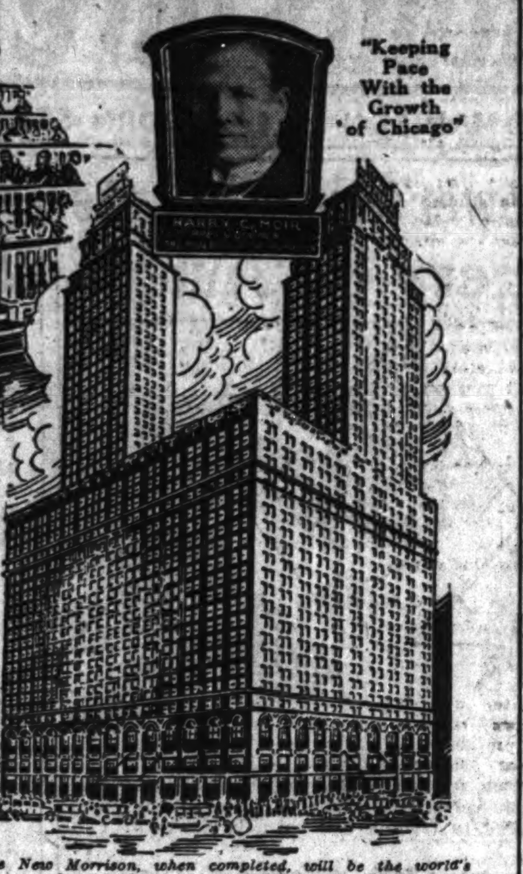
A CORNER OF THE TERRACE GARDEN, MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO



"Keeping Pace With the Growth of Chicago"
HARRY C. MOIR

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

A CRITICALLY selected menu—6 delicious courses, perfectly served—delightful dance music—an environment of rare picturesque beauty—a brilliantly staged entertainment—and all for $1.50.

68 Degrees Cool

Dining in the cool Terrace Garden at any time between 5 and 9 p. m., is naturally enough, a favorite Sunday habit in Chicago.

Rates $2.50 Up, at Chicago's Most Central Hotel

This famous restaurant has played a large part in making Clark and Madison the busiest "24 hour" location in Chicago. At this strategic center of the Loop, closest to offices, theatres, stores and railroads, the Morrison's subrentals pay all the ground rent, and the saving is passed on to the guests. Rooms are rented for $2.50 to $5.00 that would cost $5.00 to $8.00 in any other leading hotel.

1,944 Rooms, Each With Bath

The Morrison has 1,944 outside rooms, each with bath, running ice water, bed-head reading lamp, and Servidor. A housekeeper is stationed on each floor, and all guests enjoy the privileges of the hotel's garage, and of the cool and breezy "tower roof," the highest hotel-roof in the world.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Preachers Discuss Labor Day Topics

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

TODAY is Labor day Sunday in the churches. It is also home coming day for many pastors and church workers. "The Gospel of Labor" will be the subject at 7:45 p. m. of Dr. W. Hyde Howard, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and South Michigan boulevard, who has just returned from his vacation. "Jesus' Word for a Working World" is the subject of the evening sermon by the Rev. G. C. Crippin, pastor of the Irving Park Baptist church, and "Dollars Only" will be the theme of the Rev. Walter E. Cole Jr. at 11 a. m. at the Grayland Congregational church. Other ministers will speak on similar subjects.

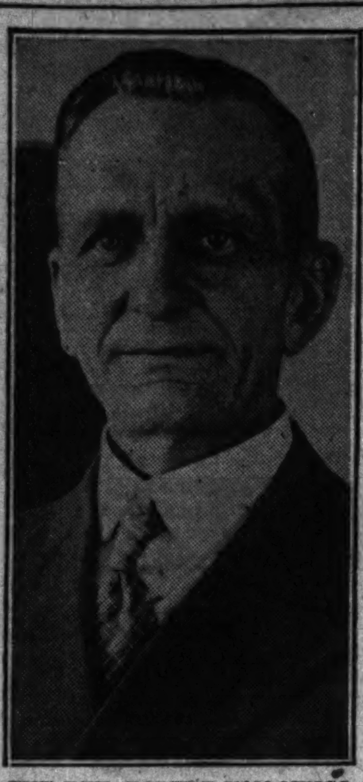
The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Chicago Church federation, the Presbyterian board of national missions, and the Congregational board have all issued special Labor day messages.

On Thursday morning at 8 o'clock the Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, auxiliary Catholic bishop of Chicago, will consecrate the new Carrara marble altar at St. Sylvester's church, Humboldt boulevard and Palmer square. The altar is the gift of the parishioners and is said to be one of the finest English Gothic altars in Chicago. The pastor of St. Sylvester's is the Rev. T. F. Quinn.

The International Federation of Catholic Alumnæ which began its meeting with a reception yesterday will continue until next Friday at St. Mary's college, Notre Dame, Ind.

A meeting of the Evangelical men's council and pastors of the Chicago area of the Illinois conference of Evangelical churches will be held on Tuesday at 6 p. m. in Grace church, Kimball and Wrightwood avenues. President T. E. Cassidy issued the call. Plans for developing men's clubs and increasing the interest of men in the work of the church will be made.

The Rev. R. D. Hughes, after a motor trip through Europe and the British isles, will be in his pulpit today at the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church, Emerald avenue and Marquette road. He took many pictures on his tour which he will show later.



THE REV. ROBERT VAN MEIGS.

The Rev. Robert Van Meigs, who came to Chicago in May from Quincy, Ill., to become pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, 23d street and South Michigan boulevard, as successor to the Rev. Johnson Myers as pastor, Dr. Myers becoming pastor emeritus with a full line of duties, will preach a special Labor day sermon this evening. He has invited members of the Chicago Federation of Labor to attend and George H. Leach will bring fraternal greetings from the federation.

When Mr. Meigs was pastor in Quincy he was once advertised as being the tallest preacher in the city who could preach the shortest sermon. His fame as a convincing speaker spread throughout the Baptist denomination when he succeeded, by a fervent appeal at the Baptist northern convention at Seattle, in bringing complete victory to a harmony plan on points of doctrine at a time when the convention seemed in a hopeless tangle and feeling was running high over the questions growing out of seating the delegates from the Park Avenue Baptist church, New York City, where Harry Emerson Fosdick is pastor.

Jewish services will be held next Wednesday evening and Thursday, Rosh Hashanah, New Year's eve and day, and on Friday evening, Sept. 17, and Saturday, Sept. 18, the eve and day of atonement, Yom Kippur. The Temple Isaiah-Israel will hold two simultaneous services, one in the temple at Hyde Park boulevard and Greenwood avenue and one in the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, 53d street and Blackstone avenue, Dr. Ralph Marshall Davis, pastor. Dr. Joseph Stolz and Dr. Gerson B. Levi, rabbis of Isaiah-Israel temple, will alternate in the two services and the choirs will be in charge of Ralph Gerber and Arthur Dunham. Other services which will attract special notice will be those held in the Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, by the congregation of Sholom temple under the leadership of Rabbi Abram Hirschberg, and the orthodox services at the Wigwam auditorium, Madison street and Hamlin avenue, where the chief interest will center in the singing of Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt of New York City.

A Presbyterian church extension board workers' conference will be held at Camp Gray, Saugatuck, Mich., beginning tomorrow and continuing over Friday. The Rev. C. O. St. John is chairman of the conference. "Training for Worship," "Growing a Church," "What Are the College Youth of Today Thinking About?" are some of the topics. Boys' and girls' club work, dramatics, and pageantry are other subjects. Among the pastors who will speak are the Rev. Howard Johnston, the Rev. W. J. Bell, the Rev. Ralph Marshall Davis, the Rev. Douglass Cornell, and the Rev. John Timothy Stone. Officials include the Rev. Henry Seymour Brown, the Rev. R. L. Sawyer, and the Rev Ralph W. Owens. Women speakers are Mrs E. P Eells and Miss Nellie Wiley

The Rev. John Wells Rahill, successor to the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "What Would Jesus Do?" in Topeka, Kas., will begin his pastorate today at the Community church, known as "the church in a garden," at Western Springs, Ill. It is said the new church plant, which will soon be constructed, will be the first of its kind in America. One feature will be a junior church. The congregation provides a salary of $5,000, a manse, an automobile, and a two months vacation to allow the pastor to travel and study. The new minister declined the pastorate of one of the most important Congregational churches in Chicago at the time he accepted the call to Western Springs.

Fine Opera Season Draws to a Close

By Edward Moore.

TWO days remain of the delectable course that has been running at Ravinia since June 26. There will be a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra this afternoon, a performance of "Carmen" tonight, and for the closing performance tomorrow night two acts of "Manon Lescaut" and two scenes of "Lohengrin." Then the gates will be drawn and Mr. Eckstein will begin making his plans for next summer.

ELISABETH RETHBERG will close the Ravinia season in "Lohengrin." [Wide World Photo.]

Ten weeks and three days the season will have run. During that time there will have been sixty-six performances of opera and twenty-eight orchestral concerts, a total of ninety-four attractions offered at the opera house in the woods. It is a good record; in fact, you will not have been inaccurate if you classify it as an achievement.

While concerned with the matter of tossing figures about, it may be added that the twenty-eight concerts were subdivided into seven on Monday nights, eleven on Sunday afternoons, and ten, the children's programs, on Thursday afternoons; also that the sixty-six performances of opera represented twenty-nine different operas. That, as far as management and directors are concerned, makes it a bit more intricate.

The favored opera of the season, as far as numbers was concerned—we are still under the spell of arithmetic—was Manuel de Falla's "La Vida Breve." It was new, not only to Ravinia, but to this part of the country; it struck public taste immediately, and it came through with four performances to its credit. This was partly due to De Falla's music, which is a great delight, but it must also claim considerable force from the performance of Salud by Lucrezia Bori. In all events, it becomes a bland and inviting emulsion of the two.

Repeat Performances.

Three performances were given of "Manon Lescaut," "Mme. Butterfly," "Romeo and Juliet," "Carmen," "Rigoletto," "The Love of the Three Kings," "Samson and Delila," "La Bohème," and "Lohengrin." Two were given of "Lucia," "Faust," "Martha," "Aida," "Il Trovatore," "Don Pasquale," "The Barber of Seville," "La Juive," "Traviata," "Fedora," "Andrea Chenier," "Fra Diavolo," "Pagliacci," and "Mme. Sans Gene." There are single instances of "Tosca," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "The Tales of Hoffman," and "La Navarraise." If your numerical taste runs that far, you may make fractional additions to the records of the Massenet "Manon" and the Puccini "Manon Lescaut," "The Love of the Three Kings," "Aida," and "Lohengrin," for there were, or will be by tomorrow night, two evenings made up of acts from these operas.

Analysis of the list is not quite so satisfactory for the one trying to work out a scheme of operation on what the public likes best to hear. There might be a rough and ready rule, something to the effect that the projected work must either contain tunes that every one knows, or a stage story of such excitement that their lack will not be missed. Calculating with this tape measure, Giordano makes an interesting example of the second category. Few persons, even those who take part in his operas, register a greatly heightened blood pressure when his music is mentioned, but he knew how to pick out interesting plots, and "Andrea Chenier," "Fedora," and "Mme. Sans Gene" were popular this summer.

Music or melodrama, operas must be well cast to get across, and good casting means not only good singing but the fitness of the artist for the part. It also means in popular esteem about nine parts soprano and tenor to one of all the rest put together. This is an error, for the sopranos and tenors would not function anywhere nearly as brilliantly if they were not backed up by their less spectacular but highly useful colleagues of the lower voices. At the same time, in thinking of the high spots of the season one invariably remembers Bori and Martinelli in "Manon Lescaut," Bori and Chamlee in "Manon," Rethberg and Martinelli in "Aida," Rethberg and Johnson in "Mme. Butterfly" and "Lohengrin," Mellus in "Rigoletto," Macbeth in "Fra Diavolo," Gentle in "Mme. Sans Gene," and so on.

Some Notable Exceptions.

Sometimes there are exceptions. Lower voice rôles may project outstandingly from the sheer force of their own merit, in which case you think of Bourskaya and Danise in "Aida." Sometimes there are so many important points that it is hard to choose any. Bori, Johnson, Basiola, Lazzari, and Mojica made up a practically perfect cast for "The Love of the Three Kings"; Macbeth, Chamlee, Basiola, Trevisan, and Rothier another for "The Barber of Seville." And when you think of Lazzari in "The Love of the Three Kings" and in "Fra Diavolo," you begin to wonder which other artist can actually compete with this extraordinary basso.

In fact, there were so many high spots during this Ravinia season that I have probably forgotten quite a number of them, and apologize in advance for the omissions.

"Carmen" tonight will be sung by Ina Bourskaya in the same part, Luella Melius as Micaela, Edward Johnson as Don Jose, and Mario Basiola as Escamillo. Ruth Page will dance. Wilfred Pelletier will conduct. The afternoon concert will, as usual, be conducted by Eric DeLamarter.

Two acts from "Manon Lescaut" tomorrow night will be sung by Lucrezia Bori and Giovanni Martinelli, who will dash to Chicago immediately afterward on the first lap of a trip to Europe. Two scenes from "Lohengrin" will follow with Elisabeth Rethberg, Mr. Johnson, Alice Gentle, and Louis D'Angelo. Gennaro Papi will conduct "Manon Lescaut," and Louis Hasselmans "Lohengrin."

And so, farewell. It has been a pleasant meeting.

The sincere thanks of the music department are extended to Al Sweet, J. W. Farr, Graham O. Yonge, An Old Bandman, Aldo Bortolotti, and Chester A. Baldwin for information about "The Chicago Tribune March," and to Lyon & Healy for a copy of that work. It is now possible to inform those who have in the past asked about it that it was composed by W. Paris Chambers, since deceased, published in [illegible] by E. F. Seitz, Glen Rock, Pa., and later by Carl Fischer, New York. It can be had in piano, orchestra, and band arrangements.

From the Four Corners of the Globe.

The Chicago Civic Opera company relays this information about the homing movements of its members:

Claudia Muzio is on the high seas en route from South America to rejoin the Chicago Civic Opera company after the most successful season of her career in Latin America. Her activities opened at Buenos Aires early in the summer and closed at Rio de Janeiro last Tuesday night (Aug. 31) with the termination of the Ottavio Scotto season in the Brazilian capital.

The only passenger ship sailing north for a period of ten days was scheduled to clear at 2 p. m. Tuesday, but in compliment to Mme. Muzio the sailing was deferred until after the evening performance, which lasted until midnight. It was 1:30 a. m. before the diva and the last of her baggage were safely aboard and the steamship cleared for New York.

Antonio Cortis, who is summering in Italy, sang "Turandot" as his farewell performance recently at Rimini, a popular watering resort on the Adriatic coast. Mr. Cortis sailed yesterday to rejoin the Chicago Civic Opera forces. Attico Bernabini, chorus master of the Civic opera, also sailed on the same ship, the Conte Rosso.

Charles Moor, the Civic opera's Scotch stage manager, acquired from Germany, will descend from the Swiss aerie where he makes his summer home to sail from Havre on the S. S. De Grasse of the French line on Sept. 18.

Maestro Giorgio Polacco and Edith Mason will follow

AUGUST'S SIX BEST PHOTOPLAYS.

THREE BAD MEN.	YOU NEVER KNOW WOMEN.
THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN.	BATTLING BUTLER.
MARE NOSTRUM.	THE BOY FRIEND.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

Look what I drew for the lead! Got a tail piece I'll hitch on later. Contributions for an Oct. 1 lead are in order and will be greatly appreciated by what is writing who also thanks those who submitted leads that aren't printed and requests that they send in some more. NOW here's what Caroline Johnson of Paw Paw, Mich., has to say:

J. FARRELL MacDONALD played in "Three Bad Men."

"Dear Miss Tinée: Your S. O. S., help, help, succor, assistance, aid for an introduction to your August reviews, has fallen upon my sympathetic, interested, and fuzzy ear. You will not be over burdened by excessive mail unless you offer a free trip to Europe, a roadster, or at least a set of nonskid lingerie clasps for the best contribution. I'm surprised that one of your seeming sagacity and astuteness has failed to realize this. Us peepul is not goin' to work for nuthin'. There will have to be some lure aside from that of seeing our stuff in print. What price glory, Bah! Besides she gets paid for writin' it herself, don't she? No, m'dear, us union people don't work for love. Only the dumb-bells do that.

"I'm not writing this for love or wealth, but because I sorta liked the picture of you that appeared in THE TRIB in 1922. Remember? Hot stuff! As the dressmaker said to Eve, 'Take it or leave it.'

"The Roman nosed Caesar boys, Jule and Augustus, who used to throw some mean shows in the old Colliseum, revamped the sub titles for the film now known on the boards as the 'Julian Calendar' or 'Four Times Three Weeks,' a reel of 365 parts. Julius named the seventh month after himself, although such action was not called for in the contract. Augustus, our hero, the understudy of Julius and his successor in the favoritism of the Roman optience, decided to stamp his trade mark over the month following July, then known as Sextilis, and given only 30 days in the original copy. He knew that such a trick would knock the fans cold and boost the kitty for the box office. So he directed his press agent to rewrite the scenario so that the eighth part would read, 'August,' the hottest show in town.

"When Augustus was tipped off that his namesake contained only 30 days he threw a custard pie at the lion's den. To restore order on the Caesar lot the press agent stole a day from February. This postscript lengthened August to 31 days and made it possible for him to associate with the best of months without fear of being high hatted. February was used to being picked on and did not bring suit for theft of his stuff, although he was advised by the best Hollywood lawyers that he had ample grounds for litigation.

"And that, my children, is the hectic history of August, and you may see it written AUGUST on magazines even to this day. Says Mae to August:

"Thanks for the buggy ride, August,
Though I'm considerably mussed,
Sept. morn I'll greet with pleasure,
Thou August's films I'll always treasure."
(That's looney, learned stuff for you, isn't it?)

* *

"THREE BAD MEN" was one of "thou August's films" that will stand out for a long time in the memory of the fans who saw, loved, and laughed at it. A splendid "western" with the Dakota frontier for a setting and a story written around the days of the Dakota land rush in 1877. The big punch of the picture was the work of the three bad men of the title as represented by J. Farrell MacDonald, Thomas Santschi, and Frank Campeau. And the greatest of the three was Mr. MacDonald. Golly, was he funny!

John Ford, who directed "The Iron Horse," handled this production and made a fine job of it.

"THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN," from the story by Jeffrey Farnol, furnished Richard Barthelmess with a costume vehicle in which he acquitted himself admirably. A romantic and beautifully staged and directed—also acted—production.

* *

"MARE NOSTRUM" was filled with the things that go to make a picture memorable. It was adapted from the story by Vicente Blasco Ibanez and was a thrilling drama staged on and about the Mediterranean—Our Sea—"Mare Nostrum"—during the world war. It was a film of beauty, brilliance, charm, and sadness, gloriously photographed and excellently directed. Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno played the leads.

"YOU NEVER KNOW WOMEN" was, I thought, a delightful picture. Featured Florence Vidor, Clive Brook, and Lowell Sherman, if you remember, in a memorable story of show life. The exploits of Houdini undoubtedly furnished the inspiration for the tale. The picture was splendidly cast and produced, the director, William Wellman, displaying a sure and delicate touch and superior showmanship.

"BATTLING BUTLER," in the opinion of your present typist, who does few things worse than she types, was the best thing Buster Keaton has ever done. He directed it himself and for doing so I said he deserved double sweet credit with whipped cream, for the direction, like the acting, was smooth as glass, and without a flaw, as far as I could see. One of the chief charms of "Battling Butler" was that you never knew for an instant how matters were going to work out. Right straight along you THOUGHT you knew the lowdown. But, August fool!

The story was clever. The situations were some of the best a comedy has had in ages. Subtitles snapped—and nobody napped. EVERYBODY was good in "Battling Butler."

"THE BOY FRIEND"—let's quote:

"'The Boy friend' is none other than that exquisitely humorous stage comedy 'Charm,' from 'The Book of Charm,' by John Alexander Kirkpatrick, made into a joyously funny screen feature. . . . DON'T miss the picture. The latter's pantomime, subtitles, and keen direction have preserved practically intact the high lights of the former. . . . you're going to love the picture. . . ." and then I raved on some more. You've listened to my ravings; I'll be listening to YOUR ravings, if I don't call a halt pretty soon.

'S called!

Before I pin on the beautiful tailpiece sent in by a clever contributor—don't forget that Oct. 1 will soon be rolling 'round and I needing a nice, new fall bonnet for the tabloid backtalks on the Six Best films of September. (Leads, you know. Snappy coupla paragraphs to start off the column with.)

Willya please send me some? Also some finally-dear-brethren-s, or, in other words, last paragraphs?

I know I'm paid to do my own writing, but then you know how happy are those who lend helping hands? So lay up treasures for yourselves in heaven and come across with some October First leads—please!

The finale for today, submitted by one who merely signs himself "Maurice V., Allegan, Mich.," is lovely, I think. Here it is:

"The plays are over, ring the curtain down,
Kind friends, good night, but does the critic please?
Or have we bored and only won a frown,
To make us sigh and ponder ill at ease?
We have not sought to hold the mirror up,
To preach a sermon nor adorn a tale,
But simply filled and passed the Loving Cup,
Has it refreshed or dost thou find it stale?
"MAURICE V., Allegan, Mich."

You're wakkum!
See you tomorrow!

Dreams of Peace

By H. L. Mencken.

MY mail is filled of late with the literature of the various societies devoted to the great cause of international peace. I read it attentively, but for some reason or other the impression it makes upon me is precisely like that made by the literature of the New Thought. No doubt that is because both sets of propagandists are obviously convinced that words are more powerful than facts. Facing the incurable, they seek to cure with the rhetorical. The peace fanatics, if anything, are more naive and preposterous than the New Thoughters. The latter at least refrain from proposing that all doctors be hanged. The former advocate abolishing the Army and Navy, and trusting wholly to eloquence.

In detail, as in gross, their schemes are full of transparent and tedious puerility. For example, a large part of their persuasiveness is aimed at the clergy, and especially at the evangelical wing thereof. But it must be plain to every one that the clergy no longer make public opinion in America, save in a few backward areas of the south and middle west. Elsewhere they are tolerated, but certainly not heeded. It would be far more intelligent to try to fetch the vaudeville actors of the republic, or the radio announcers, or the writers of movie titles. Even the newspaper editors, despite their excessive dubiousness, are probably more influential, at least upon the generality of morons. But the peace advocates concentrate upon the clergy, and evidently hope to dispatch Mars in the Sunday schools.

That hope, as I hint, is vain. For it not only relies upon the help of partisans who are impotent; it also relies mainly upon the force of arguments that are feeble and without appositeness. The whole peace propaganda, in fact, is full of mush. It is based upon sentimentalities that are effective only against half-wits. It dodges what is palpably true, and embraces absurdly only what is sweet and lovely. I don't believe it is making any progress.

The best of all schemes for making war unpopular that I have yet heard of was set forth by Dr. George W. Crile, the Cleveland surgeon, in 1919, in a little book called "A Mechanistic View of War and Peace." Dr. Crile is the complete antithesis of a New Thoughter. He believes that the human body is almost as much a machine as an automobile engine, and that thought itself is mainly a physical function. Nevertheless, he also believes that an idea from without, coming into the brain, can condition the ideas that it secretes itself, and upon this notion his plan for getting rid of war is based.

In brief, he proposes that the land be flooded with literature showing war precisely as it is—with literature and pictures, and especially with pictures. What the young hear of the thing now, he says, is chiefly romantic and inaccurate. They see heroes marching off with their shoes shined and the flag waving; they see them coming back neatly bandaged, with medals covering their façades. But they see nothing of war, itself. The movies never show a portrait of a soldier with his face shot off. There is no attempt to convey the smell of the trenches. The radio does not bring in the remarks of men at the moment that bayonets are thrust through their gizzards.

Dr. Crile, as a surgeon engaged in the late war, accumulated a large collection of actual war pictures, and he gives some of them in his little book. One is a portrait of a French soldier struck in the face by a German one pounder shell. Another is a view of forty or fifty soldiers who gave their lives for democracy, and were subsequently permitted to lie out in the rain and mud for a couple of weeks. Yet another (perhaps eloquent only to youngsters privy to the elements of histology) shows a cross section of the brain of a hero who retreated before the Germans for six days and six nights, and then died horribly of hunger, thirst, fatigue, and fright.

Obviously a portfolio of such views, printed in huge editions and distributed in the public schools, would do more to make war loathsome than all the pious argument ever heard of. Exhibited to a youth just entering his teens, it would scare him half to death, and the shock would abide with him all the rest of his life. Put into the form of stereopticon slides, the pictures would paralyze any Sunday school in the land. No conceivable harangue by the pastor could ever be so eloquent, or leave so powerful an impression behind it. Not a few of the attending scholars, perhaps, would drop dead or go crazy, but the rest would be immensely safer against Creel Press Bureaux and artillery fire than they were before.

More, the scheme would be perfectly legal, and the warlocks would have a dreadful time putting it down. Dr. Crile's own book went through the mails unmolested, and is to be purchased in any book store today. A more popular volume, widely distributed and with more (and perhaps worse) pictures, would arouse, of course, a great deal of indignation among professional patriots, and no doubt the Dogberrys of the Postoffice would try to suppress it, but the chances are very good that they would be beaten. The resultant uproar would give the book an immense circulation, and bring it to hundreds of thousands who might otherwise not hear of it.

The movies offer another sweet and facile means of propaganda. There are plenty of films in storage showing the revolting realities of war, and if it turns out to be impossible to get at them, then others may be obtained abroad. Would the various state censors intervene? I don't think they could do it if no charge were made for admission. But even if they could there would remain the grand old American device of bootlegging. Films showing prize fights are now forbidden in at least three-fourths of the states, and yet, as every one knows, they are shown everywhere. So are films showing even more sinful transactions.

I offer these suggestions to the friends of international peace in a purely disinterested spirit, for I am personally no opponent of war, but an advocate of it. All the peace propagandists that I have ever read or listened to seem to me to be dotty. Their case is not only maintained in a stupid and ineffective manner; it is intrinsically weak, and even ridiculous. The objections to war that they offer, even the objection that it is cruel, seem to me to be feeble, and mainly irrelevant. The arguments in favor of it impress me as reasonable and sound. My one regret is that there is so much peace already.

But any cause, however bad, deserves to be carried on in an intelligent and persuasive manner, and here the peace advocates fall down badly. At the moment their chief argument seems to be that war is unprofitable, even to the victor, and in proof thereof they point to the situation of France. But all that is simply nonsense. France did not win the war; France lost the war. She was so badly beaten when the United States went to her rescue that another six months would have seen the Germans bathing at Biarritz and listening to the band at Nice. England was faring somewhat better. She might have gone on to a draw. But she could have no more won a clear victory, without American aid, than she could have beaten the United States itself.

Both of these great countries now suffer from their wounds. But what of our own great republic? It went in at the last minute and gained a cheap and easy victory. In every rational sense it won the war. Well, was the business profitable, or did it show a loss? I leave the answer to any Frenchman—or Englishman. The United States not only beat the Germans; it also beat the French and the English, not to mention the Italians and the Russians. Ever since it has been taking tribute from all of them, and it will keep on taking tribute from them for at least half a century to come. In the face of its colossal gains, it is a bald absurdity to argue that war is unprofitable. It is, under favorable conditions, the most lucrative enterprise that a nation can engage in. It made the British empire and it made the American empire. The only grain of truth in the case of the peace advocates lies in the fact that losing wars is expensive, and sometimes disastrous. But that was well known in the world long before Dr. Carnegie put up his peace palace.

HERE'S A SCARY NEW BUTTON-BUTTON PLAY

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—So far as Owen Davis is concerned, the new season burst full panoplied into action this week with a mystery play called "The Donovan Case." It is, the statisticians say, Mr. Davis' hundred and sixth drama, and he is still as vigorous as a channel swimmer.

As mystery plays go this one is as holding and as plausible as any. It has the advantage of starting directly the curtain reaches the top of the proscenium arch and thereafter the interest does not sag until the unhappy murderer is picked out of the jumbled and suspected cast.

During the two hours of the story's telling Mr. Davis employs most of the tricks of the mystery play trade. There are sly looks and startled looks, blind leads and tipping screens. Now and then there is a feminine screech, and whenever excitement dies down excuse is made to darken the theater, which always sets an audience buzzing.

It starts with the Rankins' dinner and the murder of young Jack Donovan. A bad boy, Jack, though not everybody knew it. He owned a luminous turquoise ring and it was his boast I gathered, that any lady who wore it would find herself automatically within his power. Several had taken the dare and their men folk were furious.

The night of the dinner they turned off the lights so Jack could prove the luminosity of his treasure and some one slipped the game knife between his ribs. After that you know what happened. The inspector came. The police came. Everybody was searched and questioned, and there were many hints of scandal.

And at 10:50 they picked on the poor old butler, as usual.

"Hey," calls one of the other suspects. "He couldn't have done it."

"Why not?" demands the inspector. "Some one had to."

Paul Harvey plays the inspector; Miriam Doyle, Phoebe Foster, and Eleanor Woodruff are the three most important suspects, and the boys include Niles Welch and Robert Hudson.

"Vanities" Take on a Spanish Air.

Mr. Carroll's newest "Vanities" is much like Mr. Carroll's older "Vanities," save that the decorations are Spanish. Where once we sat around the fringe of a night club, we now sit under the balconies of Seville. Or it may be Granada.

Covers have been made for the seats, a bright red one here, a deep purple one next to it. So the orchestra has a gaily spotted appearance as you enter at 8:40 and wonder why the folks won't stop staring at each other and come in from the lobbies.

Tuesday night, when at least a few seats sold for $100 each, there was a "golden horseshoe" of red chairs, and the rich were supposed to sit in them. But most of those I saw had not seen a hundred dollars since they drew their advance salary for their vacations. They were mostly all pressmen.

There were flower girls in the aisles and the usherettes were done up as nifty senoritas. There were fortune tellers, too. The flower girls gave to each gentleman a boutonniere and a smile. And the fortune tellers gave to each lady her chance to pick out a fortune from a basket filled with them. Afterward the usherettes, flower girls, and fortune tellers followed Senor Caballero Juliano y Tannen out on the stage, sang the opening number, and danced a welcome to the party.

First Night Crowds Are Noisy.

As usual, there is not much to laugh at in the new "Vanities." Toreador Juliano y Tannen, serving as master of ceremonies, found it a little difficult to hold the attention of a restless summer crowd at the opening, and his patter did not go so well as it will when the show quiets down and the audience is more interested in seeing than it is in being seen. These early season first night crowds are terrible that way. Loud, curious, nosey, and noisy.

Charles Dale and Joe Smith, the louder and funnier half of what was once a favorite vaudeville quartet, the Avon comedy four, bawled amusingly through several skits, and Moran and Mack, splitting their usual riotous twenty minutes up into short skits, had their moments. But there is a noticeable shortage of anything resembling real humor.

However, the girls are there—the usual nudes descending familiar staircases. And all as shapely and as bare as bathing beauties in the rotogravure sections. In one number there is a line of six foot show girls gorgeously hung with velvets and lace from chin to ankle in front. But when they turn around—well, they are simply right back to nature from hair bob to heel. Probably it was because there was so much of them that they seemed a little more brazenly naked than usual.

Mr. Carroll has gone in generously, too, for trick elevators. Once the dancing girls swarm out and sit down on what appears to be the edge of the orchestra pit. As they sing the whole pit begins to rise and before it stops it is level with the balcony and the girls are dangling their legs over the heads of the orchestra crowd. The exercise is a bit hard on the spectators' necks, but I heard no calls for help.

The Carroll revues at least have the distinction of being different in atmosphere from most of the others. The beauties of shin, skin, and scenery in this one are as vivid as any. Sometimes I suspect that it is all the revue crowd wants to see, anyway. And, happy day, there are no bath tub pleasantries.

A Ghost Play from England.

Another of the shivery mystery pieces is one called "The Ghost Train." Over in England it has been doing a big business, and if there is still an interest in the pumped-up excitements of this type of play there may be a chance for it over here.

In the original the train of the title, which flashes mysteriously past a haunted station in the dead of night, was discovered carrying arms into Scotland to outfit a revolution. In the American adaptation it is carrying drugs and liquor across the Canadian border.

But long before you reach the expose the thrills of the exhibit are induced by the plight of a party of travelers held in the station overnight. It is the night for the ghost train's passing, and any who look upon it are promised certain death. There are timely shrieks, flashing red lanterns, disappearing station agents, and all the rest of the mystery story tricks.

I found these so deliberately set that they failed mostly to stir much excitement. But the train effect is unusually good. First there is the eerie tinkle of the warning bell at the crossing. (Which suggested to the rascal Woollcott that it was an eerie local.) Then the distant, muffled whistle. Then the increasing roar of the onrushing train. And finally the crashing past the station, followed by the low swirling smoke that comes through the cracks of doors and windows into the waiting room.

The comedy is carried by the familiar silly ass who turns out to be something entirely different than you might suspect if you did not know these Scotland Yard mysteries, and a spinster who drinks her brandy neat and acquires the comic hiccoughs. Eric Blore is the first and Gladys Ffolliott, an English comedienne of the Edna May Oliver type newly arrived, the second. Gipsy O'Brien, Robert Rendel, and Claudette Colbert are also in the cast.

"Henry, Behave," Is Not so Good.

There is a possible idea in a farce Lawrence Langner has written and called "Henry, Behave," though it does not work out well in the playing. A grouchy and puritanical Henry of parts dominating his subdued family in a Long Island town

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

WHAT he terms "ridiculous reverence for recent classics" is the theme of a long and a good letter from W. H. G. Laurence, written, as he explains, "in reaction to the current revival of 'The Mikado,' which isn't ridiculous, should be treated with reverence, is recent, and is and forever will be a classic." Mr. Laurence, describing himself as "an unmitigated and unashamed Englishman who was reared on the Gilbert and Sullivan works," thinks it an error to retain in their original form the topical and local allusions of 1885 in 1926, adding:

"From what I've read of your writing on the operas of Gilbert and Sullivan, you don't believe that a syllable should be altered or a line obviously meant by Gilbert as a 'gag' for the day in which it was written or first spoken should be provided with an equivalent in the idiom and the interests of forty years later. A century or two hence, when 'The Mikado' and some of the other pieces have taken on the flavor of antiquity, then, no doubt, there will be for those who read them or go to the theater to see them an historical interest in having the original text used. Theatergoers of the future will, doubtless, be moved to wonder that a Victorian public could have regarded Katisha as a funny character. Katisha, I admit, wasn't funny to me when I saw the original cast four decades ago in the London Savoy; the uncomely spinster as a comic device was already what is called 'dated,' although some English writers and many American writers for the stage still have recourse to her, I note, in farce and in the plays written for musical setting. It is to be remembered in Gilbert's behalf that he wrote for what was virtually a stock-company; that it was his duty and to his interest to write rôles for the favorites of the Savoy, in which he and Sullivan were partners. So, Katisha was shaped to fit the contralto actress who had been Lady Jane in 'Patience,' Ruth in 'The Pirates,' the fairy queen in 'Iolanthe,' et-cætera."

There is much more of Mr. Laurence's letter,—which is, indeed, as interesting a bit of writing about the Savoy operettas as anything I've read since Percy Fitzgerald's book, long out of print. But the points he stresses have to do with the stupidity shown by managers or their comedians in not bringing to-date the verses and "gags" that are without the topical appeal they had when the respective operas were new. Mr. Laurence is mistaken in regarding me as in opposition to changes of the sort. I have written and had sung in performances of "The Mikado" maybe twenty first-page verses for "I've Got a Little List," and as many more, perhaps, for "My Object All Sublime." The difficulty in making topical verses for these two songs is that they are identic in theme—the desirability of penalizing or doing away with persons who are general nuisances: the Mikado, seeking to make the punishment fit the crime, is moved by the same idea as Ko-Ko, preparing his inventory of persons who never would be missed.

This Matter of "Gags."

The comedian who thinks he is funnier than Gilbert is to me fit fodder for the gunmen; but that is something else, and has nothing to do with fresh and apposite verses and lines in the spirit of Gilbert's original text where that text had to do with events of the period when the especial work was new. When the fairy queen apostrophizes Captain Shaw, it is meaningless to a present-day audience. Where Ko-Ko is made to tell the Mikado that Nanki-Poo is spending his honeymoon in Knightsbridge, it is proper and desirable that another neighborhood should be mentioned when the piece is given in this country. Knightsbridge, as Gilbert made fun of it, had the same implications for London as mention of Englewood or Evanston has for those of our populace who fancy that they are suave metropolitans because they do not reside in an outskirt or a suburb. And so with the allusion to Nanki-Poo's playing on the Marine Parade: that's what in the jargon of the stage is known as a "local," and, hence, should be intelligently localized wherever the piece is performed.

Some years ago, as the impresario of a season of G.-and-S. revivals here, I turned over to the comedian new topic-verses, gag-lines, and localized allusions based on the news of the day;—and I modestly add that, thanks to the late B. L. T.'s having helped me with these revisions, I wasn't a bid afraid that somebody would object on the grounds that they were not "Gilbertian." The comedian, a seasoned actor of eminence, told me that, as an artist and as an adulant of Gilbert, he didn't care to sing or speak a line not in the authorized Savoy text, and that, as a partner in the enterprise, he must refuse to make the substitutions. I pointed out that his veneration for Gilbert didn't go so far as to lead him into paying royalties on such of the works as were unprotected by copyright; and his reply I shall ever cherish as a classic expression of the actor-mind and of the standard of honesty among persons of the theater. It was:

"What in Hell has paying royalties got to do with art? If Gilbert and Sullivan didn't know enough to protect their stuff in the United States, I, as an American, have a right to use it!"

Miscellany.

"On Approval" is something new by Frederick Lonsdale, whose "The League of Nations" is listed among the impending productions. . . . Stanley Lupino, who was so amusing here last year as Mitzi's principal associate in "Naughty Riquette," is to be with her when that piece is given in New York.

Michael Arlen's name hasn't been much in use for the last year in this country save in the playbill of "The Green Hat"; and it comes back to print in connection with a piece now named "What Fun Frenchmen Have!" Winchell Smith, who has turned his talent for hokum into a fortune by revising the plays of the inept and the craftless, has something to do with the new piece,—which, I think, is less Arlen's than an adaptation of a Paris farce bought for use in this country by Mr. Dillingham.

Henry Arthur Jones, whose name has all but vanished from American print, is back in the field with a play called "That Which Was Foretold." . . . He was an industrious and a fecund writer for the stage through many years, and had his share of successes, as successes were measured in that time. Also, he was far, far from being the least gifted of the men and women who wrote the plays of the 'Eighties, the 'Nineties, and the first decade of this century.

Thomas A. Wise has put his reminiscences into a volume named "I Remember." . . . "Beatrice and the Black Guard" is the title of a piece by Ernest Goodwin which Stuart Walker has been trying out in Cincinnati.

The widow of Tut-Ankh-Amen, whose violated tomb has had its share of first-page space in recent years, is a character in "The Jewelled Tree," by Garrett Chatfield Pier. . . . Philadelphia is among the American communities which submit themselves to a censor of the stage; and the lad in charge of that office down there had a good time last week in compelling the sponsors of a piece named "I. O. U. One Woman" to give it a cleansing.

Fine Opera Season Draws to a Close

The Munich Festival.

Irving Schwerke, who writes of music for the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE, has been visiting an operatic festival at Munich. Here is his account of as much as had been given at the time of writing:

Munich, Aug. 12, 1926.

The first cycle of performances in the annual Mozart-Wagner festival of this place has now been given. Capacity audiences greeted every presentation, many of the spectators being American tourists. Of the operas of Mozart, "The Magic Flute," "Marriage of Figaro," "Elopement from the Seraglio," and "Cosi Fan Tutte" have been given. "Don Giovanni" is to be given later. Of the Wagner music dramas, the following have been performed: "Die Meistersinger," "Parsifal," "Tristan und Isolde," and "Der Ring des Nibelungen" ("Rheingold," "Walküre," "Siegfried," "Götterdämmerung"). The Wagner performances take place in the Prince Regent theater, a playhouse built according to the theories of Wagner, the Mozart operas are in the Residence theater, a small auditorium attached to the former residence of the Bavarian royal family.

With the exception of "Tristan" and "Cosi Fan Tutte," the festival so far has been conducted by Hans Knappertsbusch. Americans who propose to attend the Munich festival should understand that Herr Knappertsbusch is not Germany's best, and if they pay any attention to the orchestral side of opera they may expect an uneven reading when he is at the helm. His delivery of the wonderful "Meistersinger" Overture, for example, was a complete misconception of its musical value, and the brilliant last act he made unrhythmic and heavy. "Parsifal" also suffered from the same lack of rhythmic feeling. Portions of "The Ring" he conducted satisfactorily, but for the most part (especially in the first scene of "Rheingold," "The Ride of the Walküries," etc.) he failed to make the orchestra sound as it should. The romantic forest music of "Siegfried" went along better and was atmospheric.

Or is Herr Knappertsbusch more successful in Mozart? In these he either played loud or soft, with nothing in between, dragged many of the beautiful solo numbers, and was even responsible for certain "musical revisions" in these operas. The highest point of the festival was reached when Dr. Carl Muck, who is perhaps the greatest living authority on Wagner tradition, conducted a performance of "Tristan." He is to conduct another "Tristan" on Aug. 20. His art is more transcendental than ever. His reading of the Tristan music was an experience of overwhelming eloquence. Carl Elmendorff, who conducted a performance of "Cosi Fan Tutte," while not an inspired conductor, is at least musicianly in whatever he does, and has a good sense of rhythm and refinement.

Some Excellent Stars.

The casts are uniformly good and at the same time some artists stand out as extremely excellent. As space does not permit all the personnel to be listed, only the "stars" will be pointed out. Elizabeth Feuge gave a good portrayal of Eva; Joseph Geis' Beckmesser was rich in felicitous detail; Carl Seydel was as interesting a David as there is on this side of the water; William Rode was an admirably human Hans Sachs.

In "Parsifal" the following merited high consideration: Herman Nissen (Amfortas), Julius Gless (Titurel), Paul Bender (Gurnemanz), Nicola Reinfeld (Parsifal), and Gertrude Kappel (Kundry).

FEATURED

CHARLES PURCELL

He's been in any number of things since, about twelve years ago, he first took attention as a young chap who could sing and do a bit of acting as a "juvenile" in the plays with tunes. Mr. Ziegfeld has had him in the Follies. . . . Mr. Purcell returns tonight in "Dearest Enemy," wherein he has been singing nearly a year, and is co-featured with Miss Helen Ford.

CANTOR-TENOR

ALBERT RAPPAPORT.

Having served for a number of years as cantor in synagogues of San Francisco, New York, and Chicago, Mr. Rappaport will this season become a member of the Chicago Civic Opera forces in the tenor division. He will cease to officiate as a singing priest at the close of the forthcoming Jewish holidays.

Here's a Scary New Button-Button Play

By Burns Mantle.

is struck by a passing taxi and promptly forgets everything that has happened in twenty years. When they bring him home he can't remember anything except that he is full of pepper and eager to carminize the village.

Henry, in place of putting his children in their place and holding them there, now demands his rights to latchkeys and synthetic gin with more vehemence than they ever did. Henry, who has shut off the liquor supply at the club and directed all intimate dancers to be ordered from the floor, goes in for parties on the veranda and Charlestoning in the dance. Henry, who had forgotten how to flirt, now becomes a devil with the girls, including the wife he cannot remember having married.

And then a policeman, called to quiet Henry's rioting, taps Henry on the head with a sling and he becomes himself again. He is now willing to compromise. He will never again be the poor boob he was before. He becomes, I believe, a regular fellow.

The playing is pretty stupid, though John Cumberland heads the cast and E. G. Robins is a member. It is one of those Gustavblum productions at the Bayes, with many inexperienced players engaged, the costs cut to the minimum, and the play's chances lengthened by the friendliness of the cut rate ticket brokers.

Valentino's Pets Face Forlorn Days

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Among the many hearts that will feel the loss of Rudolph Valentino, perhaps none are more sincere than those of the many pets that are at Valentino's residence in Beverly Hills. During his life, Rudolph was always surrounded with pets. The large aviary in the grounds of his home held only some of the colorful birds, parrots, macaws, parakeets, cockatoos and canaries that were on the premises.

A visitor opening the door of the old Whitley Heights residence, where Rudy lived until his separation from Natacha Rambova, was sure to be met with a perfect cloudburst of Pekinese rushing to welcome the newcomer. To be accurate, there were ten of them in those days, but the Beverly Hills home knew only four of them, the others being pets of Natacha's.

The house in Beverly, on the crest of a hill commanding a view of all the city below, is closed now. The dogs Rudy cherished in life remain in the kennels, under the care of the caretaker. "Kabar," the Doberman pinscher, was the favorite, and accompanied his master on all informal occasions. The large Irish wolfhound, "Centaur Pendragon," which was the most recently acquired of the kennel inhabitants, was also a great pet.

"Drusus," the German police dog, paces up and down his inclosure, sensing something wrong. The Arabian greyhound, "Mirtza," and the two Italian mastiffs, "Sheila" and "Shaitan," which Rudy was accustomed to take with him on solitary gallops through Griffith park, eye a visitor distrustfully. The cocker spaniel, "Rolph," a gift of Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, seems to resent his banishment from the house, as do the four lonely Pekinese, now demoted to kennel life.

A Deserted House.

For the house is closed, and the staff of servants is dismissed. Only the caretaker may admit one to the home which is already gathering the dust of neglect. The busy band of gardeners who were not long ago employed in getting the landscape work done on the grounds for the expected return of the master of "Eagle's Nest" have laid down their tools and gone. The stables, which were a great delight to Valentino, stand empty. The two grays and the two blacks and the pony are at a boarding stable. "Querido" and "Yauqi," "Haroun," and Ramadan," the Arabian horses from the famous Arabian farms at Palm Springs, are again articles of commerce, waiting with the dogs to see what the new master will be like.

The pony that Rudy bought for the little nephew who was visiting him in the spring has gone to the stables, too. No more sugar and exhilirating gallops over the neighboring mountains of an early morning. These animate things that knew the great actor so well in life are perhaps the most pathetic of the things that have been left behind.

The great library that Valentino collected in his lifetime includes masterpieces in Italian, French, Spanish and English, in all four of which languages Valentino was a fluent speaker and reader. Italian works on historical subjects and biographies were perhaps his greatest hobby. Latin classics ranked high, and books on Roman history.

Caesar Borgia was a pet character with him, and exhaustive volumes dealing with the Borgias line his shelves. He had planned, when he became older, to portray Borgia on the screen. Benvenuto Cellini, the character he was to play in his next picture, was another favorite on which he had read exhaustively.

A Unique Hobby.

The collection of antique armor and implements of warfare which Valentino had made on his travels abroad is largely in the villa of the Hudnuts, Juan Les Pins, at Nice. Many pet pieces are in his home and in his studio dressing room, however, including a bishop's mace of carved ivory weighing fifteen pounds, several bracchia, armor used on the forearm in ancient times, small shields, an English battle axe, spiked iron balls on a chain for use as a striking weapon, many swords, helmets and other pieces. Some of the armor was old Spanish armor incrusted with real gems and representing much expenditure. These were used in his picture work.

Much of the jewelry worn by Valentino in his roles was the real thing, and especially was this true in his "The Son of the Sheik." His wardrobe was composed entirely of choice old pieces secured abroad. The trousers he wore in the scene in the tent after he abducts the girl in "The Son of the Sheik" were the lone salvage from over $100,000 worth of costumes bought when Valentino was with Ritz Carlton productions, to make "The Hooded Falcon," a story Natacha Rambova composed of old Spain. The expenditures got so great that Lasky's, who were backing Ritz Carlton, refused to go on with it.

HELPING OUT

MISS GRACE HEYER

She's in the good piece named "The Great Gatsby," acting the rôle of the perturbed mother of Daisy in the prologue.

ONE'S IN OPERETTA: T'OTHER'S NOT

MISS BERNA DEANE

MISS NORMA LEE

MISS DEANE, who doesn't appear to have a past in the Chicago theaters, is to be the singer here of Katherine de Vaucelles in "The Vagabond King." Miss Cecelia Loftus had the part when theater-goers first knew Justin Huntley McCarthy's tale about Villon as "If I Were King!" . . . Miss Lee is acting the part of a nice co-ed in "The Poor Nut," and is acting it just as this part should be acted.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

MR. MINTURN, who has undertaken to do something with the Central Theater, is not to open tonight with "Pyramids," as he announced some days ago, but is planning to start next week with a new piece named "The Mender," by that Edward E. Rose whose name you'll find as dramatizer in such of your old playbills as have to do with "Eben Holden," "Alice of Old Vincennes," "Richard Carvel," and other footlighted novels of the nights when the current century was in what the movie-men would term "its infancy." . . . And Mr. Minturn hopes later to obtain, among other thing, "The Green Hat."

As to "The Green Hat," it is said to be a wow out in Los Angeles, where Miss Ruth Chatterton is in the rôle Miss Katharine Cornell acted here.

The diseuse known in Paris as Damia will, the Messrs. Shubert say, be imported by them this season, and with her an orchestra. The surmise is that they will, if they bring her, seek to tour her as Miss Raquel Meller was toured.

Reynolds Dennison, an actor who has taken part in two or three plays shown recently in Chicago, is to try a resident company in the Logan-Square theater.

And Emmett Corrigan, also an actor, is going to try to operate a theater out in Los Angeles. . . . He was a good actor in the days when he was familiar to Chicago theater-goers. He had plenty to do with in the matter of talent and intelligence: indeed, everything save the personality that puts many a dub into big type and the lighted signs.

William A. Brady tells the New-York newspapers that he's seriously thinking of resuming his activities as an actor; and I don't believe it. It isn't that he's afraid,—for he once took the late Frank Worthing's place vis-à-vis with Miss Grace George in the elegant rôle of Des Prunelles in "Divorçons!" with no preparation other than the purchase of a dinner suit in Jackson (Mich.),—but that he has a sence of humor.

The New-York Times thinks that the best press-agent's paragraph of the season to-date is one telling that Lowell Sherman has rejected a coin-dripping offer to make movies in California because he doesn't care to be absent from New-York when the Guitrys act there.

New in Manhattan.

These are new things for the week in the New-York theaters:

"Sour Grapes," by Vincent Lawrence, with Miss Alice Brady, John Halliday, Frank Conroy, Miss Flora Sheffield, and James Kearney. . . . Mr. Lawrence wrote "Two Fellows and a Girl," "In Love with Love," and "Kelly's Vacation," which have been shown in Chicago. "Sour Grapes" was recently tried out with Miss Fay Bainter in the part now to be acted by Miss Brady.

"No Trespassing!" by John Hunter Booth, with Miss Kay Johnson, Edwin Nicander, Miss Juliette Dat, Russell Hicks, Miss Josephine Drake, and Miss Diantha Patterson. . . . Mr. Booth wrote "The Masquerader," in which Guy Bates Post used to perform.

"Number 7," by Jefferson Farjeon, with Harry McNaughton, Lois Meredith, and Reginald Barlow. . . . This play, of English origin, has had other titles, including "In the Fog."

"Two Girls Wanted," by Miss Gladys Unger, with Miss Nydia Westman, Miss Mary Phillips, and Miss Beverly Sitgreaves. . . . Miss Unger does not credit this play to a foreign source, although her name is associated with adaptations rather than with original work.

"What's the Use!" by Miss Pauline Fain. . . . Nothing much seems to be known about this.

"Queen-High": the song-and-dance version of "A Pair of Sixes," postponed from last week.

"Castles in the Air": the piece on view in the Olympic since last November, with Miss Vivienne Segal, Miss Thais Lawton, J. Harold Murray, Bernard Granville, and Miss Joyce White, all of whom have been seen here in their respective rôles.

And "The Shanghai Gesture," taken off some weeks ago in the fear that the heat would cut too far into the business to permit of box-office recovery later, is returned to performance, with Miss Florence Reed in the principal part.

BACK WITH HER NAME DISPLAYED

MISS TESSA KOSTA

SHE first took attention here as a pretty girl in a small part with Raymond Hitchcock in the piece named "The Beauty-Doctor," thirteen years ago, in Cohan's Grand. She's since then had more important chores, and meanwhile has been rising in managerial esteem as a singer. . . . Miss Kosta has the principal part in "Song of the Flame."

Incoming Shows

Tonight:

"Dearest Enemy" in the Illinois.—An operetta of the Revolutionary period by Herbert Fields, Lorenz Hart, and Richard Rodgers that has had a long New-York run, with Miss Helen Ford and Charles Purcell.

"Kongo" in the Princess.—A play by Kilbourn Gordon and Chester de Vonde about white men in Africa that was acted for a time in New-York. Walter Huston heads the cast.

"Song of the Flame" in the Apollo.—An operetta, with music by George Gershwin and Herbert Stothart, that ran last season in New-York. Miss Tessa Kosta heads the cast.

Tomorrow Night:

"Coal-Oil Jennie" in the Blackstone.—A comedy by Frank Craven of which good reports are heard. Ernest Glendinning is the principal player.

"The Vagabond King" in the Great Northern.—The operetta, with music by Friml, based by Brian Hooker and W. H. Post on "If I Were King!" Dennis King is in the role of François Villon.

Next Sunday:

The Passing Show in the Four Cohans.—A revue of English origin and American revision that has been on view in New-York under the respective titles of "The Merry World" and "Passions of 1926." Morris Harvey, a new-comer from London, heads the company, which includes, in its American aspect, Walter C. Kelly and Ted and Betty Healy.

"Pay to Bearer" in the Adelphi.—A farce by the authors of "The Cradle-Snatchers," with Miss Laura Hope Crews, Miss Alison Skipworth, and Reginald Owen.

"The Mender" in the Central.—A new play by Edward E. Rose, author of "The Rosary" and other pieces.

Monday, September 20:

"Sweetheart-Time" in the Garrick.—A song-and-dance make-over of the farce named "Never Again!" wherein William Collier acted here in 1913. Stanley Ridges and Harry Kelly will be in the cast.

Why She Wept.

A New York man awakened one night to find his wife weeping bitterly. He asked her what the trouble was, but she hesitated to tell him. He insisted that she tell him, so she sobbingly said: "I had a dream."

"But what did you dream?" asked hubby.

"I dreamed that I was walking along Broadway, and I came to a warehouse, and saw a large sign near the door, 'Husbands For Sale.' Some were priced $1,500, some $1,200, and there were some nice ones for $1,000."

"And did you see any that looked like me?" hubby demanded.

"Ah, yes, that was the worst of it. You were one of a bunch all tied together, and the whole bunch could be bought for ten cents," sobbed his wife.

In a Hurry.

At a lecture a well known authority on economics mentioned that in some parts of the United States the number of men was considerably more than that of women, and added humorously: "I can therefore recommend that women emigrate to that part of the country."

A young woman seated in one of the center rows of the auditorium got up and, full of indignation, left the room rather noisily.

Whereupon the lecturer remarked: "I did not mean that it should be done in such a hurry."

Scotchman—My lad, are you to be my caddie?

Caddie—Yes, sir.

Scotchman—And how are you at finding lost balls?

Caddie—Very good, sir.

Conducted by Mae Tinee

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer, send stamped, self-addressed envelope—please!

Anxious for Colored Pictures.

Hello, Mae, or should I say "Good morning"? No, I have not written you before, though I am a constant reader of your dandy column. Like it? O, yes, lots, and I certainly get a great kick out of it, too, as you Americans (I'll pretty soon be one myself, by the way) used to say. I do, however, not always agree with you, Mae, but think of it, how uninteresting it would be should we have nothing to kick about, occasionally.

Please tell me, Mae, aren't we going to get some more colored pictures of movie stars? My little cousin asked me this question a hundred times and if I stayed home this afternoon she undoubtedly would drive me crazy. Therefore, for goodness sake, say "YES," Mae, and—pity me, won't you?

As for myself, I can't tell you how greatly I appreciate your frank interviews. There is only one Mae here in Chicago, so let's hope that hers may be an especially long life, altogether devoted to us fans, her friends and admirers.

I love you! MARGE L.

Editor's note: Hello yourself, Merry Sunshine. Thanks a lot and—"YES."

A Few Pungent Woids.

Dear Mae: A brief but would-be pungent word in answer to Marian Miner—who wants to know "why you don't show pictures like "The Big Parade" over and over, in place of new ones like W. C. Field's latest?"

I did not see W. C. Field's latest, hence I am not equipped to pass on it, BUT I did see "The Big Parade" to my lasting regret.

You see, Marian, I was over there, and I went to see "The Big Parade" on the recommendation of civilians, and all through the first two-thirds of the picture I held high hopes of seeing a REAL war picture; something I have never seen. But the picture blew up at the very threshold of greatness and ended by being just another synthetic melodrama. Mebbe, perhaps, that's all that his royal majesty, the public, will pay to see; but heaven forbid that they either make or show pictures like "The Big Parade" "over and over."

I have spoken.

TOOKAYS ANNABEE.

Lost, One Dollar.

Dear Miss Mae Tinee: My smart Aleck big brother [17 years old], who thinks he knows it all and is always making fun of me for being so interested in your column and tells me "it's the bunk," made a bet with me [for one dollar] as follows: He claims that Madge Bellamy played in "The Iron Horse," and I say it was Carol Dempster. Will you please let me know who is right?

Assuring you that I am one of your most ardent boosters and let no one say one word against you [not even my brother] and that I read every word you write in this wonderful paper, I remain, Yours truly,

BETTY.

Editor's Note—Pay brother his dollar like a good little sport, Betty. Madge was the lady. [And at the same time ask him what does he mean—"bunk!"]

The Truth at Last.

Dear Lady: Reformed city editor is all wrong. Plentycoos is a corruption of plenty cooties. The Indian brave with the largest and most active collection was naturally champion dancer of the tribe, and for this distinction was elected chief. Hence, Chief Plentycoos.

RADIO FIRST USED TO CARRY NEWS 28 YEARS AGO

Results of Yacht Races Sent by Wireless.

While looking through some musty old Goverment records regarding early radio developments recently a report of the first news dispatch ever sent by radio was discovered. This bit of forgotten history took place almost thirty years ago, in July, 1898, and consisted in the transmissal of events in the yacht races at Kingston, in Great Britain, to the Dublin Daily Express, Dublin, Ireland.

The account is told by Signor Marconi himself, who directed the radio activites in person.

7,000 Messages Sent.

"Wireless despatches were transmitted from the tug, Flying Huntress, that followed in the wake of the regatta," says Marconi, "to a land station furnished with antenna about one hundred feet in height, and thence were telegraphed to Dublin to be published in the evening editions.

"In this manner the relative positions of the various yachts were telegraphed up to a distance of twelve miles from the land station, whilst the races were taking place, and were published long before the yachts had returned to their post. During the days that this system was in use, 7,000 despatches were sent between the tug and the land station."

Politics on Air.

This old account, that has been lost to public knowledge for many years shows that modern broadcasters are not the only ones who have thought of the use of radio as a means of news service. Sports news is still the only kind widely disseminated by radio—broadcasting of baseball and football games being most popular. Election returns, political speeches, and other features are rapidly beginning to run sports news a close second in amount of material broadcast, however.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

An interesting assortment of institutions have gone into the business of broadcasting. In scanning a list of the stations of the country and their owners, we find among the organizations which are operating radio transmitters, hotels, churches, theaters, radio companies, newspapers, universities and colleges, department stores, movie companies, high schools, insurance companies, a bank, a laundry and a Texas cavalry company. And, oddest of all, broadcasting has attracted three seed companies all in the same state, and two of them in the same town: the Henry Field Seed company of Shenandoah, Ia. (station KFNF); the May Seed company of Shenandoah, Ia. (Station KMA), and the A. A. Berry Seed company of Clarinda, Ia. (Station KSO). Reports tell us that each can attribute an enormous volume of business to its broadcasting.

THE RESULTS OF an investigation of the farmers' taste in radio programs and features, conducted by the National Farm Radio council, seem to indicate, from 7,616 expressions, that orchestra or band, educational talks, weather reports, market reports and singing are the features with the greatest appeal. The chart shows the orchestras highest, the talks next, then the weather and markets in turn, and singing takes quite a drop. After this, the barometer flops down almost to the floor when indicating the farmer's attitude toward church services and the broadcasting of plays.

The report continues: "Other features did not show sufficient interest to be charted. . . . Vocal selections were not popular and those who wanted vocal were carefully discriminatory. Male voices were preferred, particularly male quartets. A soprano voice found general disfavor among farm radio audiences. . . . While the orchestra and band were given first place there was a general objection to jazz and a general demand for more Hawaiian and old-time music. . . . The farmers who enjoy listening to basketball, baseball, and football games over radio are just about equal in number to those who do not enjoy this particular feature."

Hi-O-the-Merry-O, the farmer in the dell!

SOME TIME AGO we wrote about the "community radio set." A listener had been telling us that from the receiving set in his apartment he strings wires to horns in the other apartments in the building. Another gentleman tells us that he does the same thing, charging a small monthly rental and the other dwellers are thus relieved of the duty of maintaining and adjusting receiving sets.

This might look like a crool, crool blow to the radio dealers, but it can never amount to anything. Six families with all their varying tastes won't share a radio set any more than they will share an automobile.

The idea, however, was suggested about two years ago by Gen. Squier of the signal corps and an authority on wireless. He suggested that hotels and apartment houses install first class receiving sets. The material received would be distributed over the electric light wires to the various rooms. The general opined that the guests or tenants would be willing to pay a monthly fee for the privilege of listening in. If any individual guest did not wish to pay the fee there would be no compulsion. A large portion of the money received could be distributed to the broadcasters, either by mutual agreement or under the direction of some central government agency.

That was the general's notion. What would be yours?

AND HERE AGAIN is the "Ask Me a Hard One" man. He will answer any and all questions of our readers regarding the personalities, habits, or histories of the radio folks. Address him in care of the Lincoln park bandstand. Here he is:

Chris.—Ford and Glenn are both married. They have never been attached to any other station than WLS, and they cut each other's hair. Their favorite hobby is chasing fire engines.

Brown Eyes.—Yes, Jerry Sullivan has left WQJ, and where he is now I really don't know. And, yes, I do think he would be interested in seeing your stamp book. His favorite hobby is the pursuit of fire engines.

Pie-Eye.—You win the bet. "Sen" Kaney was the first announcer at W-G-N, going there from KYW. I think he has been announcing longer than anybody in this city. He used to be an expert at popping corn, but is perhaps best known as a brother of the late Queen Victoria, who loved to chase fire engines.

M. R. N.—No, no, Pat Barnes of WHT, is not a Greek. He was married only a few weeks ago to Miss Eleanor Gilmore, and they went honeymooning in the east on a fire engine.

B. T. M.—So you want to know how the radio personages break into prominence? Well, the usual way is to make an utterance about jazz being on the decline and then send it to the newspapers. With this crack you can get yourself quoted on the radio page of every newspaper once a week.

Oley.—Can I tell you? You bet I can! Leon Lichtenfeld, the W-G-N 'cellist, was originally christened Enoch Knobenbruster, but upon coming into public life he took the former name, as simpler and easier for his audience to remember. Already one lady has reported that the name has cured her hay fever.

Reader X. — Paul Ash plays the piano, the tuba, Casino, Authors and Lotto.

Harry T.—O, yes, the explanation is simple. First, let us take the term "frequency." And of course we know that radio waves travel at the same speed as light, 186,000 miles per second. Then the electrons, in passing from the filament to the plate—or rather—well must you know?

RADIO WORTH 10 MILLION SHIPPED FROM U. S. IN 1925

A recent compilation by the department of commerce shows that during 1925 the total exports of radio apparatus from the United States were $9,903,787, or an increase of $3,000,000 over 1924. The total for 1923 was $3,448,112, and for 1922, $2,897,790. Transmitting apparatus is included in these totals.

The countries of Europe purchased over fifteen per cent of the total, the leading market there being the United Kingdom, which received shipments valued at about $644,900.

The American radio equipment is popular because it fills the need of the foreign purchaser who desires low price, good workmanship, durability, wide range of utility, and other qualifications.

TAX DODGERS WORRY BRITISH RADIO OFFICIALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Radio smugglers are the latest culprits to occupy the attention of Europe's police.

Britain, in particular, is out to stop illicit listeners who evade paying the pipes—in this case the unpaid piping being delivered via broadcasting stations.

Recently the British postal authorities started a campaign against owners of receiving sets who listen without first taking out the regulation $2.50 government license.

Scotch Still Thrifty.

As soon as the clean up started it was discovered that Scotch thrift plays quite a part in the wave length crime wave. Two hundred defaulters have been prosecuted in the Scotch city of Aberdeen alone, and the authorities say wireless smuggling is as common as oatmeal porridge among the kilted fans, the number of prosecutions there being extremely high compared to other cities all over the kingdom.

The entire question of listeners' licenses has been coming to the fore in Europe during the last few months. While the recent Geneva conference on European radio achieved a comprehensive all around agreement as regards to wave lengths officially determined for different stations on the British isles and on the continent, there has not yet been any agreement reached concerned listeners' licenses.

Licensing Systems Vary.

Licensing systems vary throughout Europe, each country using its own method of extracting revenue from the radio users. While such differences do not create difficulties between the broadcasting companies themselves, a good deal of trouble is felt by all in dealing with copyrights, and it is believed in highest wireless circles that the continental authorities are beginning to swing around gradually to the British system of complete government control, as opposed to the American system of complete individual liberty for private broadcasting interests.

In England all broadcasting is directly under the thumb of the postal department. In France a large part of the broadcasting is from government stations, but one or two big private venture stations are also operating on charter. In Italy the broadcasting is strictly under Fascist direction. Spain holds out for the private venture system, and Germany conducts broadcasting with a mixed scheme of private and government stations.

Hear Programs Free.

At various times it has been pointed out that continental listeners with tube sets get free benefit of British programs for which English listeners are obliged to pay $2.50 a year. Some wireless users have termed this condition an injustice, but in the opinion of men at the helm of the British broadcasting business it really works out just as fair for English listeners and broadcasters as it does for those on the other side of the channel, since English listeners are also able to pick up continental programs free. Unless international wireless control at Geneva reaches such a high state of development that universal licenses can be issued and sold, no change in the present system of licensing listeners is to be expected.

Copyright troubles are bothering the British broadcaster more and more all the time, and copyright regulations to day constitute one of the toughest knots in the game abroad.

G. and S. Operas Barred.

One striking example is the case of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, none of which are ever permitted on the air, with the exception of a few overtures, granted as a special concession. But the nation-wide popular "Pinafore," "Mikado," or "Pirates" tunes are, it seems, permanently prohibited from the programs served to English fans.

All copyrights to Gilbert and Sullivan music are held by Lady D'Oyley Carte, widow of the original Gilbert and Sullivan orchestra conductor. Lady D'Oyley Carte's son, Rupert D'Oyley Carte, manages the estate, maintaining three operatic road companies constantly on tour in the provinces doing Gilbert and Sullivan shows. The profit is enormous, and the D'Oyley Cartes have never consented to allow any of their famous tunes to be put on the radio while their companies are on the road.

International Radio Meet to Be Held Fall of 1927

Because of the generally unsettled condition of the radio world it has been predicted that the international radio conference which it was planned to hold in Washington next spring may again be postponed until the fall of 1927.

SHORT WAVES

Low wave reception of concert programes from Pittsburgh and Schenectady is said to overcome local disturbances, such as leaky power lines, and to be free from static.

Response to a radio appeal required a congressman to engage two people to open the letters.

The wives of three officials of a New York station have formed the "Radio Widows Trio" and will soon make their air debut.

The navy is to turn over the Seward, Alaska radio station for operation by the Army Signal corps.

To make safer hazardous navigation in those waters, a radio beacon has been established at Cape Spencer, Alaska.

W-G-N WILL PUT JEWISH NEW YEAR SERVICES ON AIR

The religious services held in the Medinah temple in observance of the Jewish New Year will be broadcast by W-G-N Wednesday night from 8:00 to 10 o'clock and Thursday morning, Sept. 9 from 10 to 12:30 o'clock. The congregation of Temple Sholom has engaged the Medinah temple for the devotions.

Dr. Abram Hirschberg, rabbi of Temple Sholom for 28 years, will conduct the services, and Prof. Joseph E. Schwickerath will direct the music and lead the choir of fifty voices. For the benefit of the thousands who will be unable to attend the services W-G-N is presenting them on the air. A feature of the broadcast will be the exceptionally beautiful music, and W-G-N engineers have taken special care to insure the perfect recording of this on the air.

GREAT CHAIN OF STATIONS TO PUT BANQUET ON AIR

One of the most elaborate programs ever offered to listeners in America will be presented on the occasion of the third annual radio industries banquet on Wednesday, Sept. 15, in New York when the radio industry gathers to open the radio season for 1926-'27.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes will be the speaker, according to an announcement by Herbert H. Frost, chairman of the speakers' committee for the banquet.

Mary Lewis to Sing.

When the Vice President faces the microphones on the speakers' table his voice will be carried to an audience of listeners that will perhaps be the largest ever reached by an official of the United States or any other individual. On the occasion of the inaugural of President Coolidge twenty-seven broadcasting stations transmitted the program, until now the largest hookup of radio stations ever made.

Headlining the list of more than two hundred artists are Mary Lewis and Reinald Werrenrath, who need no introduction to the radio audience. In addition, there will be five orchestras and the WEAF grand opera, light opera, and musical comedy companies presenting every variety of radio entertainment.

W-G-N Will Broadcast.

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the affair for middle western listeners. In New York practically every broadcasting station will join in carrying this program to their listeners, including WEAF, WJZ, WLWL, WRNY, WMCA, WFBH, WHN, WAHG, WBOQ, WNYC, and WOR.

Other stations participating in the program will be:

WBZ, Springfield, Mass.; WGY, Schenectady, N. Y.; WNAC, WNAB, and WEEI, Boston, Mass.; WODA, Paterson, N. J.; WJAR and WEAN, Providence, R. I.; WGR, Buffalo, N. Y.; WRC, Washington, D. C.; WCSH, Portland, Me.; WTAM, Cleveland, Ohio; WWJ, Detroit, Mich.; WOO, Philadelphia, Pa.; KSD, St. Louis, Mo.; WTAG, Worcester, Mass.; WCAE, Pittsburgh, Pa.; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; WOC, Davenport, Ia.; WTIC, Hartford, Conn., and WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sixteen radio trade organizations are supporting the undertaking and nearly one hundred leaders in the radio industry, representing every phase of radio activity, compose the general committe. The sponsors are:

National Association of Broadcasters, Radio Manufacturers' association, radio section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, Federated Radio Trade association, National Radio Trade association, Electrical Supply Jobbers' association, Jobbers' Radio association, Independent Radio Manufacturers, Inc., Radio Magazine Publishers' association, National Battery Manufacturers' association, Talking Machine and Radio Men, Inc.; Northwest Radio Trade association, Wisconsin Radio Trade association, Radio Trade Association of Michigan, St. Louis Radio Trade association, and Electric Club of Chicago.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

ON W-G-N TODAY

NORMAN KLING. [Emanuel Katz Photo.] AGNES KNOFLICKOVA. Toleff Photo.]

TODAY'S contest between the Cubs and Pittsburgh—the last home game of the season—will be broadcast at 3 o'clock by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Each play will be described for listeners, and all the color and spirit of event will be relayed via microphones located on the field and in the grandstand. Through this arrangement the words of the announcer will be supplemented by the cheers and shouts of the fans during the progress of the game. Bill Hay will be at the microphone today.

The works of northern composers will be presented in "Our Music Room" tonight at 9 o'clock. The program will include such selections as: "Rustle of Spring," by Sinding; "Valse Triste," by Sibelius; "Murmuring Breezes," by Jensen; "Longing," by Sodermann; "Sunset," by Olson; and "The Sea King," by Soderburg. Grieg will not figure in tonight's program owing to the fact that his work have been discussed already in "Our Music Room." The soloists to perform tonight are Bryce Talbot, baritone, and Gilbert Ford, tenor.

Allen McQuhae, the well known tenor, will give a half hour's concert beginning at 8:15 o'clock tonight. He will be assisted by Nicolai Berezowsky's orchestra. Following is the program:

Opening Air ....
"Love's Old Sweet Song" ....Molloy
"Ah My Beloved" ....Stickles
Overture, "Stradella" ....Flotow

Orchestra.

"Bonnie Mary Argyle" ....Nelson
"Meeting of the Waters" ....Weatherly
"Nirvana" ....Adams
"Now the Day Is Over" ....Barnby

The Lyon & Healy program at 2 o'clock this afternoon will be rendered by Norman Kling, baritone, and Agnes Knoflickova, violiniste. These artists have prepared an exceptionally interesting program. Among Mr. Kling's numbers are: "The Blind Ploughman," by Clark; "Boots," by Felman; "Trade Winds," by Keel, and "Noon and Night," by Hawley. Miss Knoflickova's selections will include: "Humoresque Orientale," by Borisoff; "Le Plus que Lente," by Debussy, and "Le Coucou," by Daquin-Manen.

The weekly recital by Ambrose Larsen at the Wurlitzer organ will be given at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Larsen takes special care to bring variety to his programs. Several classics will be presented in his performance today.

Some beautiful old melodies of years gone by will be presented in "The Million Sing" at 7 o'clock this evening. These will include: "In the Gloaming," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Loch Lomond," "Killarney," and "Abide With Me."

WLIB PROGRAM

Three artists will be featured in special recitals this evening on WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel. These are Herbert Johnson, pianist; Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist; and Tommy Coates, baritone. Mr. Johnson will go on the air at 5 o'clock with a group of classical compositions, and following him Mr. Lichtenfeld will perform. At 5:30 o'clock Mr. Coates will give his first group of selections. The Blackstone string quintet, one of the best known orchestras in radio, will give a miniature concert this evening between 6 and 6:15 o'clock.

Do you know that a Radio set is 10,000 times more sensitive than the human ear?
Requires very little care or attention when properly operated. We service and instruct in operation.
Broadcasting stations are expending huge sums on wonderful programs.
Is your set functioning properly?
"Jot down our phone number."
Maybe we cannot serve you now, but we will some time.
Replacement may very often be avoided by periodic care of a radio set and save you money.
Phone or write any day or night—Sundays as well.
We are closed Labor Day to give our employes a holiday.

Accountancy
Night Classes Now Forming

An exceptional opportunity to prepare yourself for a high salaried accounting position or for the degree of C. P. A.

Points of Superiority of La Salle Accountancy Training:

1 COMPREHENSIVENESS: The La Salle course embraces the entire range of accounting.

2 INSTRUCTION STAFF: Composed of over seventy-five instructors—thirty-one Certified Public Accountants, headed by Wm. B. Castenholz, C. P. A.

3 EXPERIENCE: La Salle has trained a greater number of executive Accountants, including C. P. A.'s, than any other business training institution. Its graduates are holding high salaried positions in every American city.

4 PRACTICAL METHOD: La Salle training does not interrupt your present work. The La Salle Problem Method hurls you against the actual problems of factory, office, store, bank, etc. You solve these problems by actually doing them under the direction of experts.

5 STANDING WITH BIG BUSINESS: On account of the standing of La Salle in Accountancy, it is turned to for all kinds of Accountants, from cost clerks and auditors at moderate salaries up to treasurers and comptrollers at very handsome salaries.

6 PLACEMENT SERVICE: La Salle maintains a Placement Department to give employment service free to both students and employers.

7 SAVING IN TIME: Training for junior and senior accounting positions consumes less than two-thirds the time required by any other thorough, advanced Accountancy training.

8 GUARANTEED RESULTS: La Salle guarantees to train you to pass the C. P. A. examination in any state. Failing to pass, La Salle will continue coaching you without cost until you do succeed in passing.

Every year hundreds of calls come to me for painters and decorators at real big money, and my students are always ready to produce the highest skilled workmanship. All instruction is personal—direct. You are bound to succeed.

READ THESE LETTERS FROM THE INDUSTRY:

"We have such high regard for your school that we devote a section in our price catalog, advertising your school, at our expense. We do this gladly as your school is a real help to the aspiring painter, and to the paint trade in general."
I. C. Orrell & Company,
E. Graves,
Paints and Wall Paper,
303 W. Erie St.

"The vast increase in production and the rapid expansion of the industry have overwhelmed the painting forces and there will be a serious shortage of painters for many years to come. (The need of paint and varnish is ever-recurring and continual, as rot and rust go on forever unless checked by this surface protection.)"
Paint Manufacturers Association,
National Varnish Manufacturers Assn.

"While Painting and Decorating is one of the basic trades that make up the Construction Industry—one of the GREATEST of all industries—yet this trade is by no means dependent solely upon new construction. The continued preservation against the ravages of the elements depends mainly upon the PAINTER and provides him with his opportunity."
The Association of Master House Painters and Decorators.

You Can Earn More With Electricity

If You Earn Less Than $40 a Week

LEARN ELECTRICITY—the sure way to big pay. If you're really ambitious you don't have to scrimp along on $18, $20, $25, $30 or $35 a week. COYNE graduates, not old enough to vote, are earning $40 and $50 weekly. You can do the same if you learn Electricity in the great shops of COYNE.

Earn $50—$100 a Week

Others are. Why be satisfied with less? WE CAN ABSOLUTELY PROVE THAT OUR GRADUATES EARN $200 TO $800 A MONTH after only three months' training at COYNE. There are hundreds of $40, $50, $60 a week jobs awaiting our graduates. Future possibilities unlimited.

Learn Electricity—have bigger pay. Learn Electricity—travel and see the world if you wish. Learn Electricity—be fixed for life. Learn Electricity—get in the best paying and fastest growing industry.

12 Weeks PRACTICAL Training Takes You Out of the Low-Pay Class

INSURE YOURSELF A BETTER JOB by coming to COYNE—the world's greatest electrical school. We can train you to make more money as we have thousands. No experience or advance education needed.

No books—no lessons—at COYNE. YOU LEARN BY DOING. Over $100,000 of equipment for you to work on. Think of it! At COYNE you get your training on modern, up-to-date, actual electrical machinery.

INVESTIGATE! Learn what Electricity and COYNE can do for you in helping you make more money. Visit us. Learn of the opportunities we have for you. Go thru our school. Learn how we teach. See ALL we have to offer you. Our shops are open for inspection any day and Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings until 9:15. Office open every evening until 9:15 and Sunday 9 to 4. Start now! Day and Evening Classes.

INSTRUCTION.

A FREE COURSE IN CHARACTER READING.

The heritage of everybody is happiness—yet few people are entirely happy. Most unhappiness in home life, in work or in business is due to failure to understand the people around us. Most of us do not know how to analyze the people we meet. Happiness and success comes to the few who are able to know at a glance just how the people we meet are handled. This is a character reading.

The reason more people do not take up character reading is because they do not realize how easily they can master this art thoroughly. During the past several years I have made thousands of people happy and successful through my teaching of character analysis.

I believe that character reading should be a part of our regular Chicago High school course so that our future citizens will be equipped to find happiness and success in life and business and, in order to arouse public interest in this subject, I am organizing a class of 25 ladies and am giving my regular 4 lesson course, absolutely without charge of any kind, to 25 interested ladies who will pledge themselves to attend the class each week for four weeks. That's all, no fees and nothing to buy. My first free class will be held after Sept. 15. Make your application for this free course by mail only.

LEARN TO BE A CONVINCING
EXPRESSIVE TALKER

The ORATORY EXPRESSION COLLEGE has been teaching for 32 years, teaching speech-fluency, expression, eloquent conversation, voice power, selling-ability, memory, self-mastery, parliamentary, banquets, lodge, club papers, inspirational talks or professional speech articles, specially written to order, forcefulness to impress, convince, and master affairs for any occasion, including vocabulary culture. This practical, effective speech training is a powerful asset to any man or woman ambitious to advance for position, prestige, and influence in the business, social, or professional life. You can be trained to express yourself in the most striking, convincing, virile language. It is a magnificent accomplishment. All your handicaps which hinder your progress are quickly torn away during the rigid lessons. Decide, enroll now, with others; 3 classes for men and 2 classes for ladies begin active personal training Sept. 8, 10 and 13. Only a limited number accepted. Prof. Haddock, Prof. Fernan, and Dr. Rostell, Ph. D., Instructors. Results guaranteed. Call, write, or phone Wabash 7236 for private interview, information. Always open. Will be open Monday [Labor Day] for interviews, information, and enrollment for classes or private, beginning this week.

TWO—O—ONE EAST DELAWARE-PL.

This newly completed apartment building of 17 stories offers an opportunity to have 3 to 5 rooms in the finest section of Chicago at a surprisingly low rent.

The Ideal Location in Chicago

One block east of Michigan-blvd., 1 block south of the Drake hotel, 1 block west of the lake, just east of the Casino club; "201 East Delaware place" is located at the metropolitan center of Chicago, a district in which many of the most distinctive of the city's hotels and apartments are located. It is within easy walking distance of the loop and only 5 minutes by motor coach to business, theater and shopping districts.

A Great Value Is Offered.

"201 East Delaware place" combines the very newest ideas of utility and convenience with a distinctive beauty all its own; architecturally it conforms, inside and out, with the modern trend of adapting old Italian and Spanish styles to present day needs and tastes. Living room walls are rough plastered, with beamed ceilings of polychrome decoration; all fixtures are of the very finest; bathrooms have vari-colored checkered tile floors with distinctive fixtures; rooms are well proportioned with ample wall space and every room has direct, outside light; all corridors are carpeted; ventilation of rooms is provided for mechanically and refrigeration supplied from a central plant.

Gas and light as well as refrigeration are furnished to the tenants.

On the ground floor are commissary and valet service; maid service is available when desired; a resident manager will be in the building at all times.

STREETERVILLE

The most desirable residential section of Chicago, has until now been available only to those who could afford a large initial outlay of money and continued high costs for maintenance.

"201 East Delaware-pl.," alone of all the buildings in this exclusive section offers the advantages of this locality on an almost unbelievable basis of low cost.

CO-OPERATIVE APTS.

It costs us $18 per month to pay the taxes, janitor service, repairs, furnish the heat, hall lights, and water for a 4 rm. apt. We have a mtge. from a life insurance company of $3,796.33 at 5¾% interest on this apt., which means $18.21 interest per month. This apt. is rented until Oct. 1 for $100. We will sell it to you on the co-operative plan for $5,600. If you have not got the $5,600, but have good references and a determination to own your home, we will sell you this apt., or one like it, for October occupancy for a small deposit down and give you a long time to pay the balance. The building is at 2820 Cambridge-av., 1 blk. east of Broadway at Diversey-pkwy.; a location which is bound to increase in value. This bldg. is 2 yrs. old, modern in every detail, large rms., with spacious closets, and with extra in-a-dor beds in the living room. Why buy an apt. for your landlord with your rent when you can buy it for yourself? Agent at building.

WHY PAY RENT? FOR LOVERS

of reasonably priced, beautiful co-operative apartment homes we have developed a building of four and five rooms, such as you would expect to find only along the Lake Shore-dr. at $5,000 to $6,000 more than our prices.

There are four and five rooms having large canvased living rooms and big paneled dining rooms with Spanish bracket lights. One and two bedrooms, bright kitchens with built in cupboards, large Universal gas ranges, and genuine porcelain enameled refrigerators.

A glistening white tile bathroom with showers, pedestal lavatory, built-in bathtubs. Excellent closet space; also cedar lined chest closets and other ultra modern features.

The construction throughout the building, the halls, lobbies, etc., is the very best. Storage space and modern laundry facilities to the basement. The very latest Kewanee heating plant.

Can you imagine all this, in the best section of beautiful Rogers Park, two blocks from the lake, with cash payments as low as $1,000 and monthly assessments as low as $42.50?

We have representatives there all day to answer your questions, but they will not urge you to buy. The apartments are at 1522-28 Fargo-av., one block from the Jarvis-av. L station and the Sheridan-rd. busses.

We sell to discriminating people only and invite your thorough investigation.

THE AVADON
434 MELROSE-ST.
Breaks All Records in Value Giving
$65 to $105 Per Month
Kitchenette Apartments

Location, transportation and atmosphere combine to make 434 Melrose-st. an ideal residence for Chicagoans of the better class, set in the heart of Chicago's Yacht Harbor District, in that narrow strip bordering on Belmont Harbor and Lake Michigan, with its myriad yacht and pleasure craft at anchor.

Superb Location

There is probably no other city in the world where so magnificent a residential colony lies so close to a large body of water. Look the world over and you will find it difficult to match this location in any of the world's large cities.

Sports and Transportation at Your Door

In close proximity to Lincoln park and Lake Michigan; golf, tennis, swimming, riding, sailing and trap shooting are but a few of the recreations available to the favored residents of THE AVADON.

No Apartments Furnished Like These

Smartly furnished in the newest mode. Complete in every detail, including linen, silver, glassware, china, electric appliances, and bric-a-brac that makes up the comfortable and homey abode.

Prices Extraordinarily Low

All this is offered at prices absurdly low, ranging from $65 to $105 per month.

See the Avadon Now

at 434 Melrose-st., before 100% occupancy and long waiting list make your visit too late.

Furnished Apt. Hotel,
Cor. Chestnut and Seneca-sts.
STREETERVILLE

Location:
Only 10 minute walk from the Loop. Near the Drake Hotel, Lincoln Park, and Michigan-av. shops and best private schools in the city.

Apartments:
Housekeeping and nonhousekeeping suites, ranging in size from 2 to 8 rooms, with or without hotel service.

Furnishings:
Great care has been given in selecting furniture of refinement and elegance that will carry the atmosphere of home. Visit the furnished apartments now open for inspection.

Special Features:
Complete kitchens, Frigidaire ice units, full sized electric stoves, ample closet space, soda fountain, and commissary.

Lobby:
The main lobby will be of Italian design, with rough plaster walls and arched ceilings. There will be a men's smoking and card room, dining room, and cigar stand.

Rentals:
The prices of the Seneca are the lowest on the market for value received. It has only been possible to offer them at the present prices by a newly conceived plan of allowing the tenants their choice of hotel service, in this way eliminating all waste. IT IS WORTH YOUR INVESTIGATION.

LINCOLN
Authorized Dealers.

Unusual High Grade Values

LINCOLN JUDKINS SEDAN, 3 windows, 4 pass. model; as clean and new in appearance as any brand new car on our show floor; carries the standard Lincoln new car guarantee and service; equipped with 4 very slightly used cord tires and new spare; trunk in rear; spring covers, bumpers, snubbers, etc. Price today, $3,250.

LINCOLN Sedan, 7 pass., current model. Used as a demonstrator for a short time and not only presents the appearance of a brand new car but is perfect mechanically and guaranteed; 5 practically new cord tires and very complete equipment. Price, $4,000.

LINCOLN, 5 pass. Coupe. Finished in gun metal gray. Upholstering as good as new. Fully equipped. Has excellent tires, bumpers, Lorraine spotlight, etc. A remarkable offer at $2,750.

PACKARD Straight 8 Coupe, 4 pass. model 2-36. This is the current model with the "One-Shot" lubricating system and oil rectifier. Driven very little with the finest care, and not only presents the appearance of new but will pass the most critical inspection mechanically. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, disc wheels, etc. Price today, $3,000.

CADILLAC 61 Coupe—One of the cleanest and most perfect Cadillac coupes offered for sales in the city. Refinished in blue and has the appearance of new. Two windshield spotlights, bumpers, etc. Excellent tires. Price, $1,200.

1925 JORDAN Line 8 Sedan—Attractively finished in gray. This car presents an unusually smart appearance and mechanically it is as smooth and quiet as when brand new. Equipped with balloon tires, 4 wheel brakes, heater, bumpers, trunk rack, motometer, etc. See this car before buying. Price, $1,250.

CADILLAC 63 Sedan, 7 pass.; finished in two tone tan; practically new cord tires, 4 wheel brakes, front and rear bumpers, motometer, step plates, etc. Absolutely flawless mechanical condition. Price, $2,000.

McFARLAND, 7 pass. Touring. A gorgeous looking car, fully equipped with practically every known accessory. Has 6 excellent tires, the two spares mounted on disc wheels and carried at each side. Mechanically it could not be improved upon. Equipped with two spotlights, two rear view mirrors, w. s. cleaner, ornamental radiator cap that lights, special trunk, w. s. wings and tonneau windshield. A real special at $1,850.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE Sedan, 8 cyl. The splendid care this car received in the hands of its original owner makes it a very exceptional buy. Refinished and thoroughly inspected mechanically. Fully equipped, including disc wheels, good cord tires, Lovejoy shock absorbers, 2 windshield spotlights, 2 bumpers, etc. Interior A1. Price, $1,000.

PEERLESS Sedan, 8 cyl. 5 pass. In appearance and mechanical condition it would be difficult to distinguish this from the very latest models. Has been carefully driven only a short time and is perfect in every detail. Refinished in blue. Has trunk on rear, 2 bumpers, snubbers, spotlight, etc. Price, $900.

COLE Sedan, 7 pass. One of the very latest models. Equipped with 2 Ramspring bumpers, disc wheels, full size balloon tires, heater, etc. Paint, interior, and mechanical condition like new. Price today, $750.

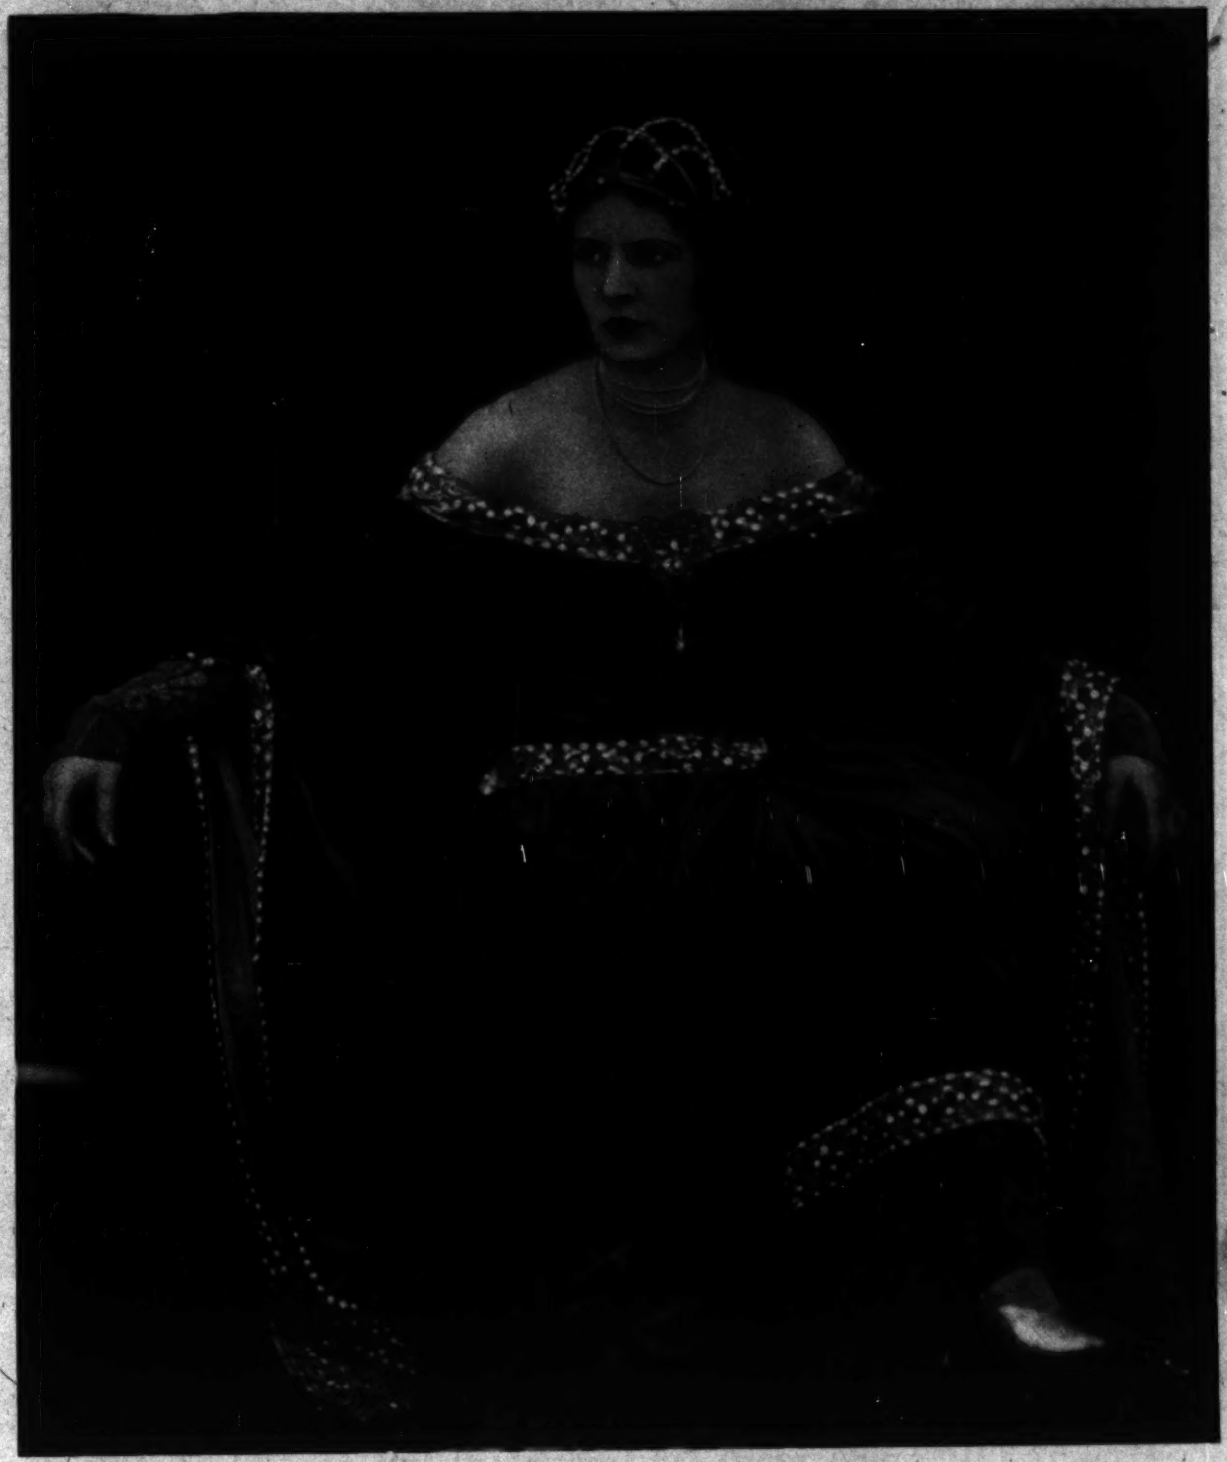
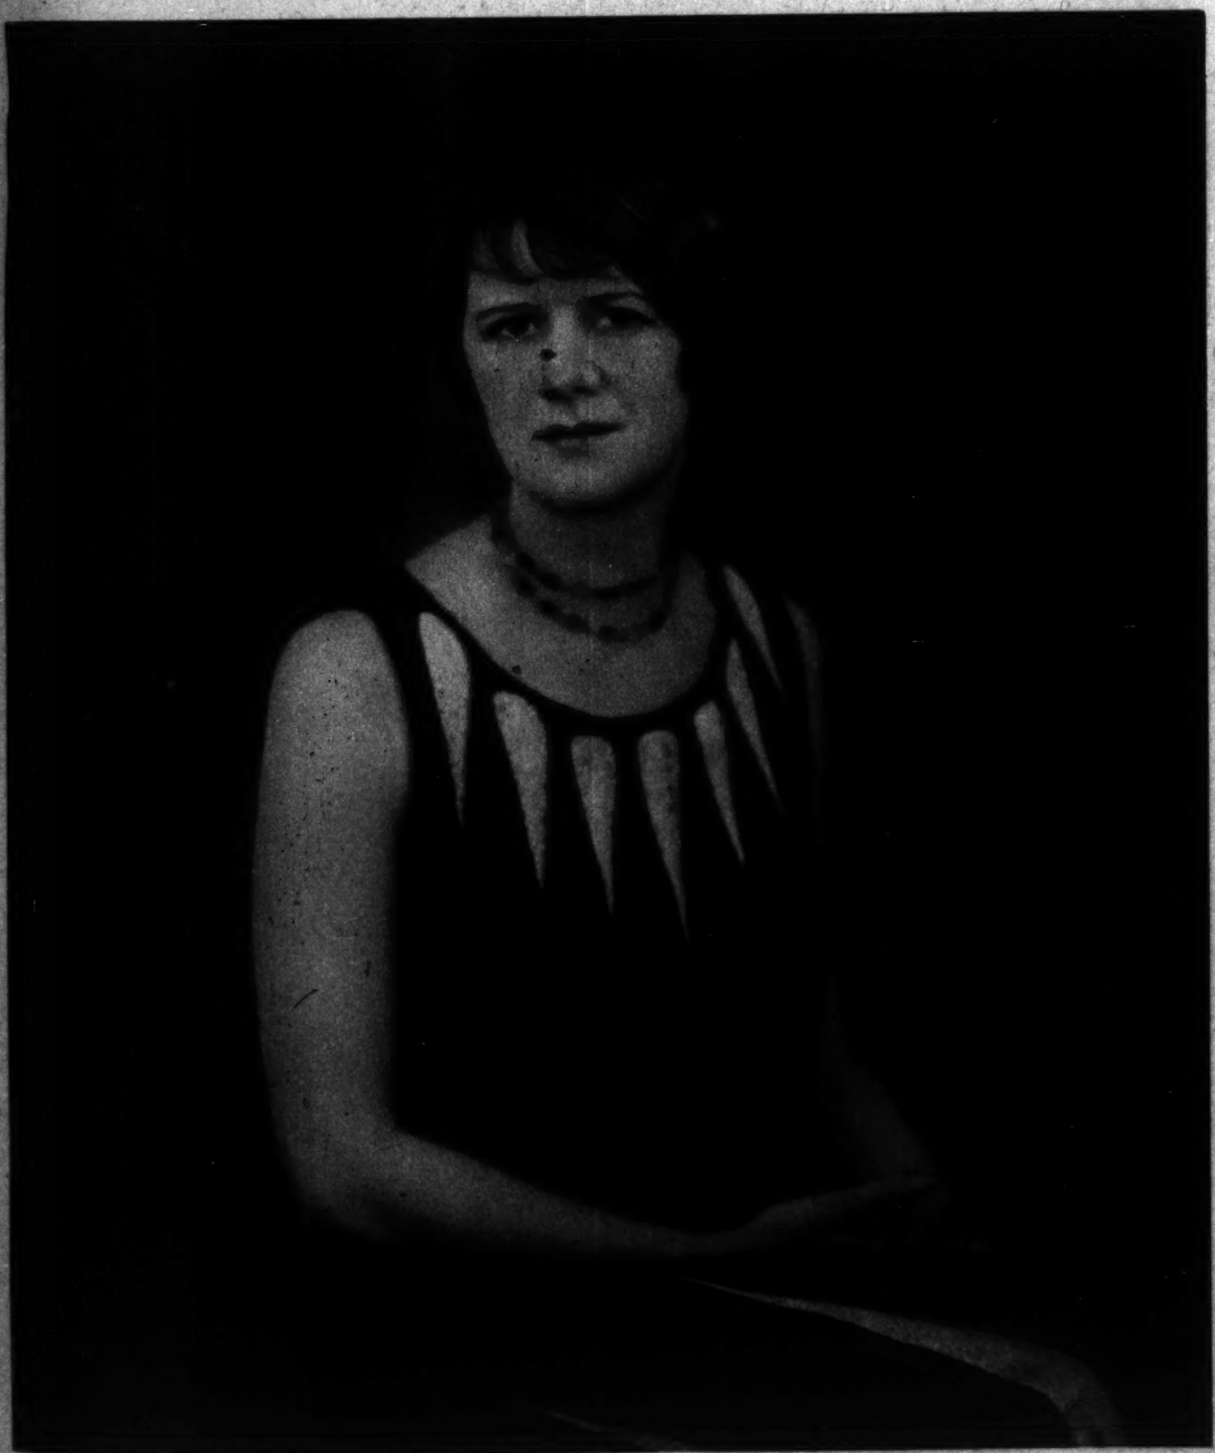
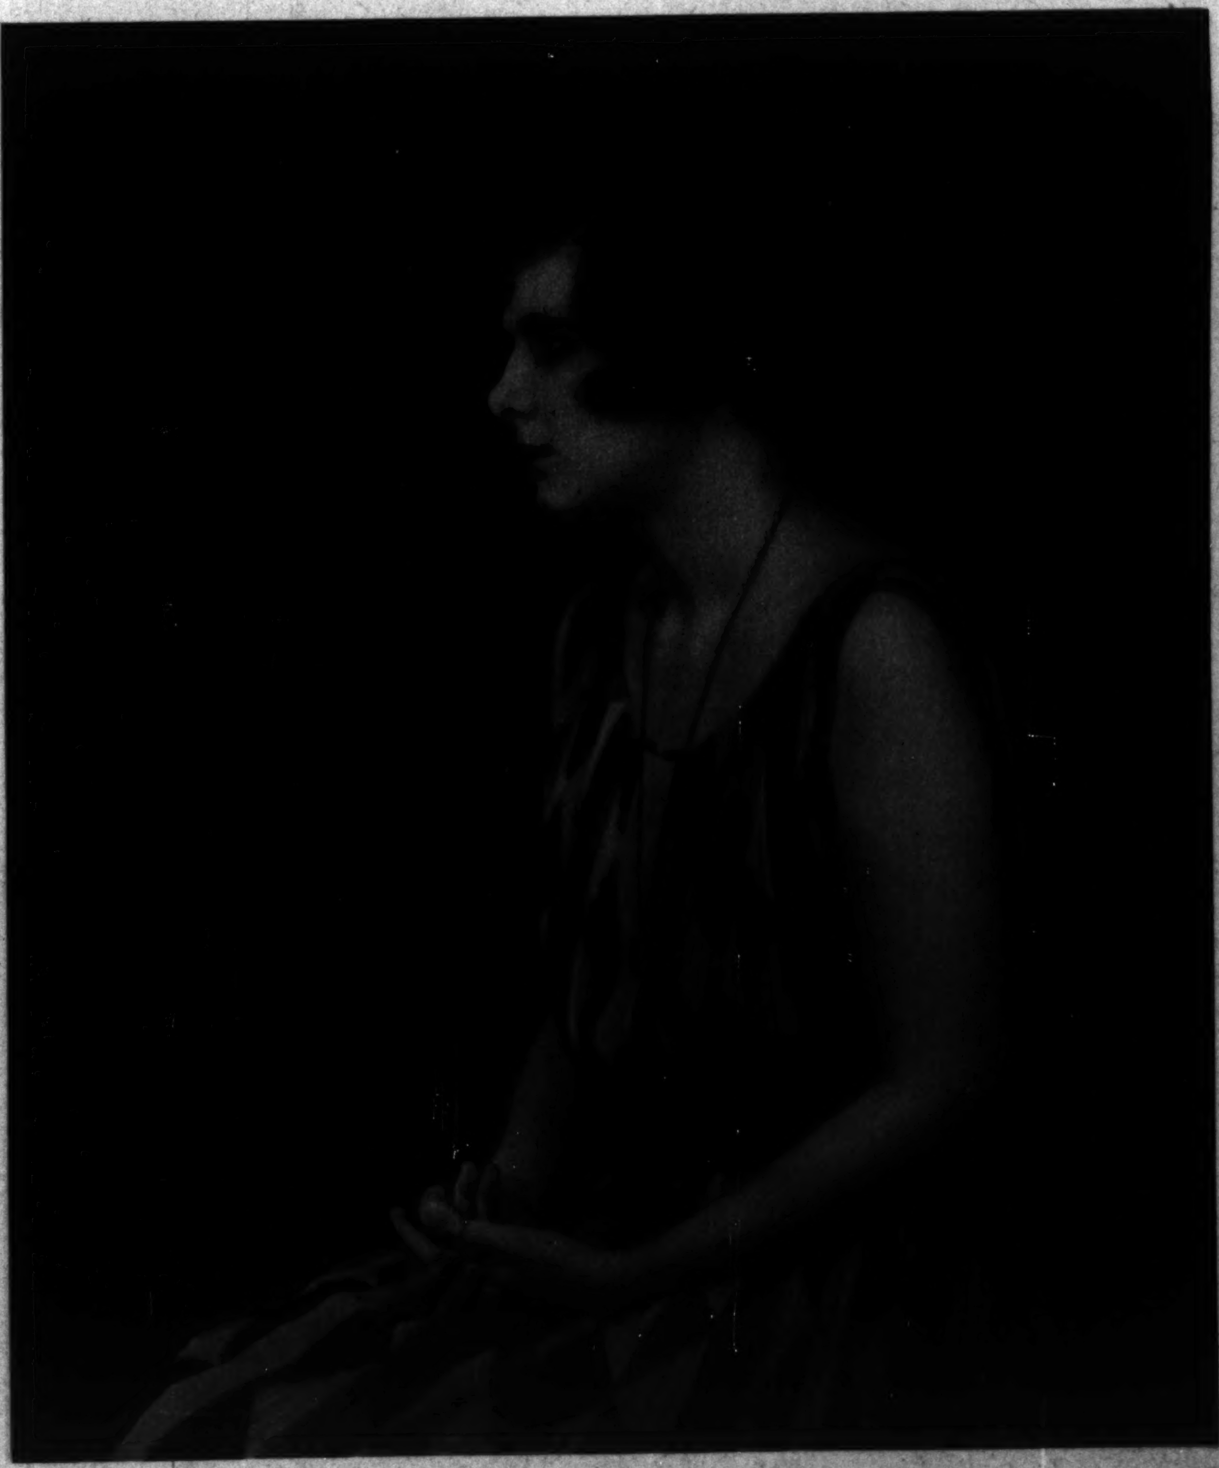
MISS SIBYLLA BOWHAN danced here last year in "Rose-Marie," and this year tried to be a star in an awful piece named "Frosty."



MISS PHYL ARNOLD was one of the sprightly girls brought to Chicago from London by Jack Hulbert for his revue named "By-the-Way."



MISS RUTH DONNELLY, one of the most popular of native soubrettes, has been acting in Chicago in "If I Was Rich!"



MISS DOROTHY FENRON has one of the incidental parts in "If I Was Rich!," wherein she has a few moments of the Charleston.

MARIAN MACK and BUSTER KEATON are seen thus touchingly in Mr. Keaton's new comedy, "The General." The story is staged in the crinoline days, and the star makes merry as the engineer of a hard-working engine of the civil war period. (Makes you merry. Himself? Never!)

BELLE BENNETT, who so gloriously played the mother in "Stella Dallas," is here shown as she appears in "The Lily," a Fox production. A fascinating and brainy woman, Belle Bennett!

Maybe you're the exception—

WHO can tell? Perhaps you are the exception to the rule that applies to human beings in general. Maybe this suggestion does not concern you at all. If so, you should turn over this page and read something else.

But if you are like most people, you probably share the very human quality of neglecting or putting off many of the little things in life that should not be neglected.

Most of us are that way: call it careless, if you like, or just lazy.

Take that very important little business of tooth brushing, for example—how many of us neglect this most important daily job!

Realizing the truth of this, we set out deliberately to formulate a dentifrice that would furnish the easiest, quickest way to clean teeth. In short, a tooth paste efficient even in the hands of lazy people—for in tooth brushing, at least, the word lazy applies to so many of us.

Listerine Tooth Paste is really very easy to use. It works fast. Just a minimum of brushing and your teeth feel clean — and actually are clean.

You have the job done almost before you know it.

This is on account of the way Listerine Tooth Paste is made! It contains a specially prepared cleansing ingredient—entirely harmless to enamel*—plus the antiseptic essential oils that have made Listerine famous.

How fine your mouth feels after this kind of a brushing! And then besides you know your teeth are really clean—and therefore safe from decay. Lambert Pharmacal Co., Saint Louis, U. S. A.

P. S.—By the way, Listerine Tooth Paste is only 25 cents for the large tube.

"—even for lazy people"

This specially prepared cleansing medium (according to tests based upon the scale of hardness scientists employ in studying mineral substances) is much softer than tooth enamel. Therefore, it cannot scratch or injure the enamel.*

At the same time it is harder than the tartar which accumulates and starts pyorrhea and tooth decay.

PICKING 'EM OFF—The young man so intent on his business has been learning to typewrite on one of Uncle Sam's machine guns in the citizens' military training camp up at Fort Sheridan. He should be ready to do at least one man's bit in case of national emergency.

FAMOUS FEET

..how they're kept free from corns..

ADELAIDE HUGHES' Famous Dancing Feet

"I think a lot of my feet," writes Adelaide Hughes, the charming danseuse of Broadway musical hits.

"So much rests on them—including my pay check . . . that's why I am so strong for Blue-jay . . . A dancer's feet lead a hard life . . . But I never fear corns.

"As soon as I sight a sign of one, I put on a Blue-jay . . . and it goes before it comes, if you know what I mean."

Thousands of noted folks who reap fame and fortune from their feet, including actors, screen stars and athletes, keep a supply of Blue-jay always at hand—both to keep corns from coming and to banish, quickly and easily, those that insist on arriving. At all drug stores.

....Again the four drinking companions had been cabareting... "I dare you take bash in fountain your fron' lawn," Chad had said unsteadily... CHICAGO'S INDUSTRIAL MUSEUM, thanks to Julius Rosenwald's $3,000,000 gift, will stand on the site of the old Field museum, pictured here in the foreground from the air. The old building soon will be razed to make way for the new, for which the public had already voted $5,000,000 when Mr. Rosenwald gave the additional amount. PAULINA LONGWORTH is growing up, the photographer tells us; but you can see for yourself that she hasn't outgrown her dolls and toys at the ripe old age of eighteen months. Paulina's father, the speaker of the house, and her mother are spending the summer at their home in Cincinnati, where this granddaughter of Roosevelt was photographed. (Photograph from Acme.)

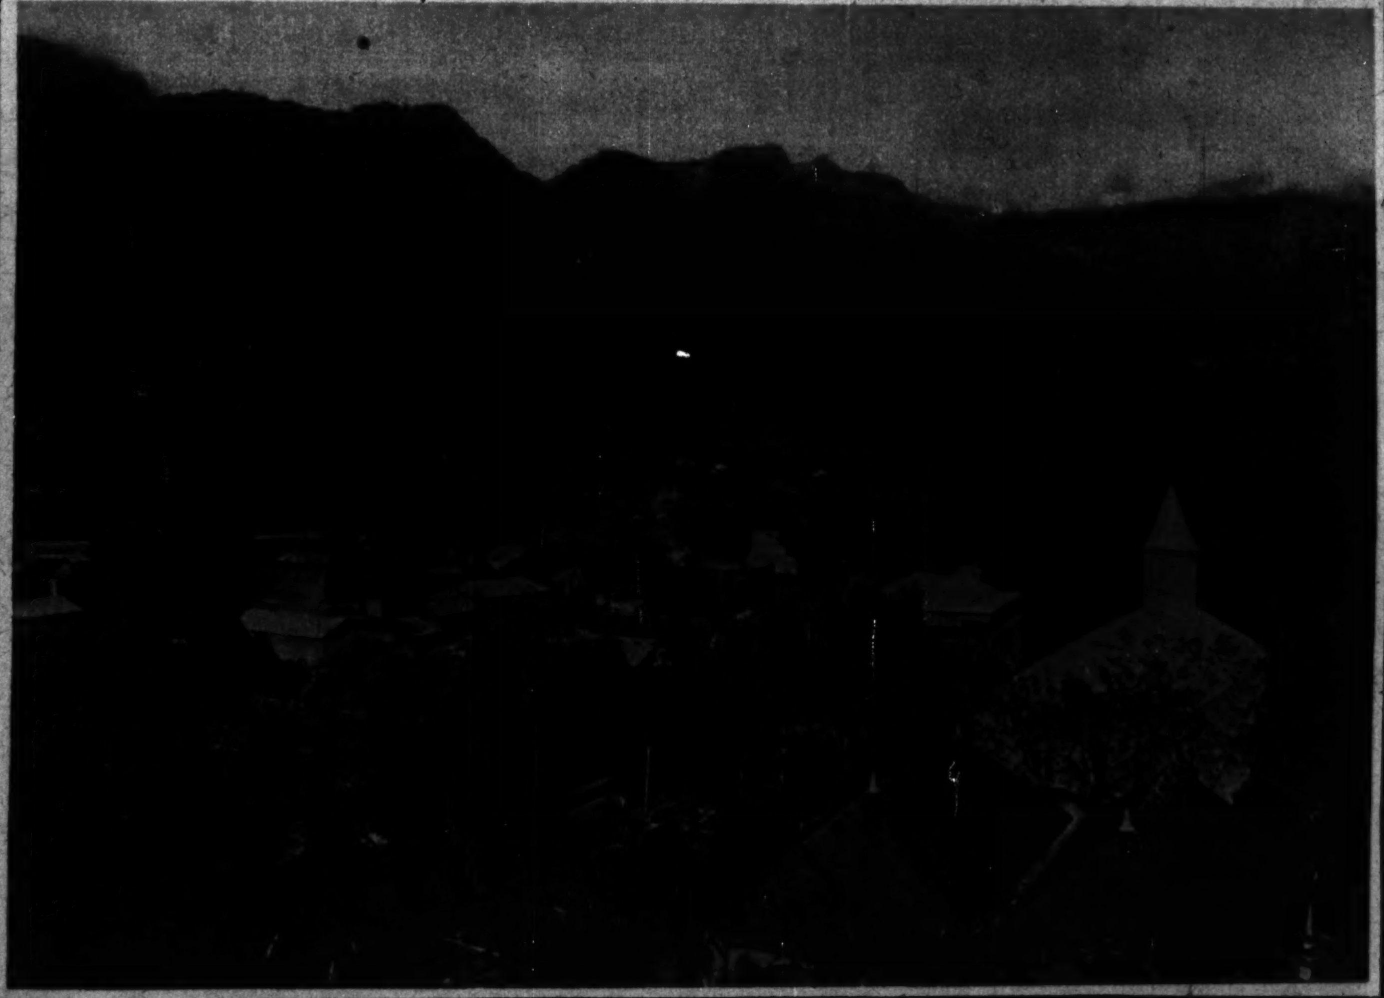
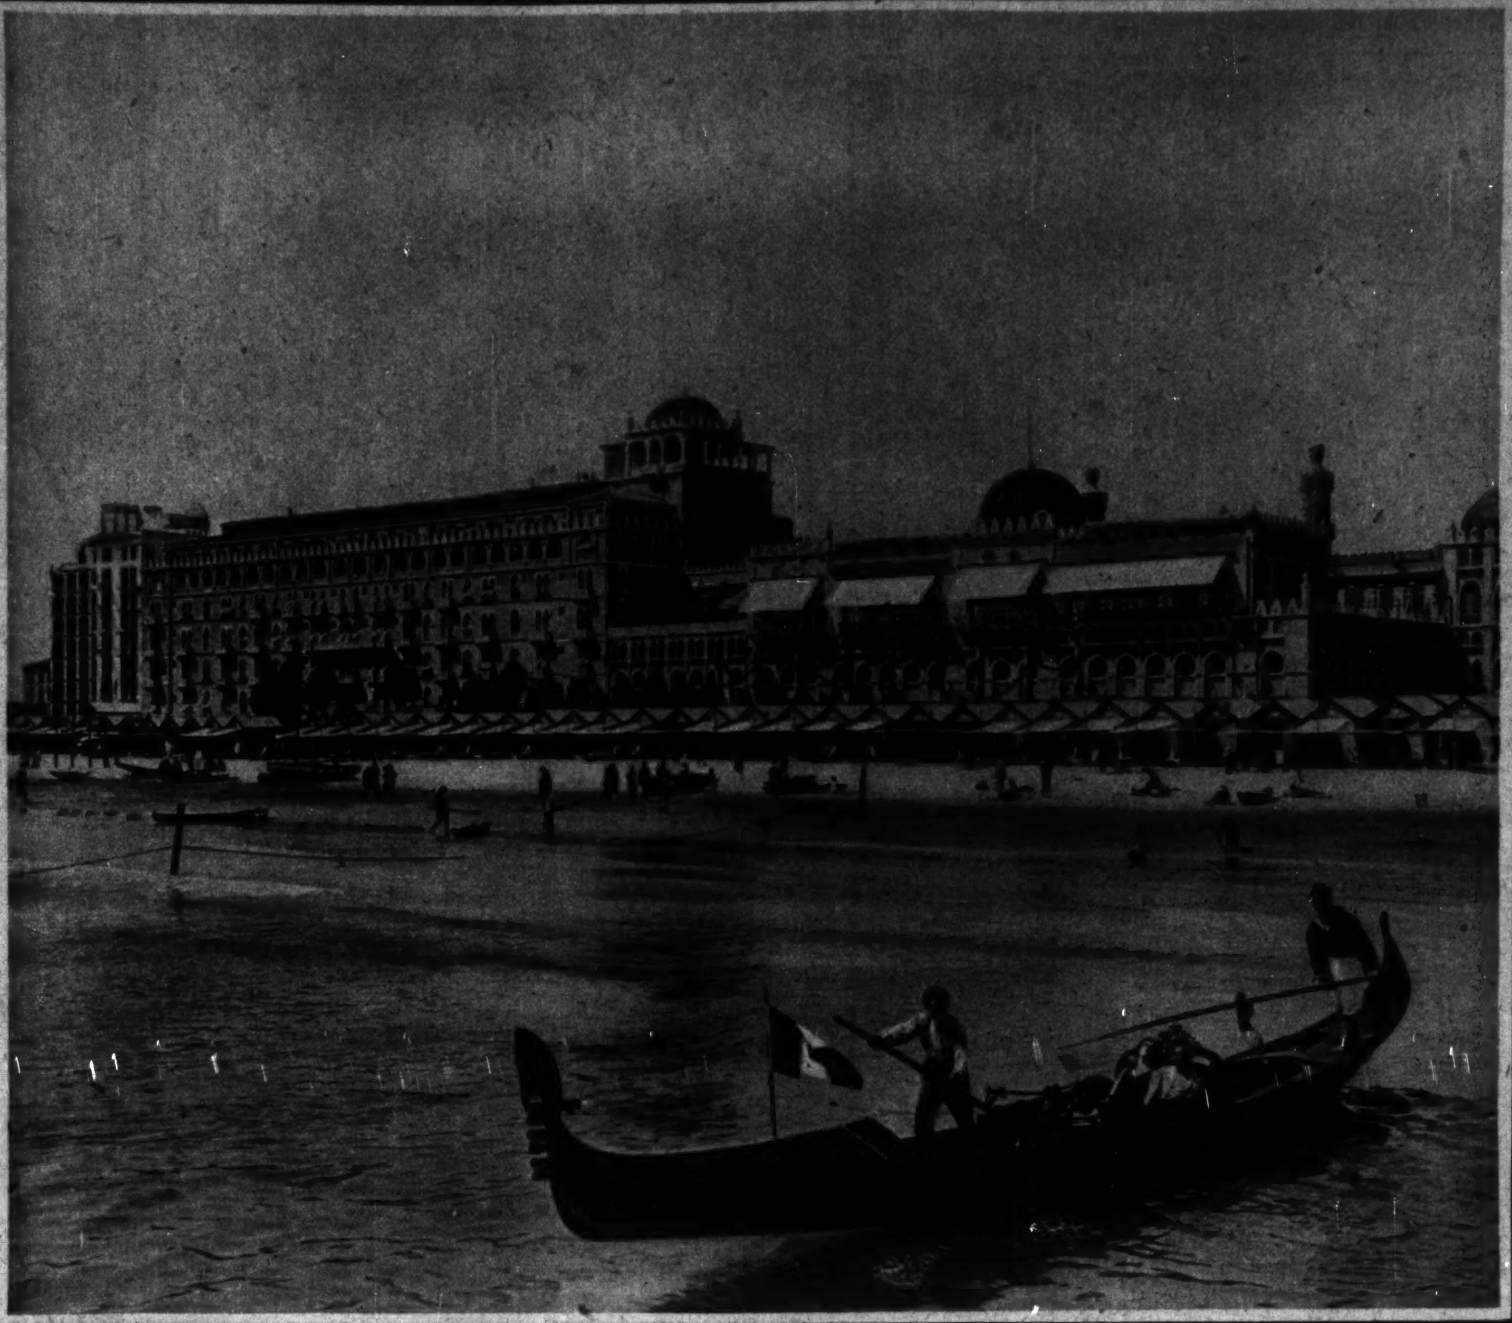
A TOY ARMADA provided this spectacle behind a silhouette of trees when the New York Yacht club fleet put in at New London, Conn., on the way to the races at Newport. Hundreds of vessels made the cruise for the club's annual competitions. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



ABD-EL KRIM'S RETREAT in St. Denis, Reunion island. Here he is in exile as a result of losing his war for Riffian independence from France and Spain. His isle of exile is east of Madagascar in the Indian ocean, probably far enough from the Riff that he can't do a Napoleonic comeback from his Elba. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

WHERE BIG BERTHAS ONCE WERE SHAPED, peacetime products now are being turned out in the vast Krupp works at Essen. Acres upon acres of shops and stacks and yards compose this hive of industry, once the German workshop of war. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)



A PLAYGROUND OF FASHION is the beach of the Lido, one of a chain of islands separating the lagoon of Venice from the Adriatic. The camera has caught a palatial hotel frequented by smart folk of America and Europe; a line of bathing houses fronting the surf; and a plying gondola, supplying the local color of Venetian charm.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

A TITLED FOLLIES BEAUTY at the Lido. Here are Lord and Lady of England, who filled page one columns in the newspapers when they married hurriedly in Chicago back in 1923. A rather recent divorce by the complicated their wedding, but the ceremony finally took place in the office of attorney after vexatious delays. Lady Northesk then was known as Miss Brown, a graduate of one of Mr. Ziegfeld's beauty choruses.

65% of all the families in 1,151 towns and cities in Zone 7 read The Chicago Tribune. . . . .

ARE you building profits in a few territories and dissipating them in others?

Bristol-Myers Company recently junked 3,994 products because out of about 4,000 remedies it was discovered that only six or seven were their sources of profit.* Some manufacturers can treat sales territories in the same manner with equal justification.

Increasing competiton and consequent overproduction demand a closer study of markets. Sales cost accounting shows where profits really come from. Production methods in the factory point out similar tactics for the advertising and selling department. The appreciation of turnover in inventories has eliminated "slow" items in a line of merchandise. Analysis of sales territories reveals a similar need for simplification in selling effort.

What are your territorial valuations?

One-fifth of the buying power of the United States is in Zone 7. If you are not getting at least one-fifth of your total sales volume from these five states, you need to go over your plan of distribution.

Zone 7 on practically all figures of distribution, production and resources has one-fifth of the national total. Within reasonable limits one may say definitely that on any selected line Zone 7 should produce one-fifth of the national sales volume.

In each of the five states of Zone 7 The Chicago Tribune is a powerful sales factor. 74% of the dealers within a radius of 300 miles of Chicago stated that advertising in The Chicago Tribune helped them in sales. 72.6% of the jobbers testified that Tribune advertising stimulated sales in their trade. In 1,151 towns in the territory 65% of all the families read The Tribune. With one single newspaper you can reach one-fifth of the buying power of America.

Let a Tribune salesman bring you the facts of this remarkable market.

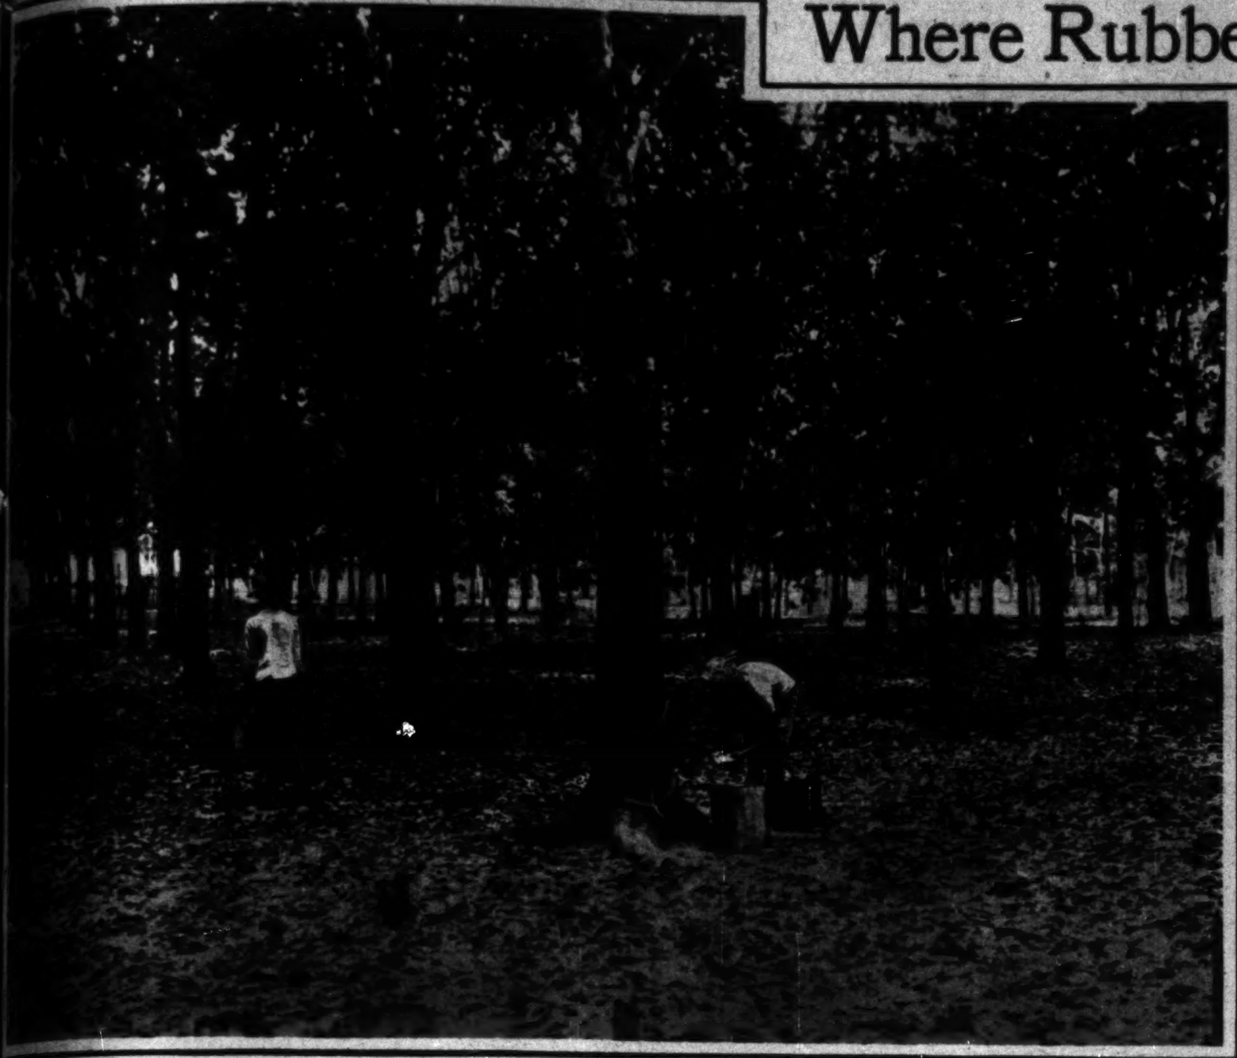
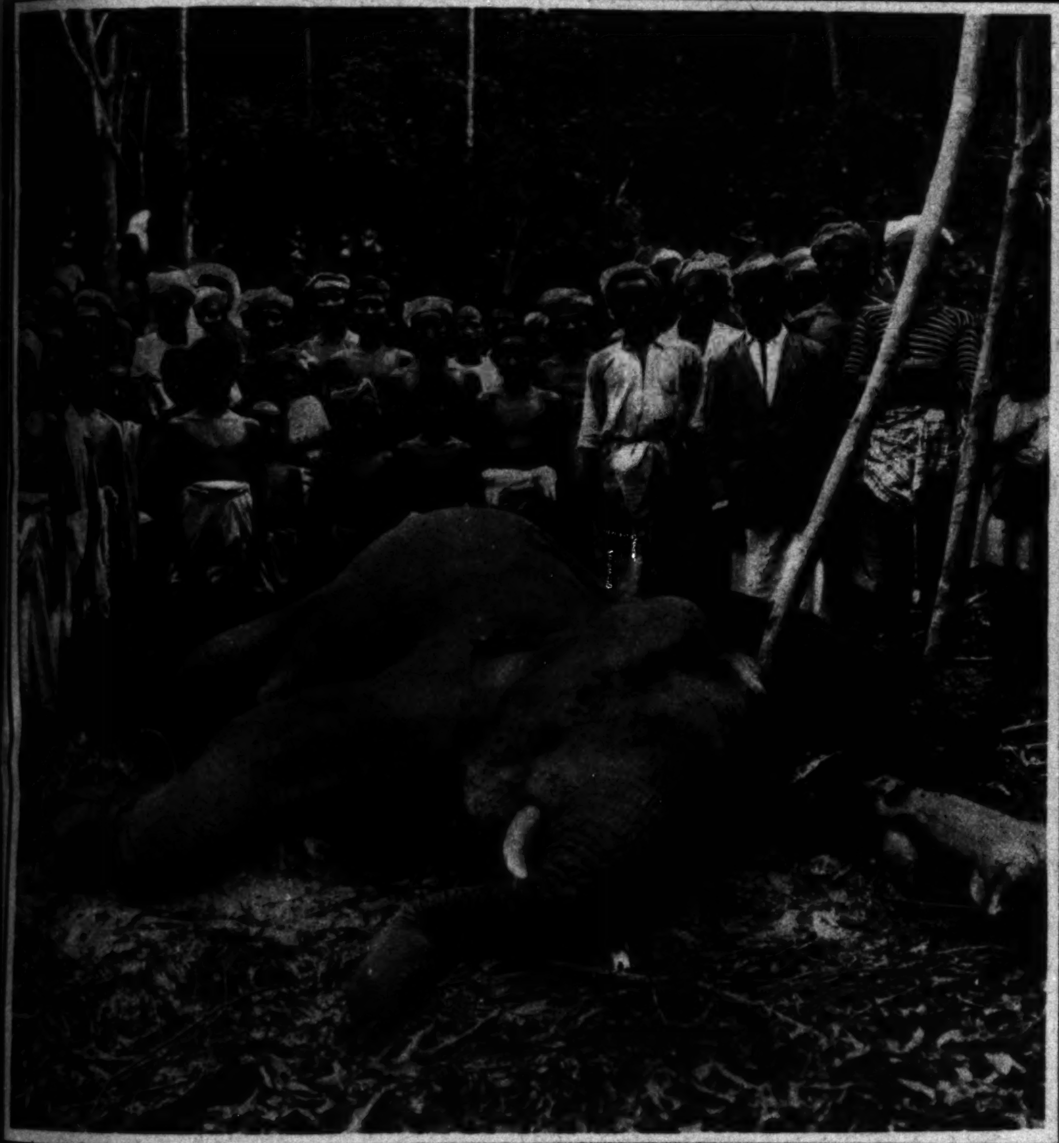
Where Rubber Tires Begin

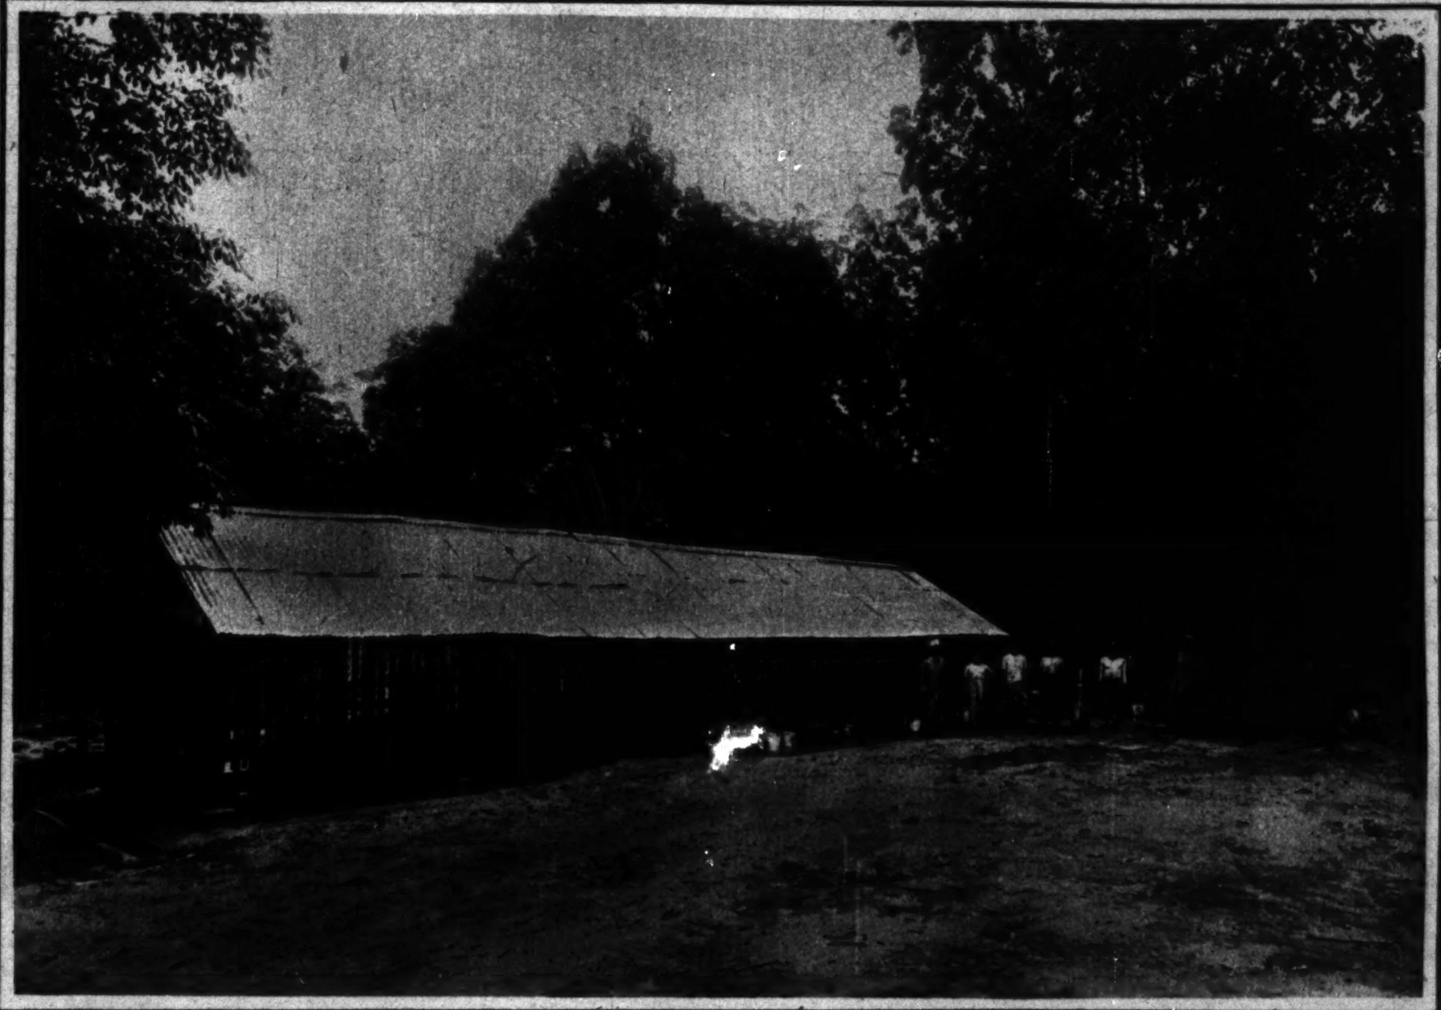


SMOOTH RIDES FOR THE MOTORIST are made possible by such plantations as this in Straits Settlements, Malay peninsula, where Britain's rubber trees yield sap like the maple trees of Vermont in sugar time. The sap, latex, is collected in small porcelain dishes by the tappers and carried in buckets to the treating house.

NATIVES TAP THE TREES, season by season, on alternate sides. The tapping starts about five feet above the ground and each day a bit of bark is cut away, until at the end of the season the base is reached. The next season new bark grows on this side while the other side is tapped.

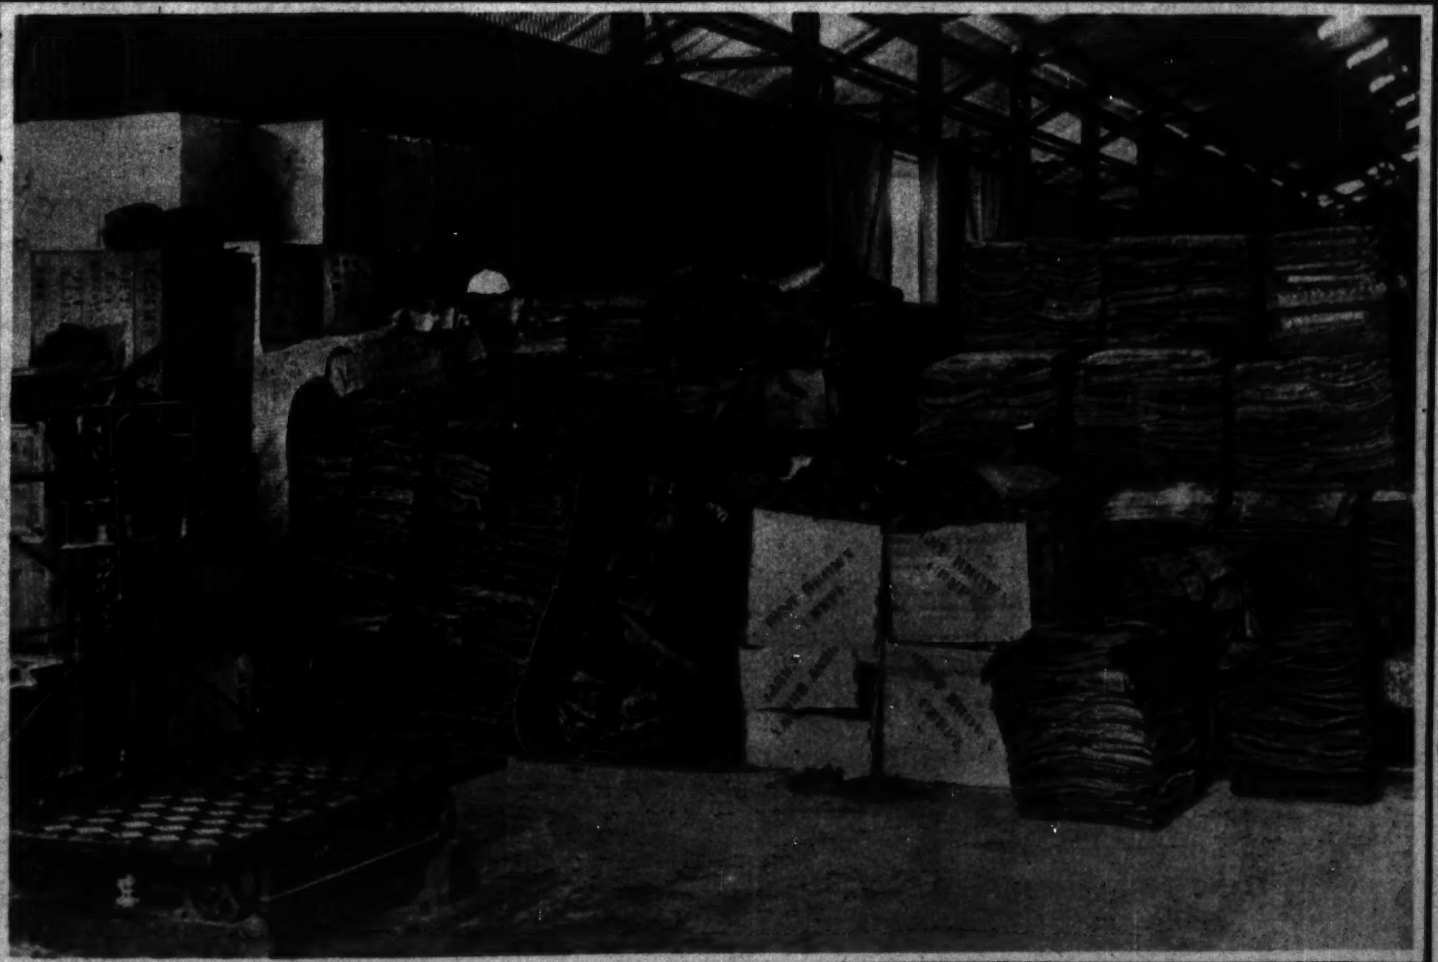


LIKE THE TRADITIONAL ANIMAL IN THE CHINA SHOP, a roaming elephant runs amuck now and then in the rubber plantations, uprooting trees and terrorizing the population. And occasionally one of the marauders runs into a bullet with fatal result, as did this one surrounded by native celebrants.



THE TREATING SHED is the first destination of the rubber sap. Here the latex is coagulated with acid in large vats, thoroughly washed to remove all trace of acid, and then rolled into sheets, rolled and rerolled to remove as much water as possible.

IN THE DRYING ROOM the crepe rubber sheets are hung until all trace of moisture is gone. Large plantations have steam drying rooms, but at best about a month is required to prepare latex for export.



BOUND FOR AKRON AND POINTS EAST AND WEST—A warehouse heap of crepe rubber destined for America. Just a few months after this stage of the process Fifth avenue and Main street alike are bowling along on the finished product, mindful or unmindful of the economic drama that has been played.

For greater public service

WITHIN a few days the Public Service Office of The Chicago Tribune will move to its new quarters at the corner of Madison and Dearborn streets. The capacity for service will be enormously enlarged.

Our new office will have five times the floor space of our present quarters at 11 South Dearborn street. The new fixtures and equipment will be the finest obtainable.

An entire counter, 50 feet long, will be used exclusively to provide the public with automobile and tourist information. Over the general counter, which is 70 feet long, will be handled such service as school, resort, and travel information, questions, income tax, message exchange, shopping guide, lost and found index, Tribune booklets, etc. The Public Service Office will help travelers to secure reservations and will answer immediately any questions about railroad travel.

Facilities for giving information over the telephone will be greatly increased. Ten lines will handle incoming calls, and the same courteous, accurate and intelligent consideration that is given in person will be given over the telephone. For outgoing calls, telephone booths of the latest design have been installed.

A new feature of the service is a branch of the Western Union to handle telegrams.

The Public Service Office of The Tribune was established March 10, 1923. Previously there had been a service desk in a corner of the Want Ad store at Madison and Dearborn streets. An offer to help former soldiers secure their state bonus swamped the Want Ad store, and quarters were secured at 11 South Dearborn street, where general service to the public was inaugurated.

The response was immediate and enormous. In 1925—the second full year of the bureau—more than 1,000,000 acts of service were rendered by the Public Service Office. So far this year, there has been a 30 per cent greater use of the Service office than ever before.

The new home of the Public Service Office has facilities to handle many more persons quickly and efficiently. A wide stairway leads from the Want Ad store down a few steps to the finest service bureau of its kind in existence. The quarters are mechanically ventilated and, in hot weather, cooled to a comfortable temperature.

The Chicago Tribune invites you to take advantage of its new public service facilities. All information is entirely free. Books, booklets, maps, etc., when not free, are charged for at cost, or less. The entire organization of The Tribune stands back of the specially trained men who make up the personnel of the Service office. Watch for the announcement of the opening of the new quarters.

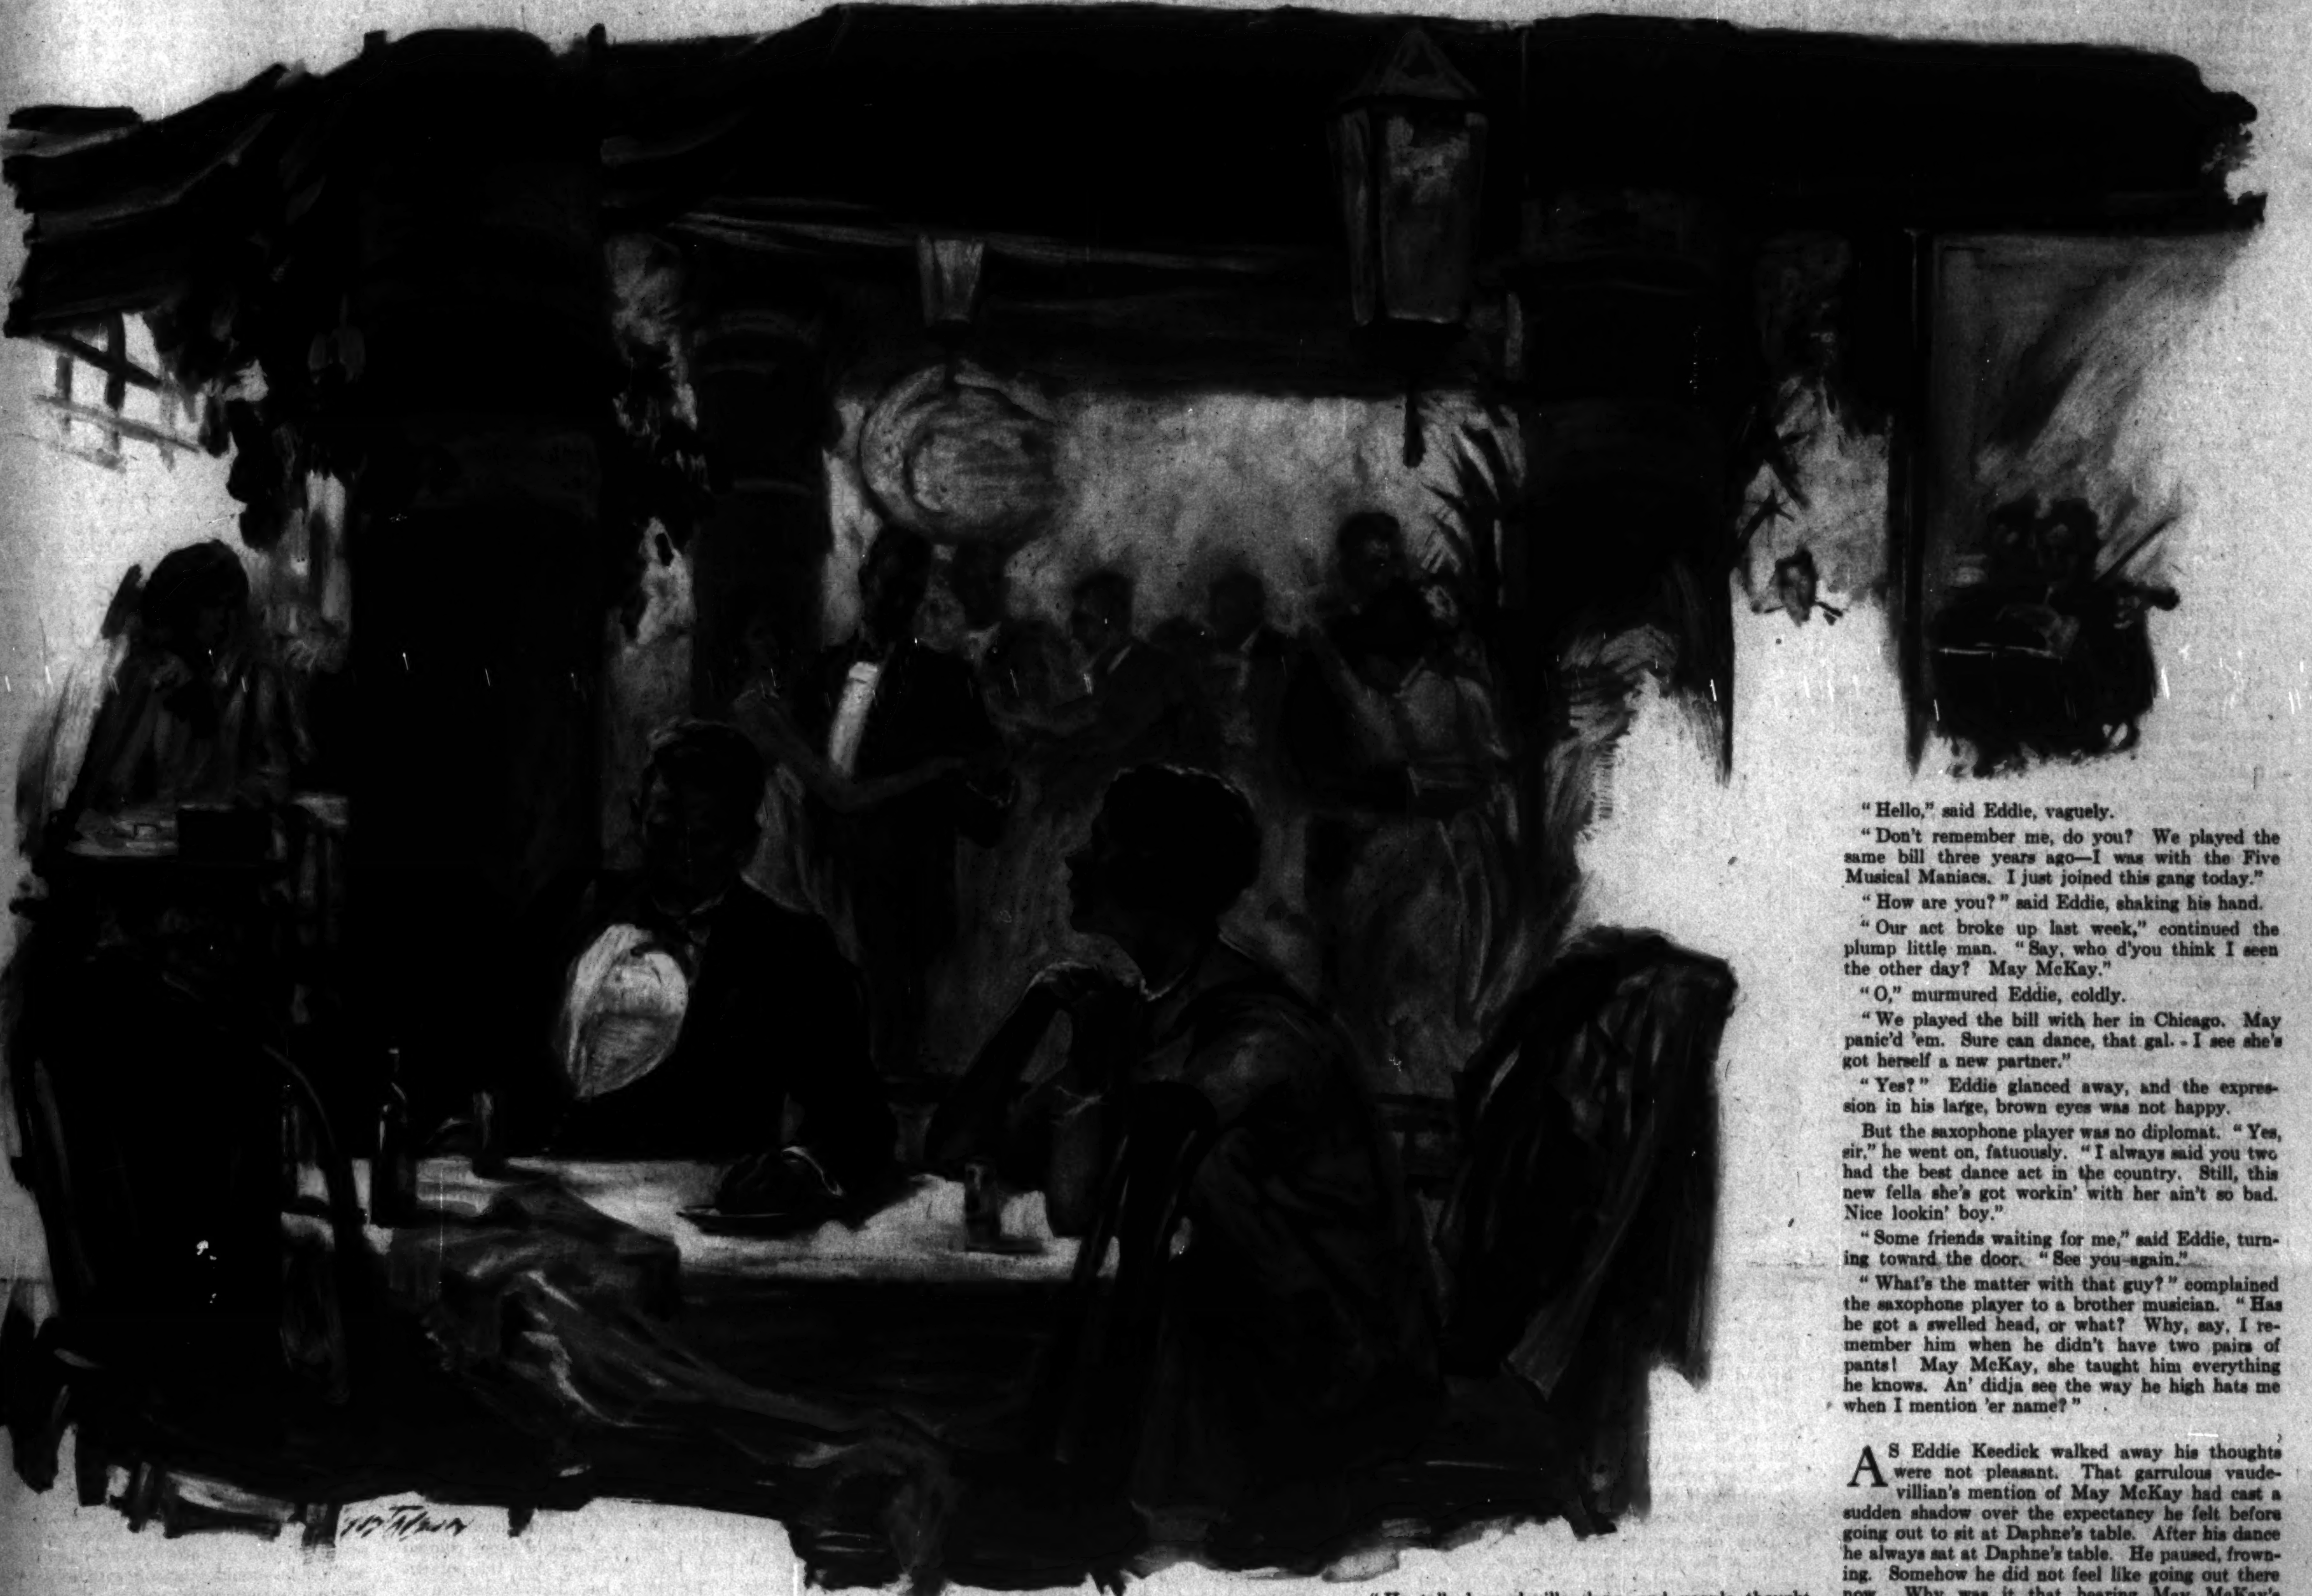
THE HANDSOME HOOFER

by Gene Markey



One hand gestured delicately. "Do these people amuse you?"

How One Eddie Keedick Danced His Way Up From Vaudeville to the Silken Softness of Park Avenue, Only to Find It Wasn't Mecca, After All

AS Eddie Keedick sat before the lighted mirror in his dressing room and thrust forth a silken foot which his valet, kneeling, encased in a gleaming patent leather dancing shoe, he was reflecting upon the swift and sudden stroke of fate that had lifted him to this exalted position in the world. A year ago he had been merely a hoofer, playing the two-a-day (and sometimes three) as the dancing partner of May McKay. Now his name glittered in electric lights above the theater and, moreover, he was, after midnight, the star entertainer at the most expensive night club in New York.

Swift and sudden, indeed, had been this skyrocket rise to fame and fortune. After a quarrel with his vaudeville partner, pretty May McKay (whose mother always traveled with her), his agent had secured an engagement for him to do a "specialty" in the new Billingston musical show, "Hoo Hoo!" And everybody who has pleaded with the ticket agencies in an effort to procure seats for it—at eleven dollars each—knows what a sensational hit "Hoo Hoo!" became.

Now, it was the policy of that shrewd showman, Billingston, to open all his productions with a brave array of "names," then, after the first two weeks, gradually to decrease the cast, thereby reducing the salary list. So Eddie Keedick, the tall and handsome eccentric dancer, had been recruited from vaudeville at three hundred dollars a week on a two weeks' contract. But it happened that Eddie Keedick "walked away with the show," as they say along the street of lights; and, when a rival manager appeared with an offer of eight hundred dollars a week, Billingston hastily proffered a contract for a thousand a week—and his name in electric lights. Eddie Keedick had arrived. Catching this wave of popularity at its crest, Dave DeLancey, owner of a string of night clubs, engaged him to cavort at the new Club Parasol for twenty minutes each evening after midnight, at the opulent salary of a thousand a week and a percentage of the restaurant receipts. That was the way they did things in the night clubs.

Thus it came to pass that Eddie Keedick became the lion of Broadway, not to mention Brooklyn and the Bronx. And Eddie never mentioned Brooklyn—he had been born there. But it is one thing to captivate Broadway, and quite another thing to captivate Park avenue—and Eddie Keedick had achieved both. His surprising social acclaim had come about through the good graces of Caesar Blagwyn, the critic, who wrote many paragraphs in praise of his dancing, and one day exhibited him as a curiosity at the Round Table in the Hotel Algonquin. There, undismayed by the scintillant talk of critics, dramatists and attachés of the arts, Eddie had contributed, in the vaudeville vernacular, such extraordinary comments on life and literature that some one bore him off as a "discovery" to Sammy Fielding's. Sammy Fielding (né Feldman) was the composer whose adroit adaptations of the classics to jazz melodies were to be heard on every dance floor, hurdy gurdy and radio, and at his ornate apartment, at tea time, and after theater, one found an assortment of what New York called "amusing people." These were persons who frequently used the expression, "amusing people," in their conversation.

At Sammy Fielding's one was certain to encounter Daphne Poole, that lithe and lovely debutante, whose passionate search for "amusing people" was occasioned by finding so few in her own fashionable world. It was a never ending thrill to her to meet, in the flesh (though a few of them were quite thin), a newspaper columnist, a play writer, a lady who actually painted magazine covers, a famous violinist, or an acrobat. So, at Sammy Fielding's Eddie met Daphne Poole. Or, more precisely, Daphne met Eddie.

He was thinking of these amazing events tonight as he stood up in his dressing room after the performance and thrust his arms into the sleeves of the smart tail coat his valet held for him. This was his first valet, and being still uncertain of the proper attitude toward a valet, he treated him with something like the magnificent condescension of a stage duke.

"My hat, John," said Eddie Keedick.

"My gloves," said Eddie. (He liked to hear himself say it.)

With a flourish the gloves were presented.

Setting the hat upon his head, and giving it the final tap he had so often seen upon the stage, Eddie paused to survey himself in the glass. Rather pleased with the effect, he turned and permitted John to assist him into a dark topcoat.

"Taxi's waiting, Mist' Keedick." John was holding open the door of the dressing room.

"Thanks. Good night," said Eddie, with something of a manner, and sallied forth to the night club where he was due to appear in his eccentric dances upon the stroke of midnight.

OCCUPYING a ringside table at the edge of the dance floor at the Club Parasol sat Daphne Poole and that celebrated lady, her aunt, Mrs. Berkeley Haven of Paris, accompanied by two sleek haired young men (for Mrs. Haven was an untiring dancer), and T. Winston Brumby, to whom the fashion papers invariably referred as an eligible bachelor.

The Club Parasol differed little from other establishments of the sort in New York. The same florid walls and dim lights, the same muted jazz, the same people at the tables, the same bottles cached beneath the tables: in short, a temple of Terpsichore, where votaries paid three dollars each, as a cover charge (and this covered practically nothing, for even an absurd little bottle of sparkling water cost a dollar and a half). But Daphne Poole liked the Club Parasol because it was expensive, because it was the favored night club of the season—and because Eddie Keedick danced there.

"He comes on at twelve," she said now, to Mrs. Haven, and turned her violet eyes toward the mirrored door beside the orchestra. It was from that door that Eddie Keedick nightly made his entrance.

"Tell me," said Mrs. Haven, "about this remarkable young man. When I sailed in November, no one, apparently, had ever heard of Eddie Keedick. Now, I return—and hear of no one else."

"He's marvelous!" Daphne drained her glass of champagne.

"If he is," interposed T. Winston Brumby, in his rather high, correct voice, "I fail to see it."

"You fail to see such a lot of things," Daphne told him.

"But I don't fail to see that he's a vulgar fake," retorted the eligible bachelor, "and a fortune hunter!"

"Pooh!" said Daphne. "He makes more in a week than most men in Wall street."

"You'll see for yourself, Mrs. Haven," Brumby turned his prominent china blue eyes upon her, "he's nothing but a vaudeville fella, whose head has been turned by success. People like Daphne have taken him up——"

"You don't like him," Daphne interrupted, "because he doesn't belong to the Racquet club."

"I can understand why you used to think he was amusing at first." Then to Camilla Haven: "He talked vaudeville slang, and people thought him howlingly funny. He was a novelty. But now——"

"He used to call me 'Baby'," laughed Daphne. "Can you imagine? I reveled in it! Nobody had ever called me 'Baby' before. Besides, he's indecently good looking. You'll adore him, Camilla!"

"But now," persisted Brumby, "he's dropped his picturesque speech—he's trying to be refined—and as a result, he's nothing but a vulgar——"

"Only vulgar people use the word vulgar!" said Daphne.

"Your round, Daphne!" proclaimed one of the sleek haired young men, and rang a fork against his glass in the manner of a prize ring gong.

Camilla Haven, who was a woman of the world, smiled. It amused her to see the eligible—and jealous—Brumby showing his hand so obviously. A European would have been more adroit. Camilla was curious to see the young man over whom this dispute had been waged. And she had not long to wait.

Of a sudden there came a brassy clash of cymbals, the lights were dimmed, and a glaring white "spot" fixed upon the mirrored door. From the band burst an insidious tune, "Paddlin' Madeline Home," then the mirrored door flashed open, and the tall, graceful figure of Eddie Keedick, in top hat and evening clothes, came dancing in. A spatter of applause. Camilla Haven found herself attracted by the young man's pleasant spotlighted smile. A second later she was aware of the astonishing speed with which he circled the floor in a dance that was a suave travesty on all the night club dancing she had ever witnessed. There was humor and a fantastic grace in his swift, spinning steps. And at the amazing finish, when he cartwheeled across the floor and through the mirrored door, Camilla called "Bravo!" with excited approval.

The applause was unusual—from such a jaded audience. Then Eddie Keedick came on again, this time without his hat, and swung into an eccentric combination of tap dance and Charleston. Camilla had seen the best dancing in Paris, in Spain, and in Harlem, and she was quick to recognize an artist in this young man with the jaunty grace and the amiable smile.

After his whirlwind finish, when he had taken six bows and the lights were up again, Daphne turned to her aunt.

"What did I tell you, Camilla!"

"If he's as fascinating as he looks," smiled Mrs. Haven, "I don't wonder you spend all your evenings in this place."

As Eddie Keedick, having changed to a dinner jacket and a black bow tie, came out from his small dressing room, the orchestra men were quitting their stage for an intermission, and a plump, bald little man with a detached saxophone strap about his neck beamed at him.

"H'lo, Keedick."

"Hello," said Eddie, vaguely.

"Don't remember me, do you? We played the same bill three years ago—I was with the Five Musical Maniacs. I just joined this gang today."

"How are you?" said Eddie, shaking his hand.

"Our act broke up last week," continued the plump little man. "Say, who d'you think I seen the other day? May McKay."

"O," murmured Eddie, coldly.

"We played the bill with her in Chicago. May panic'd 'em. Sure can dance, that gal. I see she's got herself a new partner."

"Yes?" Eddie glanced away, and the expression in his large, brown eyes was not happy.

But the saxophone player was no diplomat. "Yes, sir," he went on, fatuously. "I always said you two had the best dance act in the country. Still, this new fella she's got workin' with her ain't so bad. Nice lookin' boy."

"Some friends waiting for me," said Eddie, turning toward the door. "See you again."

"What's the matter with that guy?" complained the saxophone player to a brother musician. "Has he got a swelled head, or what? Why, say, I remember him when he didn't have two pairs of pants! May McKay, she taught him everything he knows. An' didja see the way he high hats me when I mention 'er name?"

AS Eddie Keedick walked away his thoughts were not pleasant. That garrulous vaudevillian's mention of May McKay had cast a sudden shadow over the expectancy he felt before going out to sit at Daphne's table. After his dance he always sat at Daphne's table. He paused, frowning. Somehow he did not feel like going out there now. Why was it that hearing May McKay's name always had such a peculiar, depressing effect on him?

He had not seen her since that unfortunate night last summer, when they had quarreled. After the break she had gone her way, and he his. Her way led across the country to the coast, playing the Orpheum time—with a new dancing partner. (He hoped her mother was still traveling with her!) His own way, by a queer streak of luck, had brought him to this—electric lights and two thousand dollars a week. But why had that meddling fool appeared out of the past to talk about May McKay—and spoil his evening? He peered through the porthole in the door. There was Daphne, lovely Daphne, out there with her aunt and a retinue of men. But Eddie knew she would be paying scant attention to the men—she would be waiting for him. With an effort, he banished pretty May McKay from his mind. He would not have his evening ruined.

Pushing through the mirrored door, he assumed the nonchalant offstage manner he had striven to achieve, and crossed the polished dance floor to Daphne's table. She greeted him with a bright smile and waved an airy introduction toward her aunt.

"How do you do," said Eddie, bowing with his most charming smile. In the old vaudeville days he would have said, "Gladda meecha," in the accepted formula.

Camilla Haven, observing him intently, sensed something of this desperate effort he was making to lift himself up by his own boot straps from the world of vaudeville to the world of fashion. If she had expected to be amused by this dancer she was disappointed, for during the hour that he sat with them, in the intermissions between dances, he conversed quietly and conventionally, and made but two errors in grammar, which he hastily corrected. There was no picturesqueness, no flavor of vaudeville to his speech, and if it had not been for the wistfulness of his wide, velvet brown eyes, Camilla would have dismissed him as dull. He seemed to her not a romantic figure, as Daphne regarded him, but rather almost a tragic figure—trying desperately to be something he was not.

When Daphne was dancing with the persistent Brumby, and the two sleek haired youths had taken themselves off to somebody else's table for a drink, Camilla leaned forward on her elbows and smiled at him. She was a superbly groomed woman in the late, but not too late, forties; her face, by the grace of God—and a capable masseuse—was still rosily young, and her short chestnut hair clustered in natural curls. Only her blue eyes told how weary she was of the world. But they were smiling gently now.

"I like you," she said to Eddie Keedick.

"I like you," said he. He had learned a sort of daring honesty from these people.

"Tell me why you're doing—all this?"

The abruptness of the question startled him. His eyes wavered. "All what?" he asked.

"All this." One hand gestured delicately to include the four rococo walls of the Club Parasol. "Do these people amuse you?"

Eddie felt a sudden impulse to put aside all pretension and tell this woman the truth. She would understand.

"I'll tell you why," he said. His eyes were lowered to his plate, as he rubbed the ash from his cigaret, and Camilla noticed what long, curling eyelashes he had. "I like it. I like—all this stuff." He looked up at her frankly. "I s'pose you'd say I'm foolish. Well, maybe, but all my life I've wanted to get to the top—I've worked pretty hard at it—and had a bunch of luck. When I met Daphne, and she began taking me around—well, it kind of knocked me for a loop, I guess. You see"—a pathetic eagerness tinged his voice—"all my life I'd read about—about people like you—an' Daphne. I wanted to meet 'em—they've got something I want. I don't know if you understand what I mean . . ."

"Yes," said Camilla, "I do."

"I mean," he went on, "all this is kind of a swell dream to me. Goin'—going—around, meeting people I've seen pictures of in the Sunday papers. You know, I'm ambitious, Mrs. Haven. I want to go everywhere—see everything—London, Paris. And I will."

"Of course you will," murmured Camilla.

He watched her expression. "You—you think it ain't—isn't—right?"

"I'm just wondering what you'll think after you've—been everywhere, seen everything."

"Well"—his smile was wistful—"I guess I got a long ways to go yet."

Then the music ended and the others came back to the table. And as Mrs. Haven saw the expression in Eddie's eyes when he looked toward Daphne she felt suddenly sorry for him.

SPRING came to Manhattan, as Spring has a way of doing—not like a glad girl, dancing down the Avenue with silver-sandaled feet, but more like a poor relation of Winter, ambling down the Avenue in raincoat and galoshes. And Eddie Keedick and Daphne Poole were seen more and more frequently together.

When Peter Poole, who was a pompous little man (as every railroad baron less than a generation in the social register should be), decreed it time to depart for the annual hegira to Hot Springs, Virginia, Daphne flatly refused to go. Whereupon Peter Poole blustered not a little, and determined to look into the affairs of his household, where his daughter, who had no mother, was in a habit of running things to suit herself.

They dwelt, the Pooles, in a perfect little white marble house in the East Sixties, but since Daphne, like most young women of her generation, dined infrequently at home, and since her father took his several clubs seriously, they saw little enough of each other.

The Club Parasol had closed for the season, but "Hoo Hoo!" was still running, and after the performance each evening Eddie joined Daphne, either at a night club or at some one's party. Occasionally Mrs. Haven went about with them; more often they were alone; and all this to the extreme distaste of T. Winston Brumby, who had never abandoned his original idea that an alliance with the House of Poole would be to his advantage. It was from him that Peter Poole learned the distressing facts of his daughter's attachment for the "vaudeville fella," and a pyrotechnic scene resulted. With jaunty defiance Daphne faced her father in his "study," flawlessly furnished in the period of one of the later Louis. (Mr. Poole himself could not have told you which one.)

"I'm a man of few words," said he.

"Don't boast about your limited vocabulary," retorted his daughter.

"This—this nonsense," said he, growing red, "has got to stop. I forbid you to see the fella again."

"You what?"

"I forbid you to see him again!"

"Do you know any other funny stories?" said Daphne.

"I know this!" shouted her father. "You're sailing for Europe on the first boat!"

Daphne did not, as a matter of fact, sail on the next boat; after much wily plotting she contrived to have the sailing delayed until the first week in June, when an elaborate suite was engaged for herself and her Aunt Camilla and their maids on one of the largest liners.

With the coming of warm weather—a sudden torrid week in late May—business in the theaters fell off, and Billingston abruptly posted a notice of the closing of "Hoo Hoo!" This left Eddie Keedick free to roam where he would for the summer. He possessed a flattering contract for the new Billingston show, which was to open in September; moreover, he had saved a goodly sum of money from this first season of his Arabian Nights on Broadway. And he was—or fancied he was—in love with the loveliest debutante in New York. Life seemed to open before him in glittering vistas. Small wonder he decided to sail for Europe—on the same boat.

It was characteristic of Daphne that her father's threats had had little effect upon her enthusiasm for Eddie. She continued to see him—if not so publicly, at least as frequently; and their friendship, having sailed across the shimmering shallows of flirtation, now seemed to be steering toward deep water. That there would be rough weather in the offing neither appeared to realise.

Came an evening, a few days before the ship sailed, when Daphne parked her little foreign roadster by the embankment of Riverside drive and they sat silent, gazing down upon the twinkling lights of the Hudson. An Albany night boat, outlined in electric lights, steamed slowly up the river, and moved by the reminder of the ocean voyage ahead of them—and by Daphne's fragrant nearness—he muttered some Quixotic reference to marriage.

"Let's!" She raised her pretty, painted mouth to him. "It would be rather gorgeous, wouldn't it? The city hall at ten—the boat sails at eleven—nobody would know till we were out past Sandy Hook, and then we wouldn't have to worry about reporters!" She squeezed his hand. "And you could have Aunt Camilla's room—I'd put her out. O-oh, let's!"

Eddie's heart was thumping. "I—we—we'd better think it over," he said.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Daphne. "What is there to think over?"

At noon the next day Eddie received a message to come to Mrs. Haven's apartment at the Ritz. He arrived there not without misgivings, but that lady's smile of welcome was very gracious!

"Daphne has told me," she said. Then her world weary eyes became grave. "It would never do. Peter Poole is quite right."

"But I—I thought you were my friend," said he, a little hurt.

"I am. I'll tell you why you mustn't marry Daphne—because she isn't good enough for you."

"I mean that I think you're a real person, Eddie Keedick. You're all mixed up just now—you don't know quite what you want in life—however, that'll be straightened out in time. But Daphne isn't the girl for you. She wouldn't help you the way you need to be helped, and she might ruin your perfectly good young life. No—don't say anything yet. I've known her since she was born—I've seen more of her than her father has—and I know what a vain, spoiled little sensation seeker she is. O, I love her, heaven knows! She's my sister's baby, but she's only a baby—nineteen—and knows so little of the world. If you marry her, Eddie Keedick, you'll be doing her—and yourself—a great, great wrong."

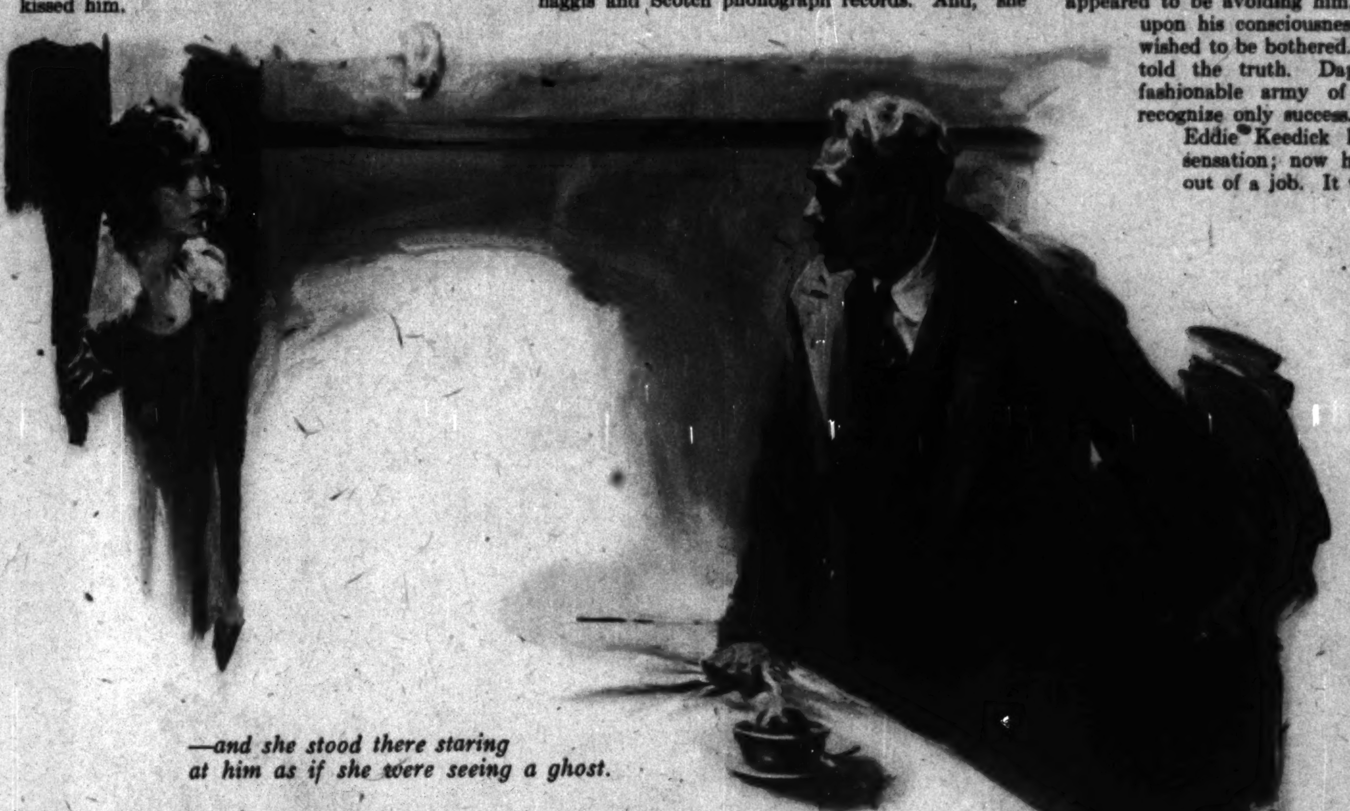
Eddie, his thoughts confused, stared at the carpet.

"I'm sorry if I've hurt you," said Camilla Haven, very gently. "But some day you'll thank me. Now I want you to give me your promise that there won't be any nonsense about the city hall!"

AFTER a moment he looked up and there was a wistful sadness in his dark eyes, as if all this were something he could not quite understand.

"I—I promise," he said huskily.

"You're a sweet boy," murmured Mrs. Haven, and kissed him.



—and she stood there staring at him as if she were seeing a ghost.

So the boat sailed, with Eddie occupying his own stateroom, down on F deck, and Daphne and her aunt in their elaborate suite on B deck. Peter Poole, who fortunately had no knowledge of the "vaudeville fella's" presence on the ship, had bidden them an expensive bon voyage and cautioned Camilla to keep a sharp eye on Daphne, though he knew only too well how futile this advice was.

Thus began for Eddie Keedick a new existence. On the ship he was much in the company of Daphne and sat at table with her and Mrs. Haven in the restaurant, which was more fashionable than the main dining salon. He saw, too, many people he had met the winter before in New York. They were not, he noticed, quite so friendly toward him as when he had been dancing at the Club Parasol, but he dismissed this as imagination on his part. Daphne and Camilla Haven treated him with the affectionate regard of old friends. Moreover—though he was not more vain than the average male—he realized that there were few men on the ship more attractive than himself or who appeared to better advantage in dinner clothes or in flannels upon the deck.

Only one mishap marred the voyage. On the night of the ship's concert the staid liner came into a squall and rolled a bit, so that Eddie was unable to go on in his dance. After this incident he sensed in Daphne's attitude a certain disappointment, as if she had wished him to perform at the concert, so that every one on board might know he was Eddie Keedick, the famous dancer.

London was a gay adventure. There he did the things all Americans do; and because it was his first visit he took a vast pleasure in lunching and dining at the great hotels; in having smart suits tailored in Dover street; in motoring out to Ascot for the races, where he saw the king and queen; in witnessing the English musical comedies, though he saw in them no dancing comparable to the dancing in America. One memorable evening at the Kit Kat club he was presented to a certain royal personage and later danced for him at a private party given by a pretty young duchess in Mayfair. All this was intoxication, and as the bright days of June fluttered past he seemed to be living in a romantic world of fancy. He rarely ever thought of his old life now, or of May McKay. . . .

In London T. Winston Brumby unexpectedly turned up, and Daphne, who had scorned his attentions in New York, appeared glad to see him. Eddie was somewhat puzzled by this at first, but when he learned that Brumby knew a lot of swells in England, his sister being married to one, it was not so difficult to understand. Daphne always liked knowing the right people.

It was not until they had been in Paris a week after the Grand Prix that he became aware of a subtle change in Daphne. In New York they had been friends at first, then sweethearts, though no particular emotion had ever flared between them; on the boat and in London they had been so completely surrounded by other people that he was not exactly sure of the state of her affection for him. This vague reserve that had come into her manner was inexplicable. It seemed almost as if, back in New York, she had enjoyed going about with him because he was the dancing sensation of Broadway and the night clubs. Here in Paris he was unknown; nobody pointed him out in crowded cafés; nobody remarked, as they passed, "there goes Eddie Keedick and the little Poole girl." It seemed almost as if Daphne had figured it out this way, and yet he told himself that she could not be so cold and calculating. Unworthy of him to think such things about her. Still, this attitude of hers was peculiar.

She was staying with Mrs. Haven at Mrs. Haven's amazing apartment in the Avenue Gabriel, but a crowd of her friends had come over from London, among them T. Winston Brumby, and it was that young gentleman who arranged so many of the parties in which Eddie was not included. The result was that he found himself seeing Daphne less often and less intimately.

In mid-July they had all decided to flit to Deauville, whence they were to go on to Biarritz for August, but at the last moment a cable arrived from Peter Poole commanding Daphne and Mrs. Haven to join him without delay in London.

"It'll only be for a few days," Daphne assured Eddie. "You go on to Deauville and we'll hop over there just as soon as we can shake father."

So alone Eddie journeyed to Deauville. He had always heard of it as the smart watering place of Europe, but he found it disappointingly quiet, because the "season" was not yet on. There was some half hearted gambling and some even more half hearted dancing in a casino that looked as if it had been built in Hollywood, and the ocean was so cold that nobody bathed save a few life guards in red shirts and fierce mustachios.

FOR three days Eddie was very lonely in Deauville. On the fourth day came a green cablegram which read:

LEAVING FOR SCOTLAND WITH THE OLD MAN AWFULLY SORRY LOVE DAPHNE

So he returned, somewhat disheartened, to Paris, where a letter from Camilla Haven awaited him. It was a very friendly letter, intended, doubtless, to take the edge off his disappointment, and in it she described the place in the Highlands of Scotland which Peter Poole had leased for August: "An ancient castle, containing more ghosts than bath rooms, but completely stocked with game and gillies, haggis and Scotch phonograph records. And," she wrote, "there is an outrageous Scottish bagpiper, imported from America, where, I understand, all the bagpipers are playing vaudeville engagements."

Thus Eddie's gay summer abroad came to an abrupt end. Paris was hot, and rapidly being overrun with Americans in knickerbockers and straw hats—and Eddie was intolerably lonely. Nevertheless, he forgave Daphne. After all, it was not her fault that her father insisted on carrying her off to Scotland. So there was nothing for him to do but sail for home, and he took passage on the first boat.

August in New York. Heat and loneliness. Eddie Keedick was beginning to awaken from his golden dream of the winter before, and it was not an altogether pleasant awakening. The city appeared deserted these hot nights. Even the electric signs over Broadway seemed glaring reminders of the temperature, and he wandered about, alone and disconsolate. There was nobody in town. Nobody, that is, but a few million sweltering souls. The people of Eddie Keddick's world were all away. And yet he found himself wondering what his world really was; and, in thinking it over, discovered that he fell somewhere between the two worlds of Park avenue and Broadway. Both spent their summers on Long Island: Park avenue sojourned in Southampton, and Broadway at Great Neck. But Eddie found himself cut off from both. During the past winter, in devoting himself to Daphne, he had forsaken all his old friends and the pals of vaudeville days. Now he had nobody left. He had written two letters to Daphne, but no reply had come. Still, she had often told him she never wrote to any one.

It was not unusual that his thoughts at this time turned to other summers, when he had been gloriously happy in the vaudeville colony at 'Sconset. May McKay and her mother always spent July and August there.

One morning he picked up a trade paper and learned with amazement that May McKay had been engaged by Rigburg for his new revue, "Right You Are!" Rigburg was Billingston's great rival: each season their productions waged a bitter warfare of competition. So May McKay was leaving vaudeville—she, too, was to have her chance on Broadway.

BILLINGSTON'S new show, "Who Knows?" opened out of town early in September. But not until the New York opening two weeks later did the blow fall; for "Who Knows?" was disclosed to be a dark failure. "Who Knows?" wrote one critic, "I do. It's terrible!"

The truth was, Billingston had attempted to repeat his success of the previous season, "Hoo Hoo!" He had engaged the same librettists, the same composer, the same star, the same comedian—and Eddie Keedick. But the results were not the same. The librettists re-hashed all their old situations, the composer rewrote all his old tunes, the star was merely her old sweet self, the comedian put forth his old gags and falls—and Eddie Keedick performed the same dances that had been sensational the season before. The first nighters were frankly bored.

Daphne had returned from Europe while Eddie was out of town with the try-out. He had received no word from her, but he read in the papers that she was home. Of course, he argued to himself, she would be too busy to write just now, but surely she would turn up at the opening in New York.

However, on the opening night she failed to come back stage after the performance, when it was the custom for friends and even acquaintances to gather in the actors' dressing rooms and exchange compliments for alleged Scotch whisky. Daphne did not come back. As a matter of fact, most of the people who had been out front at that disastrous first night discreetly crept away. Oddly enough, the only person who came back to see Eddie was the plump little saxophone man who had played in the Club Parasol orchestra the season before.

"How was it?" Eddie asked him.

The little man held his nose.

"As bad as that?"

"I give it two weeks. An'say, didja hear the other bad news? They hung a padlock on the Parasol las' night."

The prohibition officers had closed the Club Parasol. That meant the shattering of Eddie's hopes that he would be engaged to dance there again.

The next morning Caesar Blagwyn, the critic, who had last year so clamorously trumpeted praise of Eddie and his dancing, wrote a devastating review of "Who Knows?" in which he remarked that "it was possible to see even that handsome hoofer, Mr. Eddie Keedick, once too often." The cruel injustice of this wounded Eddie's pride. He was not used to critics. For the rest of his life he never believed anything they said.

BUT the little saxophone man's prophecy had been correct: "Who Knows?" lasted precisely two weeks. Then the scenery was carted off to a storehouse, and the actors turned loose upon Broadway. But it was not so much the catastrophe of the show's closing that hurt Eddie as the fact that Daphne Poole had evaporated from his life. Three times he telephoned to her, and once sent a box of orchids that he could ill afford—for the European trip had cost more than he dreamed. But Daphne appeared to be avoiding him, and at last it came upon his consciousness that she no longer wished to be bothered. Camilla Haven had told the truth. Daphne belonged to a fashionable army of thrill hunters who recognize only success. The season before, Eddie Keedick had been a dancing sensation; now he was just a hoofer out of a job. It was unbelievable that Daphne had once seriously suggested a city hall elopement. All that seemed far away now. Well, he had been only a novelty to Daphne and she had wearied of him. Her crowd had never really taken him in—they had merely taken him around. A glimpse of that gilded world had gone to his head. He had made the mistake of taking it seriously.

Then, one rainy night, as he stood in the mud at a corner of Broadway waiting for the traffic officer's whistle, a gleaming limousine passed close to him, and in it he saw Daphne and T. Winston Brumby. They were laughing together, and as their car swooshed past, it spattered mud on Eddie's trousers. That night he walked for hours in the rain, and fought the demon of despair in his soul. He was not, he told himself, in love with Daphne. Perhaps he never had been. Certainly he had never cared for her as he had cared for May McKay. He realized bitterly that he had been a great fool. But now it was too late. He had lost all around.

THE night that Rigburg's new revue, "Right You Are!" opened, Eddie waited till the audience was inside, with the first act well under way, then he crept up to the box office and purchased an "admission only" ticket, and edged in among the throng of Broadwayfarers standing at the back of the theater. From the first moment his professional instinct told him that the show was "over." Laughter was loud and applause thunderous. They liked it. But Eddie found himself trembling. In the lobby he had seen a large colored portrait of pretty May McKay. And the portrait was smiling. That smile had done something to him.

Then she came on—with her new dancing partner—and Eddie saw, unhappily, that he was tall and blonde and good looking. But it was May McKay, lovelier than ever, in a glittering gown of gold, whose dancing thrilled them. Eddie followed her flashing steps with fascinated eyes. This was a new dance—something she had herself invented—and so fleet and amazing that the jaded first nighters sat up. Eddie had never heard such applause after a dance number. Then May McKay came on alone, and danced her old waltz, that gorgeous, graceful waltz he had so often watched from the wings in vaudeville. "They" had never seen it on Broadway, and they cheered it. May McKay was a hit—a wow—a panic. Eddie heard people remarking this on all sides. And tingling with a queer chaos of emotions, he stole out of the theater just before the finale.

Well, she had made the big jump from vaudeville to Broadway, and she had put it over. He felt glad about it—terribly glad—for her sake. May was a square kid, the squarest he had ever known. She deserved the clamorous acclaim that would be hers after tonight. Her dancing showed that in the past year she had been working hard at new steps. He had not worked. And yet a year ago he, himself, had enjoyed this same intoxication of success. But the Broadway gods were fickle. Sometimes they handed a guy a queer break. In a week or two now his money would be gone, and he would be forced to go back into vaudeville, taking whatever booking he could get. Funny how things happened. May McKay had just come out of vaudeville. If only he hadn't been such a fool a year ago that quarrel would never have occurred—they would have been dancing together tonight, this would have been their triumph. But now he was out of it.

Without realising, he had walked nearly two miles down Broadway, and as he glanced up he found himself in front of a familiar little res taurant. Many a time in the old days he and May's mother had come here for supper after the show. He went in. The place was deserted, and he walked back to the little alcove where they often used to sit. May, he remembered, always ate a baked apple. As he set aside the curtains his hand trembled, he expected to see May McKay sitting there. But the table was empty, and as he sat down he smiled bitterly at his own foolishness. After a triumph as hers tonight, May would be with a gay crowd at some night club. world of fashion would find ways of being to her. She would be invited everywhere. knew the game.

Even the old waiter who had so often them was gone. A listless young Greek took his order and disappeared. Alone Eddie sat there, while haunting memories about him. He remembered one night May had come here—without her mother. day they had been working, perfecting a step that May had invented, and they had till nearly two, hand in hand, tired but dreaming rosy dreams of the day when be the greatest dance team in the world.

OF a sudden the curtains parted—and May McKay stood there. Eddie blinked. mind was playing tricks on him. was May McKay in an orchid evening a crimson wrap with billowy collar of and she stood there staring at him as if seeing a ghost. Then he heard her speak.

"I don't believe it!" she said incredulously that slightly husky voice he knew so well.

He stood up. His heart was thumping and he seemed unable to say anything.

"If it isn't the pet of society himself! —not a moving picture." She smiled there was an ironic gleam in her gray eyes. you remember me? Or shall I introduce I'm the little girl you used to dance with."

He looked away, and May McKay saw had hurt him, but mercilessly she went on, ing a "society" accent, as if reading from journal: "Mr. Edgar Keedick, one of New most eligible bachelors—formerly booked the vaudeville circuit—will spend the Palm Beach. Well, well, well," dropping accent, "the amateur gentleman! They you're going to marry one of the greatest

"If you only came here to laugh at me began angrily.

"No," said May McKay slowly, "I didn't know you'd be here. I thought you'd caviar uptown." She glanced down at the apple on his plate. "I don't know why I tonight. I'm supposed to be on my way to racket some dame's giving, up on Park guess I just dropped in here—for old times' I don't know—"

"May!"

"I certainly didn't expect to find you There was a metallic edge to her voice. it happen you're not surrounded by a flock of tantes? Or did you just come down here ming?"

She was being very cruel. For a moment thought that she was about to soften, perhaps forgive him, but he saw now that she felt contempt for him.

"I'm sorry your show flopped," she "but maybe it'll teach you that if you're dance you've got to work at it. You can't your time chasing around after the first even if they are able to trace their ancestry far as the Chicago fire!"

"All right," he murmured, his eyes "You've had your laugh now." And, his hat, he turned to go.

"Yes," said May McKay, "I—I've had my And then suddenly she began to cry.

Eddie stared at her, bewildered. She crumpled a chair and her dark head fell forward arms upon the table. The gorgeous crimson with the collar of white fox slipped to the her lovely shoulders shook with sobs. Well, was no understanding women. Very gently Keedick slipped to his knees and put his around her and held her close to him.

Some time later, hearing no sound from the and fearing that perhaps this strange couple unobserved, left without the formality of their check, the young Greek waiter approached peered through the curtains. But they there, sitting hand in hand, and there traordinary light in their eyes.

"I'll give him his notice tomorrow," she ing. "I've never liked dancing with him And I'll get you a contract—our show's a we can finish the season. Then maybe Paris—"

"Or Newark," he said. "I won't care—we're together."

And the waiter, being a young man of softly drew the curtains together and tiptoed

KING'S MATE

By Rosita Forbes

IN PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS:

Rosemary Crofton, a lovely English girl, is visiting the governor's palace at Fez with her aunt, Lady Tregarthen. Every one is talking of a mysterious Kaid who is said to be the real brains of Abd-el Krim's forces. There is also talk of a secret pass through the mountains, known only to the Riffs. A Frenchman, Capt. de Vries, tries to make love to Rosemary and is repulsed. Next morning she rides out early and her horse throws her, rendering her unconscious. A small party of Riff tribesmen take her to their stronghold through the very pass the French are so eager to find. There the Kaid himself, an Englishman named Westwyn, arrives. He refuses to allow Rosemary to return to Fez, fearing that the French would learn his nationality and ferret out the pass. He sends her to the village of Telehdi under the protection of Pete, his Australian lieutenant. She has Zarifa, a Riffian girl, for a servant. Martengo, a Spanish soldier of fortune, promises to help her escape and schemes to get her within his power. Westwyn, arriving, is urged by the village headman, Menebbhe, to marry Rosemary for her protection.

INSTALLMENT III.

A Duel at Sunrise.

IT WAS afternoon when Westwyn marched into the guest house. Rosemary was sitting on the flat roof under a shelter rigged up by Pete. She was sewing striped red and blue linen, and she dropped it in a heap when she saw her visitor.

"I couldn't raise any one to send you warning," apologized the Kaid. "The whole place is asleep. I saw a bundle in a corner, which I suppose is Zarifa. Does she look after you well?"

"Admirably," replied Rosemary. "And she has a passion for you. Did you know it?" They sat on a wall, and the girl picked up her sewing, for her mind was set on escape. She was frightened lest this man, who was her jailor, should read her thoughts. She plied her needle with the vigor of a hammer, feeling that with each stitch she was breaking bars.

"Zarifa imagines she has reason to be grateful," said Westwyn. "She is a widow and, therefore, doomed to a poor sort of life as servant to her in-laws. I induced the headman here to take her in—he's a kindly soul—instead of her having to work in the fields. I believe she'd do anything for me now. The Riffs are wonderful people when you get to know 'em." He talked of the Riffs and their hard, uncomplaining life, of their passionate faith and their grim determination to die unconquered. Purposely he made her see the patriarchal simplicity of the mountaineers and their courage. "They're half starved," he said. "The harvest wasn't good, but they just pull in their belts and go on. Any one of them would barter his last flour for more bullets."

Rosemary's hands lay still in her lap. She was seeing the struggle of a primitive people, desperate and uncomprehending, against the Moloch known as civilization.

"Neither of us, English, could let them down," said Westwyn, taking her agreement for granted. He looked at her with kind, grave eyes, and the girl felt like Judas.

Westwyn came again next morning, though he knew he ought to have been away with the dawn. He had spent a comparatively sleepless night, wondering what he could do for his unwilling guest. After prolonged consultation with Pete, he ransacked his rooms for books and brought a tattered pile under each arm. Rosemary had at last forced herself on his consciousness. He was damned sorry for her, but he never doubted that her detention was inevitable. "What are you making?" he asked, his eyes not on the piled blue linen but on the fair, glinting hair above it.

"A skirt and a jumper," said the girl, with an expression of distaste. "You have said nothing about my going." She could not keep the bitterness out of her voice. The mornings were always the worst. She felt stifled each time she woke to the hopelessness of another empty day. Her impatience overwhelmed her as she realized that there was nothing to look forward to. She raised sullen eyes to the Kaid, and met unexpected pity looking down at her.

"I'd give a lot to get you out of this. You must be hating me pretty thoroughly. I suppose I didn't realize what it meant to you. We're not used to women butting in." He hesitated. "I wish you'd let me know if there's anything I can do."

Rosemary stared at him, hope wavering against her resentment. She did not want to plead with this man, but the words broke from her against her will. "I can't bear it. You'll have to let me go." Westwyn was silent. "You said you didn't understand what it meant to me——"

The man interrupted. "I didn't when I sent you here. I do now."

"And yet you won't help me?"

Westwyn shook his head. "It's impossible," he said, and Rosemary was too angry to realize the weight of regret in his voice. "I'm off to Abd-el Krim now—I'll consult him, but I'm afraid there's no way out." He hesitated on the top of the mud stairway, wishing he could say something to encourage the mute figure, which would not even look at him. The words didn't come, so he stamped down the flight and gave Pete directions about enough food to feed a regiment. Heavy with a sudden responsibility, he rode off. He would talk to Abd-el Krim. Perhaps something better could be arranged. Then he realized that he didn't want to talk to the Riffian leader, Moslem and African, about the girl he had left crouched on the roof wall.

That night Rosemary and the Spaniard settled their plans. They climbed to the same rock above the village, and, for the first time, the sunset brought no echo of closing bars to the girl. Excited and tense, she listened to Martengo's instructions.

"You'd better begin wearing native dress at once. Don't let Zarifa sleep in your room. You must accustom every one to leaving you alone after sunset. I'll have to leave it to you to slip out somehow, unobserved. There'll be no moon next week, and if you keep your face covered it won't matter your being seen on the path. You must come straight to my house. I'll leave the door ajar."

"And then?" asked Rosemary, distrust swept away on the tide of excitement.

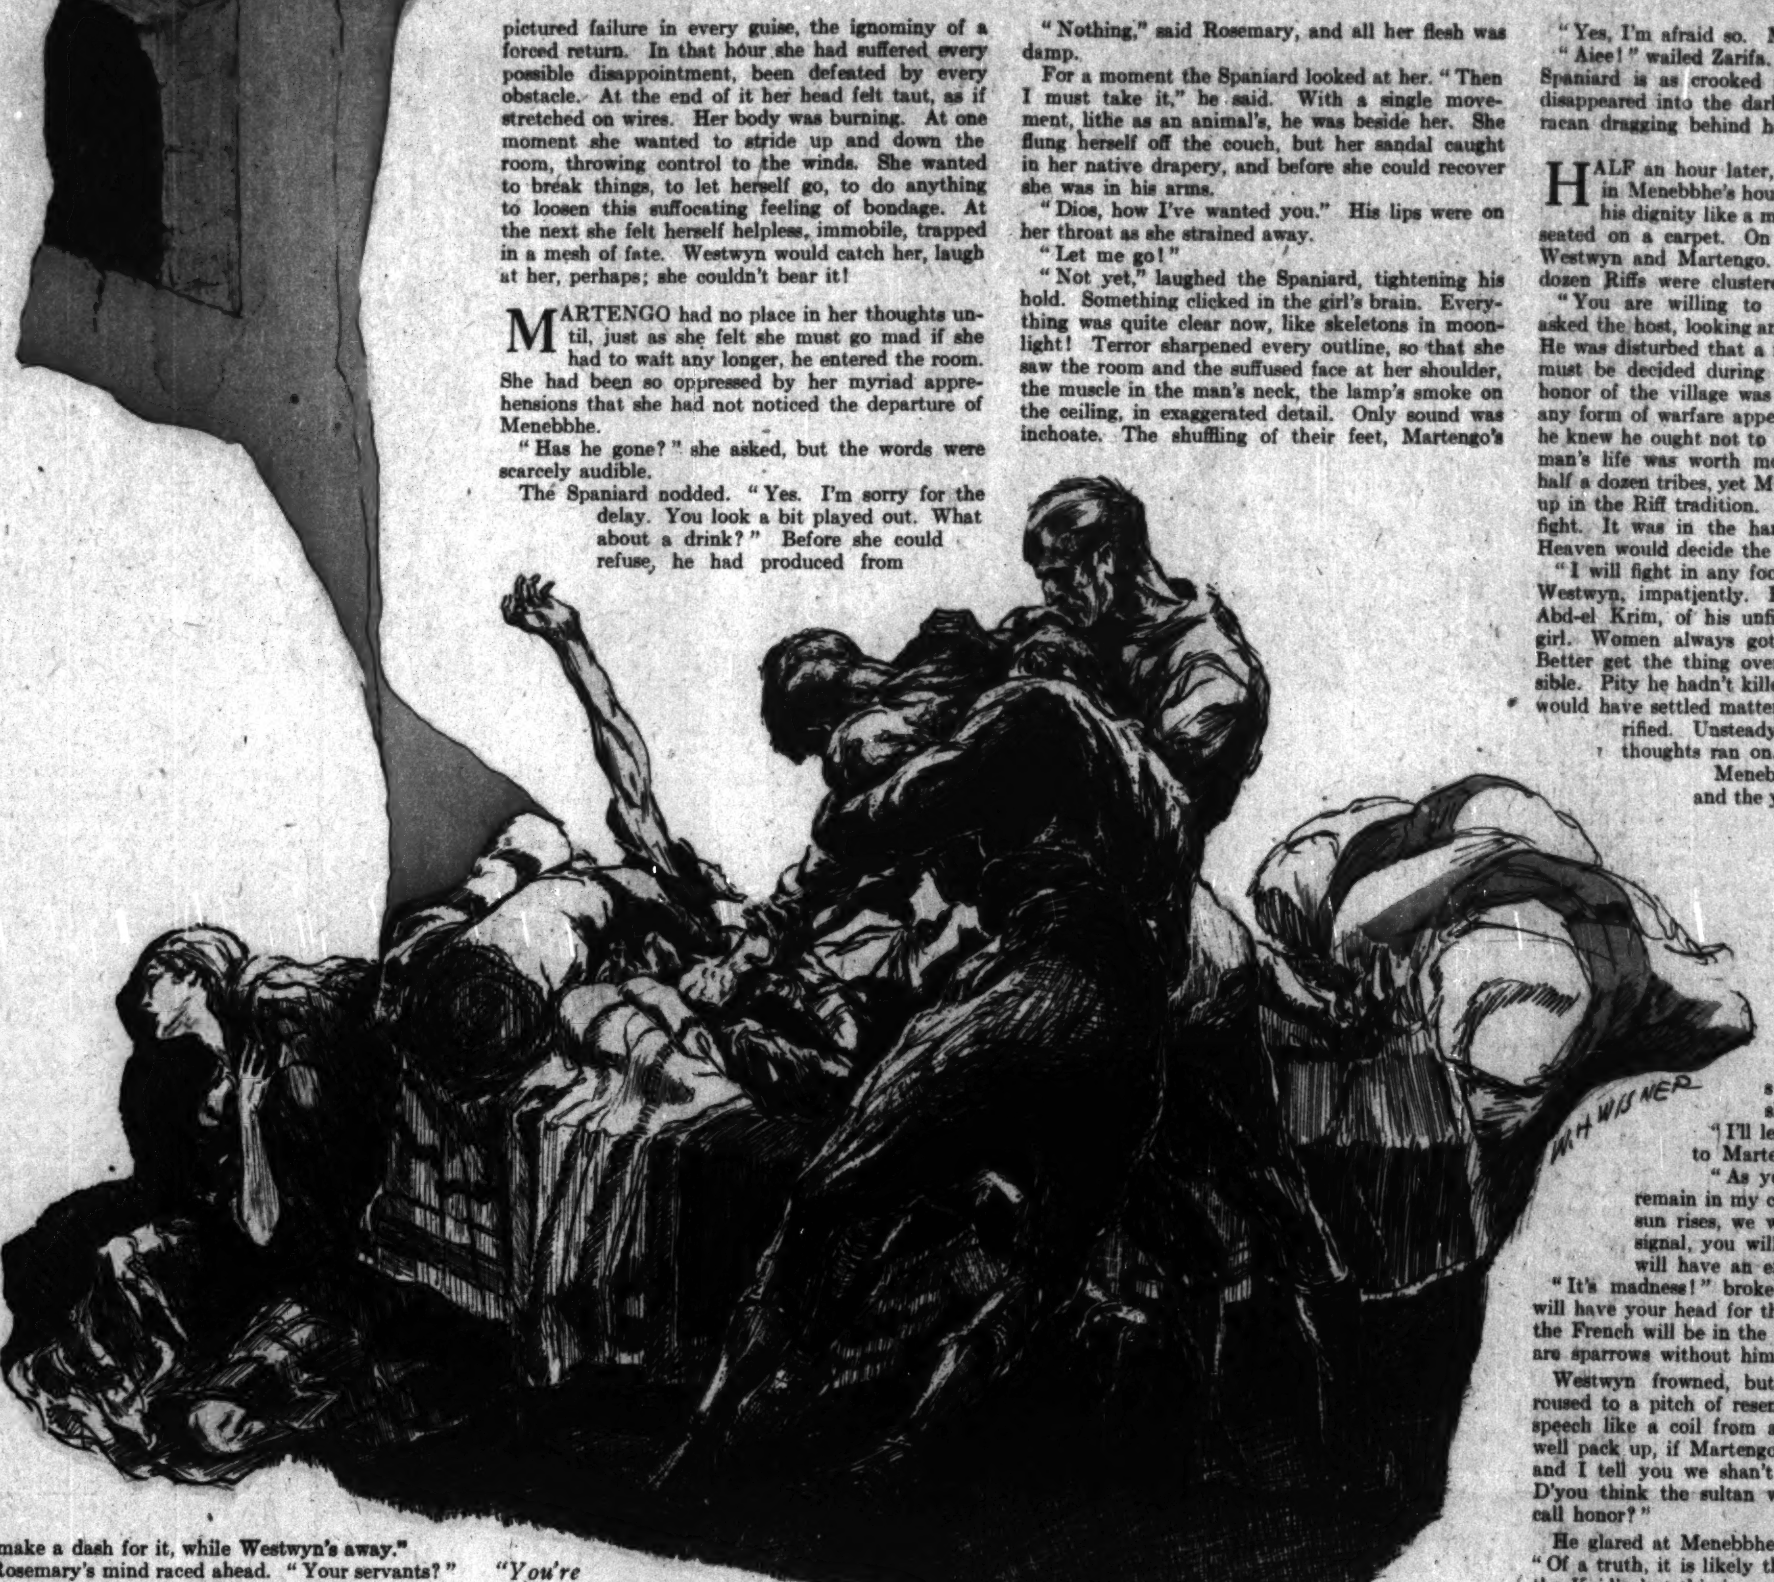
"I'll have horses ready, but I don't know if it would be safe to ride over the pass. Do you think you could climb it if I had the animals waiting on the other side?"

"Yes, yes," breathed the girl. "Anything to get away." She looked so vital, so flamelike in the blaze around her, that Martengo had difficulty in steadying his voice.

It was a little rough as he told her, "We'll have to make a dash for it, while Westwyn's away."

Rosemary's mind raced ahead. "Your servants?" she asked. "Won't they give us away?"

"There are none in the house," he answered. "Don't worry. If you can give Pete the slip, your part is done."



"You're strangling him," said a voice. "It's murder, man."

A FEW nights later a blur of indigo, scarcely more opaque than the surrounding night, crept around the wall of the guest house. Rosemary's heart was in her throat, pounding so that it nearly choked her, but her feet in her native sandals were steady. With scarcely a sound, she padded up the path. The stars threw a gray glimmer over the hillside, dogs barked in the village below.

As she neared her destination the girl's spirits rose. Excitement tingled in her blood. She went more carelessly and, around a corner, almost bumped into a figure descending silently in the soft leather sandals of the mountaineers. It was Heinz, the stolid, shy, little German who had lent her month old papers from the fatherland. An exclamation was stifled on the fugitive's lips, and the man stared as he stepped aside for her to pass. Rosemary dared not look back, but she felt that Heinz still stood at the corner, watching her.

After this encounter, the quadrangle looming above her was sanctuary. She ran the last hundred yards, slipped through the unlocked door and shut it silently behind her. While she leaned against the wall a figure stepped out of the darkness.

"Well done," said Martengo. "You're all right now." He piloted her into the house. There was no light in the front room, but Juan guided his guest into a small back apartment, where charcoal smoldered on an open hearth and a hurricane lamp hung from the roof.

Rosemary dropped to the nearest seat, still panting, her eyes blazing in a face bereft of color.

"I thought I should never get out," she said. "I had to send Pete down to the village, and Zarifa was as sleepless as an owl."

"Never mind. Your troubles are over now."

"What's the next move?"

"I sent the horses out as soon as it was dark, but unfortunately the headman's son, young Mohamed el Menebbhe, is coming to see me tonight about a rifle. He ought to be here any moment."

Rosemary started. "But he'll delay us—we ought to be off."

"He won't keep me long, and it isn't a bad thing, really, because when your flight is discovered in the morning he will be my alibi." He smiled down at her. "What a good disguise! Push the sash down a little and you'll look a Riffi to the life." They talked in desultory fashion for a few minutes. Then Martengo went out to prepare for his visitor, and Rosemary found time to study her surroundings.

It was a small, mud walled room, with no furniture but a table, a chair, a row of coffee pots, and the couch on which she sat. This was the usual native affair of wood and cane covered with carpets, a pile of hard bolsters at either end. The only window was a square aperture, unglazed and barred, just under the ceiling. "Rather like a cell," thought Rosemary, and then her blood raced, for she heard voices and footsteps in the court. Automatically, she crushed herself into the corner farthest from the door, hardly daring to move.

That was one of the worst hours of the girl's life. The drone of Arabic in the next room was like a wheel on which her nerves were spun. Dry throated, taking deep breaths to relieve what seemed a physical weight inside her, she sat tense and stiff. Thoughts whirled through her brain and were gone before she could catch the full sense of them. She pictured failure in every guise, the ignominy of a forced return. In that hour she had suffered every possible disappointment, been defeated by every obstacle. At the end of it her head felt taut, as if stretched on wires. Her body was burning. At one moment she wanted to stride up and down the room, throwing control to the winds. She wanted to break things, to let herself go, to do anything to loosen this suffocating feeling of bondage. At the next she felt herself helpless, immobile, trapped in a mesh of fate. Westwyn would catch her, laugh at her, perhaps; she couldn't bear it!

MARTENGO had no place in her thoughts until, just as she felt she must go mad if she had to wait any longer, he entered the room. She had been so oppressed by her myriad apprehensions that she had not noticed the departure of Menebbhe.

"Has he gone?" she asked, but the words were scarcely audible.

The Spaniard nodded. "Yes. I'm sorry for the delay. You look a bit played out. What about a drink?" Before she could refuse, he had produced from the outer room a bottle and two glasses. "I can't have you fainting on the way," he said. "This will do you good." Perhaps his voice was less carefully tutored than usual. There was a note in it which was like a cold douche on Rosemary's impatience. It steadied her and she was alert as she took the glass and put her lips to it. The taste was unpleasant.

"What is it?" she asked with a grimace.

"Our local poison, 'leghbi.' It won't do you any harm." His voice sounded muffled, and he seemed to be very busy with a refractory cork.

Suspicion flashed across Rosemary's horizon. "I'd rather have water," she said. "Do get me some," and made a pretense of drinking.

Juan left the room without comment and the girl whirled, the glass in her hand, vainly searching a receptacle. She had just emptied the stuff behind the cushions when Martengo returned. Guiltily she faced him, a flush burning so deeply that it was like a hand throttling her.

"It was not drugged," said the Spaniard. "You need not have been afraid." He stood in the doorway looking at her, and the girl knew at once that the mask was gone. In face of a concrete danger, her pulses quieted.

"It is very late; we must start," she said, and was pleased at the uncompromising evenness of her tone.

"Not yet," said Juan. "I want to talk to you." He closed the door and looked at it as if he would like to lock it, but there was no keyhole.

"We can talk on the way."

"It is too late to go tonight. The dawn would catch us before we were out of sight. You must wait here till tomorrow, and we will start as soon as it is dark." He kept his hand at his sides, but his eyes were hot. They possessed her, stripping her of her loose wound barracan.

Rosemary understood, and anger blazed in her. "Did you ever mean to help me?" she flung at him.

A smile crept into every deep grooved line in the face before her. "I did. I do. But at a price."

For a moment the girl was deceived. "Why talk about that now? You know I have nothing with me." With a flood of impatience, she clenched her hands. "If it's money you want, you can have as much as you like when I get to Fez. Surely you're not going to waste time bargaining."

"Doña mia, I would have left that kind of reward to your generosity—it's another sort I'm after."

Rosemary was silent. A little sickness crept upon her. She was a bit uncertain of her knees, but she told herself that she was not in the least afraid.

"Sit down a minute." Martengo pointed to the couch and, without conscious volition, the girl found herself in a corner, huddled into the smallest possible compass. The man did not move, nor change his attitude. "Freedom is worth a good deal to you, isn't it?" he asked. "I'll give you my word you shall go down to Fez."

"Your word?" repeated Rosemary.

Juan ignored her scorn. "You can't afford to take it like that," he said. "Nobody knows where you are. I can do what I like with you."

Mechanically the girl tucked a fold of her barracan over her feet. She felt she must cover every inch of herself, shield herself with every vestige of wrapping from those eyes.

"It's a question of what will you give me to take you out of Telehdi."

"Nothing," said Rosemary, and all her flesh was damp.

For a moment the Spaniard looked at her. "Then I must take it," he said. With a single movement, lithe as an animal's, he was beside her. She flung herself off the couch, but her sandal caught in her native drapery, and before she could recover she was in his arms.

"Dios, how I've wanted you." His lips were on her throat as she strained away.

"Let me go!"

"Not yet," laughed the Spaniard, tightening his hold. Something clicked in the girl's brain. Everything was quite clear now, like skeletons in moonlight! Terror sharpened every outline, so that she saw the room and the suffused face at her shoulder, the muscle in the man's neck, the lamp's smoke on the ceiling, in exaggerated detail. Only sound was inchoate. The shuffling of their feet, Martengo's breathing, the sudden rip of her barracan, were confused with another sound, the rush of footsteps, voices, but she didn't know if they were outside or in her own head. A scream tore through her throat. Why, it was easy! She wasn't dumb—somebody was outside. She screamed again and again.

A door burst open and there was a medley of voices in the outer room. Martengo loosed his hold as men catapulted in upon them. Rosemary, frozen into immobility, her mouth hanging open, saw Westwyn hurl himself at the Spaniard. She was jerked off the couch by the impact of their bodies. Huddled on the floor, she shut her eyes, while the room became a whirlwind of struggling figures. A horrible, guttural sound broke into her consciousness.

"You're strangling him," said a voice. "It's murder, man. Drop it!"

The girl's lids were forced up. Curiosity and panic held her gaze on the fight. Heinz and Pete were trying to pull Westwyn off something crumpled and gulping among the bolsters. With a terrific heave they dragged off the aggressor, shaking him as they might have done a terrier. Some Riffs were looking through the doorway. Rosemary recognized the young Menebbhe. Then, unwillingly, she looked at the figure on the couch. Slowly Martengo pulled himself to his feet.

"You'll pay for this," he said thickly.

There was blood at the corner of his mouth and his throat worked under the hand he held pressed against it.

Westwyn nodded toward Rosemary, still on the floor.

"Take her back to the guest house, Heinz," he ordered. "Are you all right, Miss Crofton, not hurt?"

Martengo lurched against the table. A riding whip lay on it, and in a second the Spaniard had seized it and struck Westwyn across the face. "I'll not fight you here, three to one, you peasant, but I'll shoot you any time you like to name!"

There was an instant of stillness in the room. Then half a dozen voices broke out. The Riffs seized Martengo. Heinz hustled Rosemary out of the door.

"You've got to chust come with me!" he said, and did not relax his hold even when they were on the path.

The girl dragged back. "What will happen? What will they do?" she repeated.

"There will be a duel," retorted the German. "One of those fool blind duels that the Riffs are so fond of."

Refusing to answer any more questions, he hurried her down the steep track. "If you want to help us," he told her as they reached the guest house, "don't move outside this place."

He had started up the hillside before she had time to protest.

"What is it?" whimpered Zarifa at her elbow. "I saw the Kaid running with men behind him. What has happened?"

"There is going to be a duel," said Rosemary, dully. "Zarifa, what is a blind duel?"

But the Riffi woman was clinging to her arm.

"What do you mean, who is going to fight? Not the Kaid?"

"Yes, I'm afraid so. Martengo struck him."

"Aiee!" wailed Zarifa. "It will be murder. The Spaniard is as crooked as a witch's stick!" She disappeared into the darkness, barefooted, her barracan dragging behind her.

HALF an hour later, a group of men gathered in Menebbhe's house. The young headsman, his dignity like a mantle on his shoulders, was seated on a carpet. On either side of him stood Westwyn and Martengo. The German and half a dozen Riffs were clustered opposite.

"You are willing to fight in our way, sidi?" asked the host, looking anxiously at the Englishman. He was disturbed that a matter of such importance must be decided during his father's absence. The honor of the village was in his hands, but, though any form of warfare appealed to his sporting spirit, he knew he ought not to endanger the Kaid. That man's life was worth more to Abd-el Krim than half a dozen tribes, yet Menebbhe had been brought up in the Riff tradition. The challenged man must fight. It was in the hands of Allah, he decided. Heaven would decide the issue.

"I will fight in any fool way you like," returned Westwyn, impatiently. He, too, was thinking of Abd-el Krim, of his unfinished work. Damn the girl. Women always got themselves into messes. Better get the thing over with as quickly as possible. Pity he hadn't killed the fellow up there. It would have settled matters. He looked pretty terrified. Unsteady hand, probably. So his thoughts ran on.

Menebbhe signaled to a servant and the youth, black, narrow eyed, with a scar across his lip, brought two pistols. They were the long barreled native weapons, inlaid with ivory and silver.

"They are twins," said the young chief. "One only will be loaded. You, sidi, can decide who chooses."

The Englishman shrugged indifferent shoulders.

"I'll leave that bit of flummery to Martengo," he said.

"As you will. The pistols will remain in my charge tonight. When the sun rises, we will go up the hill. At a signal, you will both fire, but only one will have an effective weapon."

"It's madness!" broke in Heinz. "The sultan will have your head for this. If the Kaid is killed, the French will be in the Riff within a month. You are sparrows without him."

Westwyn frowned, but the little German was roused to a pitch of resentment which released his speech like a coil from a spring. "We might as well pack up, if Martengo is fool enough to shoot, and I tell you we shan't take our heads with us. D'you think the sultan will care about what you call honor?"

He glared at Menebbhe, who responded gravely: "Of a truth, it is likely that our lives will go with the Kaid's, but this is a custom. The Spaniard has been beside us in battle. He can claim this duel. Who am I to deny it, in the face of our tradition? Our safety is in the hands of Allah."

After the manner of his race, he ignored all mention of the woman. One man had attacked another in his house. That was enough. Rosemary's name never would be mentioned among the Riffs.

"It is settled," said Westwyn. "I'm going to get an hour or two's sleep."

He took courteous leave of Menebbhe, conscious, in preoccupied fashion, of a curious glance from the servant who held the pistols. When he was outside he remembered that once he had thrashed the man for stealing.

"He'll be up to some monkey trick if he can," decided the Englishman, before his thoughts concentrated on the work he must do before morning. Reports, schemes, orders, all to be worked out in an hour or two! A letter to Abd-el Krim—he'd have a shot at exonerating Menebbhe. Heinz had better get down to the coast if anything happened. And Rosemary? He stopped short. The headman could be trusted to look after her. He would make Mohamed swear her safety on his head and his eyes! Whew! Surely the sky was lightening. He went up the hill at a double.

FOR a year Zarifa had been a member of the headman's household. She had free run of the women's quarters. In such primitive dwellings as Menebbhe's these consisted merely of a long room behind the men's reception place, sometimes divided from it by a passage or a court. It had been easy for the woman, flattened behind the inner door, to hear every word of the discussion concerning the duel. She, too, had noticed the way Farraj, the black servant, had looked at Westwyn, and she knew the cause of his hatred. Instinct warned her that she must watch the man; so, without any particular plan, she drifted after him when he went out, a shadow in the denser shadow of the wall. Farraj stepped cautiously. He had caught the Spaniard's eye as he was leaving, and infused as much meaning into the glance as possible. Surely the foreigner would see his chance and be willing to pay for it? What a safe and pleasant way of revenge! The Englishman, who set himself up as a ruler, would be destroyed, and every one would say it was the will of Allah. He glanced right and left, as he stole between the great bowlders scattered around the headman's house. Martengo was waiting behind the largest and most distant. There was whispered conversation. "This is your chance," murmured the slave. "You must kill him."

"How can I?" retorted the Spaniard, irritably. His courage was cooling with the delay. Three hours to the dawn. Plenty of time to think, to regret; almost enough time to get away! He wished he really had sent those horses over the pass.

"You are the best shot in the mountains," said Farraj. "It should be easy for you."

"But suppose I don't choose the loaded pistol! How am I to know?"

A thought struck him. He bent forward, with lowered voice. "Is there any way of knowing?"

Farraj grinned. "The pistols were twins," he said, "but there is a mark on one, where a bullet hit it from my master's hand. You will see the long scratch across the metal. Choose that one and it shall be loaded."

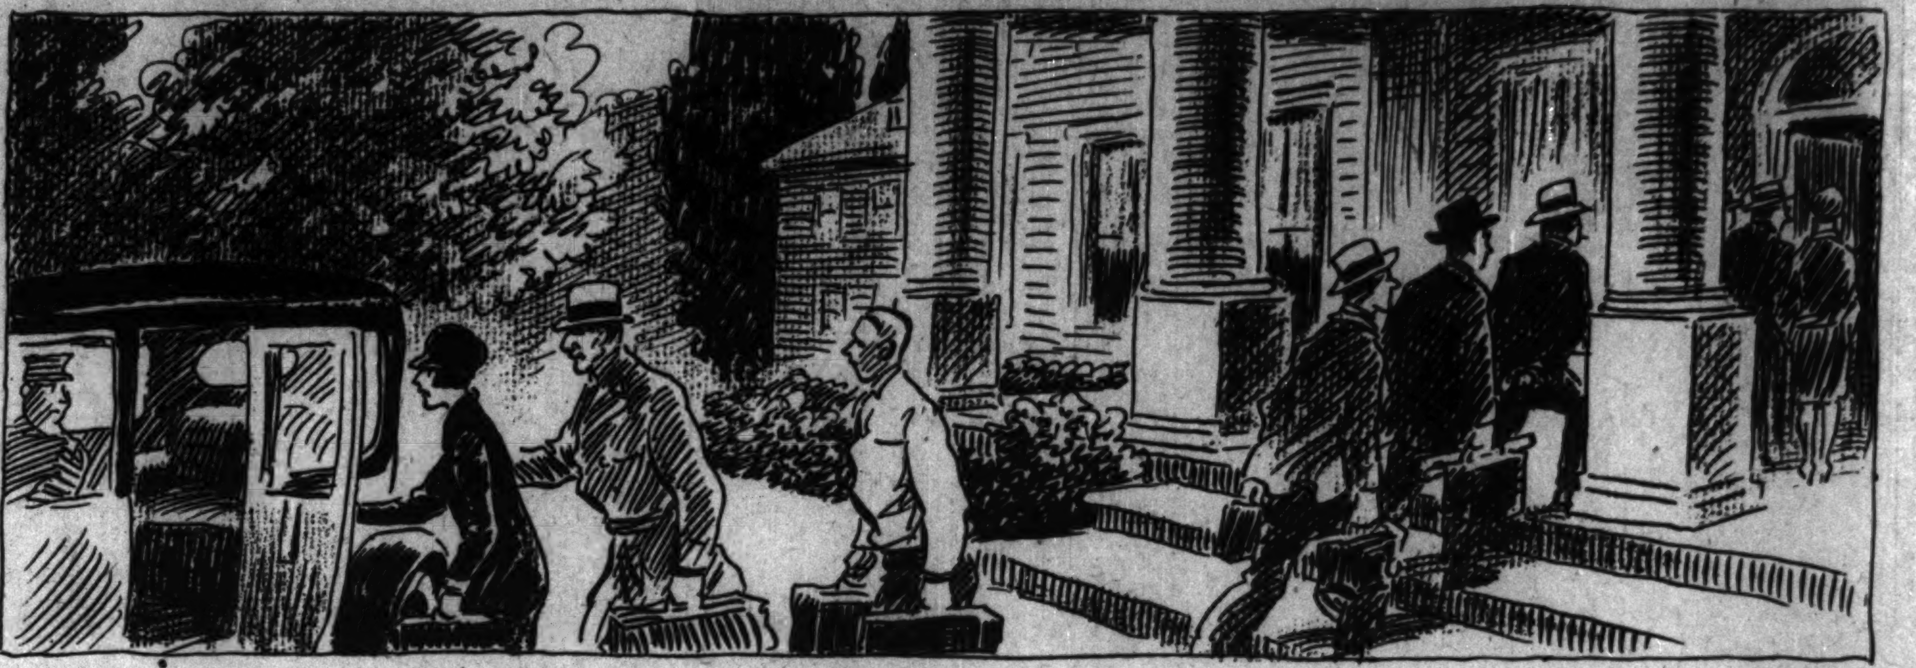
CROSSED WIRES BY John T. McCutcheon

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

In Which Surprises Occur.



Followed Celeste without a word.

IN spite of the hostile attitude of Mr. and Mrs. Crayton, Rasher preserved a deliberate calmness that irritated Mrs. Crayton intensely. She was clenching and unclenching her hands, and her heel was impatiently tapping the floor. Why her husband wished to tolerate this person any longer was incomprehensible.

Rasher, addressing Mr. Crayton, began:

"I am aware of the intention of Count de Barsac toward your daughter. I thought I might be doing you a service if I were to tell you something of the count—things I learned in Paris."

"Not another word!" cried Mrs. Crayton. "I refuse to listen to any poisonous lies from this person. William, I demand that you dismiss him at once." Mr. Crayton ignored his wife, but his hands were drumming nervously on the arms of his chair.

"Go on," he commanded.

"Pierre de Barsac and this French woman, Celeste, are unscrupulous conspirators. They began plotting this the first week you arrived in Paris. I'm here to prevent your selling a decent girl to these vultures."

This was strong language. Mrs. Crayton's face was apoplectic. Mr. Crayton, although he felt that it was outrageous presumption on the part of Rasher, yet began vaguely to welcome these potent if unsavory reinforcements to his own wornout arguments.

Mrs. Crayton found her voice first. "This man wants to marry Virginia himself!" she said hoarsely.

"You are mistaken, madam," said Rasher calmly. "I have already told both your husband and your daughter that I had no intention of marrying. Mr. Crayton will confirm this. But Miss Crayton is far too charming for me to watch her fall into the clutches of a disreputable European adventurer without lifting a hand to prevent it." Mr. Crayton was nodding slowly as if in confirmation, and his wife saw with dismay that he was beginning to be impressed. But Rasher's next words had the effect of an electric shock. He was now addressing her.

"I have reason to believe—from something my friend Wells overheard—that this crook has already begun borrowing money from you." She grasped the edge of the table to steady herself, and her husband saw that Rasher's words had struck home. If he had not been so nervous at the imminent approach of the great financier, Henry Livingston Bacon, Mr. Crayton might almost have enjoyed his wife's discomfiture and his own vindication.

"Furthermore," Rasher was saying, "I consider it cowardly to express these sentiments behind de Barsac's back. Will you please have him and the woman called? Then you may judge for yourselves."

"It would be insulting to submit him to such a humiliation!" began Mrs. Crayton weakly.

"He's not easily insulted," commented Rasher grimly.

"It is only fair to give him a chance to be heard," said Mr. Crayton, as he rang, and his wife sank into a chair moaning, "O, O, this is terrible!"

There was a delay of some minutes before the arrival of the count and Celeste, during which Mr. Crayton several times looked at his watch and thanked God that something evidently was detaining Mr. Bacon.

The count presently came, followed soon afterward by Celeste.

Both were immediately apprehensive, and at sight of Rasher they became guarded and furtive.

"Count," said Mr. Crayton, "this young man has been making some charges against you." The count drew himself up and glared at the former chauffeur, who seemed in no wise disturbed by this defiance.

"My first acquaintance with these persons," began Rasher, "was in Paris last spring, one afternoon when the telephone wires got crossed, and this woman, under the impression that she spoke to that man, made a rendezvous at an obscure little café called the Senegal."

Neither of the guilty pair had been prepared for anything as circumstantial as this, and both started slightly.

"SEE," said Rasher, "they remember. My curiosity became aroused and I went to the café and sat nearby, pretending not to understand French, but I overheard most of the details of a plot to fleece a certain rich American girl from the middle west. I did not at the time have any idea who it was and despaired of being able to prevent it until luck played into my hand by a chance word from Mr. Crayton. I checked up and found the details tallied, even to a point of the woman's having ingratiated herself into your household as maid."

"Infernal lies!" grated the count. "Outrageous lies, all of it!"

"If they could not succeed in marrying, mulcting, and deserting this heiress they were to compromise and blackmail her, as they had done successfully on various occasions."

"Madame, I beseech—this is a most damnable web of lies!" But Rasher continued dispassionately:

"My interest, as I said, was aroused, especially since I found it involved an acquaintance," he bowed toward Mr. Crayton, "and I determined, largely for the amusement of an interesting adventure, to block the plot. I have gone to some pains—even to the extent of sending to Paris for a complete report on the records of these two. These reports have only just arrived. I have them with me, with copies of their finger prints." Rasher paused and drew a packet from his pocket. "Shall I read them, count?"

De Barsac's forehead was covered with beads of perspiration. He was deathly pale. He made an effort to speak, then subsided into a chair. Celeste shrugged her shoulders, smiled mirthlessly, and turned to leave the room.

"I have a taxi outside," said Rasher, "you may take it if you wish. I strongly advise that you return to France at once."

This unhoped for suggestion gave de Barsac new life. Collecting a few shreds of dignity, he bowed ceremoniously to Mr. and Mrs. Crayton and followed Celeste without a word. And while the taxi whirred away Mrs. Crayton sat sobbing in a chair and Mr. Crayton mopped his brow feverishly. Shortly another whirr aroused them. A car stopped at the door.

"It's Bacon!" exclaimed Mr. Crayton. "Thank Heaven, he missed this miserable domestic tragedy!"

But still it wasn't Bacon. It was a bride and groom fresh from the minister's. They burst into the room, hand in hand.

"We're married!" cried Virginia, reckless and happy.

"What!" gasped her parents.

"Yes, and his name isn't Wells—that was just an alias. It's—what did you say it was, dear?" She turned to the embarrassed Dick, still in his chauffeur's uniform.

"I'll tell you," interrupted Rasher. "Allow me to present Mr. Richard Wellborne, Harvard '22, whose beautiful estate on Long Island is so justly famous. I suspect he will take his bride for a honeymoon cruise on his yacht. How about it, Dick?"

VIRGINIA was staring in amazement.

"You didn't tell me all that! Aren't you a chauffeur at all?"

"Only for you, Virginia, whenever you want."

The Craytons, only two [illegible] were also gazing in helpless amazement from one to another, trying to adjust themselves to the bewildering pyramid of discoveries and sensations.

Wellborne turned to them. "And, by the way, now that I'm properly introduced, let me present you to my friend"—he indicated Rasher—"Henry Livingston Bacon, one of the best darned fellows that ever lived."

Mr. Crayton was overcome. When he finally found his voice he muttered weakly, "It was you who advanced that $600,000?"

Rasher smiled. "I heard you say you needed it, so I wired my trustee to trot over and give you credit for it."

"Gosh! And I was offering you money a little while ago! By the way," he turned to his wife, "did you give that scoundrel any money?"

"Yes, William," she whispered feebly.

"How much?"

Before she could reply Rasher said, "O, well, he can't get by with blackmail now, and he may not dare even to cash it, so cheer up."

There was another rush of automobiles coming up the drive and the clatter of feet on the porch. Then the butler entered.

"Madam, the reporters and photographers for the newspapers are here. They want pictures of Miss Virginia and the count to go with the announcement of the engagement tomorrow."

KING'S MATE - By Rosita Forbes

"Dios, a clever idea!"

Money passed between them. "There will be more tomorrow. If you carry out your plan you will be rich."

"It is settled," said Farraj. "You need fear no more."

Martengo stared after the ebony figure. There had been scorn in the last words. All at once he felt that the price of that evening's work was heavy.

Zarifa, crouching behind a smaller bowlder, had been unable to hear the conversation, but she was impressed by the attitude of conspiracy and she had heard the clink of money. Soft footed, she glided back to the house and watched Farraj go in to his master. There was a murmur of voices. "Shall I load the pistols, Sidi?" asked the slave. "Bring them here, and do it in front of me," ordered Menebbhe.

Zarifa, breathless behind a curtain, watched the breeches snapped open and a bullet slipped into one.

"Leave them with me," ordered the young headman, "and wake me before the light."

THE woman drew a breath of relief. They were going to sleep, then. She would get her chance. In that moment she realized how terribly afraid she had been!

For a long time she crouched in the passage, waiting, damp with anxiety, for the master to sleep. At last, reassured by the man's even breathing, Zarifa crept into his room. The pistols were very close to the mattress whereon lay Menebbhe, his face turned to the wall. Swift and silent as a cat, the Riffi woman stole across the floor, seized the pistols, and slipped out, clutching them in cold, stiff fingers.

Her idea was merely to remove the bullet. Then no slaughter would be done. A light flickered from the harem room and, as the breeches were stiff, she crept up to it. It was as she snapped open the second that she noticed the mark. It was unmistakable, a dent across the butt. She gazed at it, reflectively, felt it with her finger, and then she remembered the whispered conversation between Farraj and the Spaniard. For a moment her instinct was illuminated by something near clairvoyance. Rubbing her finger up and down the chipped metal, she felt it was like the medium through which the plot was revealed to her—but not clearly. She suspected. That was all. The pistols were marked. It might be that the Spaniard knew which to choose. With clenched teeth, she took out the bullet, hesitated a minute, then rammed it into the other weapon. Sportsmanship was in her blood. After all, if it were a fair fight, she had no right to interfere. Allah would decide! But if treachery had been planned, the Spaniard would meet his fate. Noiselessly, but this time without any emotion, she crossed the headman's room and replaced the pistols by his couch. When dawn came she was asleep on her mat outside Rosemary's door, and there was a smile on her lips.

It was cold on the mountain ledge. A fitful wind whistled through the bushes, and the sunrise was smothered in clouds.

Martengo was the first to arrive. He had been drinking heavily, and as a result he was sullen. His sight was playing him tricks, and his hand was none too steady. Sudden fear attacked him, lest he should not be able to take advantage of Farraj's treachery. It was no comfort to know that the Englishman would be powerless to hurt him. He wanted revenge. Deliberately, he paced up and down the rock platform, steadying his nerves with an effort. Footsteps sounded below. He forced himself to turn nonchalantly toward the newcomers, but a muscle twitched in his cheek.

Westwyn looked tired. It was a bad business, he thought; but, being a man of little imagination, he accepted it as inevitable. Methodically he had made every possible arrangement for the future, but he contemplated neither death nor victory. He looked no farther ahead than the solitary pistol shot which would satisfy the Riffi idea of what was suitable. He had lived long enough among the mountaineers to know that no one could lead them who did not conform to their customs. For him, Martengo was negligible. It was merely a matter of playing up to the Riffs in order to maintain his essential authority.

Menebbhe, watching the ground measured, was more uneasy than he ever had been before in his life, but the stoicism of his race kept him silent. It was not fit for a man to show his feelings, but he alone knew how much was at stake. It was he who would bear the news to the sultan, and he was aware that he might not return from that journey.

"All is ready, Sidi," said a servant; and the headman, taking the pistols from Farraj, offered them, the butts turned outward, to Martengo. For a second, mist drifted before the Spaniard's eyes. He could not see the mark, and his hand hovered uncertainly. The contempt which Menebbhe did not trouble to hide roused him, and he took the scratched pistol, walking quickly back to his post. Slowly the young headman turned to Westwyn. He would have liked to express something of the unaccustomed tumult in his heart. He remembered this Englishman riding by his side in a raid, and how he had laughed when a bullet grazed his cheek. He remembered him, leaning from his saddle, red faced, with swollen muscles, to drag up a wounded man as they fled from a French attack—in his ears echoed the cry with which his followers had acclaimed the feat of horsemanship. He saw him, smoke blackened, behind the guns, bareheaded and grinning, blood trickling into his eyes, wildly happy in the tightest corner any of them had ever been in.

"Allah keep you," he said, and gave this Christian infidel the blessing of his faith. Westwyn's eyes lighted. He held out his hand, but Menebbhe, bending swiftly, touched his forehead and breast, as he would have done before his father.

"Buck up," said the Kaid, in English. "I'm not buried yet," and then, in Arabic, "Insha-Allah, we shall eat together tonight."

"My house is yours," returned Menebbhe, fervently.

The opponents stood, facing each other, ten paces apart. "It's murder!" repeated Heinz, quivering like a fat, pale jelly in the background. Beside him, Pete was motionless. He displayed less interest than he would have done at a parade, but behind that placid exterior he was considering exactly how and when the Spaniard should die. If Westwyn was killed, the enemy would not live till evening. Pete's face was almost pleasant as he arrived at this conclusion.

A Riff, muffled to the eyes in his brown camel's hair djellaba, took up his stand between the duelists, but a few paces back from the line of fire.

"When he lowers his rifle, shoot!" ordered Menebbhe. "Allah will decide between you."

Westwyn balanced the primitive weapon he held, wondering what effect it would have. A gorgeous anti-climax, he thought, if, after all this preparation, no one was hurt! The idea made him smile, but his amusement was arrested by the expression of his adversary. For a moment it was as if Martengo had dropped a mask. Triumph leered in the bloodshot eyes, the mouth was twisted in savage mockery.

"He's got something up his sleeve," thought Westwyn, and shifted his aim.

THE tribesman's rifle grounded. There was a click and, simultaneously, a report.

Martengo fell back, with a bullet through his shoulder. Heinz flung himself on Pete and would have embraced him had not the stolid Australian held him off by main force.

Menebbhe was rendering thanks unto Allah, unashamedly and in a loud voice. Only Westwyn was unmoved. He stared at his pistol with unseeing eyes, wondering why the Spaniard, for that one second before he fell, had looked so surprised.

"Blank amazement," thought the Englishman. "He didn't expect it, but why?"

Rosemary heard of the duel from Zarifa, and all morning she sat on the roof, hoping and fearing that Westwyn would come to her.

At noon she saw him ride down to the village, and disappointment struggled with relief. All night she had been a stringed instrument, vibrating to storms of gratitude and resentment, fear and humiliation. She had strung herself to face anything. She was prepared for Westwyn's anger, even his scorn. The one thing she was not prepared for was to be ignored. Under a midday sun she sat on the parapet, her head aching, her eyes burning, looking down toward the cluster of stone houses. There was much coming and going among them, but the mountain path was deserted.

The headman had returned unexpectedly that morning and had received a full account of the duel and its cause from his son. "Is the Spaniard dead?" he asked, lids down, sucking his pipe. "A pity," returned Mohamed. "He is in no danger. A month and he will be loose again." The old man meditated. "Allah is merciful," he said at last. "He has saved our house. Where is the Kaid?"

"Asleep," retorted his son with a smile. "I went with him to his room. The men would have fired their rifles, made a 'jerid' in his honor, but he told them not to waste ammunition. First he tore up many papers——" Mohamed smiled again as he remembered Westwyn's rueful "What waste of my diplomacy!" "Then he went to bed. He was asleep before I left. Truly the English are a curious race."

THE headman was still sitting on his carpet, smoking, when Westwyn rode into his yard. A dozen elderly villagers were deep in discussion, but Menebbhe dismissed them at sight of the Englishman. They went reluctantly, looking back over their shoulders.

"Allah give you peace," said the old man.

Westwyn grinned. "I doubt if I get it while Martengo's alive."

The headman reflected. "Perhaps it would be better if he died."

"Rot, man! I'm not going to have any of that sort of work."

The old chief shrugged his protest. "You put too much value on life. It is a thread in the hands of Allah. He breaks it at his will."

"Right, but I think we'll leave the breaking to him."

Menebbhe was not convinced, but he dropped the subject as a boy brought coffee. "My son—for you are as a son to me—you should have taken a graybeard's advice and this misfortune would not have happened."

"What advice?" asked Westwyn, holding out the tiny cup for another mouthful. His host waited until the long beaked coffee pot was empty. Then, his eyes fixed on the ground, his voice impersonal, he continued, "The woman you sent here is young. They tell me she is pleasant to the eyes. Therefore, while she is no man's property, she will be hunted, as that bird is chased by its fellow." He pointed to a pair of mating sparrows in play from wall to roof.

Westwyn was silent. He had an uncomfortable if illogical feeling that he had failed in his job. He couldn't quite get out of his mind a picture of Rosemary crouched in the corner of Martengo's room, her defenses down, her eyes primitive and pitiful.

"My word is a sword among my own people," said Menebbhe, "but there are Europeans here, idle men to whom war is an excuse for lust. Next week——" he dropped his voice, "the sultan comes, and with him will be many whom I cannot control. Moreover, Martengo will seek his revenge."

The two men stared at each other.

"You mean?" demanded Westwyn.

"Your wife would be safe and honored by all men. You must marry the woman if you would keep her from others."

Protest and explanation jumbled on Westwyn's tongue; but he gave voice to neither. After a prolonged silence, during which his companion [illegible] exquisite and symmetrical bubbles in his pipe, he remarked, "Pretty hard on the girl, eh?"

"A woman's fate is what a man makes it," returned the headman. There was another pause. "There is a priest of your faith in the valley. I will send for him and the matter can be settled tomorrow."

A twinkle relieved the blade keenness of the Englishman's face. "A bit of a nightmare," he said. "These things aren't so easily arranged with us."

"By Allah!" exclaimed his host. "Never shall I understand your ways. If this woman were of our people, do you think we should leave her unprotected? It would be a shame upon us."

"She's got Pete," remarked Westwyn, "and I'll jolly well see there's no repetition of last night."

"A woman's only protection is her husband," answered the headman. He gazed reflectively at the sparrows fluttering and squawking under the eaves.

"Damn it!" said the Kaid. "I'll marry her!"

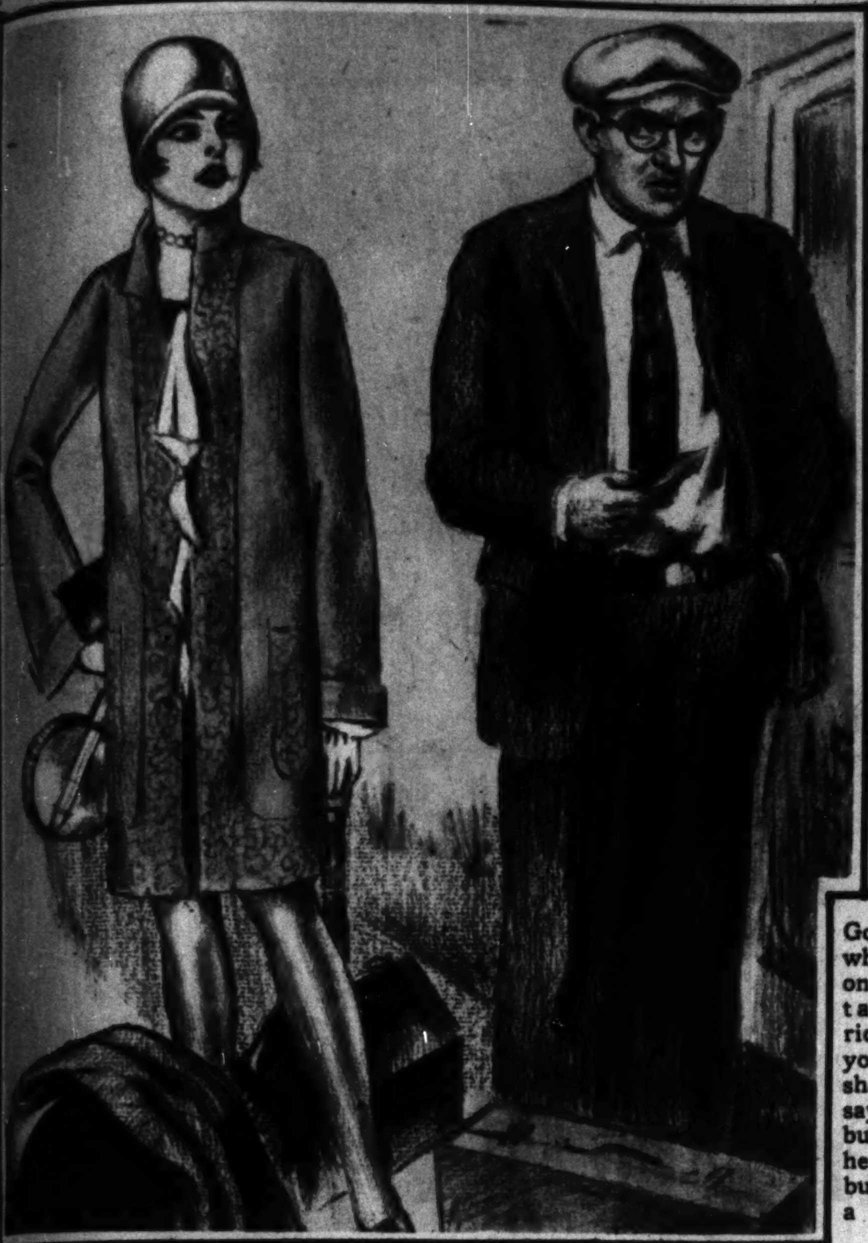
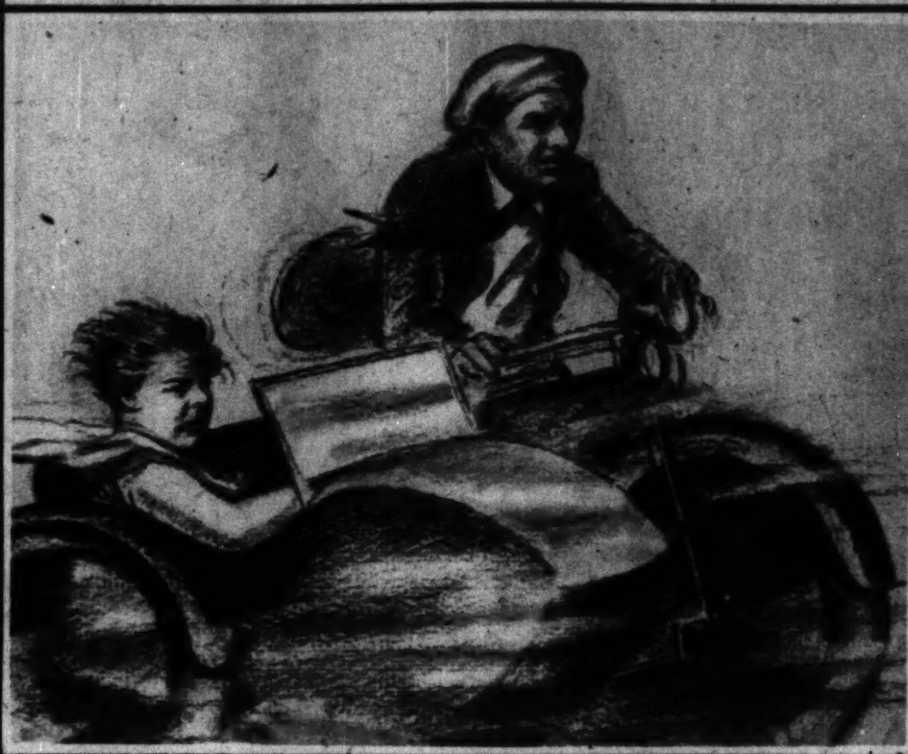
Simple Country Folks

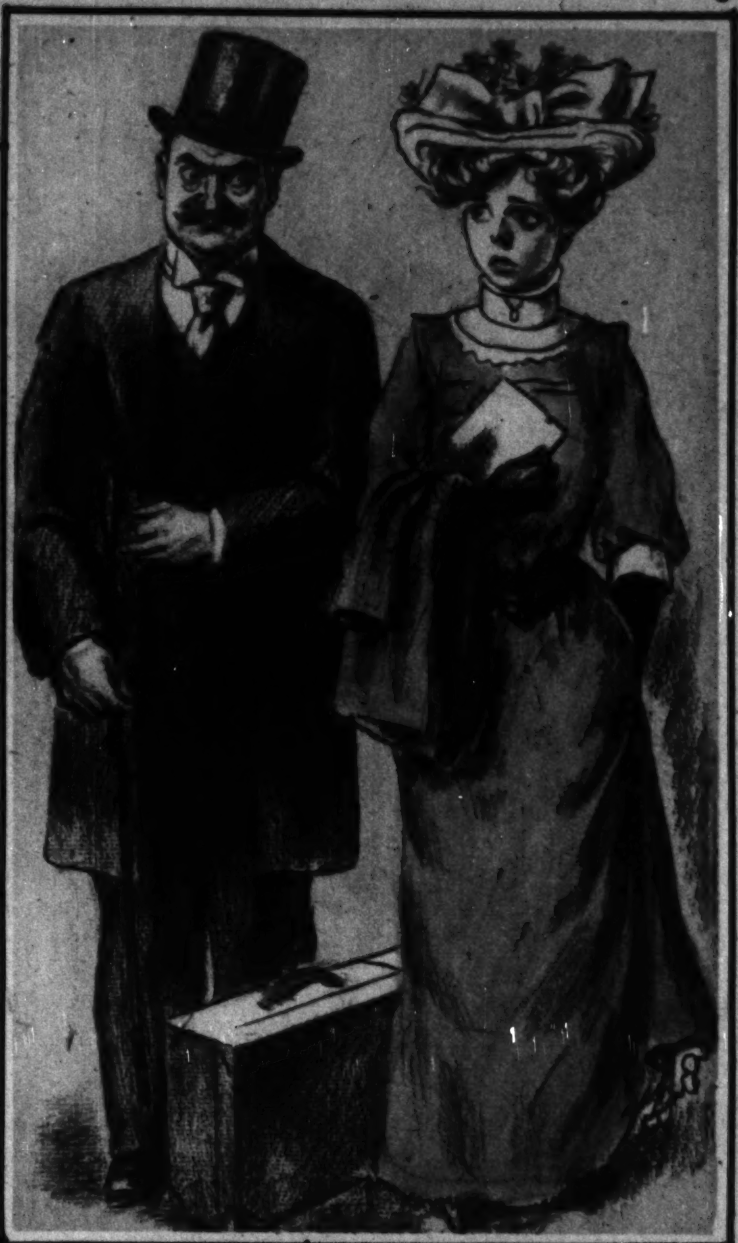
By W. E. Hill



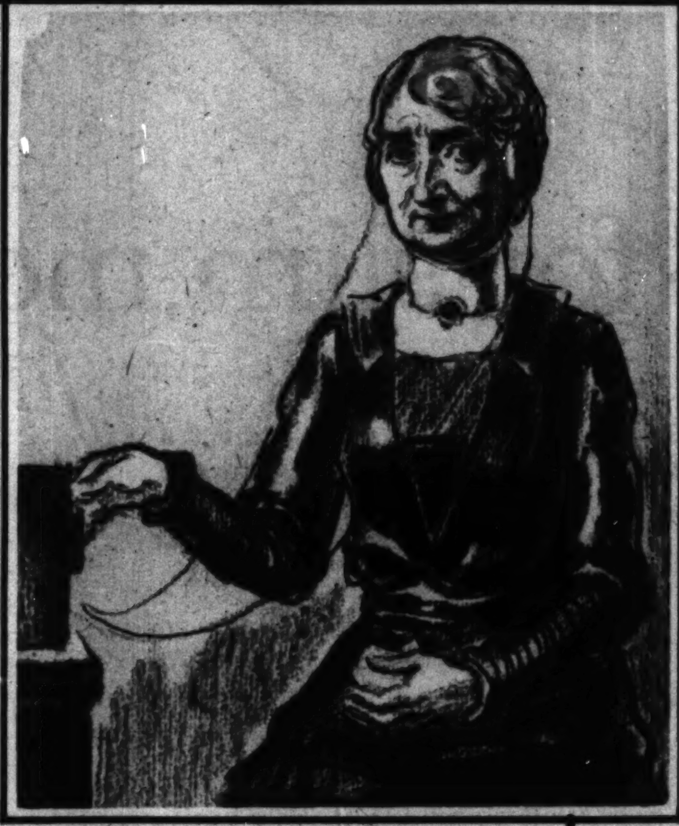
"Listen, boy; don't you know your city? How do you get that way?" Listen, will you, to the little country lass of 1926 bawling out a city taxi driver who took her a roundabout way. It's the country people who really know the city.



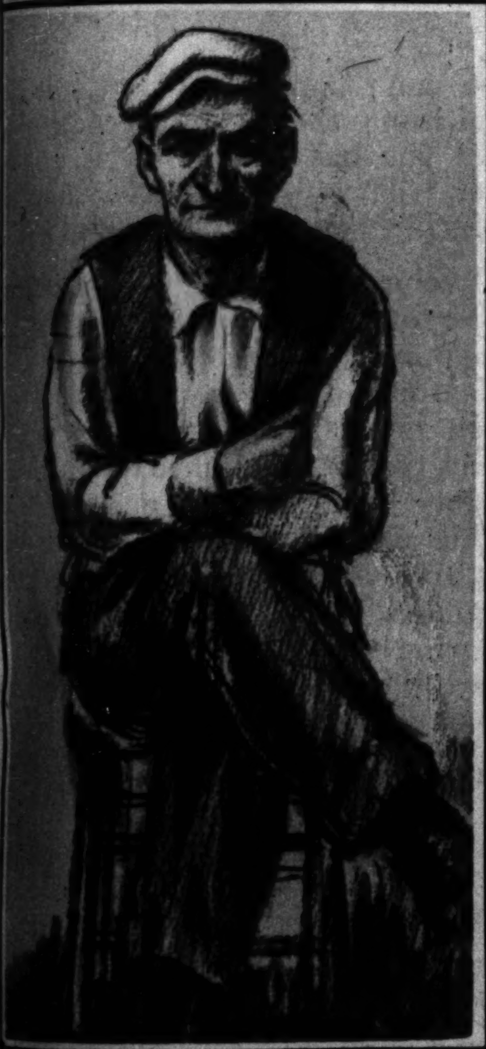
Gone are the days when the hired girl on the farm got taken out buggy riding by her best young man. Today she will probably say "Thanks for the buggy ride" when he brings her home, but she doesn't mean a horse and buggy.



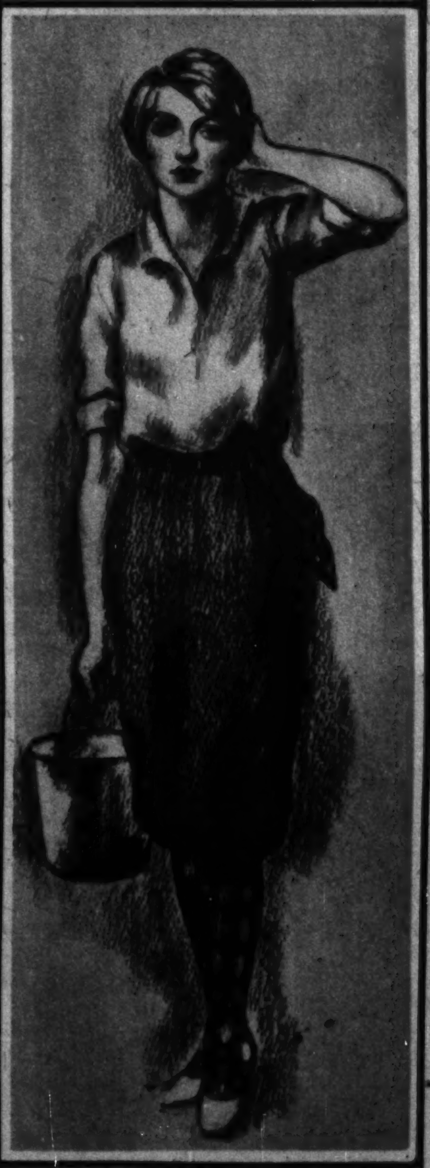
Alone in the big city, back in 1906. A simple little country lass in the good old days had to be continually on the lookout for trouble when she came to the city. She was told to beware of cab drivers who might try to drive her where she shouldn't go, and many were the tales whispered at the ladies' aid meetings of girls who had gone hopelessly wrong just from taking a cab when they came to the city.



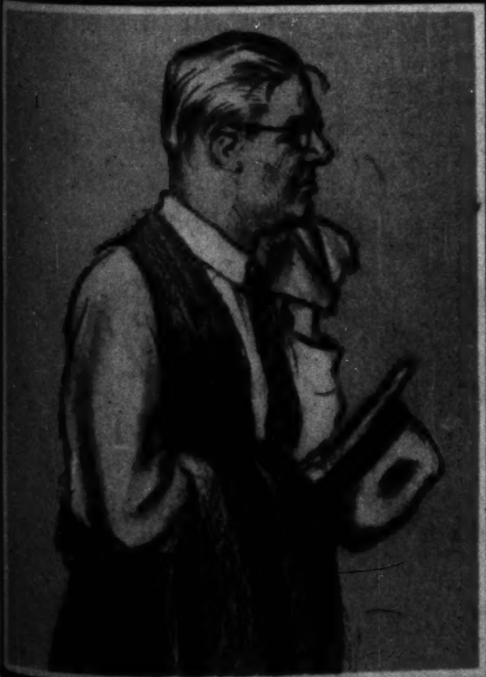
The radio has put an awful crimp into the countryside gossips. They are far too busy nowadays listening in to get any of the local scandal.



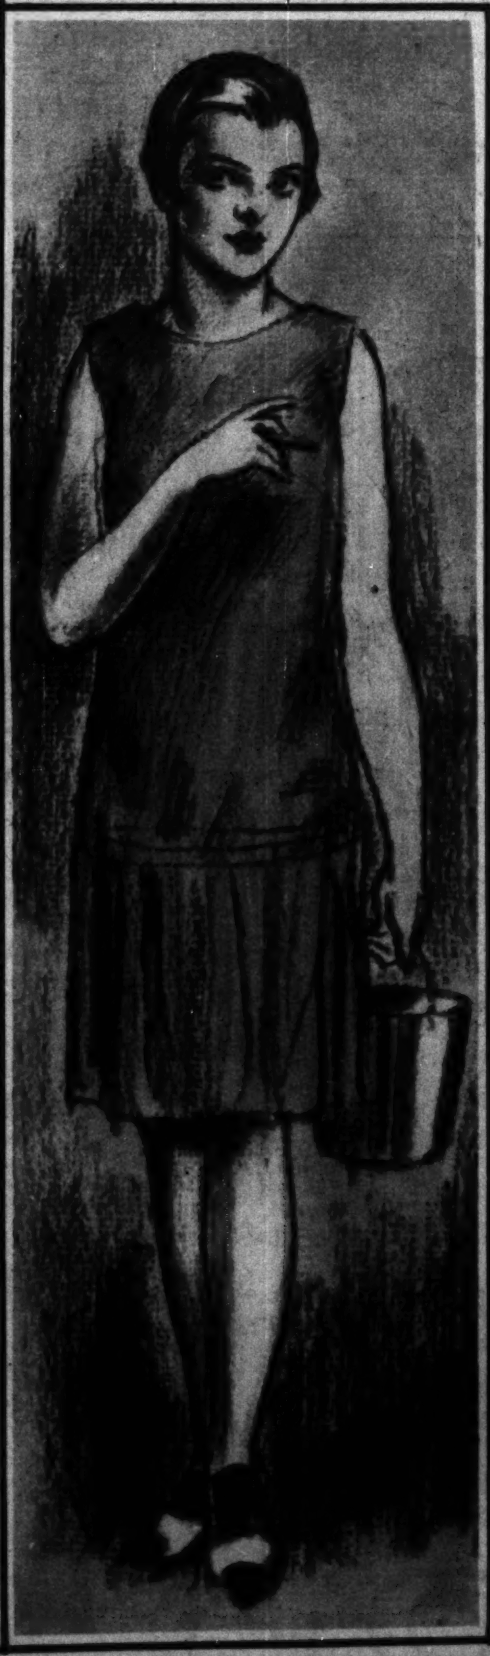
Says the farmer: "I thought some of putting in a bathroom this year, but what with the new car, and the radio for mama, and the electric milker to be paid for, I haven't been able to see my way clear!"



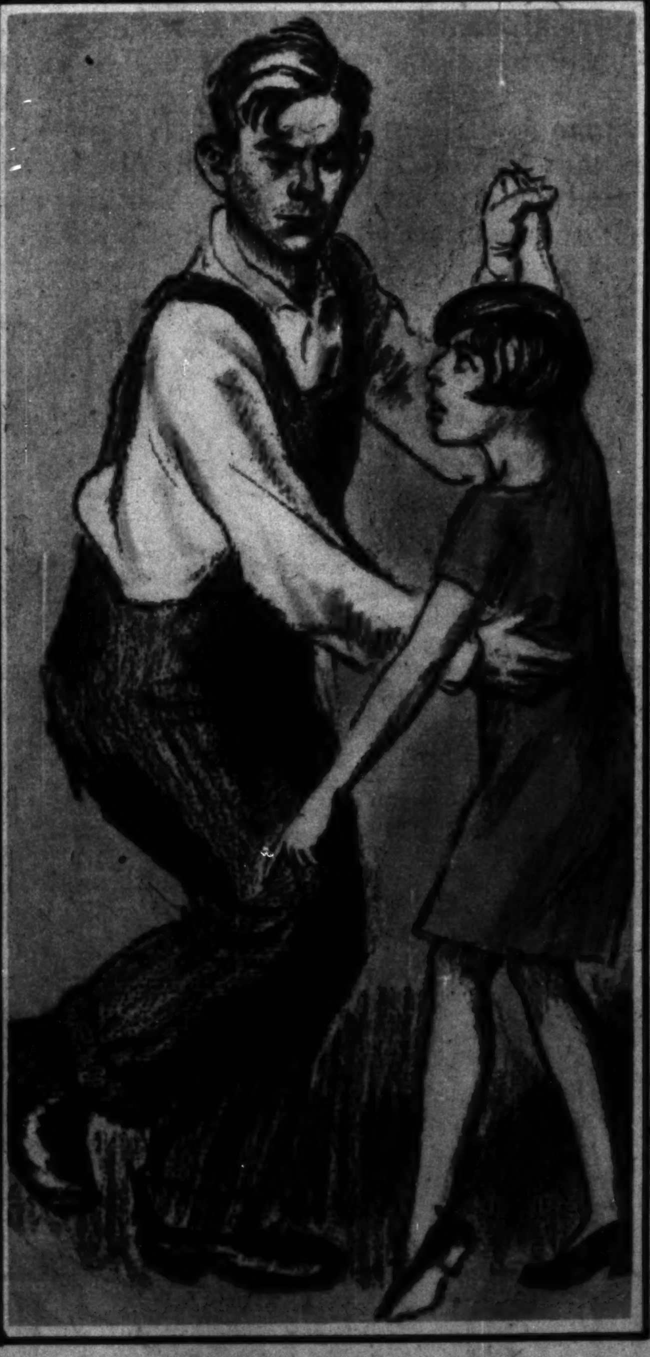
A 1926 farmer's daughter off to pick berries in the pasture. Blackberries? O, no; she's after elderberries for the fall wine list.



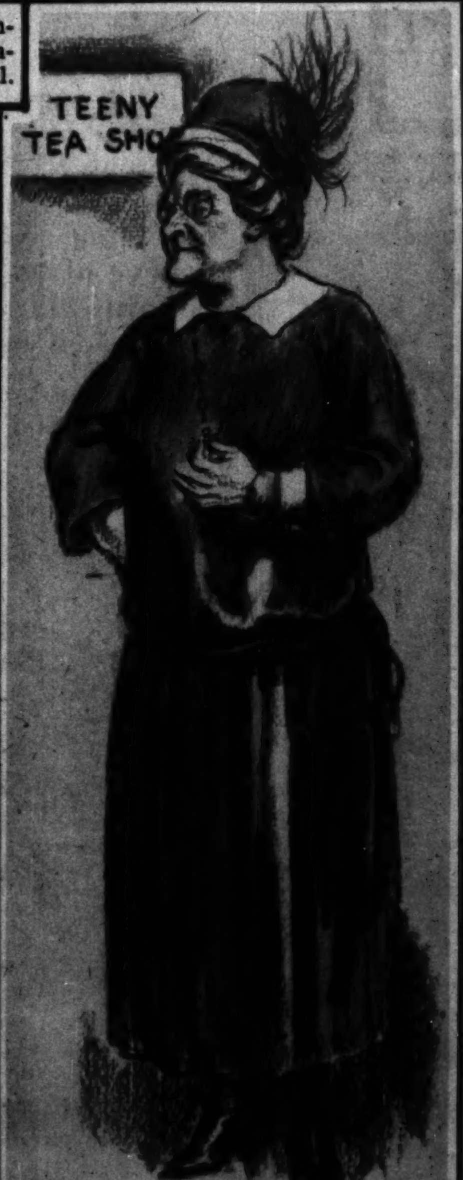
In the old days the city man was always supposed to be pretty villainous underneath. He was always wronging some simple, trusting country lass. But times have changed, as they always do sooner or later. Now it's the other way 'round. Many a city boy, vacationing in the country, has had to walk home from an automobile ride. The farmer's daughter with the flivver sedan got too fresh.



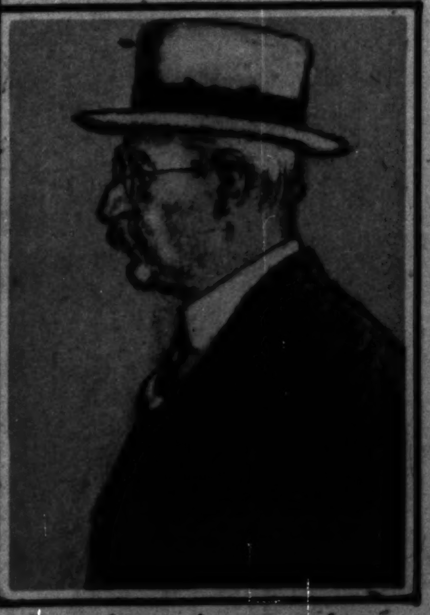
Maud Muller, the lovely milk maid, is on her way to the cow barn. The cows are all milked by electricity, so Maud won't have to milk anything. She just goes to get a little pail of milk for Aunt Sarah, who doesn't drink dandelion wine. Maud is a lovely girl, but she worries the life out of her family by her carelessness with cigarets around the place.



"Listen, baby, watch my feet and follow me!" All enterprising farmers in these up and coming days see to it that a couple of fresh air kids are entertained for at least a few weeks each summer. The city children keep the household up to date. They know all the Charleston steps, which makes it swell for the hired man who is going to enter a Charleston contest shortly.



The farmer's wife is a busy girl these days. She's turned the old hen house, by the road where the automobiles pass by, into "The Teeney Tea and Gift Shop," where for the modest cover charge of a dollar one can have a cup of tea and a slice of toast. "The Teeney Tea Shop" has been left as primitive as possible because motorists from the city like that sort of thing. It's just as it was when the chickens were there, and one or two leghorns are still kept to give a little atmosphere. Then, too, there are lovely things for sale in the gift shop. They were bought wholesale from the factory, so the retail prices are not exorbitant, you see.



From farmer boy to realtor. Up from the farm to let a few city boys in on a good thing is Farmer Grapple of Brushback county. He has turned the old farm (which had ceased to pay as a farm) into a big realty development. Greater Hollywood Gardens it's called, and bungalow sites are already selling.

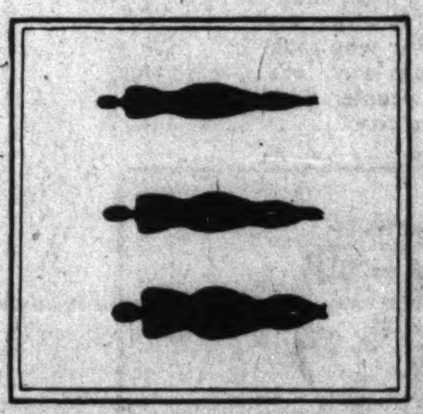
WHY is it that we never give a thought to our health until something goes wrong? It's so easy to keep rested and ready to make the most of every day.

Just give yourself a fair chance to recover from the nervous strain of busy, interesting days and pleasure-filled evenings. Make sure every hour of sleep brings sixty minutes of real rest, and you'll be safe.

You may well be proud of your body. You know it is a very marvelous creation. It has to be—to recover in eight short hours all the energy that you spend so generously during the other sixteen. Sleep on the Downy Rest and every nerve and muscle will be restfully relaxed in any sleeping position. The scores of softly yielding coil springs fit gently and silently up to every curve of your body. You'll sleep healthfully, restfully on this luxuriously comfortable surface. You'll wake up refreshed, ready to meet every morning with a smile.



You can't appreciate how intensel important the sleeping hours ar until you have slept on the Down Rest. Then you'll find everythin looks brighter through rested eyes.

It is real economy to give up the old be spring. Go to the store of the Downy Re dealer in your neighborhood. He will poi out the features of Downy Rest constru tion which make the finest bed springs o the market today. He will explain to yo how the four corner braces prevent "side sway." He will show you how the ste tie-plates give you a silent bed spring th never squeaks, and how the steel brace keep the edges of the spring trim and square through lifetime of service. Downy Rests are moderately priced but they have no equals at any price.

AFTER BLASTING AWAY THE IMMENSE GRANITE BOULDER THAT CONCEALED THE ENTRANCE TO THE GOLDEN CITY, OUR THREE FRIENDS SPENT MANY WEARY DAYS BREAKING THROUGH THE MASSIVE GOLDEN GATEWAY THAT HAD GUARDED THE TREASURE CITY FOR UNTOLD YEARS - BUT AT LAST SUCCESS CROWNED THEIR EFFORTS AND THE LIGHT OF THEIR TORCHES REVEALED A COLOSSAL TREASURE THAT OVERPOWERED THE IMMAGINATION BY ITS UNBELIEVABLE SPLENDOUR AND RICHNESS - WITH UNHEARD OF WEALTH PILED UP ON ALL SIDES THE ADVENTURERS EXPLORE THE CITY OF GOLD WITH AWE STRUCK EYE - THAT WALL IS MADE OF PURE GOLD AND YOU MAY LAY TO THAT - MY COMMONPLACE WITS ARE BURIED BENEATH A THOUSAND MIRACLES -
ON THIS HONORABLE SPOT ONE OF THE SUPERIOR PEOPLE WAS ABOUT TO ERECT AN ENTIRELY ADEQUATE GOLDEN HOUSE -
IT LOOKS LIKE A GOLDEN LUMBER PILE -
THE CHAIRS, TABLES, BEDS AND ALL THE FURNITURE IS MADE OF GOLD - GEE WE WERE LUCKY TO FIND THIS CITY -
IT IS WRITTEN THE LORDS OF THE UPPER AIR SMILE ON THE DELIVERING -
WHEN I TELL THE KIDS AT SCHOOL ABOUT THIS GOLD THEY'LL NEVER BELIEVE ME -
IT IS TRULY WRITTEN WHAT IS TRUE IS NOT ALWAYS PROBABLE -
THIS ILLITERATE PERSON HOPES THE SPIRITS OF THE VANISHED ONES ARE NOW ENJOYING A SURPLUS OF CELESTIAL DELIGHTS - AND YOU MAY LAY TO THAT -
HOW WELL THOUGHT WAS THEIR DEVICE TO WRITE THEIR HISTORY IN PUREST GOLD -
I GUESS THAT'S A PICTURE OF THE PEOPLE WHO BUILT THIS CITY -
I'VE SEEN MANY A STRANGE SIGHT IN MY TIME BUT A SOLID GOLD FRYING PAN IS THE STRANGEST THING I'VE EVER SET MY PEEPERS ON AND YOU MAY LAY TO THAT - TRY AND LIFT ONE OF THESE -
THE MIGHTY ONE IS THE NEVER TO BE PRAISED ENOUGH GOD OF THIS HONORABLE CITY -
OH, BOY! LOOK AT THAT GREAT BIG GOLDEN STATUE IN THERE -
I'LL BET THAT STATUE IS WORTH OVER A MILLION DOLLARS - JUST ONE FINGER OF THAT GOD WOULD BUY AN AUTOMOBILE - AND THAT FUNNY CAP ON IT'S HEAD WOULD BUY A SWELL HOUSE FOR MY PAPA AND MAMA -

LORD PLUSHBOTTOM INVITED ME OUT FOR A RIDE ON HIS NEW $30,000- YACHT TO-DAY- THAT'S CLASS EH, EMMY?
LETS US GO ALONG TOO, BENJAMIN- I AM SURE LORD PLUSHBOTTOM WOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE OUR COMPANY.
NOTHIN' DOIN' EMMY. I JUST SPENT FORTY CENTS FOR MY LUNCH AND I DON'T LIKE TO TAKE ANY CHANCES WITH IT.
COME ON, MOON- BENJAMIN IS SUCH A STINGY, WHY HE EVEN SPLITS A COFFEE BEAN IN TWO TO KEEP FROM SELLING A POUND OVERWEIGHT.
YOU KNOW, HONEYBUNCH, THAT THE SKY WOULD BE THE LIMIT FOR YOU IF I WAS LUCKY LIKE LORD PLUSHBOTTOM. WHY, EVERYTHING HE TOUCHES TURNS TO GOLD.
WELL, I WISH HE'D LAY HIS HAND ON THIS BRACELET YOU GAVE ME FOR MY BIRTHDAY, THEN.
SO THAT IS THE ELEGANT BOAT LORD PLUSHBOTTOM HAS BEEN CROWING ABOUT— POO-POOH.
DON'T BE GOOFEY, EMMY— THIS IS JUST TH' DINGY YOU ROW OUT TO THE YACHT IN.
WELL, I MUST SAY YOU COULDNT HAVE PICKED A MUCH ROUGHER PATH TO ROW IN.
WOT TH?
WATCH WHERE YOURE GOING STUPID!
FOR PITY SAKES! THE SILLY THING HAS SPRUNG A LEAK.
WE GOTTA GET HELP QUICK, EMMY. HERE- TIE THAT RED DRESS OF YOURS ON THIS OAR- AND WAVE IT. THAT OUGHTA ATTRACT SOME ATTENTION.
WELL, GIVE ME THE OAR.
ZOP!
NOW DON'T YOU DARE WAKE UP AND LOOK AROUND. I HAVE SOME MAIDENLY MODESTY.
5
MY STARS! THIS ISN'T DOING A BIT OF GOOD- THE BOAT'S GOING DOWN- I CAN GET TO SHORE ALL RIGHT MYSELF, BUT WHAT WILL I DO WITH MOON- LET ME THINK—
Z Z Z
WELL, WELL, IF IT ISN'T MISS SCHMALTZ = I'M LOOKING FOR MULLINS, I WAS GOING TO TAKE HIM OUT ON THE LAKE WITH ME-
HE'S ALREADY OUT ON THE LAKE = I LEFT HIM PARKED ON A LIFE BUOY.
ULP!
PERHAPS YOU WOULD ENJOY TAKING A RIDE ON MY BOAT, MISS SCHMALTZ.
NO, I THANK YOU, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM. I JUST SWAM HOME FROM ONE.

HURRY UP, SANDY - THE BOSS JUST GOT A NEW MONKEY CALLED AMOS - THEY SAY HE'S SMARTER AND BETTER-LOOKIN' THAN LOTS OF FOLKS -
GEE, SANDY, HE IS SOME MONK - YOU KNOW APES ARE S'POSED TO BE NEARER HUMAN THAN ANY OF THE OTHER ANIMALS -
DIDJA CATCH HIM, AMOS? 'AT A BOY - SAY, I KNOW SOMETHIN' THAT'LL KNOCK THOSE THINGS IN NO TIME -
IF AMOS IS AS INTELLIGENT AS THEY CLAIM HE'LL 'PRECIATE ANYTHING I CAN DO FOR HIM -
NOW HOLD REAL STILL, AMOS - THIS WON'T HURT AND YOU'LL BE S'PRISED HOW IT'LL RUIN THE FLEAS - YEEK!
AW, I'M AWFUL SORRY YOU DIDN'T LIKE THAT, AMOS - JUST YOU WAIT - I'LL GET YOU A SWELL COCOANUT -
THERE YOU ARE - WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT? SEE HIM GRAB THAT, SANDY? NOW I'M TALKIN' HIS LANGUAGE - MAYBE IT'S A LITTLE GREEN BUT IF YOU KEEP IT A WHILE IT'LL GET NICE AND RIPE - WE'LL BE PALS IN NO TIME - YOU SEE HE'S SO NEARLY HUMAN HE KNOWS WHAT'S WHAT - WAK!!!
TOO BLOOMIN' HUMAN TO SUIT ME - THAT'S WHAT HE IS - TAKES EVERYTHING YOU GIVE HIM AND THEN SOCKS YUH FROM BEHIND - FOR REAL PALS, YOU CAN TRUST GIVE ME JUST PLAIN DUMB ANIMALS EVERY TIME.

DIRTY DALTON DOES NOT THINK TEXAS SLIM IS A STRAIGHT SHOOTER.
AH—WONDERFUL, WONDERFUL—JUST LOOK AT THAT SKY-LINE.
I AIN'T GOT TIME—I'M LOOKING FOR MY GIRL.
Dear Sir:— This is to inform you that I'm through with you forever—you turned out to be a terrible disappointment—Don't bother me any more—sincerely, Jessie Akers
WELL, THIS SETTLES IT. I'M GOIN' TO END IT ALL.
LOANS
IT IS INDEED A PLEASURE TO HEAR YOU SAY THAT MY NIECE WILL NOT SEE THIS TEXAS PERSON AGAIN, SIR— I HAVE TRIED TO IMPRESS UPON HER THE ADVISABILITY OF ASSOCIATING WITH PEOPLE OF PROMINENCE.
THAT'S WHAT I ALWAYS SAID, MR. BEDFORD. THE LITTLE GAL OUGHT TO BE TICKLED PINK WHEN I GIVE HER THIS MESS OF GOLDFISH I WON AT TH' AMUSEMENT PARK TODAY.
I'LL SHOW HER SHE CAN'T MAKE A SAP OUT OF ME.
BANG
GOODNESS! THIS IS MOST EXTRAORDINARY, MR. DALTON.
HEH HEH—OH WELL ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN, UNCLE BEDFORD.
BING!
WHAT IN—
ULP
I THINK SOMEBODY'S DOING THAT ON PURPOSE.
HECK—THERE MUST BE SOMETHING WRONG WITH THIS. I'VE MISSED MYSELF TWICE.
AH HA!
YOU WILL TRY TO AMBUSH ME WILL YOU? YOU LOPEARED RABBIT FACED—!
HE WILL HANG FOR THIS, DALTON.
XX
WHY, TEXAS—YOU CERTAINLY GAVE ME A START. WHAT DO YOU MEAN STAYING AWAY THREE WEEKS AND THEN RUNNING INTO ME LIKE THAT?
EXCUSE ME—I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE STAYIN' HERE, MISS JESSIE—AND I WOULDN'T HAVE COME AFTER GETTIN' THIS LETTER FROM YOU IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR YOUR UNCLE AND DIRTY.
WHY THIS IS A RANK FORGERY, TEXAS. IT'S SOME OF DIRTY DALTON'S WORK. YOU GO RIGHT UP TO HIM AND GIVE HIM A PIECE OF YOUR MIND!
AND COMMIT SUICIDE—NIX!

TELL ME A STORY WON'T YOU SQUINT.
ME? I AIN'T ANY STORY TELLER, SKEEZIX. YOU OUGHT TO HEARD MY GRANDFATHER THAT CAME OUT HERE IN THE EARLY DAYS TELL STORIES.
YOU NOTICE THERE AIN'T ANY TREES AROUND THIS COUNTRY NOW. WELL THERE WAS WHEN HE SETTLED HERE IN ARIZONA. THIS WAS ALL PETRIFIED FOREST— FAR AS THE EYE COULD REACH, AN' NOTHIN' ELSE.
YESSIR, PETRIFIED TREES EVERYWHERE. I USED TO HEAR HIM TELL OF THE PETRIFIED BIRDS EATIN' THE LITTLE AGATE SCARABS WHICH INFESTED THE TRUNKS. TREES WERE TWO HUNDRED FEET TALL, THE FIRST BRANCHES A HUNDRED FEET UP SO THE BIRDS NESTED HIGH.
A PETRIFIED BLUEJAY'S EGG FELL OUT OF A NEST ONE DAY AND STRUCK THE HORSE MY GRANDAD WAS RIDIN' THRU THE WOODS RIGHT ON THE HEAD. GRANDAD WALKED TWENTY MILES HOME.
WHEN THE SAP BEGUN TO RUN IN THE SPRING MY GRANDAD USED TO KETCH IT IN BUCKETS, SPREAD IT THIN ON ONE O' THESE SMOOTH MESA TOPS TO DRY AN' USE IT FOR WINDOW GLASS. HE USED TO BLOW HIS BOTTLES OUT OF THE SAME STUFF WITH A CORN COB PIPE.
THE WOODPECKERS ALL HAD DIAMOND TIPPED BEAKS. IT WAS THE ONLY THING THEY COULD PECK HOLES WITH THAT WOULDN'T WEAR OUT. AND THE SQUIRRELS ALL STARVED TO DEATH. THEY WASN'T EQUIPPED TO CRACK THE ACORNS.
GRANDAD BUILT HIMSELF A LOG HOUSE OUT O' STONE LOGS BUT RUINED HIS AXE TRYIN' TO SPLIT SHINGLES. HE HAD TO USE BUFFALO HIDE FOR HIS ROOF. TRADED STRINGS O' PETRIFIED CHERRY BEADS TO THE INDIANS FOR IT.
THEN HE GOT THE IDEA O' SANDPAPERIN' SOME O' THE TREES AN' SELLIN' 'EM FOR COURTHOUSE PILLARS AN' SAWIN' UP INTO TABLE TOPS AN' PAPERWEIGHTS.
HE CUT CROSS-SECTIONS O' THE SOFTER TREES FOR GRINDSTONES. HE WAS THE MAN THAT INVENTED THE SQUARE AUGER FOR BORIN' THE SQUARE HOLE YOU ALWAYS SEE IN GRINDSTONES.
HE GOT TO LOGGIN' OFF HIS LAND AN' FLOATIN' THE TIMBER DOWN THE COLORADO RIVER. THAT RIVER IS SO MUDDY IT'S THE ONLY RIVER IN THE WORLD THAT WOULD FLOAT 'EM.
HE MADE A LOT O' MONEY BUT LOST IT ALL ON HIS ORCHARDS. HE TRIED TO RAISE STONELESS PEACHES HERE BUT THIS SOIL AIN'T ANY GOOD FOR THAT PURPOSE.
TOO BAD YOU COULDN'T O' HEARD SOME O' HIS STORIES, SKEEZIX.
SQUINT, DID IT KILL THE HORSE?
